MOVE TO EXTEND LINCOLN DRIVE TO SOUTH SHORE

Legislators Will Study Project.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Continuation of Lincoln Memorial drive south from the Memorial bridge through Bay View to connect with the Lake Shore boulevard to the south county line, long a dream of city planners and residents of the south shore, is to be made the subject immediately of a special study by the legislative interim committee on state through highways. This was announced today by Assemblyman A. J. Buntin.

"The state is interested in completing a continuous motorway on the lake shore through Milwaukee, as it is in any proposed through artery of the state, excepting perhaps the direct connection over highway 41 between Milwaukee and Chicago," he said. "Members of the committee, which include Senators Ben Gettelman and Walter Polakowski, are intensely interested in the Milwaukee situation, as the city is a blockade element to through traffic along the lake shore from south to north.

Not a Big Problem.

"Completion of the Lincoln drive from Wisconsin avenue to Lake park at the cost of a million dollars has constituted one of the most important incentives to the continuation. The extension across the harbor entrance and along the lake to the south city limits is not nearly as much of a problem as was the north drive.

"If it is possible to get the city interested in actually extending the drive, the state and the federal government through the state undoubtedly can be induced to furnish a substantial proportion of the cost. There is $1,800,000 of federal aid which is susceptible to allocation on projects like this and certain state funds which can be applied to help through highway expenditures would fall into this class.

"This lake drive can be made a part of the state system easily. The main requirement is the continuation of the thoroughfare south through the city. At the north and south the connection can be made with state arteries and the local portion then becomes an integral of the state route or route which it connects up.

Traffic Must Skirt City.

"At present through motor traffic is compelled to skirt the city at the west or loses much valuable time in a circular journey to north or south. While the by-pass is better than nothing, the creation of a drive along the lake shore and right at the edge of the water would be a wonderful thing for Milwaukee.

"One feature which has to do with safety and speed will be the fact that no intersections at grade of streets would exist. Some outlets to the drive would be desirable, but as there would be no complete crossings, the number of signal lights could be made negative, as it is now on the north drive. This would permit high speed with safety, and 35 miles an hour through the city would be conservative.

"From every point of view such a drive for through traffic would be beneficial in a high degree to the city of Milwaukee. It would permit tourists and travelers to pass over a drive which would show off Milwaukee to best advantage, and it would give to the people of Milwaukee a beautiful drive at the edge of the lake which would permit more of our people to enjoy access to the water of Lake Michigan.

Prefer Lake Drive.

"The mass of traffic routed from all parts of the United States north from Chicago, would prefer to travel along the lake shore from north of Racine, to Manitowoc and Door county, instead of circling to the west of Milwaukee and around the entire city. It will be possible for them to do so if the shore boulevard is constructed."

Mr. Buntin pointed out that the lake drive through Chicago, although carrying as large a volume as 90,000 vehicles a day, is safer and faster and vastly more satisfactory as a route through the Chicago area than the by-pass to the west.

Can Save an Hour.

His experiences as a driver have convinced him that even as conditions exist today in Chicago, a traveler can save an hour by going through the city along the lake shore, as compared with a roundabout by-pass over Lincoln road and back east on Lincoln highway, to say nothing of the long and uninteresting scenery at the outskirts.

"Within a few weeks it is our intention to call together city planners, other officials, advancement associations of the south side, park authorities and all who may be interested, Mr. Buntin said, "for the purpose of formulating a definite plan with which to proceed upon this project."

MARKET REBOUNDS AND NEW TRADING MARK IS RECORDED

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The stock market staged a comeback that will go down in history today. Buying orders poured in from every section of the globe and net gains ranging as high as fifty points were registered.

Despite the fact that the session lasted only two hours a new record in the total number of issues traded in during one day was reached. The total was 1,126 different stocks, which is considerably in excess of any previous total of the list in which trades took place in any one session.

The biggest advance was established by Commercial Solvents which pushed up for a net advance of fifty points to a close of 600. The tobacco issues marked up some notable gains. American Tobacco B soared 38 points and the common stock was up 36 points.

Bandit Girl Reveals Her True Identity

The trim young woman who tried robbing a guest of the Chicago Beach hotel last Thursday with chloroform and a toy pistol told the Hyde Park police last night that she is Joan La Costa of Memphis, Tenn., a professional automobile racing driver, who gained wide publicity in 1926 when her car burst into flames in a speed trial at Daytona Beach, Fla.

For two days the girl has insisted she was Mrs. Josephine Rust, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and the wife of a Canadian bootlegger. Her story was that her husband had driven her to the hotel, thrust into her hands the imitation pistol and a wad of cotton drenched with chloroform, and commanded her to get the jewels of the woman in room 602.

The intended victim, Mrs. Rebecca Bobbe, grappled with the girl until other guests and hotel attendants came to her aid.

Admits Husband Is Fiction.

Rust, the young woman, admitted with sobs last night, was a fictional character invented to conceal her true identity, save her parents disgrace, and divide the burden of guilt. She gained knowledge of Mrs. Bobbe's residence, habits, and jewels through an acquaintance with her intended victim's brother-in-law, Hyman Bobbe, a furniture salesman of 6445 University avenue, she said.

"I have known Mr. Bobbe for six years," she said. "We were both interested in automobile racing. A few weeks ago we lunched together and I told him I was broke and utterly discouraged.

"He seemed sympathetic and said he would be able to help me if he had as much money as his brother, Joseph Bobbe. It was then that I first thought of the robbery scheme and I asked Mr. Bobbe many questions about the habits of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bobbe. Of course, I didn't tell Hyman Bobbe my purpose."

Bobbe Corroborates Story.

Hyman Bobbe, a man of 50 years, was informed by the police of the girl's statement and went to the station with his wife. He said he was acquainted with Miss La Costa and recalled what he thought was an innocent discussion of his brother's affairs with her. He was not detained.

Miss La Costa said she lived at the Lorraine hotel, 411 South Wabash avenue, and spent her time at aviation fields and race tracks where she lost most of her money. She will be arraigned in felony court tomorrow morning on charges of assault and attempted burglary.

LINDY TO START AIR HUNT OVER JUNGLES TODAY

BELIZE, British Honduras, Oct. 5. (AP)—The Lindbergh archaeological air expedition was completed this afternoon with the arrival of Dr. Alfred V. Kidder from Miami by airplane. The exploration of the Yucatan area of Mexico, for ruins of the ancient Maya civilization will begin tomorrow.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is to be the only pilot on the exploring ship, although he will be accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, who has had experience in handling a plane. Dr. Kidder, head of the archaeological department of the Carnegie institution, will be assisted as guide and observer by Dr. Oliver Ricketson of the institution, who is known as one of the foremost authorities on this almost vanished race and its culture. The only other person on the plane will be a radio operator.

Col. Lindbergh has given emphatic instructions that no search is to be made for the party unless they should be missing for at least two days. The announced plans call for the return of the plane here each evening. During the next four or five days different sections of the tropical jungle will be surveyed from the air. The flights will carry the scientists over northeastern Guatemala, British Honduras and the states of Quintana Roo and Campeche in Mexico.

BLACK AND TAN CLUB IS RAIDED; 350 ARRESTED

The Dunbar club, black and tan gambling resort at 3441 Michigan boulevard, for years immune to police interference, was raided late yesterday by Chief Investigator Patrick Roche and his force of detectives from the state's attorney's office.

Roche and his men swooped down in their first raid on a black belt resort, surrounded the place, and then took 350 prisoners, about equally divided between blacks and whites. Every sort of known gambling device and game was in operation, according to the raiders.

The prisoners were placed in cells in nearby police stations. Each is to be taken through the police bureau of identification in a sift for criminals with records. They also will be taken to the general police showups at the detective bureau today.

Roche said the resort was operated by partners named Dunbar and Coe, but that neither was found in the place.

MRS. GANN MERE NO. 3 AS ISHBEL GOES ACALLING

Mrs. Stimson First; Mrs. Taft Next.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Ishbel MacDonald, who doesn't seem to care where she sits at an American dinner table, went to call this morning on Mrs. Dolly Gann, who is said to care quite a bit. The daughter-hostess for Great Britain's prime minister and the sister-hostess for our Vice President didn't discuss the bothersome question of precedence.

But it is possible that the visit set a precedent, for Miss MacDonald called first on Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state, second on Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the chief justice, and third on Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, half sister of Vice President Curtis. And this sequence was a direct reversal of the order in which current rules rank the trio.

An Expert Comments.

A state department anaylsist of social situations, clothing his remarks in the protective coloring of an informal chat rather than in the trappings of an official statement, pointed out that protocol etiquette places Mrs. Gann first, Mrs. Taft second, and Mrs. Stimson third.

"But," he added emphatically, "it would be ridiculous to expect anybody, in paying a few calls, to observe the same rigorous rules as in seating at formal dinner."

Miss MacDonald, obviously disinclined to paying too much attention to rigorous rules, left the British embassy with Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the British ambassador, and went at once to Mrs. Stimson. Since Mrs. Stimson was "not at home" they left cards and went on to the Taft home, here again they "carded" than rather than called.

Actually See Mrs. Gann.

In spite that she was number three, Mrs. Gann was number one to receive a real call. For Mrs. Gann was waiting in the vice presidential suite of the Hotel Mayflower where she had arrived only two hours earlier after a journey from Kansas. She was just sending down to the railway station for her trunks when a reported telephoned her news of the coming visit. Presently the British embassy telephoney verification. Mrs. Gann got a cup of coffee, refreshed herself with a dab of perfume, and was ready when the guests came.

"It was such a friendly, pleasant call," she explained later, "but not official, of course."

Mrs. Gann found the Scotch girl, whom she had never met, a "competent charming young woman," detected in her "a keen interest in our country"; but said she made no special queries about Kansas or the middle west.

Canadian Legation Next Stop.

From the Mayflower, Miss Mac Donald and Lady Isabella went to the Canadian legation, to call on Mrs. Vincent Massey, wife of the minister. The serious illness of Mrs. Michael McWhite, wife of the Irish Free State minister, struck from their list a possible fifth call, and the absence from Washington of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth prevented Ramsay Mac Donald's daughter from meeting Theodore Roosevelt's daughter.

Whether or not they will meet at the White House dinner Monday is a matter of sharp speculation, for nobody yet knows whether Mrs. Longworth will be back in town by then.

Later this afternoon, at the small luncheon which Mr. and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart gave for her; and still later at the White House, where she reviewed a troop of Girl Scouts, Miss Mac Donald made it clear that she meant what she said in an interview this morning. Then, standing in the drawing room of the British embassy, she explained, "I have not come here to preach to American women that would be such a bad thing to do."

She Sticks To England.

And every now and again, when somebody asked her what she thought of women in politics, or of married women in industry, or of the ceremony of edging one's lips with geranium tinted paste, she would repeat, "I am not here to preach."

Then, limiting her remarks to England, she said, "In politics, women have made good; but they're going to make better."

And again, "In the north of England many married women work in

Three Wives Trade Blows Over Aviator

The involved domestic affairs of Carl Gibson, 33 years old, an armless aviator, who was disposed to frequent marriage but disliked divorce, were unravelled yesterday in the Warren avenue police station. The first, second, and third Mrs. Gibson all participated.

The aviator's second wife, Mrs. Jessie Nichols Gibson, 29 years old, was the complainant. She walked into Capt. Charles Essig's office about 1 p. m. and demanded her husband be arrested for bigamy.

Came Home with New Wife.

"He came home ten days ago with a new wife," she said. "I agreed to get out and live alone in a kitchenette if he'd pay the rent. The new Mrs. Gibson promised to take care of my two children."

"Neither of them kept their word and I want them jailed," she concluded.

A squad was dispatched to the Gibson abode, 3125 Congress street. Gibson, a superintendent of the Greer Aviation school in Elmhurst, was away at work but his latest wife was home.

"I divorced my first husband, William Gilles, and am Mr. Gibson's lawful wife," she proclaimed. "If you don't believe it call up Mr. Gilles at the barber shop in Oak Park. If Mr. Gibson's in trouble, I'll go through fire for him."

"You'll go to the station with me, ma'am," said Sergt. William Brophy.

Original Mrs. Gibson Chimes In.

"I'm going, too," chimed in another woman in the kitchen. She stepped out, donning her wraps, and identified herself as the original Mrs. Gibson, now Mrs. Rose Kelly Gibson Manley. She had tired of her legal mate, Manley and had returned with her 9 year old son, Charles Gibson, to live with Charley's dad and his new wife.

Sergt. Brophy agreed that Mrs. Manley and Gibson's first offspring had better come along.

"You stole Carl from me," said Mrs. Jessie Nichols Gibson when all three wives were brought together in the station. "Now my toes are out of my shoes and there's nothing in the house for my children."

"Didn't I give you my alimony and collect my ex-husband's tips in the barber shop to buy you a dress," retorted the third Mrs. Gibson.

Wed Second too Soon.

Mrs. Manley then explained that Gibson had married his second wife within a year of his divorce from herself. His haste invalidated the second marriage, Mrs. Manley argued, and Capt. Essig upheld her claim after consulting the statute books.

The bickering became bitter and Gibson's three consorts finally resorted to blows. Capt. Essig enjoined peace by placing each in a separate cell for the night.

Gibson was arrested last night. He probably will be charged with bigamy.

Reveal Burial Alive Was Fatal Publicity Stunt

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Henri Boulogne was said tonight to have confessed to the police who arrested him that the burial alive of Clement Passal, alias marquis de Champaubert, was a publicity stunt that ended fatally by accident. Police had been guided to the burial coffin, from which protruded a rubber tube, by anonymous letters. These claimed that a group of aristocrats calling themselves "Knights of Themis" had executed vengeance on the fake nobleman to atone for the laxity of French law.

PRESIDENT AND PREMIER TRADE VIEWS IN HILLS

Confer in Auto, Then Around Fire.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Cut off from the world in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, the heads of the two great English speaking nations are taking counsel of each other over the week-end on ways and means to relieve their own peoples and all mankind of the burden of arming for war.

The first of these conversations between President Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald, premier of Great Britain, took place on the three and a half hour drive from the White House to the President's fishing camp on the headwaters of the Rapidan river, 100 miles from Washington. The two statesmen were the only passengers in the car on this drive.

After dinner at the camp there was further discussion before a roaring log fire of the projects which these two idealists—the one the humanitarian of socialism, the other the humanitarian of capitalism—have equally at heart. Together they began the exploration of paths to disarmament and the preservation of world peace.

Four Attend Conference.

Participating in the evening talk around the fireplace were Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Sir Robert Vansittart, British undersecretary of state for foreign affairs and secretary to the prime minister.

The party arrived at the camp at 6:15 o'clock.

Mr. MacDonald was housed in a cabin on the opposite side of a creek from that occupied by President and Mrs. Hoover.

Dinner was served in a cabin capable of seating 24 guests. The British embassy had telephoned the White House during the day to inquire if Mr. MacDonald should take his evening clothes and had been informed that the President never "dresses" for dinner when in camp.

Deliberations Secret.

These are all the details that percolated from the camp to the outside world, elaborate precautions having been taken to guard the deliberations of the two statesmen and their confidential aids. Ten miles from the camp a detail of marines barred access to the retreat. The only telephone line was that between the camp and the White House and the only information of what was taking place on the Rapidan was obtainable from the President's secretary, who guarded the White House end of the wire.

It is expected that an official disclosure of the results of the conversations of Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald will be made, either after their return from the camp or at the close of the prime minister's visit to Washington.

Agreement Held Essential.

That the question of navy reduction on a basis of the equality of the British and American sea forces is the burden of the discussion in the Blue Ridge is taken for granted. Both Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald recognize that agreement between the two principal sea powers of the world on a general plan of navy reduction is essential to the successful negotiation of an agreement among the five naval powers and to an eventual agreement of the land as well as sea powers on general disarmament.

It is known that what Mr. Hoover is proposing to Mr. MacDonald in these conversations is virtually a challenge to Great Britain to make such a sacrifice of ships as the United States made at the Washington arms conference of 1921-'22. To put it baldly, it is a challenge to the sincerity and good faith of the present British government, which professes to be desirous of such a reduction of navy strength as will reduce the burden of the British taxpayer.

Hoover Wants Reduction.

What Mr. Hoover wants, as he has stated repeatedly, is not merely limitation of naval strength, but reduction. What he is aiming at is a reduction of such extent that it will mean an enormous saving to British tax payers and considerable diminution of the amount it will cost American tax payers for the ships that must be built to bring the American navy up to parity with the British. For, the disparity between the two navies is such today, that whatever the reduction Great Britain agrees to, it will be necessary for America to build up ships to attain equality.

But if Mr. MacDonald is really going to reduce the British tax burden, it will be necessary for him to scrap existing British ships with almost as free a hand as Harding and Hughes scrapped American ships at the Washington conference. So far, however, Mr. MacDonald has not consented to any reduction of a character that would mean a lowering of British taxes.

52 Cruisers Afloat.

The British have actually afloat and in commission today, a total of 52 cruisers, aggregating 311,991 tons. Now, what is the reduction they propose? In the negotiations preceding the departure of Mr. MacDonald for America, the British pronounced 50 cruisers aggregating 339,000 tons, the absolute minimum. They would scrap a number of small cruisers that are obsolete anyway, and replace them with a group of new cruisers, two less in number, but so much larger individually as to add 27,000 tons to the aggregate British cruiser strength.

This would mean no reduction of British taxes. In fact, it probably would mean an increase. The inference is that Mr. MacDonald has found himself not so free to reduce navy cost as he would like to be. He is a pacifist of so extreme a type that he was ostracized as a defeatist during the world war and expelled by his golf club in which it took his elevation to the prime ministership to bring about his reinstatement. If he were to consult his pacifistic instincts alone Mr. MacDonald doubtless would take the lead in navy scrapping. But at the head of the nation which is still the mistress of the sea and reluctant to yield that position, he has been compelled to compromise with his pacifistic principles.

Some idea of the restraint under which the prime minister labors in making the concessions required of Great Britain if there is to be actual navy reduction, is conveyed by P. W. Wilson, a British publicist who writes:

Fights for Party's Life.

"MacDonald is fighting for the very life of his party and political self. He has still to face two forces none the less powerful because they are silent and unseen. First, there is the foreign office, French in etiquette, with its grudge against a new world which canceled the Anglo-Japanese alliance, and its intense jealousy of the democratic interests which dominate the United States and the British dominions. Secondly, there is the admiralty, claiming the last word on security, seeing no security except in tonnage and calibres, and insisting that calculations be based on the supposition that the United States is a potential enemy."

A confession that the admiralty was staying his hand in the negotiations with Mr. Hoover was implicit in the recent remarks of the prime minister before leaving London that he had gone as far toward meeting the American proposals of navy reduction as he could without precipitating resignations from the admiralty.

Hoover for 21 Cruisers.

Admiralty influence is supposed to explain the failure of the MacDonald counter proposals in the preliminary negotiations to accord naval parity to America. The British were unwilling to allow the United States more than 18 eight-inch gun cruisers, while they allotted themselves 15 eight-inch and 4 seven and one-half-inch gun cruisers of virtually the same power. The American navy general board flatly refused to accept such terms on the ground that parity would not be established thereby. As matters now stand Mr. Hoover is holding out for 21 big cruisers, though whether that would establish parity is open to question.

It was soon after their luncheon at the British embassy that Mr. MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, drove to the White House to be the guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover until next Tuesday. About 2:30 o'clock the party set out for the Rapidan camp. Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald emerged from the White House without overcoats and were comprehensively photographed on the north portico. Then the two statesmen stepped into the White House limousine and were wisked away. Mrs. Hoover and Miss MacDonald followed in the next car. Secretary and Mrs. Stimson drove from their home in their own car.

Stenographer in Party.

That a discussion of importance at the camp was anticipated was indicated by the fact that included in the party was a White House stenographer and also Miss Rose Rosenberg, Mr. MacDonald's personal secretary and stenographer.

The forenoon was devoted by Mr. MacDonald to a round of calls with Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador. First they called on Vice President Curtis at his office in the senate wing of the capitol. The prime minist was closeted with the vice presidented for ten minutes. Then Mr. Curtis accompanied Mr. MacDonald to the chambers of the Supreme court, where the prime minister made a formal call on Chief Justice Taft. A few minutes later Mr. Taft, Mr. Curtis, and Mr. MacDonald walked out to the senate portico, where they posed for the photographers.

No call was made on the speaker of the house for the reason that Mr. Longworth is not in Washington, although the house is technically in session. While awaiting senate action on the tariff bill, the house is taking a three-day recess with only a handful of members in attendance, presided over by a speaker pro tempore designated by Mr. Longworth.

Longsworths Are Away.

The Longworths will not be in Washington during the visit of the prime minister. If they were to accept invitations to the dinners given for the visitors, Mrs. Longworth would be compelled to yield precedence to Mrs. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis. Mrs. Longworth is known to have refused invitations entailing such submission.

From the capitol the prime minister was driven to the state department where he made an official call upon Secretary Stimson. During the call the under-secretary and assistant-secretary were introduced to Mr. MacDonald. Then for half an hour the prime minister was closed in private talk with Mr. Stimson. When asked what they talked about Mr. Stimson made this enlightening reply:

"The talks we have had served the purpose, which is after all the main purpose as I understand it so far as it concerns me, of giving me the most interesting, attractive, and charming picture of a man I had never met before and we have already reached a basis of frank and friendly discussion, which on my part I shall be very happy to treasure as a memory and, I am sure, will help me in understanding some of my duties in the future."

Lloyd George Takes Cold; Suffers High Temperature

NOTTINGHAM, England, Oct. 5.—[U.P.]—David Lloyd George, former premier of England, fought off the effects of a severe chill today, and with a doctor's permission returned to London. He had been confined to bed earlier in the day with a high temperature and abnormal pulse that caused great anxiety. He was believed to have contracted the chill yesterday at a Liberal party massmeeting.

BRITAIN TO SCRAP USELESS SHIPS IF PACT IS REACHED

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Great Britain already has plans carefully worked out in event of her success at putting over her ideas regarding naval disarmament. According to the list of ships doomed to destruction if England's ideas prevail, which the Sunday Times will print tomorrow, England plans the same move as that which caught the United States napping once before. Great Britain will make a gesture of scrapping old ships already slated for retirement, replacing them with new and modern units.

Great Britain proposes to scrap twenty obsolete cruisers and build seven up-to-date vessels to replace them.

The obsolete six inch gun ships Britain is planning to scrap are the Birmingham, Conquest, Lowestoft, and Yarmouth. She goes all the way to the Australian navy to find two other useless ships, the Melbourne and Sydney. All these ships were laid down before the war and are already off or just coming off of active duty. Most of the rest of the ships that Britain will "sacrifice" come from older vessels of the C class which were launched during the early part of the war. They are the Comus, Cleopatra, Champion, Cambrian, Castor, Calliops, Carysfoot, Constance, Canterbury, Centaur, Dartmouth, and Concord. All are practically useless in event of the outbreak of war.

the mills, but it is due to economic pressure. Their husbands don't earn enough money."

To the question of cosmetics and costumes, she made a direct, visible answer. Her face had no rouge, powder, or lipstick. And she was wearing the same simple, comfortable ensemble suit she wore yesterday.

When she declined to discuss clothes as being "too personal," and when she merely laughed when somebody queried the inevitable, "It is true you are engaged to be married?" the questioners let her lead the conversation, and she took it right back to London and Juvenile court work, and the county council, and political campaigns.

Of her own speechmaking, she said, "I never speak extemporaneously, but I never write it out, or make notes. I think out a speech carefully, however."

Contrasting the brilliant, crowded welcome Washington is giving her now, with the quiet, subdued visit of two years ago, she exclaimed heartily "the quiet one was really the nicer."

Then, as if to balance the fervor of that remark, she added quickly, "but please don't think I didn't like it in New York yesterday, and the crowds here. Everywhere one could feel the warmth of sincerity in it."

And later this afternoon she slipped away from the official pattern of life and went, with her father and President and Mrs. Hoover to the camp in the Blue Ridge mountains, where a gray sky cast a homelike Scotch mist over the distinguished young woman from Lossiemouth.

35,000 WORDS ON MacDONALD ARE CABLED ABROAD

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The first twenty-four hours spent by Prime Minister MacDonald in the United States on this visit resulted in the cabling of about 35,000 words of newspaper copy abroad. The Western Union Telegraph company announced today that it had handled 20,000 words, most of it to the larger British dailies. The Postal Telegraph company, which operates the Commercial Cables, had made no accurate count, but estimated that 15,000 words had gone over its cables.

One large London newspaper alone took one-fifth of the total carried by the Western Union. Much of the material was filed by British journalists, but American press associations were well represented. The possibility that other days may surpass the first one was seen in the rapidly increasing amount of press copy handled toward the close of the first day.

WORLD BANK TO RESERVE SEATS FOR AMERICANS

Keep Door Open for Active U. S. Participation.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BADEN BADEN, Germany, Oct. —The subcommittee examining the trusteeship of the Young plan reparations bank for reparations met today with Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago as the American member.

It was pointed out that the presence of an American on this committee does not imply that the United States has an interest in the reparations payments or distribution, but merely in order that American members of the commission here to create the international bank may keep acquainted with all aspects of the problem.

Will Keep Door Open.

The principal function of the American delegates is to keep the door open for eventual participation in the super-bank by the United States, either the federal reserve bank or private bank groups, or both.

It is not expected that there will be any change in the attitude of the present administration, which distinctly opposes the federal reserve bank collaborating with the super-bank, but the belief is held that America probably will untimately participate in the bank for the protection of American interests and to aid in the simplification of international financing which the super-bank is expected to produce.

Reserve Places for Yanks.

European powers already have indicated a readiness to allot America a similar number of places on boards of governors, directors, and other supervising trustees as any of the other nations.

It is expected that these will be filled by private Americans, selected with the approval of Washington, but without official recognition by the American government.

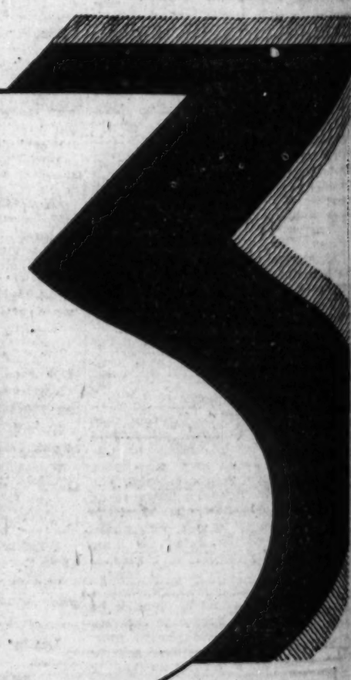
STEINWAY



FOR four generations the name "Steinway" has represented the foremost fine piano. A natural sequence to this world-wide reputation has often been a mistaken belief that Steinway ownership is beyond the reach of most incomes. People, to whom a Steinway would mean so much, have allowed this fiction to stand between themselves and the one instrument which would assure them the uttermost in musical satisfaction—the true expression of their talent and their children's talent. They have denied themselves all this (sometimes forever)—only because they did not really know how easy Steinway is to obtain. A new booklet, "Four Easy Roads to Steinway Ownership," will be sent you for the asking. You will be surprised at the facts and figures which your name and address in the space below will bring you. ## ADER KILLED 3 ALS AND SELF IN RISON REVOLT

dded" Guards Before "Executing" Them.

Cañon City, Colo., Oct. 5.—(AP)—e vicious determination of one man mong the four criminals who were e bottom of the mutiny at the ate penitentiary here which re- ted in the killing of 12 men, the uelties of a dozen others and de- uction of the prison by fire, it ap- ared tonight as investigators pushed eir inquiry.

Danny Daniels, holdup man, was e moving spirit of the break for edom and is credited with eleven of e killings, including the taking of s own life.

Six aides, all of whom he put to ath when the futility of further re- stance was realized, were James Par- r, A. H. Davis and George [Red] ley.

Seven guards were slaughtered and ur other guards wounded before ops ended the mutiny early Fri- y by committing suicide.

Stories told today by convicts and surviving guards indicated that few the prisoners were in sympathy with e plans of Daniels and his follow- s.

How Ringleaders Died.

The first eyewitness story of the ne of horror came today from the ps of a convict who stood next to ley in which Danny Daniels ded out the lives of three of his ds, and then his own.

"At about 4 o'clock in the morn- g," said the convict, "Danny, who d been walking up and down the ridor in cellhouse number 3, called ley' Riley and A. H. Davis to him m his cell.

"'Boys,' he told them, 'we're fight- g a losing battle. What will we

"Pardue spoke up and said: 'Danny, t it with me before the guards get Davis and Riley agreed.

"The two stood up. Daniels went o the cell, shot Pardue in the head, en shot Davis and Riley.

Blows Out Own Brains.

"Then Daniels went outside the cell, alked up and down for a minute and en said, 'Well, my pals are gone. 'll end it.'

"He put the gun to his head and ulled the trigger."

The convict told how Daniels "exe- uted" the guards he held prisoner.

"Danny questioned each guard be- ore he killed him. He told J. J. Eel- s the first guard killed in cellhouse umber 3, that he was going to kill im because he had hanged so many ondemned convicts. He fired four ons into his body.

"Then he went along the cells and old the other guards that he could not o the same with them because he idn't have enough shells. 'You'll ave to get along with one slug,' he old them.

"His methods were cruel. He told ach guard beforehand when his time ould come and then at intervals be- ore he shot them he went to their ells and 'kidded them."

AUTOS CLAIM 4 MORE LIVES; TOLL NOW 683

After 24 hours unmarred by auto- mobile fatalities, Cook county's 1929 motor toll moved ahead to 683 yester- day. The victims:

Joseph Sidlo, 6 years old, 1824 West 23d street. Run over by a truck in front of his home and died in St. Anthony's hospital. Police held the truck driver, Frank Lotrich, 1933 South Trumbull avenue, for the in- quest.

Joseph Krutillo, 6 years old, 635 East 92d place. The boy clambered on the rear of a parked ice truck and was jolted off and run over when the driver, Dominic Petro, 8125 Ellis ave- nue, reversed the vehicle. Joseph was pronounced dead at the Burnside hospital and police booked Petro on a technical charge of manslaughter.

Mrs. Mary Fitzsimmons, 65 years old, a widow living at 317 South Throop street. While crossing Jack- son boulevard at Throop street, she was struck by the car of Michael Bac- cash, 5615 Wayne avenue. Baccash drove her to the County hospital, where she died.

George Eberlen, 81 years old, 2175 Wilson avenue, who was born in 1848 in the old Fremont house at Lake and Dearborn streets. Died in the Ravens- wood hospital of injuries suffered Sept. 27 when he was run over at Lawrence and Winchester avenues.

CANNON ASKS DRY LAW AMENDMENT TO JAIL ALL WHO BUY A DRINK

Richmond, Va., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., chairman of the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, today said the time had come to amend the Volstead act so as to place the buyer and seller of intoxi- cants on the same footing before the law. He made this statement in com- menting on the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia holding the purchase of liquor not an offense under the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

"The purpose of the 18th amend- ment is to prohibit traffic in intoxicat- ing liquors," Bishop Cannon said. "Buyers and sellers are both neces- sary to the traffic, and both are there- fore equally responsible for its con- tinuance. The openly declared pur- pose of certain citizens, many of them of wealth and high social position, to flaunt the beneficent aim of the law and to continue to purchase intoxi- cants, even at exorbitant prices and with knowledge that the bootleggers from whom they purchase are all criminals, frequently guilty of high- way robbery and murder, compels the conclusion that the time has come to so amend the Volstead act that the purchase of intoxicants shall be made an offense equal with the sale and transportation."

CONFESSED ROBBERS SENTENCED.

Jerseyville, Ill., Oct. 5.—[U.P.]—Charles Buchanan and Edward Willis, who confessed to the robbery of the Fieldon State bank, were sentenced to indeterminate terms in the state reformatory at Pontiac by Circuit Judge Norman L. Jones here today.

PRINCE ADMITS HE'LL WED GIRL OF CANDY SHOP

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Announcement was made today at Aix-les-Bains by the Aga Khan himself of his intention to marry, on Dec. 4, the pretty French working girl, Andree Carron, whom he is said to have first seen serving behind the counter in a candy store at Aix-les-Bains. A report of the en- gagement was first published several weeks ago, but it was at once denied by the Aga Khan. Mlle. Carron, how- ever, later admitted that the marriage was contemplated.

The story is not exactly parallel to that of King Cophetua and the beggar maid, for while the Aga Khan, as head of the Indian Mussulmans, is one of the richest men in the world and holds a social position in France and England equivalent to his rank, Mlle. Carron is of good middleclass birth, her father being the director of a Paris hotel. It was due to the fact that she was seen helping her aunt in a chocolate shop at Aix-les- Bains that the report spread that the religious head of Indian Mohammedan- ism had first seen her there.

His fiancée, who is a tall brunette, formerly worked as a modiste in Paris, where her sister is in business. She is a good golf and tennis player. She will be the second Christian wife of the Mussulman leader, his first wife having been the Princess Helene of Italy, who died some years ago, leav- ing two children. Unlike the Maha- ranfe of Indore, the former Nancy Miller, Mlle. Carron has announced she will not change her religion.

ADMIRAL RIPS INTO CHURCHILL ON WAR POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Winston Church- ill, chancellor of the exchequer in the last government and first lord of the admiralty during the war, who has been visiting in Chicago, is fiercely attacked as "a headstrong political novice," and charged with effecting the resignation of Lord Fisher from the admiralty during the critical war period, in Admiral Sir R. H. Bacon's official biography of Lord Fisher, pub- lished today.

The book defends Lord Fisher for not resigning until after Mr. Church- ill's distastrous Dardanelles project in 1915, by saying he was against the project from the start.

Mr. Churchill's services to the navy, says the book, were largely diluted with failure.

DEVER'S WILL IS FILED; ESTATE SET AT $150,000

Friends and Relatives to Get $25,500.

The will of former Mayor William E. Dever, which he had signed jointly with his wife, Mrs. Katherine E. Dever, was filed yesterday before Mitchell E. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The estate amounts to about $150,000, according to estimates. Ex- cept for special bequests, the property will be left in trust upon the widow's death to the two adopted sons, George and Daniel Dever.

Mr. Dever, who was mayor of Chi- cago from 1923 to 1927, died at his home at 5901 Kenmore avenue on Sept. 3 from cancer. He was 67 years old.

Bequests to friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Dever amount to $25,500, but these bequests will not be paid until after Mrs. Dever's death. Her sister, Mrs. Harriet Cunningham, Cambridge, Mass., will receive $10,000; Mary McCafferty, her niece, $5,000; John McCafferty, Salamanca, N. Y., her nephew, $1,000; Helen Phillips, a niece, $1,000, and Rosina Newman, niece, $3,000.

Mr. Dever's niece, Eunice McGuire of Alston, Mass., receives $2,000, and Edward Sullivan, 3839 Maplewood ave- nue, his friend of long standing, was bequeathed $2,000. The Charles Chote Memorial hospital, Woburn, Mass., re- ceives $500 and the Home for Desti- tute Crippled Children $1,000.

The will was drawn on July 15, 1927, following Mr. Dever's retirement from politics and his taking of the position of vice president and trust officer of the Bank of America, which has since been merged with the Cen- tral Trust company.

'WALK TO WORK' TOWN TO SPRING UP IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Bat- tery Tower, the $10,000,000 forty story apartment hotel which is to be built as the first unit in Walk to Work town at the lower end of Manhattan, will make a bright mark on the sky- line, according to detailed plans for the building announced today by Al- bert Moyer, president of Downtown Homes, Inc., the builders.

A group of old tenements already has been torn down for the project, which will be completed in the fall of 1930.

The building will contain 427 apart- ments of from one to four rooms, and 255 hotel rooms.

SCHOOL LAWYER SUBMITS QUIZ ON REASSESSMENTS

Thomas V. Sullivan, an assistant school board attorney, yesterday sub- mitted questions to Harry S. Cutmore, director of the county real estate re- assessment, John O. Rees, tax expert, and members of the board of assess- ors. The questions make official in- quiry in behalf of the school board's contention that loop real estate ap- praisals have been reduced $300,000,000 below the 1927 valuations. The board also seeks another reply to the asser- tion that the reassessment has cut loop appraisals by 15 per cent in order to reduce the tax revenues of the city and the board of education.

D. A. R. DEMANDS NAVY STRONG AS ANY OTHER POWER

Convention Appeals to Hoover and Cabinet.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—A memorial to President Hoover urging the maintenance of a United States navy and army comparable to that of any other nation, because "no national impotence or weakness ever has developed as a boon to the world," was adopted here today at the state convention of the Daughters of the American revolution.

The resolution was accepted as a foregone conclusion following the main business session yesterday, when Mrs. Vinton E Sisson, Chicago, vice chairman on national defense, and Mrs. James Trottman, state regent, delivered addresses which bristled with remarks concerning America's inadequate military forces on land and sea.

Provide For Defense.

"While we desire peace with and good will towards all nations, and have the utmost respect for every effort pending to promote international friendship, we feel that we should do violence not only to the best interests of our country, but to the cause of freedom, justice and equality everywhere if our national government should fail to provide fully for our defense," was the opinion expressed the in the opening paragraph of the memorial.

Continuing, it declared:

"We therefore urge upon our present national administration that in any plan of readjustment of naval strength of the nations it should be plainly and courageously pointed out that anything less than the equal strength of any other navy in the world is intolerable alike to our intelligence as to our needs."

The resolution also was forwarded to all cabinet members.

Oath of Allegiance.

A bill is to be presented at the next session of the legislature asking that all instructors in colleges and schools of Wisconsin be required to take an oath of allegiance to the United States and state, as now is required in Indiana.

Another resolution provides for a vigilantes committee of D. A. R. members throughout the state for the purpose of keeping the state group informed on the spread of communism. This, it is believed, was occasioned by the fact that a communists' school for children under sixteen years of age was established at Paddock's lake, in Kenosha county, this summer.

SHERIFF PROHIBITS HIS DEPUTIES ACTING AS ROADHOUSE BOUNCERS

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Deputy sheriffs of Milwaukee county hereafter will not act as bouncers in roadhouses, if a notice to that effect posted at the jail by Sheriff Charles Reichenbach today means anything.

The sheriff did not amplify this statement proscribing roadhouse duties, but it is known that some deputies have been earning spare change at bouncing during their off hours, to say nothing of the privileges roadhouses afford, food, and perhaps drinks if deputies drank.

A prominent Milwaukee doctor admitted a few days ago that he had taken aboard a few too many at a roadhouse party, but he resented being knocked cold by a deputy sheriff. Since the officer was off duty, the doctor didn't believe he had the authority to hit him.

BRITISH EXPLAIN SHEARER PAPER AS 'JUST A JOKE'

"Written by an Irishman as a Burlesque."

[Copyright: 1920: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—According to declarations made here, the so-called secret British document cited by William B. Shearer in the senate inquiry and purported to have been written by Sir William Wiseman, one-time head of the British secret service in the United States, was actually written ten years ago by a young Irishman, formerly employed in British propaganda work in America.

It was intended by him as a joking satire on English propaganda efforts in America. The author is said to have sent copies to Sir William Wiseman, then in Paris, who showed it as a joke to President Wilson and Col. House.

"Nothing But a Joke."

These statements are contained in an article in the London Observer by S. K. Ratcliffe, a well known English writer. Mr. Ratcliffe said he could not at this time give the name of the author of the document.

"There was no secret British document," he said. "It was not a document at all. It was not even a fake. It was nothing more or less than a lark, joke, squib, a trivial piece of high spirited nonsense turned out ten years ago by an amusing and unusual Irishman who had done service for England during the war and was known to many of us in America after its close.

"I ran into this unsuspected man of destiny in New York a short time before his little masterpiece was issued from an obscure downtown press. It was a thin pamphlet purporting to summarize subterranean enteprises of the British government in furtherance of an astounding conspiracy for a reconquest of America.

"Shearer was right in just one particular. It was thrown into the form of a burlesque report sent from New York to the prime minister by Sir William Wiseman, whose position as director of the British secret service in America made him, of course, familiar to all journalists."

Prizes are paid at THE TRIBUNE news room, Trust company building, and a new group is printed in the Milwaukee final edition every morning.

DELAY NAMING PUBLIC WORKS COMMISSIONER

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—An indefinite delay in the appointment of a commissioner of public works to succeed Roland E. Stoelting was indicated tonight by nonpartisan aldermen.

The name of David McKeith, deputy commissioner and Socialist appointee of Mayor Daniel W. Hoan and selection of the six Socialist aldermen in the council will be laid over for a period of two weeks when submitted to the common council at its regular meeting next Monday, it was learned today.

Considerable discussion has resulted from the uncertainty displayed by the mayor and his Socialist associates in the council to decide upon an appointment which would meet the approval of nonpartisans. John Donaghey, former state highway commissioner, was favorably mentioned three weeks ago but a caucus of the minority in the council with the mayor failed to produce sufficient backing for him, although he was expected to have the support of Socialists and nonpartisans alike.

Delaying the confirmation of Mr. McKeith's appointment probably will result in a caucus of nonpartisans and submission of a name which will share favor with both sides.

FIX TAX VALUE OF AIR RIGHTS FOR FIRST TIME

Merchandise Mart Figure Put at $2,306,319.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

For the first time in the history of Chicago, taxes are to be assessed against "air rights." The board of assessors placed a tax valuation yesterday against the Merchandise Mart, over the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks, north of the river and west of Wells street. The assessment is $2,306,319. The basic figure on which the air rights of the Merchandise Mart were reckoned is $10 per square foot.

The rule adopted by the board not only defines air rights but establishes a method of reckoning their tax value. It follows:

"The value of the air rights is the ratio of the entire fee under the building, less the added cost of constructing a building on air rights over a railroad, and less the loss in value owing to the loss of rentable space."

How Value Is Estimated.

The total area covered by the Merchandise Mart is 267,775 square feet. At $10 per square foot the resultant value would be $2,677,750. But there was a cost in erecting the building over the North Western tracks which would not have been occasioned under normal ownership of the land. That has been figured by the experts of the assessors, after examining the books of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, the architects, at $200,000. That has been subtracted. The loss of rentable space [occupied by the railroad tracks] has been set at $104,164. That, too, has been deducted.

A third item of $67,267 has also been subtracted, due to the delay in permitting the construction to proceed. The agreement between the Merchandise Mart and the North Western railroad was made on May 7, 1927, but the deal could not be closed with the approval of the Illinois commerce commission. The result was that title was not transferred until Feb. 2, 1928.

With these three deductions the assessors fixed the value of the air rights at $1,306,319, which they say is 86.12 per cent of the value of the fee to the land under the mart.

The mart is supported on caissons which have been sunk to bedrock between the railroad tracks. The space occupied by these caissons aggregates only 70,000 square feet.

Plan Worked Out by Cudmore.

The plan of assessment was worked out by Harry Cutmore and his staff, who have appraised all the real estate in Cook county for assessing purposes. Property in the neighborhood of the mart was valued at $10 a square foot.

It has been held by attorneys for the assessors and the county board that air rights are not assessable until they are developed. When the Illinois Central railroad air rights are developed north of Randolph street, much higher values will be attached. Michigan boulevard property adjacent to the I. C. air rights has been valued for taxing purposes at $125 a square foot.

A much lower value is forecast for the air rights over tracks south of the loop.

As a procedure in determining value on air rights the assessors have classed them as "vertical subdivisions."

CIGARET ADS IN CLUB MAGAZINE AROUSE WOMEN TO PROTEST

Illustrations of women smoking cigarets which appeared in advertisements in The Clubwoman's World aroused the resentment of members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, it became known in a recent tiff between the federation and the magazine publisher, Will H. Howell. The federation formerly officially sponsored the publication.

"A nine months' contract with the cigaret company in question was canceled at the end of six months in deference to protests from members of the federation," Mrs. A. A. Fisher, editor of The Clubwoman's World, explained. "The advertisement of a plastic surgeon which also was objected to was never repeated after publication in one issue.

"Nevertheless, last December the federation announced its withdrawal as a patron of the magazine. The magazine had been published independently, but the federation sent in copy and was supposed to promote circulation. Mr. Howell said he would continue to publish the copy sent him by the various clubs. His recent open letter sent to club members stating his situation, was written so that before the opening of the club season the club members would know the status of the magazine with regard to the federation."

FREES TRIO WHEN THEY AGREE TO NAME SUSPECT

Three men arrested on Friday, and charged with obstructing justice and conspiracy in connection with their refusal to identify in court a man who is alleged to have robbed them, were released late yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows after they had promised to make the identification when the case is heard again Nov. 12.

The three men are Martin Platow, 1806 South Central Park avenue; Leo Ludlow, 1020 Lawrence avenue, and Clyde Starling, 4866 Winthrop avenue. They were arrested after they refused in Judge Joseph B. David's court to identify Richard Heinrich, who was charged with having robbed them in the Riviera Billiard parlor, 4750 Broadway, on May 11.

CITY FACES NEW BORROWING TO PAY EMPLOYES

Lacks Cash for December, Schmidt Reveals.

City hall payrolls for December cannot be met in full unless the city council sanctions borrowing from the special assessment fund usually kept free from tax anticipation warrant entanglements. Figures sent to the council committee yesterday by City Controller Schmidt revealed the shortage of cash in miscellaneous funds on which the aldermen usually draw during the last few months of each year.

The actual cash in city treasury trust funds from which the aldermen are accustomed to borrow amounts to $9,539,925. Estimates of expenditures for the remainder of this year total $11,500,000, leaving the council the alternative of dipping into the special assessment fund or issuing script to pay the difference of $1,960,075.

Illegal, Lawyers Say.

Even the use of the $9,539,925 for city loans is illegal, according to attorneys, as it is borrowing above the 75 per cent of anticipated revenue authorized by law. It is accomplished, however, by dropping I. O. U.'s, sometimes referred to as "junior" tax anticipation warrants, into the miscellaneous funds.

Another conclusion drawn from the controller's figures is that the traction fund of $57,036,497 will be represented by only approximately $10,000,000 in cash with which to proceed with any subway plans that the council may adopt for next year. Cash balances in all city funds are apportioned among the separates funds by applying the ratio of the fund to the aggregate, which was done to ascertain the traction cash. This method would shrink the special assessment fund to $2,603,189.

Controller's Statement.

The controller's statement showing the amount of each fund follows:

| Fund— | Amount. |
|---|---|
| Corporate | $ 119,680 |
| Water | 2,637,540 |
| Public Library | 155,806 |
| Traction | 57,036,497 |
| Miscellaneous | 13,683,599 |
| Special Funds. | |
| River Straightening | 2,708,175 |
| School Purposes | 35,619,046 |
| Special Assessment | 14,756,022 |
| Total | 126,716,370 |

Investments in tax anticipation warrants are shown as follows:

| Warrant— | Amount. |
|---|---|
| Corporate | $24,965,000 |
| School board | 25,700,000 |
| Firemen's pension | 715,000 |
| Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium | 2,950,000 |
| Public library | 1,480,000 |
| Police pension | 450,000 |
| Sinking fund for interest on bonded indebtedness | 1,175,000 |
| Total | $56,535,000 |
| Investments in city and Liberty bonds | 7,538,200 |
| Grand total | $64,003,200 |

The figures show a cash balance on hand, as of Sept. 30, of $62,623,170, of which $53,083,245 is in funds from which the council cannot borrow. There is a possibility, however, that the council will find itself in such dire need of funds with which to meet pay rolls that it will dip into the special assessment fund of $14,756,022.

Members of the finance committee will have these figures before them tomorrow morning at a special meeting called to discuss the financial situation. Civic organizations have been invited to be present to aid the aldermen in reaching a solution of the problem of obtaining money to run the first months of next year before additional cash is collected.

CHICAGO AND NATION OPEN ANNUAL FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

The purpose of the week as set forth in the proclamation is to promote efforts to reduce the great loss of life and property caused annually by fire. The insurance department of the United States Chamber of Commerce reports that hundreds of towns and cities throughout the country will carry on fire prevention activities during the coming week.

In 1908 America's fire waste amounted to $217,885,850, while in 1928 the loss totaled $472,224,568, more than double the 1908 figure, statistics show.

During the week speakers assigned by the Chicago fire prevention bureau will discuss means of fire prevention in public schools.

Emmerson, the 150th anniversary of the death of Casimir Pulaski, the Polish patriot killed in the American Revolution while fighting under George Washington, will be observed in Chicago on Friday, the actual date of his death, and next Sunday, when larger groups may participate.

Superintendent of Schools Bogan and President Caldwell of the board of education have arranged for exercises in Pulaski's honor in all public schools next Friday. Similar exercises will take place in the Catholic parochial schools, high schools, and academies by order of Cardinal Mundelein.

Flags to Honor Patriot.

President Cermak has ordered a memorial exercise Friday noon in the County building. Flags will fly before the stores of State street merchants and every government building will display a flag by decree of President Hoover.

Friday's observance of the anniversary will center beneath the rotunda of the Federal building, where a committee of war veterans of Polish descent will unveil a bronze memorial tablet embedded in a marble column of the building. Among those to be present are Noble Brandon Judah, Gen. Frank Parker, and Collector of the Port Anthony Czarnecki.

Memorial Rites Sunday.

Sunday's memorial service will be at Soldiers' field. Troops from Fort Sheridan and sailors from the Great Lakes training station will march in parade. There will be band concerts, choral singing by Polish societies, and a patriotic address by Attorney General Carlstrom.

MILL STRIKERS SWEAR OFFICERS SHOT TO KILL

Tell Judge How 5 Union Men Died.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Marion, N. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The story of the riot at Marion mill gate, in which five striking union men were slain, was told by six witnesses here today before a crowded court room.

There was no tenseness in the air. Laughter swept the large room at intervals. Outside, in the streets all was peaceful. Only the presence of state militiamen posted outside the mill grounds gave evidence that a battle had been fought last Wednesday morning between striking unionists and a sheriff's posse.

Union headquarters was deserted. Everyone in authority had departed this morning for Raleigh, where Gov. O. M. Gardner was to confer with representatives of the United Textile workers union.

Strikers Repeat Charges.

The stories drawn from strikers who took part in the mill gate battle as told to Judge W. F. Harding in his investigation today were repetitions of what has been told before. Three things stood out:

That no striker was seen with a pistol or gun during the rioting.

That the picket line was prepared to offer resistence, and did attempt to prevent any worker from entering the plant.

That the fifteen or more members of Sheriff Oscar Adkins' posse shot frequently and accurately.

Almost any question is permitted in this inquiry and with such liberty the attorneys for the defense gave several of the strikers on the witness stand embarrassing moments.

J. L. Stuart or Stewart [he told THE TRIBUNE reporter it didn't make much difference how his name was spelled as he couldn't read and write much] was on the stand trying his best to tell both sides all about what he called the "big battle."

Attorney Barks at Him.

"How old are you, anyhow?" barked a whiskered attorney.

"Well, sir, I'm 36 years old," drawled the South Carolinian as he crossed an overalled knee and looked as if he felt he was away up north among enemies.

"Ever been married?" questioned the barking lawyer.

The witness held up a grimy fist. One finger uncurled, then a second, a third, and a fourth.

"Four times?" queried the lawyer.

"That's right," said the witness, "two of them dead, one divorced and I'm livin' with my fourth."

Stuart was asked why he was "armed" with a walking stick on the morning of the riot.

"It warn't much of a stick," he explained. "Just a little laurel root I dug up last season. It's about as thick as my finger and has got a knob on it 'bout the size of a hen egg. I needed it to beat away the weeds when I walked through the fields."

How About Blood Stains.

"O, I see," said the lawyer. "You used it to brush the morning dew off the weeds. Well, tell us how these blood stains got on it," he continued, as he suddenly produced the stick.

"Deputy Fender taked it away from me, that's how," said the man. "Fender throwed it on the ground and somebody rolled on it."

Stuart spent more than an hour on the stand. He described the scuffle between "Old man" Jonas and Sheriff Oscar Adkins, which he said started the ruckus.

"When Oscar collared the old fellow," said Stuart, "I grabbed the sheriff by the collar of his raincoat and tried to pull him off. Then a deputy put a gun on me and it warn't but a minute till they begun shootin'. I don't know who fired the first shot, but it warn't no striker."

Stuart tried hard to defend his union friends, but in defending the union made damaging admissions. He declared it was the purpose of the strikers to see that no person, officer or striker, entered the mill. He said the pickets had been taught to "lean against them" if people tried to push past the line.

Youth Describes Shooting.

Tom Patton, a youthful striker with powder burns on his right cheek, gave the most graphic account of the affray.

"I saw the deputies using gas and then their guns," he testified. "They looked like they were shooting to kill anybody who tried to come through. I heard Sheriff Adkins holler: 'Clean up on them; clear them out.' Then I saw Vickers fall, but first Jonas went down.

Shot at Four Times.

"It was during the second battle that Vickers went down. He was in the middle of the road and Adkins marched up to him and reached for his shoulder with one hand and toward his gun with the other. Then I saw Vickers drop and little rings of smoke rise up, but I never did see no gun in the sheriff's hand. It must have been the sheriff, though, because Vickers told me he didn't have a gun. Then the deputies started shooting my way and I sold out."

When a Carolinian says he "sold out" he means he ran away as fast as he could.

Woman Gastonia Witness.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 5.—[U. P.]—A neighborly little woman of Gastonia, Mrs. Walter Griggs, enlivened the so-called Gastonia strike riot trial today as she spoke with emphasis about "goings on" which she didn't approve.

Mrs. Griggs was called by the state at the trial of seven men—union textile workers and labor organizers—who are charged with second degree murder in connection with the death of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt.

She lived adjoining the union headquarters in Gastonia and spoke contemptuously of it, saying:

"They was always a huggin', a kissin', a smackin' and worse goin' on over there."

On June 7, the night Aderholt was killed, she heard a disturbance at the headquarters and called police. It was this call which summoned Aderholt to his death and resulted in three other officers being wounded as the officers and striking workers fought.

Expected Trouble, Witness Says.

The next state's witness, Mrs. Thomas Jenkins, was on the Suttlemire porch, across the street from the union grounds, on the night of the tragedy.

Mrs. Jenkins said the entire neighborhood expected trouble sooner or later from the strikers. She said she was recuperating from a long illness at the time of the shooting.

"When the officers arrived some one shouted, 'Women and children get back,' and I got back, too," she said.

"Did you go to bed, Mrs. Jenkins?"

"I went farther than that; I went clear to the back of the house, where I couldn't get shot."

Then Mrs. Onnie Neal was called and said of the defendant, K. Y. Hendricks:

"He rushed into my house and grabbed my daughter. He wanted to hide in my closet. Father asked what was wrong and Hendricks told him: 'We killed Chief Aderholt and Tom Gilbert; we think Roach and one of our men are goin' to die, too.'

"'Where's your gun?' my father asked him. 'I shot the damned thing out and threw it away and ran,' Hendricks told him."

Mrs. Neal said that Hendricks lived in the boarding house next door. She knew him very well and after the confession to her father Hendricks tried to get Dewey Martin, her brother-in-law, and a union organizer to drive him away from the place in a car.

AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIM DIES.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—O. E. Curtis, 48, Grand Rapids, died today at John Robinson hospital, Allegan, from a fractured skull suffered Friday afternoon when his automobile overturned near Hartford.

CORNER STONE IS LAID FOR SALVATION ARMY AUDITORIUMS IN N. Y.

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Commander Evangeline Booth today laid a cornerstone for the Salvation Army's new national and territorial headquarters and memorial auditoriums on West 14th street on the site of the headquarters erected by the Army in 1895.

The buildings, expected to be ready for occupancy in April, 1930, include an administrative building eleven stories high, two public auditoriums, a swimming pool and gymnasium, and a young women's residence.

The auditoriums, an upper and a lower, seating 2,000 and 500 people respectively, will be known as the Memorial auditoriums, continuing the name of the old hall on the site, which was erected in memory of Catherine Booth, wife of the founder of the Salvation Army, Gen. William Booth.

MILK SICKNESS, CAUSED BY WEED, ATTACKS FAMILY

Dry Pastures to Blame; Farmers Warned.

An outbreak of "milk sickness," which attacked five members of a family was reported yesterday by Dr. W. E. Walsh at Morris, Ill. He warned that the disease may be prevalent this fall because the pastures have been burned out by drought. Dr. Walsh says the disease is caused by the drinking of milk from cows which have eaten the "white snake root" plant which remains green after pasturage is dried up. Although cattle often become poisoned from the plant, cows giving milk seldom show symptoms of the illness. Persons drinking their milk, however, become seriously ill.

Poison from Weed.

The poison of the white snake plant has been separated and identified by Dr. James F. Cauch of the government bureau of animal husbandry, Dr. Walsh said. The sickness existed in the lowlands of the middle west and as far south as Georgia 50 and 75 years ago, he said, many early settlers giving up their land and going back east because they did not know how to combat it.

The mother of Abraham Lincoln is known to have died of milk sickness, Dr. Walsh stated. Dr. William Osler, former authority of Johns Hopkins Medical school, named it "the most mysterious disease."

"The poison of 'milk sickness' takes hold of the liver, making the digestion of fat impossible," Dr. Walsh said. "The treatment consists in giving alkalis and injections of glucose into the veins.

Warns Farmers on Weed.

"To be safe during this dry season, all farmers should have their county agents search for the white snake root plant in hollows and underbrush and along all streams of their land."

Because of outbreak of the disease near Effingham and Vandalia, the Illinois department of agriculture recently has put out "snake root bulletins," warning milk producers about the disease and telling them how to recognize the plant and eradicate it.

Alimony Delayed

[Dubois Photo.]

Mrs. Alta Warsawsky Shorr, who lives in the Belden Stratford hotel with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warsawsky, has been given until Oct. 26 to prove her grounds for temporary alimony from her estranged husband, Maurice J. Shorr, investment banker. When Circuit Judge Lynch learned yesterday that Mrs. Shorr is employed by the Chicago theater as a ballet dancer he temporarily denied her plea for support money. When Mrs. Shorr filed suit for divorce May 25 she charged her husband with having a "superiority complex" which prevented a contented marriage. Before her marriage at the age of sixteen, Mrs. Shorr was a member of the San Carlos and Ravinia opera ballets.

May Close British Steel Works; Blame Poor Trade

LONDON, Oct. 5.—It was announced today that unless trade revives, the big steel and tin plate works at Swansea will close down at the end of this month. There is a serious shortage of scrap steel.

PUGILIST SEEKS DIVORCE; SAYS WIFE BEAT HIM

Put Over Plate Barrage, Mauler Complains.

Eddie Anderson, featherweight pugilist, accused his wife, Mrs. Alice Fischer Anderson, of "great austerity of temper" and cruelty in a bill for divorce filed yesterday in the Superior court. He will seek the custody of their 3 year old child, Alice, whom his wife has neglected, according to the charges. He resides at 10923 South Park avenue.

Hurled Plates, He Complains.

Defying his prowess as a professional boxer, Mrs. Anderson was accused of striking him with a fork and throwing breakfast plates at him on March 28, 1928, about four years after their marriage. Another charge was that she broke a vanity case over his head and then left him for a week.

Most of their quarrels, according to the bill, resulted from Mrs. Anderson's alleged neglect of their child. She would frequently leave her at home with a maid, but when Anderson would arrive home the child would be alone in the house.

Opposes Alimony Claims.

Anderson went to Montreal last March 10 for a prize fight. In spite of his protests, his wife visited Canada at the same time, leaving the child in the care of a colored maid, he charges. This caused the final separation. Mrs. Anderson lives at the Florence apartment hotel, 5406 Winthrop avenue, which her mother owns. He will oppose Mrs. Anderson's claim for alimony.

Deserted After 31 Years, Wife Says in Divorce Bill

After thirty-one years of married life Anton Bucher left their home at 5914 South Wood street on a hunting trip and has never returned, according to the divorce bill of Mrs. Lena Bucher filed yesterday in the Superior court. The desertion occurred March 20, 1927, according to Attorney Victor Frohlich, representing Mrs. Bucher. They were married in 1896.

BERLIN MAYOR FINDS U. S. FAST BUT HE LIKES IT

Greeted by Kohler, Hoan, Other Officials.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The mayor of Berlin, Germany, said to the mayor of Milwaukee today, "This is a fast country, your America. But I like it."

Mayor Gustav Boess, touring the United States, arrived at Maitland field at 11 a. m., by hydroplane and was greeted by Mayor Hoan. He left on the same plane at 4 p. m.

A seemingly endless number of events had been crowded into the five hours allotted him while here.

There was the formal reception at the airport, a visit to Mayor Hoan's office in the city hall, luncheon at the Schroeder hotel, a trip over the boulevards and the newly completed Lincoln memorial drive on the lake, audiences with prominent Milwaukeeans who had visited Berlin this summer, an inspection of the $15,000,000 sewage disposal plant of Jones island, and then the rush back to Maitland field.

Mayor Boess and his party were scheduled to take a train from Chicago to San Francisco tonight. As the Sikorsky amphibion disappeared over south point, Gov. Walter J. Kohler, who tendered the state's welcome and who had been interpreter for Mayor Boess throughout the day, stood on the lake shore and waved his scarf in adieu.

In the mayor's party were Mrs. Boess, Dr. Paul Schwartz, German consul at Chicago, and Mrs. Schwartz; Dr. Willy Mueller-Wieland, magisterial counsellor of Berlin; Dr. Schmidt Krucina, vice consul general at Chicago, and Charles S. Peterson, city treasurer of Chicago.

Mrs. Cornelius Corcoran, wife of Alderman Corcoran, headed the reception committee for the women, while Charles C. Younggreen was chairman of the official welcoming committee.

Gov. Kohler flew from Wisconsin Rapids to Kohler this morning and motored from there to Milwaukee.

This raises the total assets of the group to more than $285,000,000.

The institutions which today signified their intention of associating themselves with the group are the First National Bank of Neenah, the First National Bank of Menasha, and the Security Bank of Oshkosh.

A meeting of the banks which have joined the new holding company will be held Monday morning at which details of organization and operation will be decided on.

3,000 OF $5 STAMPS SOLD BY MILWAUKEE POSTOFFICE SINCE JULY

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Advent of air mail has brought a market for Uncle Sam's $5 stamps and 3,000 of them have been sold here since July 1. Postal officials say this is more $5 stamps than previously had been sold here since Solomon Juneau was postmaster.

Until air mail became popular, $5 stamps were rarely used, about the only occasion being when some financial house wished to send bonds or other securities by first class registered mail. Now manufacturers send their products by air mail. The leading purchaser of the $5 stamps here is a radio concern.

If an eastern manufacturer suddenly decides to change a model parts are wanted at once, sometimes more than the company has on hand. With air mail the parts may be finished at 4 p. m. and rushed to the airport, and by 10 a. m. the next day be installed in radio sets in New Jersey.

FARMER KILLED AT CROSSING.

CALENDAR PROOF FREES NEGRO OF ASSAULT CHARGE

Appleton, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Strategy invented by Abraham Lincoln won an acquittal here last night for Arthur Wilson, 21, Negro, of Durham, N. C., charged with assault with intent to rape. Wilson's attorney, Abraham Sigman, used a calendar to show that a full moon had not been shining on the night of the attack, and, therefore, the state's chief witness, who testified she identified Wilson by the light of the full moon, must have been wrong. The Negro was arrested after John Kersten had been knocked unconscious and an attempt made to attack his 15 year old daughter, as they were on their way home from a circus. Wilson, who quit his job on the day before the crime, was arrested and the girl identified him as her assailant. The father could not be positive of the identification.

As she pulled it toward her, the trigger caught on a gun rest in the boat and the charge of the weapon tore through the right side of her face and head. Her husband was preparing to shoot at the mud hen and did not see his wife shot.

The coroner found that death was accidental.

BRUNDAGE MEN SHY AT SWITCH TO G. O. P. TICKET

Make Republicans Leave Coalition, They Say.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Cook county's judicial campaign took on what might pass for a few metaphysical aspects yesterday. The Brundage sponsors of the "People's Ticket Against Coalition" advanced a claim that theirs is the "real Republican" ticket. They said their ticket contains four times as many Republican candidates as the Republican three cylinder ticket for Superior court. As to their proposal that the Republican organization put the twelve anti-coalitionists on the Republican ticket, they set forth that they are not knocking at the door as supplicants for adoption, but are merely asking for the right to use their own name.

"The transcendental fact is this," said Edward J. Brundage. "The People's Ticket Against Coalition is the actual Republican ticket. It has four times as many Republican candidates as the partial Republican ticket.

"Not Asking a Place."

"Our candidates are not asking to be placed on the Republican ticket. They feel they are just where they belong, on the people's ticket, because they have become candidates in order that the people might have a choice. The talk about going on the Republican ticket to fill the vacant spots comes from the rank and file of Republican voters and workers who are indignant because only a partial Republican ticket is offered."

The twelve Brundage non-coalition candidates in conference took the stand that they would not consider any proposal to be placed in the Republican column unless the sitting Republican judges who are on the Democratic ticket also go back under the Republican party circle. The Republican organization so far has been frigid towards the amalgamation idea; and last night leaders expressed the opinion that the middle would remain as it is.

Shield Sitting Judges.

Meanwhile, the seventeen sitting Superior court judges were placed in the category of the immune in the night's campaigning of the Republicans. In conformity with the customary dignity attaching to judicial elections, the present judges who are seeking reelection are to be set as far apart from the fighting as possible. Conversely, it is planned that the sitting judges, in their platform campaigning, will do little more than show themselves and make speeches disassociated from partisan and factional politics.

The real fighting will be over the vacancies—three on the Superior and two on the Circuit court bench—although at the polls this battle will enmesh the whole tickets in the results, as the twenty high men for Superior court win.

Deneenites Under Fire.

The battling of the "35 per cent vacant" Republican ticket, so called because it has only three nominees for twenty Superior court places, last night was directed against E. I. Frankhauser and Municipal Judge Daniel Trude, the two Deneen candidates for vacancies running on the Democratic ticket. Thomas V. Sullivan, in addressing a Republican rally, called Anton J. Cermak "the sugar daddy for two Deneen orphans."

"There is evidence," he said, "that when Papa Tony is looking the other way the two Deneen orphans will find bent pins in their chairs. Trude and Frankhauser, as Deneen orphans on the Democratic ticket, have displaced two good Democrats and all is not harmony in Step-daddy Cermak's family."

Recorder Clayton Smith, new Democratic managing chairman, mapped out the campaign at the golf links, and this week activities are to be launched. Meanwhile the candidates are awaiting the bar primaries, the dates for which are to be announced early this week.

FLYING POLICEMEN CATCH SUSPECT IN BARGE MAN'S DEATH

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—After a series of setbacks, New York police officers were successful early today in the department's first aerial attempt to capture an escaping suspect.

Early this morning an amphibian plane piloted by Arthur Chamberlain, newly appointed assistant secretary to the police commissioner, and carrying also Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney, with three assistants, overtook in Boston harbor the tugboat Harry S. Keeler and arrested Capt. William G. Baker.

The plane immediately started back to New York, where Baker must face a charge in connection with the death here of Capt. William Mehaffey, a barge commander and an alleged victim of a fatal beating at Baker's hands.

The airplane pursuit of the tugboat with the suspect aboard started yesterday.

MORE HOOSIERS TO BE ARRESTED IN DRY SCANDAL

80 Secret U. S. Warrants Awaited at Calumet.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Calumet politicians and officials are in a state of high tension waiting for the appearance of deputy United States marshals with eighty secret warrants which will be served in Gary and East Chicago Monday and Tuesday.

Secret service of the warrants is in accordance with orders of a federal grand jury which yesterday named almost 300 persons in this end of the state in indictments, mostly for violations of the dry law. United States Attorney Oliver Loomis promises that the list of those to be arrested will reveal some surprises, and all manner of speculation is being made as to their identity.

Trials Planned in November.

United States Marshal Emmet Hall will be in Hammond on Monday and Tuesday and those arrested will be taken there for approval of bonds.

Mr. Loomis announced today that he will attempt to bring most of the 300 defendants to trial in November. Most of the Lake county cases involve three big conspiracies to violate the dry law and all the defendants will be arraigned before Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick in Hammond on Nov. 4. At that time the government will make a strenuous effort to have an early trial date set for all three.

The exact natures of two of the conspiracies are being kept secret until the defendants are arrested. The first implicates a number of East Chicagoans, including Mayor Raleigh P. Hale, Chief of Police James W. Regan and Chief of Detectives Martin Zarkovich. Several more will be added with the new arrests.

Capiases Being Drawn.

It is generally believed here that one of the secret conspiracies deals with the "Carling incident" and today's reports were that defendants outside Gary will be included. This "incident" started with the capture of a truck load of Canadian beer en route from Detroit to Chicago by Gary police last Feb. 11. The beer was ordered destroyed, but whether this actually was done is a matter on which opinions vary.

The third conspiracy has most of northern Indiana guessing. Almost every one of prominence in the county has been suggested as a possible defendant, but the officials will say nothing.

Today Mrs. Margaret Cowgill, clerk of the United States District court here, spent most of her time drawing up arrest capiases which will be turned over to Marshal Hall on Monday.

DELAYS DECISION ON THOMPSON ACCOUNTING SUIT

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield yesterday delayed final judgment in the $1,000,000 accounting suit of THE TRIBUNE against William Hale Thompson and six others, in connection with the collection of real estate expert fees from the city, until the next February term. The action was taken by the court to allow attorneys for THE TRIBUNE until Feb. 1 next to file briefs and arguments in the appeal of the defendants.

Josephine Faxon Becomes Bride

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Wears Satin

The marrage of Miss Josephine Hood Faxon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Faxon of Highland Park, and Richardson Revell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Only members of the families and a few friends attended the ceremony, which was followed by a large reception at Exmoor Country club.

The bride wore a princess gown of eggshell satin and a tulle veil suspended from a cap of rose point lace and carried a sheaf of calla lilies. Her sister, Mrs. Joseph Lane, who acted as matron of honor, and Miss Priscilla Colt of Pittsfield, Mass., the maid of honor, wore vivid green princess gowns with matching hats and slippers, and carried bronze chrysanthemums. The flower girls, Joan Revell and Lorraine Hoover, wore frocks of peach colored chiffon, and held baskets of autumn flowers.

Alexander H. Revell Jr. was best man. Mr. Revell and his bride will live in Highland Park.

SELLS ARSENIC WITH INSURANCE; HELD FOR DEATHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Oct. 5.—A new series of arsenic murders was unearthed in the town of Horitz today with the arrest of a life insurance agent, who sold a package of arsenic with every policy. Upon hearing of his arrest the agent's brother, who was operating the same game, immediately committed suicide.

The two brothers, Franz and Josef Karesch, had worked up a neat business among the ignorant peasants. Their method was to trace out rustics who were anxious to get rid of a member of the family. They would then approach these prospects with an attractive offer of a policy for the prospective victim.

The peasants persuaded their relatives to sign up, then poured a bit of arsenic in their coffee and collected. With the arrest of Karesch the police expect to solve a string of mysterious poisoning cases.

Member of Roumanian Regency Dying; Another Ill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHHAREST, Roumania, Oct. 5.—M. Buzdugan, one of the Roumanian regents, is expected to die before morning following an operation yesterday. A second regent, Miron Cristea, patriarch of Roumania, has been ill for many weeks. The air is thick with names of possible successors. The name most often heard is that of Queen Marie, although it is still possible that if a member of the royal houshold is chosen it may be former Crown Prince Carol, father of Michael, the boy king.

Los Angeles Heat Wave Continues for 4 Days

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—A severe heat wave which yesterday sent the mercury into the 90s, clung on today. On this, the fourth day of the wave, the thermometers here registered 88 degrees.

PILSUDSKI WILL GO TO SEASHORE; FEAR BREAKDOWN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 5.—Despite the denials of friends, rumors that Marshal Pilsudski is seriously ill were followed by the announcement today that he is leaving to spend two weeks on the Adriatic coast, though he only returned from his summer vacation three weeks ago.

The fact that the marshal is to be accompanied by a physician, Dr. Woycnski, lends support to the theory that the health of Poland's dictator has broken down under the strain of continuous quarreling with parliament. The belief is that he will not return, as he promises, for the opening of parliament on Oct. 31.

If Marshal Pilsudski returns, the contest promises to become sharper. A number of parties, previously supporting the marshal, have announced their intention of joining the opposition and voting a lack of confidence in the government immediately upon opening the session. Marshal Pilsudski is expected, nevertheless, to retain his old cabinet, dissolve parliament and hold a new election.

BRAND SLOVAK CHIEF AS TRAITOR; SENT TO PRISON

50,000 Angry Followers Protest Sentence.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRATISLAVA, Czecho - Slovakia, Oct. 5.—Ten weeks' session in the most important treason trial since the creation of the Czecho-Slovakian republic in 1919 ended today with the highest court of three judges sentencing Prof. Albert Tuka, secretary of the Slovakian Peoples' party and leader of 50,000 militant Slovakian Fascists, to 15 years in prison, with three years' loss of civil rights and permanent deprivation of the title of professor.

The totally unexpected verdict was greeted with howls of protest from a mob of 10,000 people, crowding the square in front of the court house. Mounted police were forced to intervene to establish order. Protest meetings are slated to take place in numerous towns tomorrow. The severity of the sentence has greatly increased the feeling of hostility between the Czechs and Slovaks in all parts of the country.

Tuka, an ardent Slovakian patriot, was charged with founding a semi-armed organization called "Rodobrana." It was claimed that organization, which was patterned along the same lines as the Austrian Heimwehr, proposed that Slovakia should secede from Czecho-Slovakia and unite with Hungary.

Sought Aid of Reds, Charge.

The "Rodobrana" is alleged to have enlisted Col. L. Kovacs, a Hungarian officer, as military adviser, and despite the Fascist trend of the organization, the prosecution maintained that Tuka tried to line up communists, besides the 10,000 armed members of the "Rodobrana."

The prosecution's gravest charge, however, is that Tuka planned to occupy Bratislava with 18,000 Slovakian communists last November, throwing out the Czech officials and occupying the railroads and public buildings throughout Slovakia.

The fact that the government, despite the severity of the charges, failed to present much condemning testimony, led to the general expectation that Tuka would either be freed or else be handed a trifling prison sentence. Together with Tuka, Anton Stanky, another alleged plotter, was given five years, although a third defendant, Alexander Mach, was acquitted.

Sought Slovakian Autonomy.

Tuka's defense was that he acted only for the love of the Slovakian people in demanding Slovakian autonomy within Czecho-Slovakia.

He claimed he was working to establish a new manner for Czechs and Slovaks living together, since the Pittsburgh treaty—providing for the formation of the Czecho-Slovakian republic—was only valid for ten years and expired this year. This treaty was signed under Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, now president of Czecho-Slovakia.

Tuka will be in prison on Oct. 27, when the Slovakian Peoples' party will present him as their chief candidate at the coming elections.

The resignation of the two sole Slovakian cabinet ministers is expected as a result of the sentence passed on Tuka. While the Slovakian element of the country is seething with indignation, the pro-Slovak newspaper Slovak was suppressed tonight for printing an article by Pater Hlinka stating that 500,000 Slovakians will back up Tuka solidly. Appeals by both Tuka and Sazky for release on $8,700 bonds were refused.

LOSING AND REGAINING THE PANAMA CANAL.

The Panama canal was dug by the United States. It is now controlled by the United States. It is fortified. The tolls are levied under treaty, and although it is required by that agreement that these imposts shall not be discriminatory in favor of American shipping, it is nevertheless an American ship canal, possessed, defended, and controlled by the United States.

If so distinguished a man as John Hay when secretary of state had carried through his first isthmian treaty negotiations with Great Britain the canal would have been dug at the expense of the United States taxpayers, but it would have been neutralized. It could not have been fortified. It could not be defended or held in war. It would now be as much British as American. It would be seized by the greatest sea power in time of need. When Hay surrendered American welfare there was no question as to what that power then was and for years would be. It was Great Britain. Hay signed a treaty proposing that the United States should dig a shipway connecting two American coasts and be unable to control it.

A delightful Briton who was denying that the Vice President of the United States could have social precedence over him, Lord Pauncefote, joined Mr. Hay in the diplomatic work. He was ambassador of Great Britain, the first to the United States. As ambassador he was a representative of the crown, a minister being accredited only from one government to another. The new ambassador, as the alter ego of the crown, would recognize that the President of the United States represented a sovereignty, but was unprepared to go further. Mr. and Mrs. Hobart should make the first call on him and Lady Pauncefote, if a Vice President and his lady were to be recognized. Mrs. Hobart good-naturedly countered this doctrine and in the end the ambassador's coach, on the precise instructions of his foreign office in London, stopped on the way at the Hobart door in Washington.

John Hay had been a midwesterner. He had been one of Lincoln's private secretaries. He had written some spirited verses of the midwestern soil. The people of the Mississippi valley could repeat "Little Breeches" with enjoyment. Hay as a diplomat with London affiliations had become irritated by the mention of this. "And thar sot Little Breeches, and chirped, as peart as ever you see, 'I want a chaw of terbacker, and that's what's the matter of me.'" It's retained in American anthologies. "Pike County Ballads" may preserve John Hay's name when it's been forgotten that he had a part in American diplomacy in Spain, England, and the department of state in Washington.

An American secretary of state who was embarrassed by the fact that he once had been a vernacular part of the Illinois-Mississippi valley country and a British ambassador who could not see the first in succession to the American chief magistracy unless that dignitary appeared first at his own door knocker agreed on a treaty which now seems incredible.

Pauncefote was inducing another country to build a new trade route and leave it unprotected. Behind him was the tradition which had thrown trade routes across the world under British guns mounted on the soil of other countries, as at Gibraltar. Wherever the British merchant marine needed British artillerymen they were there. With Hay there was the sense that this was right and inevitable.

The Hay-Pauncefote treaty to govern isthmian interoceanic canal construction—then considered with regard to the Nicaraguan route—was signed Feb. 5, 1900, and offered to the United States senate, where, as so often in the history of American international relations, a wisdom prevailed which was unknown to the department of state, to the diplomats exposed to foreign influence, and to the administration itself. In the wisdom of the senate, even if it abided in the minority of merely one more than one-third of the voting body, there has remained a sense of treaty prudence, of national guardianship, and of the future needs of the United States which frequently has been lacking in the administrative acts of the executive government. Hay had signed his name to a foolish and improvident agreement. It is useless to plead the explanations which lie in its historical past. They may illuminate the errors of a man overimpressed or oppressed by this background, but they would not have answered the accusations of the future. They could not explain an internationalized, undefended Panama canal, built by American money but out of American control, unfortified, undefended, flanked by British naval bases and useless to the United States when the United States might need it most for its own security.

If the executive department of the United States, the President, Mr. McKinley, and his secretary of state, Mr. Hay, had been given their way, Lord Pauncefote, the fidgety gentleman who stipulated that Mrs. Hobart must call on his family before his family called on hers, would have laid on the desk of the British foreign office this almost greater than the victory of Nelson at Trafalgar. We cannot believe that it would have stood the test of necessity, but what an incongruous act it would have been to set the name and good faith of the United States to such an agreement?

It is the conventional explanation of Hay's subservience to Pauncefote and to British requirements that he had the Clayton-Bulwer treaty facing him and that a solemn covenant of his country embarrassed him. This treaty was the product of pre-civil war diplomacy when the then popular British novelist was sent as minister to Washington and took up with Clayton, Zack Taylor's secretary of state, a settlement of Central American troubles growing largely if not wholly out of British intrigue in those regions.

The instinct, intelligence and policy which have made the British empire were engaged in making complications along the inevitable course of a new waterway and for the altogether moral reasons always found by the British in a field of oil or other material interests. A court plaster strip of Central American coast, known as the Mosquito coast, had been occupied reaching down to and covering the canal territory. The excuse of occupation was, as always, one of general humanity. The consequence was, as always, the creation of an area of special interest. Clayton, trying to clear up the record, had to recognize the fact which was one of British possession of territory. It was 1849-'50—many preoccupations—a war with Mexico just ended, a war between the states just becoming inevitable, the present uncertain, the future uncharted. What Clayton yielded in these circumstances offers no excuse for John Hay in 1900.

Inasmuch as the Hay treaty failed the episode has not been allowed to detract from his career, but it is a poignant incident which should not be forgotten. It is instructive and admonitory. The administration was as confident of putting the agreement through the senate as Mr. Wilson was confident of having his way with the covenant of the league of nations. Republican senators and Republican newspapers broke with the administration on the issue.

Platt of Pennsylvania, Hawley of Connecticut, Mason of Illinois, and others declared the necessary truth of national life. The Clayton-Bulwer treaty was abrogated by the inherent unacceptability of its terms. It was an agreement to which a nation could not possibly continue to subscribe. It had the element of destructiveness which made it invalid. The United States could not hold as forever binding a signature which would be ruinous, and the laws of nations recognize and justify the process by which such mistakes can be remedied. Technically, if that were important, Great Britain had abrogated it by settlements in reserved and forbidden regions. That aside, it was abrogated and denounced by national necessity and destiny, an unassailable position in national realism, but one which Hay could not see.

Nothing had been done under the older treaty because of troublous times, with the Crimean war coming in Europe and the civil war in the United States. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty also came into a troubled period. Great Britain was in the darker days of the Boer war and Anglophobes in America were making the most of that. Politically the empire was a bad horse to back here and an incident of the war helped the opposition in the senate. The American consul in Pretoria resigned, giving as his reason the statement that his position was intolerable because the British censors opened and held his official mail and because Mr. Hay would not support him. Even administration senators were convinced that Hay's full purpose in abandoning American interests was to reach an alliance with Great Britain.

It soon became apparent that the administration hopes of success were visionary. The treaty could not be accepted without provision for the control and defense of the canal by the United States. The senate, sound in its nationalism as it frequently has been when tested, made it plain that the canal when built, whether by the Nicaraguan or the Panama route, should be American, as it is today, but the guaranty of that was not found in the wisdom of the administration, able and conservative as it was in many respects.

There is a danger in the American system of government when it touches great international affairs, a danger seemingly inherent in it.

American administration is ephemeral, subject to popular hysteria and emotionalism. A crown is a continuity—until a revolution knocks it off. A republican executive thinks in the terms of the next election. A king and his ministers think with regard to the next grandson. The American protection against the fatality of this contact of the expedient present and the prudent and prescient future is that curious, powerful and erratic body, the United States senate, sometimes revealing only crossroads politics and at other times indicating real elder statesmanship, dignified and justified in the consequences of its decisions, as in this one which gave the United States the control of the canal which connects its two coasts.

TRANSPORTATION.

[Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.]

It is recalled in an official report on the commerce of the Mississippi river system that its banner year of the nineteenth century was 1889, when the total reached 28,289,503 tons. Yet, with the tonnage of the system in 1928 aggregating 62,500,000 tons, nearly two and a half times the old figure, we still speak of the rivers today as if they were "coming back." It should illuminate the transportation subject in general.

In the 40 year period under consideration, the railroad mileage of the country increased from 167,191 to 249,131. In addition, the great new transportation service, that of the automobile, developed, and now the airplane is giving similar promise. Yet, with the railroad systems still expanding, the demand for automobiles increasing yearly, and the call for aircraft steadily gaining volume, the insistence on waterway improvement also is growing.

The answer, of course, is that the population of the country has practically doubled in the last 40 years. Not only that, the demands of the average individual have been multiplied by a degree of prosperity never before known, production rates have literally been forced to new heights. Such a population—such a prosperous population—demands all the transportation facilities possible.

PROCESSION.

PROPHECY OF BETRAYAL

NOW, before the feast of the Passover, Jesus, knowing that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own that were in the world, he loved them unto the end. And during supper, the devil having already put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him, Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he came forth from God, and goeth unto God, riseth from supper, and layeth aside his garments; and he took a towel, and girded himself. Then he poureth water into the basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

So he cometh to Simon Peter. He saith unto him, "Lord, doest thou wash my feet?" Jesus answered and said unto him, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt understand hereafter." Peter saith unto him, "Thou shalt never wash my feet." Jesus answered him, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." Simon Peter saith unto him, "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head." Jesus saith to him, "He that is bathed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit; and ye are clean, but not all." For he knew him that should betray him; therefore said he, "Ye are not all clean."

So, when he had washed their feet, and taken his garments, and sat down again, he said unto them, "Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me, Teacher, and Lord; and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, the Lord and the Teacher, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye also should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, A servant is not greater than his lord; neither one that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them. I speak not of you all; I know whom I have chosen; but that the scripture may be fulfilled, he that eateth my bread lifted up his heel against me. From henceforth I tell you before it come to pass, ye may believe that I am he. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me."

When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in the spirit, and testified, and said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." The disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake. There was at the table reclining in Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved. Simon Peter therefore beckoneth to him, and saith unto him, "Tell us who it is of whom he speaketh." He, leaning back as he was on Jesus' breast, saith unto him, "Lord, who is it?" Jesus therefore answereth, "He it is, for whom I shall dip the sop, and give it him." So, when he had dipped the sop, he taketh and giveth it to Judas, the son of Simon Iscariot. And after the sop, then entered Satan into him. Jesus therefore saith unto him, "What thou doest, do quickly." Now, no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him. For some thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus said unto him, "Buy what things we have need of for the feast"; or, that he should give something to the poor. He then having received the sop went out straightway; and it was night.

When therefore he was gone out, Jesus saith, "Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him; and God shall glorify him in himself, and straightway shall he glorify him. Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me; and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say unto you. A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; even as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

Simon Peter saith unto him, "Lord, whither goest thou?" Jesus answered, "Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow afterwards." Peter saith unto him, "Lord, why cannot I follow thee even now? I will lay down my life for thee." Jesus answereth, "Wilt thou lay down thy life for me? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice."

"Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I come again, and will receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also. And whither I go, ye know the way." Thomas saith unto him, "Lord, we know not whither thou goest; how know we the way?" Jesus saith unto him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father, but by me. If ye had known me, ye would have known my Father also; from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him."

Philip saith unto him, "Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us." Jesus saith unto him, "Have I been so long with you, and dost thou not know me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father; how sayest thou, 'Show us the Father'? Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? The words that I say unto you I speak not from myself; but the Father abiding in me doeth the works. Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me; or else believe me for the very works' sake."

PATRIOTIC SONGS

GOD OF OUR FATHERS.
Rudyard Kipling (1897).

God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of our far-flung battle line,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine:
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart:
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

Far called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire;
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the law:
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard;
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And, guarding, calls not Thee to guard:
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord.
Amen.

TANNIC ACID FOR BURNS.

THE tannic acid treatment of burns is displacing all other methods. Tannic acid is a powder with a peculiar appearance and feel. In the treatment of burns it is used as a freshly made 2 to 3 per cent solution in water.

Dr. S. J. Seeger says four teaspoonfuls of dry tannic acid dissolved in a glass of water makes a 2½ per cent solution. Dr. W. C. Wilson advises that first aid packets contain packets of tannic acid, each containing 94 grains. The contents of one package dissolved in six ounces of water make a 2½ per cent solution. This solution will keep for about two weeks, but after that the acid is changed gradually to a less effective chemical.

Dr. Harrold says the burned area should be cleaned of gross dirt, burned clothing and charred tissue, but no great, prolonged or painful effort should be made. Since the tannic acid is in watery solution any grease or salve should be removed from the wound as a preliminary step. Gauze soaked in the tannic acid solution is then applied to the burn and kept in place with the bandages for twenty-four hours. The gauze is moistened from time to time with the solution. The bandages must be kept soppy wet. At the end of that period the dressings are thoroughly moistened and removed.

Dr. Seeger avoids the discomfort of removing sticky dressings by spraying the wound with the tannic acid solution by means of an atomizer. The wound is sprayed every half hour for about eighteen hours. This ends the tannic acid application. When the dressings are removed the wound is found to be covered with a dark brown or black dry parchment-like covering.

The burned area is not covered. It is kept under a tent to keep the clothing or bed covering from sticking. An electric light or some other form of heat may be placed under the tent to help in drying the brown coat on the wound. The burn wound heals underneath this parchment covering. No dressing is used to cover it as a rule and not much treatment is given it. In a few cases boric acid dressings, particularly at the edges, are of service. Those are the exceptional cases. As the wound heals and new tissue and skin grow under it the brown parchment falls away. There is less scarring after this method than after any other. The wound is left in the best possible condition. There is less pain and less danger of infection. It may be necessary, however, as in all kinds of severe burns, to use sedatives or to give constitutional treatment.

CAN BE DONE WITH PAIN.

Disgusted writes: How can I get rid of tattoo marks? I had some put on about a year ago and now I don't like them. Surely there must be some way to get them off.

REPLY.

They can be removed. Any skin specialist can remove them. But getting rid of them is far more difficult, more painful, and more expensive than acquiring them.

HAIRCUT HURT ONLY SAMSON.

L. D. writes: We have a nine month old baby boy. He seems to be thriving and is apparently in good health. I clipped his hair, which was very thick. Is it detrimental to his health?

REPLY.

No.

Since Delilah's time hair cutting has never harmed any Samson or Samson successor.

POWDER AND BABY SKIN.

B. M. writes: Is powder harmful to the skin of a 14 year old girl?

REPLY.

Some powders are poisonous to some skins. Some cause a kind of hay fever. As a rule, powder does not harm the skin.

DIFFICULT TO PROVE AUTO DAMAGE.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My car was hit on the rear side wheel and overturned by another car which came up on the left of me. No one saw the accident, but every one judging the mishap says I had the right of way. The man agreed before me, my friend, and one officer that he was willing to pay half the damages, but when he heard the estimate of the damage he refused to do so. I asked him if he had insurance and he said yes, but when I asked the name of the insurance company he said he had none. Can I make him pay the full damage?

W. A. E.

To prove an automobile property damage case it is commonly necessary to introduce at least two and sometimes more sets of witnesses to cover the issues as to defendant's negligence, plaintiff's freedom from contributory negligence, the extent of the physical damage and the proper cash measure of that damage. The cost and difficulty of such proof is usually so disproportionate to the probable amount of recovery as to make suit inadvisable.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

HERCULEAN SPORT.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a vacant lot at the corner of East Division and Stone streets. The men and boys who pass there delight in pulling large pieces of masonry out on the sidewalk to test their strength and then leave them for pedestrians to stumble over who walk down Stone street. Is there not some way of eliminating this condition, either by having the owner clear the property or the city to keep the walk cleaned? It is dangerous for one that cannot see well to pass there.

M. S.

Report is made that stones have been removed from sidewalk at the corner of East Division and Stone streets and notice served on owner of vacant lot to barricade same and keep it in safe condition.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

DIVORCE ADVISABLE.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife ran away from me 17 years ago. Neither I nor any of her folks has heard from her since. Would I have to get a divorce to marry again, or could I get married without a divorce?

J. O.

We strongly advise you to secure a divorce before contracting another marriage.

RAKING LEAVES IN A WHIRLWIND

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 6, 1864.

NASHVILLE.—Latest reports from Gen. Forrest's rebel command place it west of the Tennessee and Alabama railroad and moving toward Florence and Muscle Shoals, apparently with the intention of making his way out of the district across the Tennessee river. On Oct. 2 Gen. Buford with part of Forrest's forces shelled Athens for two hours, then demanded its surrender. Lieut. Col. Wade of Indiana refused the demand and the fight continued, the rebels being repulsed with heavy loss.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.—In going over the field of the recent battle we found our dead stripped of clothing. Some were horribly mutilated. Several had been murdered after being wounded.

INDIANAPOLIS.—Joseph Bingham, editor of the Sentinel and chairman of the Democratic state central committee, was arrested by order of Gen. Hovey on the ground that he is a Son of Liberty and implicated in the charges against Dodd and Bowles. He is confined in the same cell with them in the United States courthouse.

SPRINGFIELD. — An immense crowd from all parts of the state gathered here for the great mass-convention in behalf of the Union state and national tickets. Among the speakers were Maj. Gen. John A. Logan, Senator Trumbull, William Bross, Gov. Yates, Senator Doolittle of Wisconsin, Col. R. G. Ingersoll, Gen. Oglesby, Maj. Gen. Palmer and several others.

CHICAGO.—Dr. W. K. Everson and Miss Carrie J. Billings were married on Oct. 4 at the residence of John Hamlin by the Rev. C. H. Fowler.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 6, 1899.

PRETORIA.—Further dispatch of troops has been temporarily suspended. President Kruger, in an interview in reference to rumors of incursions into British territory by burghers, said the republic had no intention of acting on the aggressive unless forced to do so by the military attitude of Great Britain in massing troops on the frontier, or by sending heavy reinforcements from over the sea. Latest advices fail to confirm reports that the Boers have invaded Natal, but it seems certain that the Transvaal troops are advancing. It is expected that the British reserves will be called out tomorrow and the total number of troops to be sent to the Cape is now estimated at 50,000.

NEW YORK.—Again it was a "no race" between the Columbia and the Shamrock for the America cup. Neither of the racers got within three miles of the turning point when the race was given up in disgust. The breeze was hardly sufficient to drive a boat a mile an hour.

CHICAGO.—The illumination of the court of honor for the fall festival was even more brilliant than on the night before and all streets in the vicinity were jammed. This morning Don Manuel de Aspeiroz, Mexican ambassador to Washington, will arrive, the first of the official guests. The Mexican national band will be at the station to greet him with Mexican national airs.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCT. 6, 1919.

CHICAGO.—Gary last night was the scene of steel strike clashes which were halted with the coming of four companies of militia. Eleven arrests were made, one man was shot, another seriously injured by a beating, and citizen police in autos were fired at from the streets. A mob of 500 strikers rushed the Tyler street gates of the plant of the United States Steel corporation. Another crowd tried to force an entrance to the plant of the American Sheet and Tinplate company. Rioting also occurred near the Illinois Steel company's plant in South Chicago. Eight other companies of militia are at East Chicago and Indiana Harbor. Brig. Gen. Harry B. Smith has authority to declare martial law if necessary. Today begins the third week of the strike.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson has made some improvement in his condition. He rested well last night.

G. O. P.'S PRAETORIAN GUARD.

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 25.—In your editorial, "Night Riders and Reds," you aptly suggest that "The Republican party does not want for its praetorian guard a faction representing ignorance, bigotry and superstition."

The party may not want it, but they have it. The Republican party in Indiana is now and for about ten years past has been, metaphorically speaking, marching up and down the political highways and byways side by side and arm in arm with the Anti-Saloon league and the Ku Klux Klan.

Shumaker, whether in prison or out, drinking buchu or not, still carries tens of thousands of votes in his vest pocket and can defeat or elect any candidate on any ticket, as he may desire. The Republican party may not want such a faction for its praetorian guard, but the leaders in that party who are after the bacon know where and how it is to be found now as they did in 1928.

Bigotry and ignorance are in the saddle in Indiana as well as in every other state adjoining it.

The only hope is that the horse that is under the saddle may die of overwork before civilization is trampled to death.

DON'T FLOOD US WITH ANSWERS.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—To settle an argument, I have several questions I would like to have answered.

What is an American? Who are the genuine Yankees? Can Chinese or Japanese become citizens of the U. S. A.? Who are the 100 per cent Americans?

JOHN J. KRALL.

THE LION'S TAIL.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—May I inquire with all earnestness as to why THE TRIBUNE is deadly anti-English? Ever since the editorial, "Yes, this is London," appeared a year ago you have followed it up with constant sneering and nagging of the English people. You not only take a keen delight in exposing petty faults of ours, but exaggerate any news item out of all proportions.

One wouldn't mind if criticisms were offered in the proper manner. It is only when you get so hard boiled and cocksure of yourself in your expressions that you seem to forget the meaning of fair play and good will. The English people have enough worries and struggles without the want of malice—yes, I repeat—malice.

As for myself, I would rather a thousand times be content with my three cups of tea a day and still retain the human element that finds comfort in humanity and sociability than gorge myself with three solid meals and lose these necessary insights, which, unfortunately, is the ultimate result when one becomes well fed, double chinned, and spoiled.

BERNARD SAMUEL LIPMAN.

HUMANITY FOR THE FISH.

Forest Park, Ill., Sept. 25.—On the beautiful banks of the polluted, stagnant waters of the Des Plaines river, on the northern outskirts of Maywood, where a little creek runs into the Des Plaines river, can be seen not hundreds but thousands of dead fish in lengths from 12 to 16 inches, slowly decaying. Across the river is located the forest preserve.

If we preserve the forest, why not the fish?

ARTHUR A. JAHR.

REFERRED TO AIR POLICE.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—I have just written Maj. Reed Landis asking if it isn't possible for some action to be taken to prevent airplane flying above football stadiums during games this fall.

People who pay for seats do not like the nerve racking sensation of having some old dilapidated plane flying around just to give the flyer a little pleasure. It causes many to miss important plays and is a practice that should not be allowed. Is it going to require a tragic accident to cause action on this unhappy practice?

G. W. ROBERTS.

OPERA IN ENGLISH.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Intermittently some self-appointed expert will give his reasons for the civic opera deficit. Some want opera in English rather than in Italian, German and French. The peculiar thing is that one can't understand what's being said regardless of what language an aria is sung in. Any one who has heard a couple of "he shall die, he shall die, he shall dies," and some more "his blood shall flows" has had enough of opera in English.

As for new operas, in the last two or three years we have seen "Judith," "Der Rosenkavalier," "La Cena delle Beffe," "The Witch of Salem," "The Bat," and revivals of Wagnerian opera and the highly successful "Don Giovanni."

"Judith" is the most successful opera [orchestrally] that has been written in recent years. It lasted merely one season and had, I think, poor audiences. "Judith," of course, is not art modern and if the civic opera slights the Russian school [Tschaikowsky, Rimsky-Korsakov, Borodin, and the ballets of Igor Strawinsky], it is because there is no audience for such undertakings in what our eastern friends call the hinterland. Besides, these operas require a different type of singer, preferably Russian, which the civic opera doesn't possess.

Finally, the opera-goers want to go out singing "O terra, addio," or "La donna è mobile," so what is one to do?

IRWIN ROSEN.

BELT ROADS.

Hinsdale, Ill., Sept. 23.—I believe THE TRIBUNE originated the term "Chicagoland" to designate the sphere of influence within which "metropolitan Chicago" was supposed to lie.

And yet, when those of us in Chicagoland are interested in seeing the highways completed as planned in the $100,000,000 bond issue, we are told by the Chicago Motor club and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that we are "all wet."

If the railroads that made Chicago what it is today had not been connected by belt railroads outside the congested city yards, the jam of freight would have been insurmountable.

Take a hunch from the railroads, gentlemen, and let us have "belt highways" that will route the traffic off the congested city streets. Today there is not a through paved north and south route between Mannheim road and the Fox river, nearly twenty-four miles. Think of it! And that in Chicagoland!

Look at your road maps, gentlemen, and ponder what they tell you; and recall that Du Page county is in reality a corner of Cook.

ILLINOIS MINE WORKERS DEFY NATIONAL HEAD

Lewis' Demand to Drop Suit Ignored.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The contest between President John T. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America and officers of the mine workers of Illinois reached the acute stage today. Following a demand from President Lewis that the Illinois organization's executive board repudiate a libel suit brought against international officers by A. C. Lewis, chief counsel for the Illinois Miners union, a statement was issued by the latter, declaring the board would be prosecuted and defying the national executive.

With A. C. Lewis' personal statement concerning his determination to prosecute his libel suit was a memorandum of action taken by the Illinois district board in defiance of President Lewis. It stated that the board had refused to change the district constitution, as Lewis "had ordered." In explanation of this a subjoined note said:

Much Property Involved.

"The international, with only 30,000 members—bituminous—outside of Illinois, which has 60,000 members, wants to grab the district property and annul the Illinois agreement with the operators. Several million dollars in property is involved. The Illinois district recently loaned the international $5,000, with which to pay office rent in the Merchants Bank building at Indianapolis."

In further defiance of President Lewis, the Illinois board redistricted the Franklin county subdistrict, where the provisional president, secretary and vice president are in control for the international organization. It directed that the local unions of Christopher, Zeigler, Sesser, and area north of the Illinois Central tracks, formerly under the jurisdiction of subdistrict No. 9, be placed in the Duquoin subdistrict.

The local union of Logan was assigned to the Saline county subdistrict. All other local unions under the jurisdiction of subdistrict No. 9 were placed under the jurisdiction of the Williamson county subdistrict.

Refuse to Vacate Office.

Another instance of the board's defiance of President Lewis was its refusal to vacate the office of district executive board member in the Peoria district, held by George Stouffer. The memoranda stated that President Lewis had ordered vacation of this office, but that his ruling would not be followed.

President Lewis came to Springfield today, following notice of the filing of the libel suit brought by Attorney A. C. Lewis. He dictated his letter defending disavowal of the libel suit, addressing it to "Harry Fishwick, president, and all members of the executive board of district No. 12."

Text of Lewis' Letter.

President Lewis letter read in part:

"Gentlemen:

"Yesterday four lawyers employed by District 12, acting as principals or attorneys in fact, filed suit against the officers of the international union in the amount of $250,000. This suit is based upon the fact that the international officers have informed the members of our organization of the graft and corruption existing within district 12.

"The suit within itself is ridiculous, except in so far as it reveals the frantic mental processes of men desperate with fear and indicates a breakdown in the moral fibre of the officers of the district.

"The executive board of District 12, in session today, should approve or disapprove the action of its lawyers in filing the libel suit. If the several lawyers have acted witnout the authority of the district organization, their action should be disavowed and their associations with the union severed. If the action of the lawyers is approved, it will be equivalent to the district organization severing its relations with the international union.

"It is axiomatic that a house divided against itself cannot stand and the international union will not much longer permit a continuance of existing conditions to our union in Illinois."

Foot Troubles Cause Bad Health

They affect the body in many different ways. The feet swell, burn, ache; sharp pains under heels, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on gravel; corns, callouses, ingrown nails and bunions; excessive perspiration with offensive odor, overdeveloped ankles and legs, varicose veins; legs cramp, knees stiffen; pain in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck and poor circulation. MOST PEOPLE THINK THEY HAVE RHEUMATISM, NEURITIS, ARTHRITIS, WHEN THEIR TROUBLES ARE ALL CAUSED FROM THEIR FEET. Do not be discouraged. Regardless of what your condition may be or what you have tried, or whom you have consulted, Dr. Pinkston guarantees to relieve all foot troubles and nine-tenths of them regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment.

COURTESY

Politeness is an essential in lasting friendship. A reputation for courtesy is enough to make a person liked, whether it be in a social or business capacity.

As with individuals, so with stores. Salespeople are frequently discourteous when they have no thought of being so. Their attitude is reflected in their customers. The store thus wins a reputation for inattention and is disliked accordingly.

(Note! No Additional Down Payment Required on the Tubes)

THOUSANDS of people who, only a few months ago, were quite proud of their radios, now are replacing them with Balanced-Unit Philcos. Why? . . . Because the new Philco makes worthy radios of the past seem wholly inadequate by comparison. You need only to stage your own "blindfold test" to convince yourself, without outside persuasion, that here is a radio far ahead of its time. It is a pleasure to own a Philco. The very spirit of the air is imprisoned within its beautiful cabinet. Sound waves swell from behind its panels of Oriental walnut and bird's-eye maple in a glorious symphony of tone. The swift, rhythmic beat of the jazz orchestra . . . the mellow strains of a string quartette . . . the rich, melodious voice of the concert star . . . the sudden, explosive cry of the sports announcer on top of a close play, with a mob of excited fans howling in the background . . . all these come to you with the same faithful, undistorted realism. "True as life," you'll say!

All the newest and finest improvements in radio are incorporated in this marvelous instrument, including 245-power tubes and screen-grid tubes and the Philco Electro-Dynamic speaker, carefully matched and balanced so that all units are perfectly synchronized. It is ultra-sensitive and selective. Only $119.50, less tubes (with tubes, $140.00).

LAST RITES FOR STRESEMANN TO BE HELD TODAY

Lies in State in Reichstag; Find Political Testament

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The German reichstag, to which Mr. Gustav Stresemann belonged for almost 20 years, has been turned into a huge mourning cathedral where his body lies in state tonight in the dim light of two man size candles. Young attaches of the foreign office and young students are mounting the death watch, while the whole German nation and representatives of the whole world vie in paying homage to the dead leader.

There are not enough laurels and symbols of glory in the German capital or in all German gardens for the wreaths and garlands with which the masses are trying to express their admiration of Dr. Stresemann. Italy was asked to send the laurels needed by airplanes, but owing to the recent heavy storms in the north, Italy's laurels are still drenched and not fit for transportation. Now airplanes are rushing up laurels and lilies from Holland, Belgium and France to beautify the last ceremonies for Dr. Stresemann.

Take Remains to Reichstag.

In a simple hearse, drawn by four black horses with black plumes, Dr. Stresemann's coffin was carried to the reichstag from his villa on the Wilhelmstrasse after a short ceremony in which a priest sought to console the widow and relatives with the scriptural text "blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Overcome with grief, one of Dr. Stresemann's youngest aids fainted at the side of the coffin, and it was that truly womanly woman, Kaethe Stresemann, the German leader's comrade for more than 25 years and the greatest loser of all, who sought to impart some of the courage for which she was struggling to the boy so overwhelmed by the tragedy of his leader's sudden death.

Former Prince Sends Tribute.

Dethroned German royalty has joined the potentates of the world in floral offerings heaped in lobbies of the reichstag. There is a wreath from the former Crown Prince Wilhelm with his initials and a golden crown on the ribbon.

This morning, in the presence of his closest friends, Dr. Stresemann's safe was opened, and much to their surprise they found a voluminous manuscript which they hope will be a political testament of the deceased to the German people. It is being studied carefully this afternoon, but friends are awaiting Frau Stresemann to recover so that she may decide what she wants conveyed to the German people.

Chancellor Hermann Mueller, under the strain of emotions of the last few days, has suffered a severe relapse of his gall trouble, which took him to death's door this summer. The chancellor's weak state of health is said to be responsible for the haste with which Dr. Julius Curtius was appointed foreign minister ad interim.

DOWNERS GROVE VOTES AGAINST $600,000 BONDS

An "official" unofficial election in which the residents of Downers Grove, western suburb, signified their choice for sanitary district trustees of the suburb, last night resulted in the "election" of the four candidates on the so-called Taxpayers' ticket by a margin of almost two to one over two other tickets.

The issue in the voting was a proposed $600,000 bond issue for the construction of a new sewage disposal plant.

What actually was done was that a straw vote was taken at the instance of County Judge S. L. Rathje of Du Page county, who, with power to appoint the sanitary district trustees, said he would abide by the people's choice.

The Taxpayers' ticket, opposing the bond issue, won by a vote of 2,157, against the Independent ticket, which got 992 votes; and the sitting trustees for the issue, who got 291. The Independents took no stand on the bond issue.

George F. Repp, A. F. Breviller, and Clyde W. Page were the successful candidates.

Stevedore Won Riches and Great Power.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—William J. "Fingy" Conners Sr., publisher of the Buffalo Courier-Express, leading politician and sportsman of note, dropped dead of heart disease in his home here today. He was 72 years old.

The publisher had been in ill health for several months. He kept in harness to the last, however, having spent a good part of yesterday going over plans for a new building for his newspaper with architects. Last night he played cards with a few friends for an hour or more and was apparently in fine spirits.

Up to a few years ago Conners was active in politics and at the time ranked as one of the leading Democrats of the state, if not of the east. He served as chairman of the Democratic state committee for four years and had a hand in the selection of various gubernatorial and other candidates of that party. For years his voice was influential in the national councils of the party.

Started on the Docks.

Starting life as a dock laborer, it was then he achieved the nickname of "Fingy" which stuck to him all through the years, Conners graduated into the saloon business and later into the brewing business. He began to invest his savings at an early date in lots in South Buffalo and as the city developed in that direction his holdings rose in value by leaps and bounds.

In the early eighties he obtained a stevedore's contract with the Union Steamboat company and soon had 3,000 men on his pay roll. His bank account mounted rapidly. He went into politics and it wasn't long before opponents realized that he was a power to be reckoned with.

Becomes a Publisher.

In 1895 he bought the Buffalo Enquirer, later renamed the Star, and still later the Morning Record and the Morning Courier, which he merged.

In 1916 Conners organized the Great Lakes Transit corporation, controlling about 85 per cent of the freight and passenger steamboats on the great lakes.

The publisher was twice married. His first wife, Catherine Mahaney, died in 1881. Twelve years later he married Mary A. Jordan of West Seneca, N. Y.

CHARLES E. WARD.

Charles E. Ward, 56 years old, for years a practicing lawyer and figure in Republican politics in Chicago, died yesterday in Jacksonville, Fla., according to word received by relatives and friends in Duquoin, Ill., his native town. Some years after being admitted to the bar in Michigan in 1894, Mr. Ward became a member of the Michigan legislature, rising to speaker pro tem of the house. He disappeared suddenly after he had been tried and acquitted in connection with the death of a young woman from an illegal operation. Later he was discovered by former Senator William Lorimer, then a congressman. He was working for Mr. Lorimer, bossing a crew of laborers. Mr. Lorimer took Ward into his office and soon made him his private secretary. He held the position for several years.

MISS COWLING AND MISS JONES SOCIETY BRIDES

Younger Set Sees Lifelong Friends Married.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Two weddings of wide interest in Milwaukee's younger set took place today and two brides, through radiant, entertained regrets because neither was able to attend the wedding of the other, though they have been lifelong friends.

The brides were Miss Cornelia Van Dyke Jones and Miss Mary Eleanor Cowling. Miss Jones is the daughter of Mrs. Charles Louis Jones, Prospect avenue, and her marriage to Randall Austin Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Waller Ross, Cleveland, took place at 4 p. m., at the home of her mother. The Rev. Dr. Paul B. Jenkins read the ceremony. Mrs. Jones, who is the former Miss Harriet Cary, also was married here.

The room was banked with tropical ferns and standards of white chrysanthemums stood at either side. Near the standards were wrought iron candelabara with white candles and small white kneeling bench with a white satin cushion. The music room was lighted with candles and adorned with vases of chyrsanthemums.

Gown of Ivory Satin.

Miss Jones wore a bridal gown of ivory satin with a fitted bodice and a long, full skirt, a long train falling from the shoulders. A satin bow graced the front of the waist and streamers of orange blossoms fell from it. She wore a bridal veil of rose point lace caught with orange blossoms, and ivory tulle was arranged from the cap and fell the length of the train. Her corsage was of lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Mrs. Severn Anderson Jr., Buffalo, attended Miss Jones as matron of honor. Mrs. Sherman Parker, Pittsburgh, and Miss Catherine Cary, New York, a cousin of the bride, also attended Miss Jones. Mrs. Anderson Jr., and Mrs. Parker were dressed in frocks of beige chiffon velvet with fitted bodices and long circular skirts of uneven hemline.

Copper Colored Roses.

Miss Cary was attired in a frock of pale pink chiffon, bouffant style, and wore a meline hat of the same shade. Mrs. Jones, mother of the bride, wore a gown of hydranges blue and wore a corsage of yellow and copper colored roses. And Mrs. Ross a grey embroidered silk and wore yellow and pink roses.

Austin Ross, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Charles Thomas, Cincinnati; Norman Merrill Chester, William H. Wolf, Carl Kuelthau, Frederick Pabst Jr., and Ralph Uihlein.

A reception followed the ceremony after which Mr. and Mrs. Ross left on a wedding trip to Colorado Springs. They will be at home in Milwaukee after Nov. 1.

In All Saint Cathedral.

The marriage of Miss Cowling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Cowling, Kenwood boulevard, and Arthur Tallmadge Spence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Spence, Prospect avenue, took place at 4 p. m. in All Saints' cathedral. The Rt. Rev. W. W. Webb officiated, and was assisted by the Rev. Charles S. Hutchinson.

Miss Cowling wore a wedding gown of brunt antique ivory satin, princess style. A yoke of rose point lace adorned the neck. The skirt fell into a medium length train. She wore a beret cap of rose point lace with a spray of orange blossoms arranged across the back. A veil of ivory tulle fell from the cap to the end of the train. She carried calla lilies.

Mrs. Chandler Osborn, the former Miss Katherine Markham, attended the bride as matron of honor. Mrs. Ludlow North, formerly Miss Mary Bean, and Mrs. John T. Pirie II. of Hubbard Woods, who was Miss Mary Quarles, were the bridesmaids.

Turquoise Blue Gown.

The attendants were gowned in Biancelli crêpe frocks similarly fashioned along princess lines, sleeveless, and with the skirts sponsoring short trains. Mrs. Osborn wore a gown of turquoise blue, and Mrs. North and Mrs. Pirie were attired in sunset pink crêpe. Their hats were tappi models of velvet of the same shade as their gowns. They wore arm bouquets of talisman roses.

Mrs. Cowling, mother of the bride, was attired in tope velvet, and Mrs. Spence, mother of the bridegroom, wore brown velvet.

Kenneth Smart was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Charles James, Joseph W. Simpson Jr., James G. Cowling Jr., and John Pierson of New York.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the athenaeum. Mr. and Mrs. Spence will be at home Dec. 1, at 428 Linnwood avenue.

Hold Woman Director of Stag Parties in Bond

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Marjorie Lee, 176 12th street, director of stag party entertainments, charged with contributing to the delinquency of two girls, both minors, was held in bond of $500 by Judge George Page of the district court today.

William Zabel, attorney for Mrs. Lee, said that reports of parties at which the girls danced were highly exaggerated and that a Milwaukee county official would be called as a witness when the case is resumed Oct. 18.

Two warrants charge that the girls under Mrs. Lee's direction danced without clothing and that they were given intoxicating liquor. The girls, 15 and 17 years old, were given probation in the juvenile court yesterday.

DISCUSS SOCIAL PROBLEMS.

PANTAGES FACING NEW CHARGE OF WITNESS FIXING

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Pantages, the husband on trial on rape charges brought by a 17-year-old girl, and the wife facing a prison sentence for killing a man in an automobile accident, felt the stern pinch of the law today from a court of justice and a county grand jury.

Wife Free Until Oct. 25.

Mrs. Pantages, on a statement of Dr. Benjaman Blank, country physician, retained her freedom on $50,000 bail because she is "dangerously ill," and incarceration "might mean death." Judge Hardy permitted filing of an application for probation, which will be heard October 25, coincident with sentence. For the death of Juro Rokumoto last June, she might be imprisoned from one to ten years.

The Rev. R. P. Shuler drew the court's ire for his remark of alleged irregularities in the trial and a further failure to answer promptly a subpœna for today's hearing. The pastor's accusations were denied from the witness stand by Ira Gay, a juror, and Charles Bryant, court bailiff. Mr. Shuler is awaiting a bench decision on contempt of court charges placed against him for the statements.

Ivan R. T. Samsonoff, a state witness, caused the grand jury indictment in the husband's trial by asserting that a private detective told him he would be "taken care of" if he gave Mr. Pantages a "break."

The disclosure added another charge to the state's previous accusations that Pantages had attempted to muzzle witnesses following an alleged attack on Eunice Pringle, a dancer, last August in his private office.

CHARGE BRITAIN AIDED SCUTTLING OF GERMAN FLEET

Chiefs Tell 'Inside Story' of Scapa Flow.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—Students of the history of the world war and its aftermaths have always felt an element of mystery in the spectacular sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow on June 21, 1919. Fifteen capital ships, seven of Germany's best cruisers and fifty destroyers of the latest type, were scuttled by their own crews—in full view of the British and, according to the latest version, with their tacit consent.

There is no doubt whatever about it—the Gemans did their own sinking, but how could they do it, as suddenly, as smoothly, as carefully as they did in the face of strict British supervision, of a superb British secret service, of recalcitrant soviet-pacifistic German sailors?

Squadron Withdrawn.

Numerous conversations with German officers of the fleet scuttled in Scapa Flow, a close study of events and conditions prior to and after the sinking of the German fleet, convey the distinct impression that Great Britain lent her tacit approval to the sinking of the German fleet. The German crews were reduced to a convenient minimum by order of British authorities—the scuttling order of Admiral Reuter was carried to the Germans by British ships—the second British battle squadron was withdrawn from Scapa Flow on the day the British knew the German admiral expected a renewal of hostilities—only an inadequate guard was left.

And the motive for this tacit British coöperation in sinking the German fleet? "Fear of distribution of the German ships among the Allies," is the answer of Capt. Prahl, commander of Germany's former crack cruiser Brummer, claims. His ship, the fastest cruiser in the German navy, went down in the Scapa Flow scuttling. He was one of the best informed eye witnesses.

British Expect Sinking.

Admiral von Reuter, in charge of the German fleet at Scapa Flow, makes no bones about it. In his book "Das Grabmal der Deutschen Flotte" he states plainly his conviction that the British admirals not only expected the sinking but were positively surprised that it did not occur earlier. It could not have been done in a German port, the admiral writes: "Even if I had known at the time that Admiral Beatty did not expect our ships to arrive undamaged at their port of destination, I could not have sunk the fleet earlier because the majority of the crew were infected with bolshevistic ideas. These elements would have prevented the scuttling of the ships."

But the British admiralty came to his aid—knowingly or unknowingly—when it ordered the crews of the German ships reduced to a minimum—when on the morning of June 21, 1919, the second British battle squaddon, under the command of Admiral Sir E. Freemantle steamed away from Scapa Flow, leaving only two destroyers and a few drifters and armed motor boats to watch the German ships.

Scarcely an Accident.

This can scarcely be an accident when you learn from Admiral von Reuter that the British censor saw to it that he received only papers that were four days old. The British were fully aware that on June 21, owing to these delayed papers, the German admiral was under the impression that the Germans would turn down the allied peace proposals and that he expected hostilities to be resumed immediately after the German formal refusal.

In Admiral Reuter's own words: "Being under the impression that hostilities would be resumed, it was my duty toward my country to sink the ships to prevent them from falling into the enemy's hands."

Nevertheless, though they deliberately left the German fleet without adequate supervision the day they knew the German chief expected a renewal of hostilities, the British tried to prove the scuttling of the Scapa Flow fleet was a deep laid plot of the new born German republic.

Might Lose Supremacy.

"Four times I was summoned before a British court martial," Capt. Prahl told THE TRIBUNE. "Every time they tried to make me testify that Admiral von Reuter acted in accord with instructions of the German government. It would be in line with the British policy practiced through centuries to let the other fellow do the job and then get the most out of it. The fact is the British feared a distribution of the German ships.

"Great Britain was then undisputed master of the seas. The British could gain little by adding a few German ships to their sea forces. But if the lion's share of the high class German ship material was alloted to her allies, to America or France, England would have run the risk of losing her naval supremacy.

"As to my ship, I knew the English coveted it. A cruiser making 32 knots per hour, able to carry 500 mines, was without equal in all the navies of the world at that time. I had taken my precautions. Zealous cleaning had reduced the guns to a heap of scrap iron and seawater pumped through the boilers does not improve the speed or the seaworthiness of a ship. If the British had tried to seize the ship by surprise it would have sufficed to apply my handkerchief to my nose in a certain manner and unseen hands would have opened the suice valves. Under no circumstances would I have surrendered my ship to the British.

Ordered to Sink Ships.

"On June 17 the commanders of the German ships received orders from Admiral von Reuter to sink their ships if the British forces attempted to seize the fleet by force or if a certain signal was set on the admiral's flagship.

"The order was distributed by the usual English dispatch boats to avoid arousing suspicion.

"It provided that all preparations be made to guarantee a speedy sinking of the ships. All doors and bull's eyes were to be kept open. Reliable petty officers and sailors were to be drawn into confidence. Measures were to be taken to open all valves and torpedo tubes at a moment's notice."

The question arises here how was it possible for the British mail carriers to bring these orders to the German commanders? Even newspapers were subjected to the strict censorship of the British authorities. By accident they could have overlooked one or two messages—but all of them? But Capt. Prahl only smiles and tells how the actual scuttling was done.

Everything in Readiness.

"Months before I had worked out all the details so as to act immediately when the order was passed. My personal kit, cut down to a minimum, lay in readiness weeks before the sinking. When at last the signal was given I was in pajamas. I slipped into thin silk socks and patent leather shoes, the most foolish thing to do under the circumstances. But I didn't care. Nothing mattered. The only thought in my mind was to sink my ship and that as quickly and thoroughly as possible. With a petty officer I rushed through the ship smashing in the bull's eyes of the lower cabins with iron bars. In the meanwhile the sluice valves had been opened and the crew boarded the boats.

"Remaining behind I hoisted the German war flag under machine gun fire of an English destroyer. The British fired to kill. Whatever may have been the plans of the British admiralty the British guard boats—such as were left at the moment of the sinking—had no order to practice leniency in case of an attempted scuttling.

German Captain Killed.

"The rigorous way in which the British tried to force the drifting German crews back to their ships is best shown in the case of the killing of Capt. Schumann, the commander of the battleship Markgraf. He as well as Dittman, a petty officer seated at his side, were shot to death by rifle fire although his boats into which the crew had taken refuge were flying the white flog. All in all one officer and seven sailors were killed and sixteen sailors wounded by the British during the sinking.

"On land we were conveyed to a prisoners' camp in Scotland and thence to England. At each station of our tour we received enthusiastic ovations. Whatever the English press may have said at the time, it was evident that the majority of the English people sympathized with us.

"Our fleet, once the pride of the German nation, reduced to so much scrap iron, saved the allied admiralties the trouble of deciding how the German ships should be divided up.

35 Loaves of Bread.

"It was only a few weeks ago," the captain added with a grin, "that I received a letter from a high auditing department of the admiralty requesting me to account immediately for 35 loaves of bread and 427 marks and odd pfennigs which then were the funds of his majesty's cruiser Brummer. I did not tell them the story about the patent leather shoes but I suggested they get in touch with the British company now raising the German ships. They might help the auditor retrieve a few not too palatable loaves of bread and a bundle of inflated paper marks."

Rear Admiral Junkermann, interviewed by THE TRIBUNE in Kiel, where he bosses the torpedo and mine department of the German navy, said: "Certainly some of the British navy men were mighty pleased to see the German ships out of the way. I doubt whether the English planned to take them over. To my mind a man of war, a complicated machinery with hundreds of various devices, each of which vary in the different navies, is of no great fighting value if it lacks a trained crew thoroughly acquainted with the engines, specific types of armament, etc.

Order Crews Reduced.

"But it is a fact that without the British admiralty's voluntary or involuntary coöperation we never could have accomplished the feat. The British admiralty not only acquiesced in but even demanded repeatedly a reduction of the ship's crews which at the time of the sinking were reduced to one-tenth of their original force, i. e., 175 men for each battleship, 200 men per battle cruiser, 60 men for small cruisers, and 20 men for each destroyer.

"These reductions enabled us to get rid of the bad elements among the crews. Those who were infected by bolshevistic ideas would have opposed the sinking of the fleet.

"During the internment letters were frequently sent to members of the crews from Germany advising them to kill their officers. The sailors' soviet on board the flagship 'Friedrich der Grosse,' which had created any amount of trouble, could only be persuaded to leave the ship when a British destroyer came alongside with guns pointed at the mutinous crew. Finally, Admiral von Reuter was compelled to leave the ship and hoist his flag on the cruiser 'Emden.'

Loyal Men Kept.

"Naturally we took good care that these elements were removed whenever a reduction was requested by the British admiralty, keeping back the best and most loyal petty officers and sailors. That we chose our men well was proved by the eventual sinking."

Capt. Wollanke, in command of the battle cruiser "Von der Thann," shares the opinion of his comrade: "The high class German ships would have represented a substantial addition to the British naval forces, thus enabling them to counterbalance the rapid strides the United States was making in bringing their navy up to parity.

"And high class material the German ships were, as the battle of Jutland demonstrated to the world. We Germans know how to build ships. Take our new ship, the 'Ersatz Preussen.' I don't believe it has its match in the world. It is the speed that does it. The speed combined with a comparatively heavy armament. With its 27 knots per hour it can dictate the firing range to any battleship floating on the seas, making up for the shorter range of its guns by running closer up to the enemy and profiting by the greater firing velocity of its guns as compared to the heavy 14 or 16 inchers of the battleships. Any cruiser built under the Washington treaty is, of course, at a disadvantage because of its lighter armament."

Master Clayton Polley Jr., 4 years old, arrived on the New York Central at the La Salle street station yesterday, rather proud that he had made the trip from Rockland, Me., all by himself, and decidedly glad to see his parents again. Mr. Clayton, who lives at 2832 West 22d street, came to Chicago last spring to find work. Later he sent for his wife, the boy remaining with relatives for the summer. Master Clayton Jr. looked on Chicago with big wondering blue eyes upon his arrival, and decided it wasn't such a bad town for a little boy to live in. The journey was made under the direction of the Traveler's Aid.

ENRIGHT SAYS CITY OFFICIAL INVOLVED IN ROTHSTEIN CASE

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Richard E. Enright supplied a sensation in the city campaign today by announcing that he is ready to name a city official involved in the Rothstein case, and also to give proof that Brooklyn politicians are tied up with a "needle beer racket," in the shadow of Borough hall.

The mayoralty nominee of the Square Deal party had the spotlight today, his charges proving more exciting than F. H. La Guardia's assaults on Tammany wrongdoing.

As District Attorney Joab H. Banton proceeded to prepare for the trial of George McManus, charged with the murder of Rothstein, Enright, who was once police commissioner, stated that he is ready to appear as a witness and tell what he knows of

Asserting he was convinced that neither McManus nor Hymie Biller fired the shot that killed Rothstein, Enright said that at least seven persons were present at the shooting and he would name two, "one of whom is a city official, fairly high up."

He intimated that he may have affidavits from men present at the time of the murder.

BURROWS TO BE HANGED ON FRIDAY, DEC. 13

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Richard Nash Burrows, 19 year old Chicago youth, today was sentenced to hang Friday, Dec. 13, for the murder of Jack Martin, Mesa, Ariz., salesman.

The defense announced an appeal to the Arizona Supreme court would be filed in a few days.

Burrows claimed Martin forced him to drink intoxicants and that he shot the salesman in a "drunken stupor" when Martin began to "abuse" him.

SEIZED ON FRAUD CHARGE.

Morris Kleinman, 44 years old, was arrested yesterday in the home of relatives at 1242 Hastings street. He is charged with defrauding Mrs. Rose Resnick, 5936 Roosevelt road, of $1,500 a year ago.

CAMP ALGONQUIN MAKES POSSIBLE 1,808 VACATIONS

Loyal Friends Make the Outings a Success.

Camp Algonquin, THE TRIBUNE'S camp on the Fox river, 45 miles north west of Chicago, gave 1,808 vacations of two weeks duration to the underprivileged of Chicago during the summer months. That was announced yesterday in a report from the United Charities of Chicago, which maintains the camp.

Congratulations over the "excellent showing" of Camp Algonquin, where the health rating was found to be 95.3 per cent was expressed by Health Commissioner Kegel in a letter to Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the summer outings committee of the charities, according to the report. Dr. Kegel stated that much had been done to protect the health of the camp's guests.

Work Toward Common Good.

"The coöperation of other Chicago social agencies and public bodies helped materially in making for greater efficiency and economy in the management and maintenance of the camp," declared Edwin C. Jones, financial secertary, in his report. "The Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund supplied a full time nutrition worker, a part time clerk, and a visiting physician who gave physical examinations.

"The board of education of Chicago assigned five teachers to the camp who planned and carried out with the counselors and members of the staff the recreational program for the children. The board also supplied sewing material and manual training classes conducted for the all-summer children. The camp management hopes next summer, through special gifts, to secure materials for the boys and girls spending only the two weeks period in the camp.

"The Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium gave the camp the service of their nurses through July and August. The Infant Welfare society this year extended its work to children between the ages of 2 and 6, and mothers were given lessons in the feeding and early training of their children at weekly conferences. Thirty-five young men and women volunteered their services as counsellors, their board, lodging and laundry being their only expense to the camp.

Museum and Library Help.

"Part-time services were given, by a lecturer from the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation of the Field museum who gave nature talks to children. The Harris extension of the museum also loaned twelve cases of collections of stones, animals, leaves and flowers, to be exhibited in the dining room. Three hundred books came as a loan from the Chicago Public library.

Miss Elsa Hirsch, superintendent of northwest district, United Charities, conducted a Sunday sketching class for children, and found time to paint two Czecho-Slovakian mural paintings over the fireplaces in the dining room. The new boat house was built from the $1,000 estate of Clay E. Gentry, an employé of THE TRIBUNE.

Individual contribution, according to the report, included a flag pole, additions to two boys' dormatories, fireworks, an automobile, fifty blankets, two row boats, a steel table, dish washing equipment, paint for all the buildings, surgical supplies, breakfast foods, candy, oranges, orange juice, sewing machines, bathing suits, soup bowls, and daily newspapers.

Guests Express Gratitude.

"We have never had a better spirit of coöperation among the camp workers, nor more gratitude expressed from our guests than this year," declared Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities. "It has been a successful year."

And among those who made the year successful were the hundreds of loyal friends of the camp, who in their contributions through THE TRIBUNE'S Camp Algonquin fund, provided $5,294.66 toward the expense of the vacations.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF

LEADERSHIP IN RADIO

A message to the Radio Public

THE responsibility of Leadership in Radio rests squarely upon the shoulders of RCA, because as the creator of broadcasting science, the creator of broadcasting apparatus, as the creator of dependable transoceanic wireless, RCA made it possible for the public to have broadcasting.

RCA, founded at the request of the United States Government, before our troops were demobilized, was expected to blaze the way in the radio field—scientifically, commercially, patriotically.

As a result of this there exists a radio audience of 40,000,000 interested listeners. This is but one indication of how RCA has responded to the Government's call.

The success of many licensed manufacturers now engaged in exploiting RCA ideas and RCA patents, including the RCA Screen-Grid patents, is evidence of how faithfully RCA has worked to make available to the public the results of its experiments, not only through its own manufacture, but through licensed competitors.

As another big buying season commences, RCA ventures a few serious words of advice to its friends.

RCA is the only organization in the radio industry manufacturing a complete line of radio products—vacuum tubes (Radiotrons), receiving sets, reproducers, radio-phonograph combinations, broadcasting apparatus, centralized radio equipment, airport and airplane equipment, sound recording and reproducing apparatus, and transoceanic telegraphic apparatus.

In each of these great divisions of radio manufacture RCA is recognized as the pioneer and leader of the industry. In its laboratories it is pioneering in new fields for the further progress of radio.

RCA is now presenting to the public the only complete line of fine quality radio sets—tuned radio frequency, Screen-Grid and Super-Heterodynes—sets that range from $54 to $690.

Tried, tested and perfected, each of these Radiolas—from the lowest to the highest priced—is the finest radio set that can be bought anywhere at any comparable price. RCA has the lowest priced, high quality radio sets in the market. They are built in a full range of different models to take care of every known requirement of broadcast reception.

These Radiolas are the work of the same engineers and scientists who designed America's leading broadcasting stations, who have made America a world center of transoceanic radio communication, who perfected the vacuum tube, who introduced the electro-dynamic speaker, who developed and perfected the wonderful Super-Heterodyne circuit, who gave the industry "all-electric" operation, who developed Screen-Grid Radiotrons and the Screen-Grid circuit.

To those about to purchase their first radio set, and to those who hesitate to make an experiment in replacing an obsolete model, we say:

Insist upon an RCA Radiola. It is backed by the reputation and experience of a world-wide organization.

Insist upon seeing the whole Radiola line. Your Radiola dealer will demonstrate to you that there is a Radiola exactly fitted to your reception requirements and your location—and at a price you can easily afford. He will consider it a privilege to serve you. He has been a leader in his line in your community for a number of years, and he will be with you through the years to come.

NORRIS VOWS TO SIFT LOBBY EVIL TO VERY BOTTOM

He'll Name Committee Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Promise of the most comprehensive and searching investigation of Washington lobbyists ever undertaken was made today by Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], chairman of the senate judiciary committee, in announcing that a subcommittee to conduct the inquiry will be named Monday.

No organization or group that has appeared in Washington in recent years for or against major legislation is to be overlooked, according to the Nebraska senator, who declared "We cannot and will not make fish of some and fowl of others" and added that he intends to appoint a subcommittee that "will go through to the end."

Tariff Lobbies First Target.

While it is probable that the initial efforts will be directed toward uncovering tariff lobbies the senator made it plain that before the investigation is complete, wet and dry organizations, church lobbies, pacifist, and "big navy" and army groups, power propagandists and any other association which has spent money to convert congress to its program will have been required to open their books.

In discussing the lobby evil Senator Norris said:

"No lobby to my mind is more insidious than the social lobby, and the investigation ought to throw sufficient light on that nefarious group to run it out of existence. There is an enormous amount of money spent by this lobby in entertainments, dinners and the social whirl which ropes in many unsuspecting legislators and can be an indirect influence on their actions.

Where Does Money Come From?

"What we want most is to find out where this social lobby gets its money and how it spends it.

"Those organizations which have a legitimate right to interest themselves in legislation and are on the level should have no hesitancy in furnishing the committee with the fullest information on the sources of their funds and how such funds are used. Those who hesitate will condemn themselves immediately."

SENATE URGED TO INVESTIGATE SHIPPING BOARD

McKellar Is Stirred by Audit Disclosures.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Appointment of a special committee to investigate the operations of the United States shipping board, and particularly Controller General J. R. McCarl's charges that ships have been sold by the board through the merchant fleet corporation to irresponsible purchasers, was proposed in the senate today by Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.].

Under the senator's resolution, a select committee of five senators would undertake an inquiry paralleling that by the justice department which was ordered yesterday by President Hoover.

According to the controller, an audit, covering shipping board operations from 1921 to 1928, showed that a total of 321 ships which it cost the government $408,062,898 to build have been sold for $45,962,308, of which latter amount only $15,413,000 was paid in cash. In the report, the controller general questioned the ability of some of the purchasers to meet their obligations.

In announcing that he had called upon Attorney General Mitchell to study the report in an effort to determine whether any of the alleged irregularities in the board's transactions constituted violations of the law, President Hoover pointed out that the controller general made no charges of malfeasance against the board members but attributed the losses sustained to bad business judgment.

The McKellar resolution would authorize the special committee to "make a thorough investigation into all the acts and doings of the United States Shipping Board and Merchant Fleet corporation and especially into the question of sales of ships by the board, the prices secured, the terms under which the ships have been sold, the character and responsibility of the purchaser, the change in terms and other facts relating to the conduct of the board and of the fleet corporation."

EIGHT FIREMEN SENTENCED FOR SETTING FIRES

Mineola, L. I. Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The eight volunteer firemen of Glen Cove, L. I., who were arrested a month ago for having set a number of fires over a period of years so that they could put new fire fighting apparatus in use and pose as village heroes, were sentenced today by Nassau County Judge Lewis J. Smith in Mineola.

Sentences of from two to four years in Sing Sing prison were imposed upon Thomas J. Moore and Raymond E. Sprague, said to have been the arson leaders. Edward J. Baker was sentenced to Elmira reformatory for an indefinite term and Frederick Doxey to the New York state institution for the mentally deficients.

The other four were given suspended sentences of from two to four years in Sing Sing prison and placed on probation. They are Edward Peets, Henry Cobbs, Lawrence Crier, and Norman Long because their families need their support.

AGE OF "SHOCK" MAKING INROAD, DOCTOR STATES

The present mechanistic age has "shocked" the human body so it is more susceptible to disease than formerly, according to Dr. Lloyd Arnold of the University of Illinois college of medicine.

"It took nature many thousands of years to build up an automatic system of control within the human body," Dr. Arnold said. "The heart, lungs and digestive system, for instance, depend on this involuntary nervous system for their functioning.

"Inventions in the past century have changed radically the mode of life for which the human body was planned. The rapid changes have subjected the nervous system to constant shocks, weakening its defense against disease germs.

"Medical science, however, rapidly is learning how to assist nature in meeting these shocks."

TWO DIE IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Gerald Lucas and Frederick White were killed when their car went into a ravine here shortly before daylight today.

COAL
A PROBLEM

If you buy coal on a charge account you pay for that service. If you pay cash Alwart guarantees to save you approximately 15% on your coal bill.

If you have not the ready cash, you can borrow from your bank or we will arrange for the money at the legal interest rate of 7% per annum. Pay cash for coal and earn in addition 8% on the loan.

Below is an example for a 100 ton Pocahontas Mine Run coal purchase, showing the difference between having coal charged or paying cash. (Smaller quantities in like proportion.)

|---|---|
| 100 ton Mine Run (charged) @ $7.75 per ton net | $775.00 |
| 100 ton Mine Run (cash) @ $6.75 per ton net | $675.00 |
| Interest charge at 7% per annum | 47.25 |
| | 722.25 |
| An additional saving of approximately 8% after paying 7% interest at your bank | $ 52.75 |

If you have cash on hand or invested in small interest bearing securities, and are in need of coal, re-invest it in ALWART'S CASH PLAN and earn 15% on your investment in this old established firm, which has conscientiously served the coal consuming public for the past 57 years and has earned for us the title of Chicago's Leading Fuel Merchants.

Alwart prices are not lower because of inferior Quality, but because you pay us cash.

Over 30,000 cash customers have approved this plan.

THE MAGIC BRUNSWICK TEST FOR TONE
Enables You To Compare Actual Studio Broadcasting with Radio Reception . . .

WHEN you listen for the first time to a program received through the NEW Brunswick Radio, you realize that there is an almost magical difference, and that that difference can best be termed "Studio Quality" Radio Reception.

For neither the Radio, the Station nor the miles of intervening air seem to exist. You are magically transported to the very studio in which the artists are performing.

He will demonstrate the Brunswick Radio to you as all other sets are demonstrated, but also will demonstrate it to you as no other set can be demonstrated.

He will re-create the most dramatic and convincing Test for Radio "Tone" and "Reception" ever conceived, reproducing for you a Radio Program broadcast May 4th last, at 12:11 midnight, in the Studio of Station WABC, New York.

You will hear this program just as though you had been in the Studio at the time it was broadcast.

And, at the same time, you will hear the same identical program, just as it was picked-up by and came through a stock model of the NEW Brunswick Radio.

And so, for the first time, you can compare the pre-microphone studio performance of great artists with the work of these same artists as it sounds when received by the NEW Brunswick Radio.

Wednesday night over KYW at 8:30 o'clock
Brunswick Brevities goes on the air

The featured artists will be LOUIS KATZMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA, who will entertain with popular hits from "The Little Show" and "Hollywood Revue." If you go in for "St. Louis Blues," you will also hear this old favorite syncopated in a way you simply can't resist!

You're out-of-date without an Eight!

Illinois registers 110% increase in Eights

As proof of the tremendous growth in public preference for eight-cylinder cars, registration figures in this State for the first seven months of 1929 tell their own story. Eights above $1,000 showed an increase of 110 per cent, while Sixes in the same price field decreased 12 per cent.

The tendency is the same the nation over. In 43 states,* Eights above $1000 increased 94 per cent. Sixes declined 18 per cent.

Nobody can doubt the evidence. We are passing into an eight-cylinder era. Already, all of the finest American cars are Eights. In fact, 41 per cent of all makes are Eights, and the number is constantly increasing.

Spurred on by an Eight-minded public, Studebaker set out two years ago to build a high-quality Eight that could be sold at moderate six-cylinder cost.

Studebaker today leads the world in the manufacture of Eights—Eights that are champions—holders of 11 world records for speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other makes combined—Eights which are remarkably economical—smooth, flexible, brilliant.

Before investing in your new car, drive a smart new Studebaker Eight—President, Commander or Dictator. Bear in mind that Studebaker's 77 years of manufacturing integrity stand back of every one of these cars. And remember, too, that your new car will be worth more a year from now—if it's an Eight!

DAWES MATCHES WITS IN LONDON; KEEPS SECRETS

Razzes and Is Razzed at Press Club Dinner.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 5. — Ambassador Dawes was a guest tonight at the London Press Club dinner, at which Lord Riddell presided. The general, who is about to leave for America to attend a meeting of the financial committee of the Chicago centennial exhibition, elicited two speeches from Lord Riddell and got away with his own diplomatic secrets intact, during an evening of facetious speechmaking. Mr. Dawes avoided the subjects of disarmament and Anglo-American relations in general. He did, however, deliver a parable based on "Caeser's Commentaries" and "Plutarch's Lives," which, he said, he had been reading of late.

Mr. Dawes got an even break with Lord Riddell in facetiousness. Lord Riddell introduced diverse subjects, from the Shearer case to his own work at the Washington naval conference.

Share Bottle of Champagne.

At dinner they shared a bottle of champagne with Richard Henry Little, Tribune columnist, who also made a speech and told several funny stories.

Tonight's affair was described as a momentous gathering and the speakers expressed appreciation at seeing Mr. Dawes, who was mentioned as one of the principal participants in the epochal events which are in the making. No mention was made, however, of the fact that Mr. Dawes was leaving suddenly for a visit to the United States.

The menus had cartoons on the back, showing Lord Riddell in a dinner jacket, shaking hands with Mr. Dawes, who was limned as an angel of peace, with wings on his shoulders, a pipe in his mouth and a naval yardstick in his hand.

Gentle Razz for Dawes.

Lord Riddell introduced Mr. Dawes as the latest of a distinguished set of ambassadors from America, beginning with Ambassador Page. Some one in the audience yelled: "How about Choate?" which had an unpleasant historical connotation. Then some one asked if Mr. Dawes had a yardstick with him. Lord Riddell imitated an American accent, while Mr. Dawes pulled away on his underslung pipe.

In enumerating Mr. Dawes' accomplishments, Lord Riddell came to three books which the general had written, which, he said, had put him to sleep. He said, however, that he remembered one phrase in Mr. Dawes' book which impressed him—"Real power ought to be camouflaged just the same as a heavy cannon." This, Lord Riddell said facetiously, was a sign that Mr. Dawes was a philosopher.

Dawes Replies in Kind.

Mr. Dawes replied in a similar facetious vein. He told Lord Riddell and the London journalists that he had a lot of information which he would not give them. He complained of the necessity imposed on American ambassadors here to compete with British orators and said that the business of exchanging compliments over cousinly relationships was being overworked.

Then Mr. Dawes got to his parable. He announced that "Caesar's Commentaries," "Thucydides," and other classical writings have been drawing his attention lately. Coming to the point, he revealed that Caesar and other generals had a practice of going out in front of their armies before a battle and making speeches to pep up the soldiers.

Once, he said, all of Caesar's soldiers were running away, except the Tenth legion. The Roman emperor made a speech, telling them that their Gallic enemies were men twelve feet high, doughty and dangerous warriors. He deliberately made things out as badly as possible and then appealed to the men not to run away. All came back and joined the Tenth legion, Mr. Dawes said. He emphasized that leadership was important.

Refers to Hoover, MacDonald.

His parable evidently had something to do with President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald, but the general did not mention it. He concluded that he felt sentimental about the rousing reception given Prime Minister MacDonald in New York yesterday.

Mr. Dawes' repartee brought Lord Riddell back for a second speech, in which he spoke of William B. Shearer and his own press service for the British at the Washington naval congress.

"Mr. Shearer got dollars for his work," he said, "but I got a special cigar box as a gift from the British, American, Japanese, and French journalists as a testimonial of their appreciation."

Then, obviously referring to Shearer, he said: "I've got a truthful face; my friends tell me that I was intended to be a cardinal."

Mr. Dawes wore a sphinxlike expression and pulled away at his underslung pipe.

Vatican Dickers With Russia for a Religious Agreement

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Coincident with the announcement that the Labor government has agreed to resume diplomatic relations with Russia comes a report from Rome quoting the Fascist paper Il Tevere that the Vatican also has resumed negotiations with the soviets—negotiations which were broken off last spring—in an effort to reach a religious concordat between Catholicism and bolshevism. These negotiations, according to Il Tevere, are taking place in Berlin between the papal nuncio, Msgr. Pacelli, who negotiated the recent concordat between Prussia and the Vatican, and the Russian ambassador in Berlin, Krestinsky.

Previous Parleys Failed.

It is an open secret in Rome that Pope Pius XI, since the time he was papal nuncio to Warsaw just after the war has been preoccupied with the situation of Catholicism in eastern Europe, especially in Russia. It is openly discussed in the Eternal City that since becoming pope he has been ambitious to return the Slavs to the folds of Catholicism, from which they split in the middle ages.

The Vatican has made several attempts to enter relationship with the soviets. The first occurred in April, 1922, at Genoa during the interallied conference when Msgr. Sincero, now Cardinal Sincero, conferred with G. V. Chicherin. That conference failed. Other conversations occurred subsequently, notably on Dec. 1 of last year and in January of this year at Rome.

Reasons for Split.

The difficulties between the Vatican and the Kremlin are said to be in substance as follows: Russia does not want to recognize a Catholic hierarchy, that is, bishops and archbishops; nor does it want to sustain ecclesiastic patrimony; it desires that the priests and bishops be maintained wholly by the contributions of their adherents; the Russian government will not permit the priests to maintain schools, educational institutions or libraries, or carry on propaganda, but it is willing to grant liberty of worship and freedom inside the churches.

The Vatican problem appears to be whether it can adapt its principles to the soviet legislation. Just as it has found means of conforming to conditions in other countries, it is reported to be studying modalities for adaptation to events in Russia.

It will be remember that Pope Pius in his speech last May, in criticizing Premier Mussolini for what transpired after the Lateran pact, said that "to save souls the pontiff would enter into negotiations even with the devil."

POPE WINS LAW SUIT FOR $162 IN HUNGARY COURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 5. — Pope Pius XI. today won an award of $162.40 in court of law in the town of Kecksekemet for the Holy See. He sued for Rome's share of an estate left by Michael Bakonyi, wealthy landowner, who died in 1907.

In his will M. Bakonyi left the Holy See a thousand crowns [at that time about $200] but which it was only supposed to obtain upon the death of M. Bakonyi's widow. His widow died two years ago and her heirs attempted to settle the legacy in the terms of post-war currency, which would have made the church's share just 20 cents.

Through the bishop of Waitzen, however, the pope started suit for the full amount on the basis of prewar currency. The court decided that the heirs would have to pay 70 per cent of the legacy's pre-war value.

TAILOR DEAD; SUICIDE SUSPECTED.

MAN WHO SENT YORK ON FAMOUS EXPLOIT GETS D. S. C. AT LAST

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Eleven years after being shot down by German machine gun bullets in no man's land, Sergt. Bernard Early of New Haven, Conn., today was awarded the distinguished service cross for bravery in the action in which Sergt. Alvin C. York won world wide fame.

Standing in the army war college arena before 10,000 spectators, he received the decoration from Assistant Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

The veteran, who is unable to work because of wounds that will never heal, was cited for conspicuous gallantry and outstanding leadership that inspired York and the remainder of his detachment of 17 men to carry on against 200 of the enemy, and the killing of 26 and capture of 132 Germans by York.

PICKLE PLANT ROBBED.

Burglars early yesterday broke into the H. H. Hall company's pickle plant at 1807 West Lake street and took $1,100 that had been placed in the pay envelopes for the employes.

BANDITS STEAL MACHINE GUN IN NAVAL ARMORY

Use for River Fighting Is Feared.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Detroit police and department of justice operatives today opened an intensive search for a heavy machine gun stolen at 6:40 a. m., from the Michigan naval reserve armory.

Covering a lone guard with revolvers, two thugs trundled the weapon to their automobile and sped away.

Police first feared the theft presaged a bank or pay roll holdup, and a general alarm to all precincts, cruisers and scout cars was broadcast. When the machine gun's weight was considered, officers expressed the belief that it more likely would be used in gang warfare or for hijacking on the Detroit river or in Chicago.

The stolen gun is a 30 caliber, water-cooled, counted Browning. Without water or ammunition it weighs 50 pounds. The cooling apparatus requires seven gallons of water and the ammunition belt holds 250 rounds.

Shortly after news of the theft reached federal authorities Thomas C. Wilcox, chief of the department of justice operatives here, called three of his men to his office. Their orders, except that they related to the machine gun theft, were not disclosed.

Department of justice men, according to Wilcox, are not armed except when embarking on a hazardous undertaking, and weapons were issued to these. Officers at the naval armory disclosed that in the last several months a number of light air cooled Browning guns, automatic pistols, and new .22 caliber weapons developed by the government have been stolen from the armory.

NEW YORK IS FACING VEGETABLE FAMINE AS TRUCKMEN STRIKE

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Two thousand truck drivers who transport New York's fresh fruit and vegetables from the railroad terminals went on strike today after a week of negotiations with truck operators had failed to achieve a settlement of differences.

The drivers met with the Market Truckmen's association this afternoon and reiterated their demand for an eight hour day with time and a half for overtime but the owners again refused and the strike was on.

A shortage is not expected before the middle of the week, because a large supply of produce is already in the hands of commission merchants and retailers, but prices, it was predicted, will begin to ascend Monday.

The strike, leaders said, will tie up approximately 2,000 railroad cars containing about $4,000,000 worth of produce.

Prof. respiration were nearly normal, the report indicated.

He Laughingly Sets His Car Afire; Police Save Him

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Jack O'Day took a tip from a bygone time and tried to start his car by building a fire under it. "I'm havin' a hot ride!" he shouted to passersby from the driver's seat of the blazing car, which was destroyed. Firemen rescued him and police filed a charge of intoxication.

POLITICAL FOES OF AUSTRIA WAR OVER REFORMS

Schober Hopes to Adopt Fascist Policy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 5.—Sweeping constitutional reforms, aimed at stuffing the Fascist policy down the throat of Austria's administration and at the same time weakening the Socialist stronghold of the key city, Vienna, will be proposed by the new Schober government when parliament reconvenes on Oct. 15, it was learned today.

The success of the contemplated reforms depends on the outcome of the game of hide and seek which the Fascists and Socialists are playing daily awaiting the opening of parliament. In principle the Socialists are bitterly opposed to the attempts of the bourgeois majority to institute a miniature Mussolini régime. Actually, however, they are hinting that their barks will be worse than their bites if the ambitious Fascists are not willing to hand out a few vital sops in order to gain their ends.

Depend on Three Points.

The heimwehr program depends principally upon three points, two of which, if passed without compensating compromises, may outwind the Socialists.

The first point deals with presidential power and is not particularly antipathetic to the Socialists. According to the proposal, the president is to be elected by direct suffrage instead of by parliament, as he is at present, and his term be increased from four to seven years. The chief executive at the same time will be converted from a figurehead to an active official with the right to dissolve parliament, appoint his own ministers, and create special laws in case of an emergency.

The second point, however, is aimed at the very heart of Austrian socialism. It would change Vienna's present curious dual status of a municipality and province to a municipality and part of the province of Lower Austria, thus burying the 100 per cent Socialist capital of 167 square miles in a Fascist province with an area of 7,451 square miles and paralyzing Socialistic power.

Would Abolish Upper House.

The third point, which is raising a roar of protest from the Socialistic ranks, where it is declared to be a direct transplantation of Mussolini's methods in Austria, demands the abolition of the Austrian upper house or present worn-out "Bundesrat," consisting of fifty members, whose main job, it is said, is to do nothing. The businesslike Fascists hope to throw out the bundesrat and substitute an economic council, composed of sixty members, chosen for vocational proficiency rather than parliamentary ability.

Since the tiny representation of workers is overwhelmingly outnumbered by employers in the proposed new upper house, the Socialists declare they will have none of it.

The Socialists have 71 deputies against 74 Fascists, eleven Pangermans and nine Agrarians. Since the constitutional changes require a two-thirds majority, the Socialists are sufficiently strong enough to balk any reforms they do not approve, and it appears highly probable that a private conference between now and Oct. 15 may result in compromises, permitting the government to railroad a portion of the program through, while the opposition retains enough rights to continue holding its own.

AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL HERE.

Charles Herzmansky, secretary to the Austrian migration office at Vienna, has arrived in Chicago, after a tour of all Canada, during which he investigated the conditions and progress of Austrians who have emigrated to the new world. Herr Herzmansky also gathered information on the basis of which Austrians who emigrate to America in the future may be advised as to the best location for them and according to the line of work they intend to pursue.

Herr Herzmansky is now making a tour of the United States on a similar mission. He will visit his countrymen, most of whom, he says, have settled in the eastern and porthern states, and to gather data which will be compiled into a complete report on his return to Austria.

Herr Herzmansky said he found unbounded opportunities for his countrymen in Canada and the United States and, that most of them were happy and contented. Very few, he said, returned to their native land after coming to America. Since 1922, Herr Herzmansky said, about 27,100 Austrians have emigrated to the United States.

ADVISORY BOARD NAMED FOR AIR LAW INSTITUTE

Director Fagg Collecting Library for School.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Prof. Fred D. Fagg Jr., managing director of the new air law institute at Northwestern university, yesterday made public a list of lawyers and authorities in the field of aviation law who will serve on the advisory board of the institute.

Classes in the air law institute will be opened next summer. The new department was opened on Oct. 1, and Prof. Fagg and his associates are now collecting a special library for the study of the legal phases of aviation. The institute is a new departure in this country.

The lawyers who will serve on the advisory board are:

George G. Bogert of the school of law of the University of Chicago, one of the first to promote the development of air law in this country.

Col. Henry Breckenridge, New York lawyer and representative of the board of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

Chester W. Cuthell, chairman of the committee on aeronautic law of the American Bar association and general counsel for the Curtiss aviation interests.

Capt. Rowan A. Greer of the judge advocate general's department of the United States army and a specialist in military phases of air law.

George B. Logan, chairman of the legislative committee of the St. Louis air board, author and lecturer on air law at the school of law of Washington university.

Justin Miller, dean of the University of Southern California law school, who gave the first course in air law in any university law school.

William P. MacCracken Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics and secretary of the American Bar association.

Carl Zollman, lecturer in air law in the Marquette university school of law.

"There is a real need for a clearing house of legal ideas pertaining to air navigation," Prof. Fagg stated yesterday. "The growth of air transportation has given rise to municipal ordinances, state laws, federal regulations and international conventions. If these laws be ill formed or in conflict, we shall experience again the chaos in legislation that existed during the expansion of the railroads."

CHIEF OF POLICE SAVES CHILDREN FROM MAD DOG

Chief of Police Clayton Tiffany of Mundelein saved a number of children yesterday from a large German police dog, which suddenly went mad. The children were attending a party on the lawn of Harry Pfanenstill, Mundelein garage owner, when the dog suddenly came snapping and snarling down the street and dashed into their midst. Vivian Pfanenstill, 9 years old, was bitten on the leg by the animal before Chief Tiffany's attention was attracted by the screams of the fleeing children. The chief ran on the lawn and attracted the dog to himself. The dog leaped at his throat. Tiffany sidestepped and clubbed the animal to the ground. Then he stepped back, drew his revolver and shot the animal.

STREET CAR INJURY FATAL.

Oliver S. Larson, 60 years old, 6811 South Wood street, died at the county hospital yesterday from injuries received when he was struck last Friday by a street car at Ashland avenue and West 65th street.

BOND PROPOSALS OF $47,696,000 TO VOTERS NOV. 7

$2,600,000 Tax Boost in County to Be Asked.

Bond issues totaling $47,696,000 will be placed on the ballot at the Nov. 5 judicial election for the approval of the voters, the records of the board of election commissioners showed yesterday. In addition a proposal to increase the county's tax revenues by $2,600,000 for one year to pay the expenses of the recent revaluation of property in the county will be submitted to the voters.

The county and the park boards are seeking funds for the construction of highways and grade separations to relieve traffic congestion and speed the motorist to his destination and to provide comfortable surroundings to the thousands of visitors in the forest preserves. The city is asking for money to rid itself of four year old debts contracted by the condemnation of property along Ashland and Western avenues and La Salle street for widening purposes.

Proposals for Bonds.

The governmental units submitting the bond proposals and the amount requested by each are as follows:

| Government— | Amount. |
|---|---|
| City | $18,876,000 |
| West parks | 20,000,000 |
| Lincoln park | 3,000,000 |
| County—grade separations | 3,320,000 |
| County—forest preserves | 2,500,000 |
| Total | $47,696,000 |

Acclaimed by the west siders as a forward step in awakening their section of the city to its trade and residential possibilities, the $20,000,000 program for the construction of the Austin-Kinzie elevated highway leads the program. It is considered of immense value for the reclamation of waste lands and for providing an outlet to the congested territory now inadequately served by major thoroughfares.

To Provide Superhighway.

Construction of this superhighway for a distance of six and two-thirds miles between Clinton street and Austin boulevard, the western city limits, will be made possible by approval of these bonds. The route, to be placed on a fill along the northern edge of the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks, will eliminate seventy-six grade crossings and make it possible for motorists to cover the entire distance in ten minutes without speeding.

The other highway proposal is contained in the Lincoln park $3,000,000 bond issue. Extension of the park drives from Montrose avenue, the present terminus, to Foster avenue is planned. Congestion at the turn into Montrose avenue from the park and at Clarendon avenue, where most traffic veers to the north again, will be relieved, according to the park commissioners.

Would Pay Landowners.

The city's bond issues would be used to pay awards to owners of property condemned by the city for the widening of Western and Ashland avenues and La Salle street. While these judgments remain unpaid, according to members of the city council, the property owners suffer, as they are handicapped in leasing, selling or improving their lands and buildings.

Additional bonds to complete the improvements by paving the streets and lighting them were defeated by the council. The cost of this work, which would have been done by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, and Michael Kennedy, commissioner of gas and electricity, was estimated at $16,000,000. The judgment money will not go through Faherty's hands, according to attorneys.

Grade separations, which would be financed by the $3,320,000 bond issue, are planned by the county board to reduce the number of accidents and to increase the speed and volume of traffic on arterial highways in the metropolitan area. The state's share of the program, which includes thirty-eight grade separations and three traffic circles, is estimated at $4,300,500.

Would Improve Preserves.

Development of the forest preserves by providing shelters and comfort stations, draining marshes, and building swimming pools would be financed by the forest preserves bond issue of $2,500,000. At present the water supplies are inadequate and many polluted, according to Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the commissioners' advisory committee.

Work on the property revaluation will cost about $3,000,000, of which $2,600,000 would be returned to the county commissioners by an increase in the county tax rate of six cents for each $100 of assessed valuations for one year. This project will be on the ballot. Debts incurred since the county board authorized the proposal raised the total from their estimate of $2,600,000.

COSTE AND PLANE IN CHINA; RUSSIA ABANDONS HUNT

MOSCOW,, Oct. 5.—(AP)—After definitely establishing the fact that the French aviator, Coste, had crossed the Russian border into Manchuria on Sept. 29, Russian aviation authorities tonight abandoned all search for the missing long distance flyer.

They learned that Coste's red Breguet had passed into Chinese territory at 2 p. m. over Abagaptuevsk, 30 miles southeast of Manchuria station. This station is just across the border from Manchouli, eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern railway, where heavy fighting between Russian and Chinese soldiers occurred in the first days of October.

The Russians had no trace of Coste, who left Le Bourget flying field Sept. 27 in an attempt to set a new nonstop world's distance record after he crossed the frontier. Searching parties had previously been sent out to comb the wilderness east of Lake Baikal.

DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS.

Leon Bowman, 40 years old, 4941 Champlain avenue, colored, died at the Wilson hospital yesterday from wounds received from an unknown assailant who shot him on Sept. 29, at 49th street and Vincennes avenue.

BILL TO ALLOW CONSUMER VOICE IN TARIFF URGED

Senator King Makes $5,000 Speech.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Appointment of a consumers' counsel to represent the general public in cases before the tariff commission was proposed today by minority members of the senate finance committee. The suggestion was embodied in an amendment to the tariff bill introduced by Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.].

The amendment provides for the appointment of a consumers' counsel by the President at a salary of $12,000. It is provided that it shall be the duty of the counsel "to appear in the interest of the consuming public in any proceeding or investigation before the commission and to conduct such independent investigation of matters relative to the tariff laws of the United States as he may deem necessary to enable him properly to represent the consuming public in any proceeding before the commission." The counsel may not actively engage in any other employment.

Senator F. M. Simmons [Dem., N. C.], ranking minority member of the finance committee, stated that he would urge adoption of the amendment, but Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader, ridiculed the proposal.

"Just what branch of the consuming public is the counsel to represent?" queried Senator Watson. "Every person is a consumer and all the members of the tariff commission represent consumers."

The senate failed to make any headway in a three hour session today. Senator W. H. King [Dem., Utah] occupied almost the entire session with a speech attacking the tariff bill. So voluminous were the exhibits which Senator King caused to be inserted in the Congressional Record in connection with his speech that Senator Watson estimated that the cost to the taxpayers would be approximately $5,000.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses any longer without understanding our plan of treatment, by which the lump is and not pressed against is.

The opening is seldom if ever more than a dime or 15c piece, the size of the ruptured part, and of course can be retained with the end of a lead pencil.

"The Stormsafe Shield" (Patent No. 747747 and other patents pending)—a scientific appliance, the result of highly specialized art. It will positively retain any case of rupture that exists, but contracts the opening in 14 days on the average case. Nothing is left to chance, but every case receives the individual attention of experts, thus exemplifying instantaneous effects by immediately appreciable and visible results in any strain or position no matter what the size or location. Large or small, single or double, congenital or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially adapted to this instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medicines or treatments of prescriptions, which distinguished personal patrons of all nations.

You demand safety and comfort—and drive a modern automobile. Why park an old-fashioned heating system in your basement? The unhealthful conditions in most homes during the winter months are caused by the dry, stagnant and unhealthful heating of obsolete heating systems. Unless your present heating plant automatically supplies your home with humidified, circulating air and ventilation, it is in the same class as a 20-year-old automobile and should be replaced.

A modern Holland Vaporaire System does more than just heat. It provides circulation, ventilation and the proper amount of humidity so vital to the health and comfort of every family. The legislators of 21 states have demanded by law that the health of your children be protected in school—insisting upon circulating, humidified, warm air. Modern physicians and health authorities agree that dry, stagnant heat in most homes is the principal cause of colds and illnesses of the respiratory organs.

Holland engineers have made available a combination heating, cooling and ventilating system that keeps your home healthful and comfortable all the year around. This system, with a built-in electric power unit, forces healthful, refreshing, humidified air gently through every room in your home, heating it in wintertime and cooling it in summer—obsoleting the old type of system that offers dry heat alone.

Holland Vaporaire is custom-built and engineered to fit the needs of your home exactly. It keeps the air moist and moving—teeming with life and energy. It automatically vaporizes from 3 to 25 gallons of water daily to humidify and circulate clean, pure air—a patented Holland method that protects health and guards against cold. Holland is a lifetime system that banishes the dread of winter forever. Every Holland is installed by factory-trained engineers. Your complete satisfaction is guaranteed in writing. It works equally well with oil, gas, coal or coke. The Holland system is reasonable in price and the terms are most liberal.

Winter is almost here. Don't delay and miss the benefits of a Holland system. There is a Holland branch near you. Have a factory-trained engineer call. The facts are free. Telephone the nearest factory branch or use the coupon below.

NEW MECHANICAL ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUN ON DISPLAY

Army Will Demonstrate Automatic Weapon.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The United States army's newly mechanized anti-aircraft artillery system, in which electrical "robots" supplant artillerymen as gun crews and automatically "man" highly perfected weapons of eight times the striking power of the world war "archies" will be demonstrated publicly for the first time in its entirety at Aberdeen proving ground, Maryland, on Thursday for the benefit of civilian engineers and industrial executives attending the eleventh annual meeting of the Army Ordnance association there.

A spectacular day and night demonstration of the new mechanism, said by army officers to be the only equipment of its kind in existence, will form one of the features of the huge program of army ordnance firing which has been arranged by Maj. Gen. Clarence C. Williams, chief of ordnance, United States army, to show technical and manufacturing leaders of the country the tremendous advances made in ordnance design during the last year, according to an announcement by C. A. Russell of 600 West Jackson boulevard, chief of the Chicago ordnance district.

5,000 Delegates on Hand.

Army Ordnance association delegates numbering 5,000 will arrive at Aberdeen by special train from all parts of the United States, with large contingents coming from New York City, Boston, Detroit, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, and even San Francisco. Cabinet officials, high ranking army and navy officers, and military observers from European armies will be present.

Included in the big spectacle will be firing of the latest and most effective implements of warfare possessed by the United States army today. From the mightiest sea coast gun, which hurls a ton of steel thirty miles, to quick firing machine guns, smoke screens, aerial bombs, and speedy armored cars, the ordnance material to be shown in action with full service charges of explosives will embrace all major weapons developed by the army ordnance department to combat invasion from the air, land, and sea.

Projecting a stream of one hundred shells a minute at aerial targets speeding one hundred miles an hour, a battery of the latest design of three inch anti-aircraft guns will give the first demonstration of the new mechanized firing system.

Night Firing.

Sleeve targets will be towed thousands of feet overhead by fast pursuit planes from Selfridge field, Michigan. On the ground troops of the 61st Coast Artillery Regiment (anti-aircraft) from Fort Monroe, Virginia, ordered out by Maj. Gen. Andrew Hero Jr., chief of coast artillery, which includes all anti-aircraft units, will operate the firing mechanism.

In thrilling, realistic portrayal of a night air raid the anti-aircraft firing will be repeated after dark, when the heavens will be painted bright with streaming red tracer bullets, the flare of huge searchlights, bursting shells, and ghostly illuminated planes.

"Robot" gunners, electro mechanical devices, technically called torque amplifiers, will train the long nosed "archies" on the swiftly shifting targets with unerring accuracy far beyond the eye of the most skilful artilleryman.

Mechanical Brain.

Directing the "robots" is a marvelous mechanical "brain," so simple in operation that soldiers can be trained within an hour to handle it expertly but which automatically solves intricate ballistic problems that a mathematician would require hours to compute. Essentially this director is a supercomputing machine which automatically and continuously observes the target and computes its future position in space.

Aiming the battery of four guns is reduced to a process of sighting through two telescopes, each operated by an artilleryman. One keeps the guns aimed horizontally and the other vertically. Between them they also adjust the fuses of the shells, so that they explode and scatter their fragments at the plane.

Army ordnance officers claim for the new battery that it is at least eight times as effective as anti-aircraft batteries used during the world war. They point out that the number of guns in the battery has been doubled, each gun fires more than twice as often, and the rate of accuracy has been more than doubled. Each of the new battery's four guns fires twenty-five shots a minute—each shot being a fifteen pound high explosive shell that reaches a ceiling of almost 40,000 feet and that can be set to burst at any altitude, scattering its fragments when it does burst at the rate of 4,000 feet a second.

REMOVE STREET CAR LINES THAT DISTURB DUCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 5.—The Pallazzo Venezia, Premier Mussolini's new quarters, with its gorgeous lofty ceilings and spacious room, would be an ideal place to work in were it not for the unceasing noise of street cars. An endless number of them in this part of the city pass from one distant point to another along the Via Plebescito and Venice square right under the window where Il Duce works. Clanging bells, scraping cars, jogging along intermittently, carry their echo into his large study.

In spite of the double windows of street car lines along this part of the city are to be removed and replaced the palace, the noise is deafening. For this reason, in the near future all with buses, which will pass on the other side of the palace.

It will be remembered that when the foreign office was moved from Consulta palace, near the Quirinal, to Chigi palace, there was the same annoyance from street cars on the Via Tribone. These were removed, in order to render Il Duce's study in the foreign office quiet. If the electric buses prove noisy there is a possibility that the office will be changed back to the hall of victory in Chigi palace, which, since Dino Grandi has been made minister of foreign affairs, has been kept closed and unused.

BANDIT HOLDS UP RESTAURANT.

A bandit early yesterday forced Salona Trifa to open the door of the restaurant at 2915 Fullerton avenue, where he is employed as a waiter, and rifled the cash register of $40.

Roumanian Minister's Life Attempted; Sequel to Riot

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Oct. 5.—The shooting by soldiers of 30 striking miners at Lupeni two months ago had a sequel today in the attempted assassination of Alexander Vajda-Voevod, minister of the interior. As the minister was about to enter his car, after leaving his office, a 20 year old youth named Goldenberg, approached and fired a shot which splintered the car window, but missed the minister. Pursued and seized by the police and spectators, the man said that his act was one of revenge for the Lupeni shootings.

WORLD SERIES RIVALS READY; BATTLE TUESDAY

BRUDER'S ON HIS WAY—WILDCATS WIN!

Hank Bruder starts on another thrust into Butler's line. Bruder was one of the main factors in Northwestern's opening triumph over Butler, 13 to 0, yesterday at Dyche stadium. He plunged two yards for the first six points in the second period and added six more in the third quarter when he started from Butler's 16 yard line, ran off right tackle and cut back over the center for the touchdown. He then place kicked the extra point. The Purple attack was ragged and lacked sustaining power. Here it seems as if Northwestern might be using hands on the offense, which isn't according to the book. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Baseball's final gesture until another year promises to be a puzzle play.

Starting Tuesday afternoon at Wrigley field the Cubs, new to world series toil, and the Athletics, equally strange in the business of being involved in the argument for baseball's most coveted honor, are slated to go to work for what they can get out of it.

The public—maybe 50,000 daily in Chicago and 40,000 daily in Philadelphia—will pay and pay dearly for the privilege of watching the spectacle, and the contending athletes in the end will sweep up most of the contributions. But whether the Cubs or the Macks will gather up the bigger portion is the puzzle. On the face it appears to be anybody's fight. You must dig deep to find excuse to favor either.

Matter of Base Hits.

In the lull between the present moment and 1:30 Tuesday afternoon there will be discussion of possibilities. There'll be talk of strategy on the part of the two leaders. But at 1:30 the world series will become a matter of base hits and nothing more. Strategy won't produce hits in the pinches. If it could, there wouldn't have been a lapse of 15 years between Connie Mack's pennant triumphs. Strategy is guessing under a fancy name. A manager guesses right on his pitchers and pinch batters, and they term him a strategist.

The return of Mack to a world's series role is a story in itself. He deliberately broke up his great team in 1914. He had put it together in what seemed to be an easy and inexpensive way. He thought he could do it again. He summoned them from the highways, the lots and the campus. Most of them went back whence they came. The process proved a failure. Then Mack decided to buy the best the market afforded. Then he began to get somewhere, but even then didn't arrive with his valued cargo until after his most serious rival had stopped.

Money Helped Build Cubs.

The Cubs themselves are not innocent of the charge that money made them what they are today. When William Wrigley got control he instituted big business methods. It took several years to build up an organization and to land the kind of manager he wanted.

Then, with the different arms of the organization reaching out into the byways to watch for prospects and the bank roll to buy whatever was good among the majors, the present team began to take form. Each year of McCarthy's four season regime new units were added. The last was Hornsby and the setting was complete. The Cubs, however, if the real figures were revealed, probably would be found to have spent less than Mack to reach the coveted goal.

LACKADAISICAL ATHLETICS WIN FROM YANKS, 8-4

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—The Philadelphia ball players, who have been going a bit stale and spending their money in anticipation of the world series receipts these last two weeks, returned to action in a mild way this afternoon, winning a mock ball game from the Yankees, 8 to 4.

Using the Yankees for experimental purposes, Mr. Connie Mack exercised three pitchers, Mose Grove, George Walsingham Earnshaw and John Picus Quinn, three innings apiece.

Grove pitched with much spirit, striking out three hitters and allowing only two hits, singles by Ruth and Durocher. Earnshaw had moments when he seemed distinctly bush league, but he undoubtedly sensed the phoney character of the ball game as a contest. The Yanks got two runs in the fifth inning during his administration on three hits and a base on balls. John Picus Quinn, the licensed spitball pitcher, gave two runs in the seventh, on a double by Durocher, an error by Joe Boley and a single by Mark Koenig.

Sherid Excused Early.

Roy Sherid, an old football player, started pitching for the Yankees and was removed in plenty of time to put on his clothes and cross the Harlem River to the Polo grounds, where New York U. was playing West Virginia Wesleyan.

Sight unseen, your correspondent would wager a few shillings that the football players performed to more trade and more enthusiastic trade

Bleacher Ticket Sale for Series Starts Tuesday

For those who lack reserved accommodations but still have the desire to attend the current world's titular baseball opening Tuesday at Wrigley field, the following information is conveyed:

The first real action of the series probably will come tomorrow night. The bugs who want first shot at the bleacher accommodations will begin to line up at Wrigley field before sundown. Another line will form before the window where the 2,500 grand stand standing room tickets will go on sale at $3 a head.

The sale of the 12,000 bleacher tickets will open at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. It may be moved up an hour if the waiting line is long enough. Only one bleacher ticket will be sold to a person and the purchaser will have to pass right into the park without tarrying. Neither will the buyers of the grand stand admissions be permitted to linger. The sale of the latter will open at 9 o'clock.

Holders of the 17,000 box and 18,000 grand stand reservations won't have to hurry. A large corps of ushers, augmented by city police, will see that nobody holds a seat unless able to produce the numbered coupon.

Glenna Collett Takes U. S. Golf Title by 4 and 3 Win

BY HARLAND ROHM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—Glenna Collett won the women's golf championship of the United States for the fourth time and the second consecutive year, over the Oakland Hills coure, today. She defeated Mrs. Leona Pressler of Los Angeles, 4 and 3, in the 36 hole final, which was as fine a golf match as women ever played.

That margin might just as well have been called 5 and 3, for Glenna sank a putt of 29 feet 1½ inches for an eagle, after being dormie 4, and conceded Mrs. Pressler her putt, just six inches shorter, for a half. Probably for the first time in golf history, the length of the winning putt was accurately known, but in this case the officials measured both of them with a steel tape to see which was away.

Both Play Good Golf.

In contrast to the usual wobbly finals of major golf tournaments, the golf of both was worthy of the championship. Glenna scored 38—41—79, against a par of 82; and Mrs. Pressler, 40—40—80; in the first round.

Glenna, who had won the national title in 1922, 1925, and 1928, saved her greatest golf for the finish, however, as she played fifteen holes in the afternoon in even fours, 9 under women's par. Giving Mrs. Pressler an eagle on the final hole, she was 7 under women's par, yet had lost three holes.

There was little to choose between their games, except in putting, and it was that made the difference. Glenna's tee shots were somewhat longer and perhaps a little straighter, but Mrs. Pressler had a definite advantage in her iron shots. But she couldn't get the short putts down. She missed three putts of less than a yard and a couple of others hardly longer. She also ran one perfect stymie when she had a two foot putt to halve the second hole. In contrast, Glenna sank two 30 foot putts and two others of more than 15 feet.

Glenna 1 up at Noon.

The champion got away to flying start by winning the first two holes with birdies, due primarily to an 18 foot putt on the first hole and a stymie that kept Mrs. Pressler from a half on the second. She was 2 up in nine holes, but Mrs. Pressler caught her on the thirteenth, where the Los Angeles woman got down her only good putt of the day, a 15 footer for a 2. She had missed a two footer for a win on the tenth.

They went along halving for four holes, Glenna saving herself a half in eagle 3's on the sixteenth by downing a 35 footer after Mrs. Pressler had laid a long iron pitch within a foot of the cup.

Glenna's second three putt green cost her a win on the seventeenth, but Mrs. Pressler was equally generous on the eighteenth, missing a three foot tap for a half, so Glenna stood 1 up at noon.

In the afternoon the Providence girl who recently moved to the Pacific coast and is now from the Press club on the Del Monte peninsula, playing the best golf any one in the tournament has played in the week, covered the first nine holes in 35, even men's par. So although Mrs. Pressler was three under women's par, she lost three more holes. Here again putting told most of the story, for Glenna holed a ten footer for a two on the third and Mrs. Pressler missed a yard putt on the fourth, Glenna winning both.

Mrs. Pressler Rallies in Vain.

Mrs. Pressler made her last stand on the tenth and eleventh in the afternoon. She put a pitch dead to the pin on the tenth to win it, and had a short putt for a four on the eleventh. But Glenna holed a 15 foot downhill putt for a three. They halved three holes, Mrs. Pressler missing a six footer for a win on the thirteenth, leaving Miss Collett dormie four.

Both were somewhat short of the pin with their seconds on the last hole, and after sighting the putts, the referee pulled out a steel tape and measured them. Glenna was away, but apparently she could not miss for she batted the ball over the twisting green straight into the cup.

Any doubts of the frequent assertion that Glenna is the greatest woman golfer in the United States should have been definitely blotted out by her playing this week. It was even more impressive than last year, when she spreadeagled in the field for this week she has to fight through a freak draw which sent her against star after star.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 5.—Those who say the current Notre Dame football club is the greatest since the famed four horsemen era will have to wait another day to prove it. A score of 14 to 0, the ratio hung up this afternoon at Indiana university's homecoming, wasn't exactly what Irish partisans expected for Knute Rockne's 1929 bow.

This is not to say Knute's boys aren't going to do great things later on, for they showed that great talent abounds, needing only more of the rigorous days instructions and practice which they are sure to get, beginning no later than next Monday.

Confining the debate to this afternoon, it must be said Indiana is not as good as advertised, particularly in reference to the line, which should have been a setup for Notre Dame's speed and power. But it wasn't and as a result Notre Dame won by a smaller margin than in any contest between the two institutions since 1920, when Notre Dame conquered by the slim difference of 13 to 10.

Here's One for the Book.

Today's going on had flashes of brilliancy, at that. Strangely enough, however, the biggest thrill of the afternoon ended with an error which probably won't happen later on. Frank Carideo intercepted a forward pass in the second quarter, and with an open field ahead of him, made a dash of 63 yards toward the Indiana goal. Seven yards from the mark he got nervous about the side line and attempted to cut in. In so doing, he dropped the ball for almost no reason at all and it promptly was recovered

Substitutions: Chicago—Kanne for Van Nice, McNellis for Bunge, McKenzie for Temple, Snidman for Marshall, Schmidt for Hamberg. Diefendorf for Snideman. Beloit—Rasinski for Pessler, Kaisy for Kinnal, Williams for Mesenbrink, Sullivan for Rasinski.

The University of Chicago opened its season on Stagg field yesterday with victories in both ends of a double header. The Maroon varsity trimmed Beloit, 25 to 0, and the reserve eleven bested a plucky little Lake Forest team, 9 to 6. Twenty-five thousand, though that number included some 10,000 Boy Scouts, witnessed the game.

Beloit failed to furnish much of a test in the opening fray. The Badgers accounted for but three first downs. However, Chicago exhibited an effective hard driving runping attack with two sophomore backs doing the heavy duties.

Joe Temple, former Oak Park star, started at full back and scored first for the Maroons early in the second quarter after he and Knudson had carried the ball from midfield. Temple drop kicked for the extra point.

Kanne, another sophomore back, got off a beautiful quick kick on the first play of the second half after the kick off, Capt. Kelly trapping the ball on Beloit's four yard line. Baker kicked out of bounds on his own 21 yard line and Temple crashed to the 6 yard line where he was injured and was forced to leave the game.

Lake Forest scored first after a long pass from Martin to Orr put the ball on the 27 yard strip. Another pass to Hernley gave Lake Forest the ball on the two yard line. Criddle crashed through for a touchdown, but the try for the extra point was wild.

Chicago finally got under way and had Lake Forest on the defensive in their own 30 yard line the rest of the half. The stubborn north shore team held on their 5 yard line, but Martin's kick was blocked and he was thrown behind his own goal for a safety, giving the Maroons 2 points.

Two long passes from Wattenberg to Bossel and Towsin gained 55 yards on two plays and Bluhm slipped through for a touchdown as the half ended.

Northwestern subdued Butler 13 to 0 in the season's grid opener at Dyche stadium yesterday, but did not appear impressive in the accomplishment. The contest proved largely a defensive affair, both teams failing to show anything startling with their running attacks. Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Ia., provided unexpected strength in the second game of the double header and Coach Hanley was forced to call back most of his regulars to win the nightcap, 27 to 18.

The Wildcats' expected backfield power failed to materialize and only on one occasion was it capable of a sustained drive. This came in the third quarter, when Al Moore, stocky little sophomore full back, and Hank Bruder, half back, alternated in carrying the ball in a drive which terminated in a touchdown.

Statistics reveal a highly stubborn defense on the part of the visiting Bull Dog gridders from Indianapolis. Northwestern made 7 first downs, which were fairly well distributed throughout the game, only two coming in succession. The Wildcats were good for 135 yards and made 53 yards on three successful passes out of 9 attempts.

Bruder, Cavosie Star.

Hank Bruder shares the honors of the day, if any, with John Cavosie, Butler's great half back star. Bruder did all of the scoring and made several flashy runs which provided the few thrills of the day. Defensively, the work of the Wildcats left little to be desired.

Northwestern's first touchdown materialized in the second quarter when Riley blocked Cavosie's punt and the ball rolled out of bounds on the visitors' three yard line. Northwestern was given the ball and in one smash at the center of the line Bruder went over. Griffin failed to drop kick the goal.

Drive Ends in Score.

Early in the third quarter Northwestern started a concerted drive on smashes at the line by Bruder and Moore. The first two downs placed the ball on Butler's 16 yard line, where Bruder started around his right end, cut back over center and crossed the goal line unmolested. The blocking on this run was perfect.

In the final period Butler opened up with a forward passing attack which carried them beyond midfield for the first time during the game, but the spurt was nipped when Bruder intercepted a pass.

The reserves which started the Cornell game for the Purple proved unable to cope with a flashy attack featured by some great running by Capt. Cook and Grant. Cornell scored early in the game when Cook dashed 15 yards for a touchdown. Most of the Purple regulars were inserted in the lineup then and the complexion of matters changed. Both teams scored frequently on sensational runs and on passes which kept the crowd in an uproar, something they had not done in the first game.

Cornell Rallies Near End.

Cornell, although two touchdowns behind, came back in the closing minutes to score a touchdown on a long pass, Grant to Cook. Cornell made a total of 192 yards by passes. Northwestern-Cornell lineup:

| NORTHWESTERN [27]. | | CORNELL [18]. |

WORLD SERIES HEROES? DON'T FORGET MATTY

Shut Out Philadelphia 3 Times in 1905.

BY DON MAXWELL.

Turn back the musty pages of world series history, read and recall the stories of the battles for title and coin, and you will be impressed by the importance one man played in determining the result.

Every world series has had its hero. Most of them have had their goats. Superlative pitching by one man or tremendous hitting by one player has given a league champion the world title, more frequently than has general team play. One muff, one bit of stupid thinking, one failure to deliver in a pinch by one man, it seems, has been the factor costing his team the world series crown.

Remember That 1905 Series.

Do you remember way back when the Giants and Connie Mack's Philadelphia pennant winners fought for the world title in 1905?

Comiskey's White Stockings had battled the cagey Mr. McGillicuddy's boys in what the sport writers of those days [this day, too] would call a "hectic drive?" Philadelphia nosed out our team and went into the world series rated the equal of the Giants in strength.

The dopesters hadn't counted on that one man—that one hero.

They might have acclaimed Christy Mathewson the hero after the opening game. Even then they—the smart fans—didn't realize that the big right hander was knocking on the door of baseball's hall of fame.

Matty Allows Four Hits.

Matty held the Philadelphia batters to four hits, no two of which came in the same round, and he gave Connie's boys not a single run. Whitewash was their portion.

Charles Dryden, baseball writer, covering that game for THE TRIBUNE, summed it up when he wired:

"Matty held Philadelphia in the hollow of his hand at all stages of the proceedings."

Chief Bender, Indian pitcher of renown, put Philadelphia back on even terms when he held New York scoreless while his teammates were scoring three runs.

Rain postponed the third game and made it possible for Mathewson to come back sooner in the series than Mack had anticipated.

Makes Macks Look Helpless.

Again he held Philadelphia to four hist. Again the Giants won, this time 9 to 0. Quoting Mr. Dryden:

"What Matty did on the opening day merely was repeated—this time with a large majority in favor of the Giants. Matty is a peach in the repeating line. He caused Mack's men to feel even worse than they looked. Only one man reached second base, and he wasn't there long enough to memorize the scenery."

The Giants won their third victory by virtue of good pitching by Mr. McGinnity of the iron arm and then came Matty back to complete his triumph and to write his name indelibly in the ledgers of world series fame.

Two to 0 was the score by which the Giants captured the game and the title. Five hits were all that the Philadelphia batters got.

Christy Mathewson had pitched the Giants to three of their four triumphs. He had allowed only 15 hits in those three games and not a run. If that isn't baseball hero stuff, what is?

A Substitute Makes Good.

It hasn't always been the star of the season who has shone most brightly in the world series. In one series, at least, that of 1906 when the Chicago White Stockings defeated the Chicago Nationals, it was a substitute infielder who won the bay leaves.

Maybe you recall the story of George Rohe. George Davis, idol of southside fans and one of the great shortstops of his day, was unable to play in the series' games. Rohe was put in the lineup of Fielder Jones' pennant winners. And Rohe, it was whose name made the headlines after the first day's game.

Nick Altrock, to be sure, was the winning pitcher, and great in a 2 to 1 triumph. But Rohe shared with Nick, the glory of the day. It was "his long drive past Sheckard into the seats that put the Sox in the game in the fifth inning and it was his honor to score the run of the game. Not satisfied with that Rohe performed the second most spectacular feat of the game when he reached up and speared with his gloved hand a liner which Harry Steinfeldt intended for at least three bases in the seventh inning."

Stars Again in Third Game.

Nor was Rohe to rise to stardom in only one game.

THE TRIBUNE'S account of the third game in that memorable series began with this:

"By one excruciatingly timely blow with his bat George Rohe, substitute, decided a sensational pitching duel between Ed Walsh and Jack Pfiester yesterday, enabling the White Stockings to carry to their southside haunts, the third game in the world series with the Chicago Nationals. That one blow, a stinging three base hit, scored every one of the three runs made in the game, and Walsh did the rest by holding Chance's champions helpless all the way."

Rifle the pages of baseball record. The most interesting stories you will read, the incidents that resume their vividness in memory, are the stories and achievements of some one player.

To be sure, every world series has had its outstanding players. Great pitching, hits when hits meant ball games, sparkling fielding plays, have given the championship battles of the past thrills to be remembered and stories to be retold.

The world series between the Cubs and the Athletics will be no different. Some one will be star above his teammates.

Who will it be on Tuesday?

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. Elvin R. Coon, 709 West Broadway, Logansport, Ind., was awarded $5.

The Question.

On what team are you betting to win the world series?

The Answers.

L. H. Bakken, 6219 North Artesian avenue, salesman — I am betting on Philadelphia because the Athletics have a better balanced team. The Cubs possess harder hitters, but I think the Athletics have better fielders and pitchers. I am not attempting to secure tickets because I saw the world series at St. Paul last year. This season I am going to football games.

Ned McCormick, 203 North Wabash avenue, advertising — The Cubs. I haven't put up any actual money, but I may later if I find takers who will give suitable odds. I am an ardent Cub fan. Their weakest link is stronger than the weakest link in the Philadelphia team. Thank good fortune, I have tickets, opposite the third base line.

Abraham Rosenberg, 317 West Monroe street, salesman—On the Cubs, of course. I already have wagered about ten dollars on them. And, I am not worrying about that ten spot. But I have no tickets to the series; haven't been able to get them. There may be a chance in the bleachers, but not if I have to stand in line all night.

Raymond Meichin, 1617 North Karlov avenue, errand boy—If I were betting on any team I'd wager on the Athletics. They are a better team—on paper, of course. In fielding, I imagine the Cubs would beat them out, but they haven't the pitchers the A's have. Connie Mack, in my opinion, also has hitters to match the best Cubs' sluggers, what with Cochrane, Simmons, Foxx and Miller. Yes sir, my money would go on the A's.

Felix G. Schmidt, 75 East Wacker drive, commercial artist—I am not betting, but if I were I would on the Athletics. I'd rather see the Cubs win, but at the same time it would not be well to let sentiment run away with my judgment. My judgment is that the Athletics are the stronger team.

Edmund John [Bing] Miller, right fielder—A mighty important gent, whose real value has been dimmed by the more glamorous deeds of his mates. Born Aug. 30, 1894, at Vinton, Ia. Weighs 187 pounds and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. Bats and throws right handed. Season batting average, .333; season fielding average, .970.

James J. Dykes, third baseman—A handy party to have in the neighborhood of third base. Born Nov. 10, 1896, at Philadelphia, Pa. Weighs 180 pounds and is 5 feet 9 inches tall. Bats and throws right handed. Season batting average, .324; season fielding average, .928.

Joe Boley, shortstop—Hails from the coal hills around Scranton, Pa., where they love to fight and play ball. Born July 26, 1898, at Mahoney City, Pa. Weighs 172 pounds and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. Bats and throws right handed. Season batting average, .253; season fielding average, .967.

Robert Moses Grove, pitcher—A melancholy fellow whose change of pace consists of fast, faster, and fastest. Born March 6, 1900, at Lonaconing, Md. Weighs 175 pounds and is 6 feet 2½ inches tall. Bats and throws left handed. Leads American league pitchers with 20 games won and 6 lost.

George L. Earnshaw, pitcher—Quite a fellow in the social register and that sort of thing. Born in New York City some 27 years ago. Weighs 182 pounds and is the tallest man in the series, standing 6 feet 4½ inches. Earnshaw is right handed. He's also the second ranking pitcher in the American league, with 23 games won and 8 lost.

Series Rivals Ready; First Game Tuesday

purchases proved morning glories. But the old gentleman, to whom baseball and the American league owe much, deserves credit for trying.

Unlike many series of the past, both teams will swing into action with the best they possess. There are no injuries on which alibis can be built later for the loser. The Macks finished their season with no apparent letdown. The Cubs slipped considerably after a strenuous race, but in the last week scrambled back into their former free hitting mood. They always have been at their best when the competition was toughest, and their revival in the waning days of the race proves McCarthy still has the power to arouse them when trouble impends.

If it wasn't that Zack Taylor was around and ready for work, the Cubs might have reason to lament the absence of Gabby Hartnett. Hartnett is a cripple, just as he has been all season, but his absence as a catcher during the series can't be termed a calamity. Taylor since the day he joined the Cubs in July was as steady as a timepiece. He can't hit with Hartnett, but is dangerous. Neither can he throw with Gabby when the latter has his arm, but the Macks don't run wild on the bases.

Managers Mum on Hurlers.

Mainly because it adds to the importance of the event, both managers threaten to remain silent until the last moment about their pitching choices for Tuesday's inaugural. By the way he worked his staff the last few days of the race, it looks as if McCarthy's mind is set on Charley Root, the logical man.

Some of Mack's silence on the subject may be due to other than a desire to be mysterious. Having two excellent hurlers at his command, it should be easy for him to decide; but there are little items he must consider.

He must figure what effect the opening glamor might have on Grove, who occasionally is influenced by surroundings. He must consider whether Grove might not weaken himself, even before starting, by wondering what eight right handed hitters might do to him. It won't surprise anybody if Mack pins his starting choice on the steadier Earnshaw.

CUBS AND A'S FACE IMPOSING SERIES RECORDS

Must Hustle to Beat Past Feats.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

With Mr. McCarthy's Cubs and Mr. Mack's Athletics geared up to do bigger and better things this week, it is likely that more than one world series record of long standing will be shattered.

Many of these records have withstood the buffeting of a thousand ball players, however, and not a few of them will stand up against the Cubs and Athletics.

There are pitchers' records which have been hanging around for a long time. One will be remembered by old time Chicago fans who saw Big Ed Walsh set a world series strikeout record of 12 in the Sox-Cubs series of 1906. Incidentally, Jack Pfeister of the Cubs fanned nine of the Hitless Wonders in that game. Another pitchers' record of note is that of Hod Eller of Cincinnati, who struck out six White Sox batters in succession in the 1919 series. Still another is that of Herb Pennock, who turned in a three hit game in both the 1926 and 1927 series. And as for bases on balls Jack Coombs of the Athletics issued the record nine against the Cubs in 1910.

Ruth and Gehrig Hold a Few.

Of course, the shelf holding the world series batting records is all cluttered up, what with the doings of those two fellows from New York, George H. Ruth and Henry L. Gehrig. Both are tied for the most home runs in a series—four—the Babe getting his quartet in the 1926 series and Lou his last year. The Babe also holds the record for home runs in one game. It's three, and he's done it twice, once in 1926 and again last year.

Casey Stengel hung up another mark for Hornsby, Wilson, Foxx, and Simmons to aim at when, in 1923, he won two games for the Giants with home runs. Dutch Reuther of the Reds established the record for triples in one series game by poking out a pair in the 1919 series. The doubles record of four was set by Frank Isbell of the White Sox against the Cubs in 1906.

The Athletics hold the records for the highest and lowest club batting percentages, hitting .317 against the Cubs in 1910 and only .162 against the Giants in 1905. The Giants hung up the game percentage record, of .513, when they got 20 hits in 39 times at bat in 1921. They also hold the mark for most hits in one series, collecting 74 in the eight games with the Red Sox in 1912.

Pipp Makes 92 Putouts.

Individual fielding records also should receive some attention in the series this year. In 1921 Wally Pipp of the Yanks was credited with 92 putouts for the first baseman's record. George Kelly of the Giants holds the putout record for one game with 19. Aaron Ward of the Yankees set the assist record of 34 in the 1921 series. Ed Roush made the outfielder's putout record for one series with 30 in 1919 and shares the game putout record of eight with Mike Donlin of the old New York Giants.

Zach Taylor and Mickey Cochrane also may do some business with the catcher's records. Muddy Ruel of the Senators holds the series record of 51 putouts and 56 chances accepted. And then there's that unassisted triple play made by Bill Wambsganss of Cleveland in 1920, the only one on record in the world series.

The Boston Red Sox of 1918 set the highest club fielding percentage for a series with a mark of .996, while Brooklyn holds the lowest, .942. The 1916 Red Sox negotiated four double plays for the game record in that department. The series record of 10 was established by Washington in 1924. The Detroit club of 1909 made 19 miscues for the series error record, while the White Sox admit to the game record for error, making six in 1906 and tying themselves in 1917.

Mack Out for Record.

Mr. Mack himself will be out to set another record and if his Athletics take the series, he'll do it. Connie is tied with John McGraw and the late Miller Huggins as the only managers winning three world's series championships, and a victory for him will establish a new mark.

HERE ARE RULES FOR CUBS' PARK TRAFFIC IN SERIES

Police Commissioner Russell yesterday announced the traffic regulations that will prevail during the world series games at Wrigley field. These rules, which will cover the area bounded on the north by Sheridan road, the east by Halsted street, the south by Roscoe street, and the west by Herndon street, follow:

Sheffield avenue from Waveland avenue to Addison street, and Waveland avenue from Sheffield to Seminary avenue will be closed to traffic by city ordinance.

Single line parking only will be permitted; double line parking will be prohibited.

Parking will not be permitted in Addison avenue from Herndon to Halsted streets, or in Clark street from Byron to Roscoe streets, or in any alleys.

Left turns will not be permitted in the restricted area, except northbound traffic in Sheffield avenue, which will be permitted to turn left in Addison street. "U" turns will not be permitted in blocks nor at street intersections.

Automobiles will be permitted to form in double line to receive passengers on the south side of Addison street from Sheffield avenue west, and on the north side of Addison street from Clark street west, after the seventh inning of each game.

The above regulations will be effective between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. each day of the series here.

Blues Score in Fifth, Conquer Redwings, 1-0

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 5.—In an old fashioned pitchers' battle, the Kansas City Blues of the American association took the third game of the little world series from the Rochester Red Wings, International league champions, today, 1 to 0.

than the champions and the runners-up of the American league were called upon to entertain. After Sherid was removed, Ed Wells pitched for the Yankees and pitched to the end regardless.

Mr. Mack sat on his feather pillow in the corner of the Athletics' dugout, nominally commanding the antics of his chaps, but a man who went down to see him about some world series tickets came back up to the press cage to report that he was paying very little attention to the ball game. Mr. Mack was going over a thick sheaf of correspondence relating to world series tickets and methodically marking "no" on each one with a thick, muddy pencil.

This was the first time the Athletics have had an opportunity to play any ball since last Sunday and only their fifth game in two weeks. Naturally all members of the troupe are insisting that they are quite merry and bright but the probability is that they have lost some of their knack in this time.

A New Record for Mack.

They have another game with the Yankees tomorrow afternoon, barring rain, sleet or snow. This afternoon's victory was their 103d of the season constituting a minor statistic. That is, these boys are the first club Mr. Mack ever had who won 103 games for him, the previous record having 102. It is not much of a statistic and Mr. Mack, after all his years among the statistics, seemed quite unconcerned about it.

There was some scattered attendance in the grand stand and in the right field bleachers, most of it done up in overcoats and here and there the eye caught the dull glint of a beaten-silver flask being up-ended.

Not only were the ball clubs competing against the football games, but they were attempting to do business in the heart of the Bronx, one of the most populous Jewish centers in the world on the dawn of the Jewish year five thousand and something, when most of the neighbors were at the temples.

Simmons Hits Home Run.

The Athletics had a pleasant afternoon of it. Mule Haas got a triple and a double, Al Simmons hit a home run in the ninth, Jimmy Foxx hit a double, and Mickey Cochrane, Bing Miller and Jimmy Dykes made two singles apiece. Simmons' home run described a rainbow course into the left field pavilion where a young customer sitting alone rose languidly, reached out with his meat hand and plucked the ball from the air on the fly. He then sat down as Simmons jogged around the bases following behind Cochrane who had just rapped the second of his singles.

After tomorrow's ball game, the Athletics will toss their harness into the trunks and take a seven o'clock train for Philadelphia along with the general run of passenger traffic. But at North Philadelphia they will detrain and go aboard a special for the run to Chicago, leaving about 9:30 in the evening and arriving Monday afternoon.

There will be a large delegation of wives in the party and the stag car rules normally obtaining on ball players' pullmans will be suspended for the duration of the world series, which is to say that all gents must draw on their pants behind the Pullman curtains and not in the aisles.

Idleness Costs Money.

Incidentally, in compliance with the world series rules, Mr. Mack has cut down his personnel to 25 souls who will be admitted to the dugout for the series. And, owing to the shortage of world series tickets in his town, he has not only permitted but urged his extra men to retire to their various distant homes without waiting to see the series.

The idleness of the last week has cost some of the athletes serious amounts of money as they found themselves reading the ads of the new automobiles, fall coats and the like, and this is dangerous reading for young men on the point of receiving from $5,000 to $7,000 each. Only this morning, Cochrane, Perkins, and Mose Grove, out walking on 5th avenue for exercise, were lured into a clothing store where they each bought one huge fuzzy yellow overcoat with belted back, one yellow cap of the model worn by song pluggers at the six day bike races, one pair of actors' yellow gloves and one yellow walking stick.

Tribune Radio, Scoreboard Will Tell Series Story

If you weren't one of the lucky fans to get tickets to the world series or if you are otherwise unable to attend any of the games, you can keep in touch with what's going on at Wrigley field or Shibe park every day in the series. THE TRIBUNE has erected a huge scoreboard on the south side of the fifth floor of the plant in the rear of The Tribune Tower. The inning-by-inning score of each game will be placed on the board. The figures are visible from Wacker drive.

The inning-by-inning scores of the games also will be displayed in the second floor windows of the Union Trust building, Madison and Dearborn streets, directly above THE TRIBUNE'S loop public service office.

Quin Ryan and Pat Barnes will present play by play descriptions of each game through W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station. Loud speakers have been installed at both of THE TRIBUNE'S outlying public service offices at 1011 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street, where fans who can't be at the games may hear a detailed story of their progress.

HOUSEHOLDERS RECEIVE O. K. ON ROOF BLEACHERS

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Three judges sitting en banc ruled today that householders whose homes afford a view of ball games played at Shibe park may erect bleacher seats on their roofs for the accommodation of several hundred fans who will be unable to get inside the park during the world series. Police had sought to prevent the crowding of roofs, fearing accidents may result.

Arthur C. Conwell, who appeared as spokesman for 20 interested home owners, said each roof would accommodate from 70 to 100 spectators, and that seats will cost about $10 each.

Odds Here Favor A's to Win Series, Also First Game

With the advance guard of world's series visitors here the betting on the outcome of the championship diamond battle open at Cubs park Tuesday became lively late yesterday and last night.

On La Salle street, yesterday morning one wager of $6,000 against $5,000 with the Athletics the favorites was reported. This was on the series. Another bet of $1,100 against $1,000 was made that the Athletics win the opening game.

Many other smaller wagers were reported with the Athletics being the 6 to 5 favorite in all of them. There is an abundance of Cub money for the first game, and it is expected that by tomorrow night it will be even money take your choice on the result of the opening struggle.

REDS SHUT OUT CUBS, 9-0; SPOIL 100 WINS HOPES

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Joe McCarthy sent his champion Cubs through their next to the last workout this afternoon in preparation for the world series and when the nine innings were over, Cincinnati had heaped a 9 to 0 defeat upon them. It was the final appearance of the Cubs on Redland field.

What honor there was in the contest, if it may be called that, went to Rube Erhardt, a Chicago boy, who pitched his one good game of the year holding the Cubs with five hits. In only one inning did he allow them to put two hits together.

At that, the Cubs didn't seem to care a bit about what happened, even though the defeat cost them their chance to win 100 games this year. They swung their bats listlessly and ran bases carelessly.

After Cincinnati had piled up a 2 to 0 lead on Mournful Mike Cvengros, McCarthy showed his utter disregard for victory by removing Hack Wilson, Rogers Hornsby and Charley Grimm from the lineup. Johnny Moore went into center field, Clarence Blair to second base and Charley Tolson to first.

Swanson, Stripp Star.

Until the seventh inning, the Cubs obtained only one hit off Erhardt but Blair and Cuyler got blows in this frame. Schulte produced one in the eighth and Moore came through in the ninth.

Swanson and Stripp enjoyed a field day at Cvengros' expense, Swanson drove out a triple, double and single and Stripp contributed three singles. In all, the Reds collected fourteen hits, four of which were triples.

Cvengros started shakily but really didn't go to pieces until the sixth when Cincinnati put over three runs.

Swanson and Critz led off with singles to right in the first inning. Swanson eventually moved into third and in a position to score on Walker's infield out a moment later.

Cvengros managed to get along then until the third, when Swanson doubled to right, counting on Kelly's scatch infield hit to McMillan after taking Stephenson's throw to the infield. A walk to Gooch, Stripp's single and Swanson's triple to center produced the other two runs in this inning.

Mack May Not Name Twirler Until Tuesday

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Connie Mack has been asked so many times recently who will pitch the first game for the Athletics in the world series he is getting tired answering.

"Well, I can say truthfully," is Mack's invariable reply, "that right now I don't know, and I don't think I will know until the series is about to start. Here's the way I argue it:

"Suppose I tell some one he is to pitch and later on conditions cause me to change my mind. That person starts to worry and wonders what has happened.

"I haven't decided even whether it will be a right hander or a left hander. All you questioners can go right on guessing, but nobody will know who is going in until 15 minutes before game time."

Most of the dopesters believe Earnshaw, the A's star right hander, will draw the opening assignment against the Cubs. However, Mack is aware what noted for pulling the unexpected and is a past master at outguessing the opposition. His two southpaws, Grove and Walberg, both are anxious to refute the claim that the Cubs make mincemeat of left handers.

Pillette Hurls No Hit, No Run Game on Coast

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Herman Pillette, right handed pitcher of the Missions, led his team to victory today by pitching the first no run, no hit game of the season in the Pacific Coast league and the only game since 1903 in which no more than two men reached first base.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Wisconsin rallied in the second half to outplunge and outpass Colgate and march relentlessly to a 13-6 victory in the first East-West intersectional grid clash of the season here today.

The Colgate score came before the contest was two minutes old and left the 20,000 spectators cold. In five plays after the opening kick off Colgate carried the ball to the Badgers' twelve yard line. Then Dowler swept around end for a touch down.

In the third period Hal Rebholz, Sammy Behr and Ernie Bill Lusby, cut loose with a powerful offensive which carried the Badgers into the lead.

Gantenbein Goes Over.

Wisconsin started its march for a touch down when Hart's short punt landed on Colgate's 35 yard line in the first five minutes of the third period. Lusby hurled a pass to Gantenbein that was good for first down on Colgate's 16 yard line. Lusby hit left tackle for three yards.

Behr threw a left handed pass to Gantenbein who grabbed the ball near the Colgate goal posts and went for a touch down, tying the score. Lusby planted a drop kick between the bars for the extra point.

The second Badger score came after a march down the field which was punctuated with a 35 yard gallop by Hal Rebholz to Colgate's 25 yard line. Russell Rebholz, brother of Harold, replaced Lusby and in two attempts made first down on Colgate's nine yard line. Colgate went back to its four yard line on an offside penalty.

Dowler Is Hurt.

But Colgate could match the Wisconsin heroes with those of her own. Hart and Dowler figured prominently in the Colgate touchdown. After receiving the kickoff Dowler made eight yards around end and Hart passed to Yablock for first down on Wisconsin's 36 yard line. Hart tossed again to Yablock, this time for first down on the 12 yard mark, then Dowler made his run for a touchdown.

Dowler was removed early in the third period with an injured leg. Capt. Cox at center and Huntington and Haines, tackles were outstanding in the easterners' line.

The teams were equal in first downs, each scoring ten. Hal Rebholz, with 69 yards was the leading ground gainer of the game, followed by Hart of Colgate with 43. The kicks of Rebholz and Lusby averaged 41 yards and those of Hart 34.

OHIO STATE WINS

Columbus, O., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—In a rather drab and uninteresting football game, Ohio State university opened its 1929 season here today, by defeating Wittenberg college, 19 to 0.

Ohio State made its first score in the game, when McConnelly intercepted a pass from Smith and raced thirty-five yards for a touchdown. After Wittenberg had punted out of bounds on their own 30 yard line, Hess and Holman worked the ball to the 10 yard line, where Hess took it over. Barrett kicked goal. The third touchdown came when McClure and Hess marched thirty-five yards for a score, McClure bucking it over on the fourth down.

Lineup:

IOWA 46; MONMOUTH, 0

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa football team defeated Monmouth here today, 46 to 0. Oran Pape starred with several long runs, one of which ended in a touchdown. He averaged 12 yards in eleven tries.

Shortly after the start of battle Glassgow made the first touchdown for Iowa with a 27 yard run around left end. Thomas put over the second counter in the second quarter.

The longest run of the game was made by Sansen, substitute full back. He took the ball on his own 45 yard line and raced 55 yards for a touchdown.

GO! CHICAGO, GO! IT'S A TOUCHDOWN!

*Knudson crashes through Beloit's line for a touchdown in the opening game at Stagg field. Chicago won, 27 to 0, and exhibited a strong plunging and running attack which the Badgers could not halt. # Peters Dashes 50 Yards As Illini Down Kansas, 25-0

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Although the Kansas Jayhawkers battled valiantly, they provided feeble opposition to the determined onslaughts of Zuppke's University of Illinois, Big Ten champions, who opened the season with a one sided victory, 25 to 0.

Peters Runs 50 Yards.

Frosty Peters made the longest run of the afternoon in the third period, returning a punt. Frosty ran all over the field, coming near to both sidelines and eluding numerous crimson jerseyed tacklers. At the 15 yard line he was still loose but slipped and fell. He had covered 50 yards. Evans soon swept the Kansas right side for a touchdown.

Clark Root, little sophomore back, making his debut, from scrimmage ran 30 yards for the fourth touchdown.

In the fourth period the Jayhawkers stiffened, with Page and Lawrence carrying the ball, menaced the Illini goal for the first time. In this period the Jayhawkers made their only first downs, six. Page fumbled on the 11 yard line, where Bergeson recovered and a chance for score went glimmering.

The Illini completed eight out of 22 passes and Kansas three out of 14. Zuppke's men made 12 first downs and were given another by a penalty.

Zuppke used 30 men in all. Wietz, Lanum, Schultz, Walker, and Steinman, all of whom would have played a prominent part in the game, were held out on account of various disabilities. They were not needed to accomplish the rout of the Missouri Valley representatives.

Zuppke Uses New Men.

Kawal, center; Useman, end; Huddlestun, guard, and Irwin and Evans, backs, were among the new players introduced by Zuppke. Humbert, who had been considered for end, was brought back to his old place at full. Olaf Robinson, last year's full back, played an important part in downing the Valley lads.

Although the Jayhawkers never got going until the final period, Capt. Lyman and his squad battled hard and by breaking up many Illini passes managed to keep down the score.

Michigan: Roach for Auer, Sorenson for Steinke, Hewitt for Draveling, Hestin for Hudson, Poorman for Hayden, Samuels for Poe, Cornwell for Truskowski, Morrison for Gembis.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Uncovering a brilliant running sophomore back in Roy Hudson an improved Michigan eleven again turned back the annual challenge of Michigan State by a score of 17 to 0. The crowd was estimated at 35,000.

If the Wolverines are going to be a passing team this year they did not show it against State. Only two passes were attempted by Kipke's Wolverines. In Hudson, chunky left hander, Kipke has a man capable of sliding off tackle for gains nearly every time he took the ball. His 21 efforts were good for 190 yards. Hudson went through right tackle early in the fourth period, shook off 3 tacklers and ran 79 yards for a touchdown with fine blocking. He opened the game by running the kickoff 30 yards to put the Wolverines in good position at the very start.

The first score of the game came in the middle of the opening quarter after a penalty and a short punt left Michigan in possession of the ball on State's 29 yard line. Hudon went off tackle for first down on the 14 yard line. Michigan was off side but Dahlem and Gembis squeezed through for 5 and Hudson cracked through to State's 2 yard line. Gembis made the touchdown and kicked goal.

Hudson fired the first gun in a march to Michigan's second score, cutting through tackle for a first down on the Spartan 39 yard line for a gain of 22 yards. Dahlem made another first down on the 23 yard line. Hudson, Simerall, and Gembis added 13 more yards but the Spartans held and Gembis booted a field goal from the 21 yard line.

by Unger of Indiana and carried and kicked back into a safer realm.

Jack Elder and Moon Mullins had better fortune with their dashes and as a result Elder scored both the Irish touchdowns. Before the Carideo misfortune in the second quarter, Elder made a forward pass to Mullins good for 45 yards and then carried the ball himself the remaining 23 yards to a touchdown. Carideo kicked the goal.

Elder's second touchdown was a fine piece of work. He bucked the center of the Indiana line, paused to get his bearings after finding himself clear and then started a beautiful zig zag trip to the goal line. Carideo again kicked the extra point.

Indiana Had No Chance.

Indiana never developed a scoring chance except in the second quarter when a fumbled punt and a 16 yard pass, Balay to Faunce, placed the ball on Notre Dame's seven yard line. The Irish showed no great exertion in halting the threat and the Indiana offensive was blasted with a blocked forward pass on fourth down, which didn't even reach the goal line.

Indiana made only three first downs during the afternoon's enterprise, a faint effort as compared with Notre Dame's 15. The only place in which the downstate Hoosiers showed supremacy was staying away from the pitfalls which fetch penalties. Notre Dame was penalized 110 yards as contrasted with Indiana's 10.

Page's men had a slight edge in the forward passing department, completing four out of 12 for 69 yards, while Notre Dame was content to try 10, of which three were successful for a total of 60 yards.

In the matter of gaining ground through rushing, the Irish were vastly superior, through this technique Notre Dame gained 351 as compared with Indiana's 83.

In addition to the previously mentioned speedsters, Elder, Carideo and Mullins, husky Joe Savoldi is a person of whom you will hear much ere the snow falls. He was most brutal in his onslaughts against Indiana's first line defense and is very rapid in the broken field as well.

KANSAS AGGIES ARE BEATEN BY PURDUE, 26-14

Harmeson Leads Attack of Boilermakers.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 5.—Purdue's reconstructed football team opened its 1929 season here this afternoon by riding rough shod over Bo McMillin's Kansas Aggies, 26 to 14. Phelan used a new back field of four sophomores to open the game and kept Pest Welch, evidently wishing to save his star for the coming tilt with Michigan here next Saturday.

Yunevich, Purvis, Hope and White drove down the field in 15 plays to the two yard line. Then Purvis crashed over to turn the Purdue senior Derbies loose and give the Boilermakers a lead they never lost.

Glen Harmeson, fleet footed veteran quarter back, appeared in the middle of the game in the new role of half back, and promptly proceeded to reel off neat runs and toss forward passes with precision. Purdue's third touchdown came in the second quarter as the result of a long pass from Harmeson to Kissell, while in the third quarter Harmeson's touchdown followed Caraway's spectacular catch that put the ball on the 14 yard line. Lineup and summary:

Washington U. Defeats Illinois College, 34-7

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 5.—(AP)—The Washington university Bears crashed Illinois college of Jacksonville, Ill., 34 to 7, here today to launch their 1929 campaign. Outstanding in the game was the almost perfect functioning of the Bears' passing game and the line plunging of Hornsby and Springer. Six letter men were in the Washington lineup.

Lombard Back in Little 19; Wins, 26 to 0

Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Playing its first Little Nineteen conference game in five years, Lombard walloped Southern Normal from Carbondale, 26 to 0, today. Nichols, Crabtree and Sweazy, carried the ball around end and through the line for gains when needed, scoring a total of 16 first downs for Lombard as against four for Normal. The teams were equal in passes completed, but Normal failed to connect in ten of them while but four of Lombard's were incomplete.

Nichols' runs in which he sidestepped tackle after tackle, topped Lombard's play. Lauder's passing was outstanding for the visitors.

TRIBUNE PUTS IN SCOREBOARD FOR MILWAUKEE FANS

W-G-N Broadcast Also Will Be Carried.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—World's series fans of Milwaukee are to be given unusual service during the championship games as a result of carefully prepared plans conceived and to be executed by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

The service will be available not only to the stay-at-homes but to those who have been fortunate enough to obtain tickets for one or more of the Chicago games.

For those who will remain in Milwaukee THE TRIBUNE has erected a scoreboard overlooking the bridge plaza on Wisconsin avenue, a structure fifty feet in length upon which the score by innings will be displayed as the games progresses. To augment this silent record of what is expected to be the greatest baseball contest of all time, engineers from W-G-N have installed equipment for an outdoor broadcast which will carry Quin Ryan's detailed story of the game coincident with the scoreboard's inning to inning figures.

Amplifiers Utilized.

According to the radio engineers the massive equipment will carry the running story of the game along the river front from Wells to Michigan streets, and across the river to the Gimbel and Empire building galleries, where thousands may be accommodated. The immense and powerful amplifiers are calculated to carry the broadcast distinctly as far west on Wisconsin avenue as the Plankinton arcade, from which point the board also is in view. The scoreboard is located on the river side of the one story building of the First Wisconsin National bank.

For those who have the documents which will take them through the gates at Cubs' park THE TRIBUNE has made arrangement with the North Shore Electric line to operate a special world's series train each day the games are played in Chicago.

This train will leave the Milwaukee terminal at 10:50 o'clock a. m. and will arrive at the Addison street station of the elevated, one block from the ball grounds, just before 1 o'clock, so that the Milwaukee contingent may have half an hour in the stands before the game actually starts. The train will return to Addison street and pick up Milwaukeeans immediately after the game is finished, but will give time for patrons to get from the ball park to the station northbound platform. A one and a half fare rate is to be given and a dining car will be carried southbound.

Through this arrangement transportation fully equal to that possible from Woodlawn, inside Chicago, will be given. The return train is scheduled to deliver its patrons back in Milwaukee in plenty of time for dinner. The train will pick up passengers at Racine at 11:24 and at Kenosha at 11:35 a. m.

Tomorrow afternoon the radio equipment and scoreboard will be put into service for the game between Pittsburgh and the Cubs.

Yale's Gridiron Juggernaut, 1929 Model, Routs Vermont, 89-0; Rivals '88 Machine

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—A brand new high geared model of the Yale football machine equipped with the latest attack developments according to the specifications of Glenn [Pop] Warner, and operating behind a line coached in the method of Knute Rockne by Adam Walsh, tore up and down the bowl today defeating Vermont, 89 to 0.

Half an hour after the first whistle a corps of bewildered statisticians had arrived at the sum total of the afternoon's proceedings, and the figures showed that Yale had scored 13 touchdowns and 11 points after touchdowns. So far as could be determined from extended inquiry, these figures represent the biggest score that a Yale eleven has compiled since P. E. Corbin's 1888 team buried Wesleyan to the tune of 105 to 0.

The Product of 25 Years of Progress

5 Speeds forward and 2 reverse in all Heavy Duty Internationals

Yes, more than that, for back of the twenty-five years of actual truck building experience is almost seventy-five years of engineering and manufacturing experience that has gone into other products of the Harvester organization.

International Heavy-Duty Trucks reflect this experience in design and construction and prove its soundness in the performance.

The new heavy-duty engines are noted for their simplicity, sturdiness and economy of operation. All models have five speeds forward and two reverse, and all have 4-wheel brakes.

There are new clutches, new transmissions and double reduction or chain final drive. There are increased capacities and there are bodies and wheelbase lengths to meet the requirements of each individual job. Capacities range from 2½ to 5-ton.

Come in and go over this International Heavy-Duty construction with critical eye—then take one of these trucks out and test it on your job without obligation.

Besides Heavy-Duty Trucks, the International line includes the ¾-ton Special Delivery, the 1-ton Six-Speed Special, and Speed Trucks for 1¼, 1½, and 2-ton loads. Backing the trucks is an unequaled service organization—there are now 174 Company-owned branches in the United States and Canada and dealers everywhere.

40,000 WATCH TROJANS DEFEAT OREGON STATE

Jones' Eleven Scores a 21-7 Victory.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Southern California's football team cleared one hurdle in their race for a title by toppling Oregon State, the team which upset New York U. last autumn, 21 to 7, today. Forty thousand saw Coach Howard Jones' boys pack three touchdowns into the second quarter and lose a fourth touchdown in the third when Tappaans' interception of a pass was called back because a teammate was off side.

During the course of play Jones gave a demonstration of how strong is the reserve strength of this year's Trojan eleven by shifting from first to second to third teams, ending the game with fifth stringers in a number of positions and the Trojans still threatening to score. Southern California made 14 first downs to seven but lost 155 yards on penalties.

Georgia Tech Makes Debut in 27-13 Win

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's reconstructed Golden Tornado launched its 1929 championship drive at Grant field today by defeating the scrappy Mississippi A. and M. eleven, 27 to 13. The Tornado was not the smooth running machine which mowed down all opposition in 1928, but showed flashes of consistent form.

Under the generalship of Earl Dunlap, an unerring passer, Tech established an early lead which was never seriously threatened, despite the crafty and daring work of "Pappy" Pappenheimer, the Mississippians' field general.

It was Dunlap's riflelike passes to Jones, speedy end, that gave Tech the edge and scoring punch necessary to win.

Practically every offensive drive the Aggies launched hinged on Pappenheimer, who flipped passes to Harris, blocked while a fellow back smashed into the Tornado line, kicked when his team failed to gain, and carried his end of running with the oval. Lineup:

If you should lift the body of every car in Buick's field— and compare the chassis— then you too would choose The New BUICK

If you were to lift the body from the chassis of any one of a hundred cars—and compare the vitally important details of chassis design and construction—you would find Buick so outstandingly superior in all phases of fine car engineering that you would almost inevitably make Buick your choice. Here is what you would see in this famous chassis:

Buick's great new Valve-in-Head engine—developing 99 horsepower in the 124- and 132-inch models, and 80½ horsepower in the 118-inch models. The most powerful automobile engine of its size in the world. Representing 26 years of constant, aggressive improvement. Triple-sealed against wear, and incorporating such signal refinements as counter-weighted crankshaft with torsion balancer, carburetor heat control and positive-pressure gas pump. Unapproached in sturdiness, all-round performance—ability, reliability and economy as well.

Buick's new Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes—revealing clearcut leadership over any other brakes of the day. Of the widely-favored internal-expanding type. Providing smooth, positive, silent braking, with minimum pedal pressure. Assuring absolute control of the car over all roads. And—because fully protected against dust, dirt and water—operating at maximum efficiency in any weather.

Buick's new frictionless steering gear and new Road Shock Eliminator—twin advancements introduced by Buick. Providing marvelous new handling ease. The Buick wheel offering effortless control throughout its entire turning range—and the new Road Shock Eliminator assuring complete freedom from annoying jolts and jars, even over the roughest roads.

Buick's unprecedented provision for riding comfort—new, longer rear springs, and new Lovejoy Duodraulic Shock Absorbers, front and rear. Working in perfect harmony—combining to check both bound and rebound—and providing a degree of riding ease without parallel anywhere.

And, finally, such established Buick superiorities as the famous double-drop frame of finest, toughest steel . . . the massive side and cross members reinforced at points of stress to insure the greatest roadability and long life . . . the celebrated torque tube drive, Buick multiple-disc clutch, self-lubricating differential, and numerous other features.

When the list of Buick's chassis features—entirely aside from the irresistible appeal of Buick's new Fisher Bodies—reads like a roll-call of all that is soundest and best in fine car engineering . . . and when, in addition, you can buy a Buick for as little as $1225, f. o. b. factory . . . what wonder that all comparisons lead to Buick! What wonder that more than 2,000,000 people have invested their money in Buicks—and that from two to five times as many are purchasing this new Buick as any other automobile priced above $1200!

KLEIN, O'DOUL EXCEL HORNSBY'S HITTING MARKS

Chuck Hits 43d Homer; Lefty Totals 254 Blows.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 5.—(AP)—The Phillies ended their 1929 campaign today in what to them was a blaze of glory. They divided two games with the Giants to slip into fifth place ahead of Brooklyn, which dropped two contests to Boston, and saw Frank O'Doul clinched the batting championship.

O'Doul got six hits, including his thirty-second home run, in eight times at bat to run his total for the season to 254 and his batting average to an even .400. The Philly outfielder's total of safe drives is four ahead of the league record set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922 and three short of George Sisler's major league mark of 257 made in 1920. O'Doul is the first .400 batsman for the National league since 1925 when Hornsby led with .403. Klein hit his forty-third home run in the opener, bettering Hornsby's National league record by one. The Rajah won the major league home run championship in 1922 with forty-two circuit blows. Other National league scores:

DAN HOWLEY RESIGNS FROM BROWNS' HELM

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Dan Howley manager of the St. Louis Browns, announced today that he would not manage the club in the 1930 campaign. Howley's three year contract with the Browns ends this season.

Howley said conditions were not satfactory in the St. Louis American League club and that he had decided not to talk contract with Phil Ball, owner of the Browns. "I'm merely going to see him to say goodbye," Howley said.

Asked concerning his plans for the future, Howley replied that he has nothing in view. He plans to go to West Palm Beach, Fla., this winter and expects to establish a connection before the 1930 season opens. Advised of Howley's announcement, Ball expressed regret. He said he did not know who would be Howley's successor.

HEYDLER SHUNS RASH 'GUESSES,' BUT LIKES CUBS

No Longer Neutral After N. L. Season Ends.

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Following his unhappy experiences in the world series of 1927 and 1928, John Heydler, National league president, is not making any rash predictions on the outcome of the series between the Cubs and Athletics. Heydler admits a wholesome respect for the Athletics and Connie's pitchers, but if the clubbing lineup of the Cubs does not crash its way through to a glorious National league victory genial John will be the most disappointed man in Garden City.

"We have had some bitter world series pills to swallow but also have had our years of rejoicing," remarked Heydler today. "After what we went through in 1927 and 1928 I can realize how Col. Ruppert and his associates must have suffered in 1922. It is not easy to get yourself all worked up over a baseball event and then see your representative go through a series without a victory.

"You know for a league president a world series is the only opportunity he has to work himself into a state of enthusiasm. In all league contests the president must be strictly neutral.

"Certainly we have a splendid chance of winning this year. The Cubs have a terrific punch and are one of the strongest teams we have entered in a world series. No doubt Mr. Mack has a fine ball club. He must have to win more than 100 games and beat a team like the Yankees.

"However, it is asking much of any pitching staff to hold the Cubs."

American Giants Shut Out Homestead Grays by 1-0

The American Giants yesterday won the first of a five game series from the Homestead Grays of Pittsburgh, 1-to-0. The lone tally came in the third on singles by C. Williams and Bell with Jeffries' sacrifice and McDonald's out sandwiched in between. The visitors filled the sacks with one out in the eighth but a fast double play snuffed out their hopes.

JUVENILES FACE OLDER HORSES IN PIMLICO STAKE

Weight for Age Race Tops Meeting.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Among the interesting fixtures at the Pimlico autumn meeting Nov. 1 to 13 is the Weight for Age stake at six furlongs, which closed with 80 nominations from 46 owners. A race of this description brings two year olds and upward together at standard poundage, and gives a fairly accurate method of comparing the merits of the contestants on a scientific basis.

There is little difference between two and three year olds at this period of the year, when the Pimlico Weight for Age is decided. The juveniles should hold their own with the older horses at the scale weights.

Among the two year olds entered for the Weight for Age are H. G. Bedwell's Red Briar, Belair stud's Wrathe, Archibald Barklie's Wayne, Mrs. J. Simpson Dean's Skid, Dixiana's Mucker, Hi Chick, and Irish Polly; Howe stable's Gowan, Gold Brook, and Tetrarchal; Mrs. W. M. Jefford's Good as Gold; Kershaw stable's Mistnot, S. W. # Pintail Duck Tests Patience of Any Hunter

BY BOB BECKER.

In early October after the blue winged teal have deserted middle west marshes and preceding the arrival of the first canvasbacks and mallards from the north, the duck hunter undertakes the job of decoying the sprig or pintail duck.

He's a great sport, this wary, long necked duck. A regular old rubberneck, the kind of a duck that will give a decoy layout the once over with a suspicious eye and then repeat the operation a dozen times before swinging down to the seductive calling of live decoys. The old spiketail is plenty fun for the impatient gunner who is waiting for action in a duck blind.

When the pintail decides to come into decoys he makes a picture that no other puddler duck can duplicate, because neither the mallard, teal, widgeon nor gadwall knows how to set his wings and put on the brakes like the crafty old sprig. The latter will be coming up wind so high in the air that you are likely to pass him up as being absolutely unable to get down within gun range.

Suddenly he sets his wings and, then teetering and rocking in the wind, slides down the ozone as if pulled by a string. Presto. There he is ready to join the decoys. There is nothing prettier in the water fowl game than a slim, white breasted, long tailed pintail coming down the "ladder" when a stiff wind is making him work to keep an even keel.

After putting on a show like that the pintail is apt to come around later and steal a bunch of ducks from you. Last fall we had such an experience along the Illinois river. With two or three brace of mallards circling our decoys a pintail would crash the show, be too suspicious to decoy and then lead all the birds away.

Air-Cooled POWER

for the speed and pick-up of record-breaking performance—and for stamina and utmost reliability . . .

Air-cooled power is different! It is the most progressive and modern type of power in any motor car. When compared point for point with other engines the advantages are overwhelmingly in favor of the air-cooled motor.

That is why Franklin has been able to capture every major road record—the only car to accomplish such a dramatic performance demonstration. In a run on Pike's Peak, Franklin scored another triumph by flashing up and down the Peak 12 times—150 miles—without stopping—in the astonishing time of 4 hours, 25 minutes!

It is the stamina, force, dependability and flexibility of air-cooled power that has caused 80% of all airplane manufacturers to adopt the air-cooled type of engine. Where unusual performance is required, air-cooling wins. Try a ride in the brilliant Franklin. You'll see instantly why it has the airplane feel.

BROWN WISDOM, DECEIVER, WINS $5,000 HANDICAP

Rallies to Tie Hawthorne Track Record.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Brown Wisdom, the old deceiver, rolloped to a brilliant victory by four lengths in the $5,000 added Grant Park handicap at Hawthorne yesterday. Showing the most remarkable rally ever witnessed on the ancient Hawthorne course, Brown Wisdom seemed to fly around his rivals on the outer bend and come on to win by four lengths from Golden Prince, the Coffroth handicap winner. Islam was a distant third, not even threatening the fleet Brown Wisdom.

The victory was scored in track record time, for Brown Wisdom ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:43 4-5, causing the son of Brown Prince I.-Prodigy to loom up as a dangerous contender for the Gold Cup to be run tomorrow. While his speed and easy victory yesterday bordered on the sensational, he came out of the race fresh and apparently none the worse for the performance.

Reichert Entry Pays $5.24.

Nine went to the post in the stake and the presence of the crack field in the battle, along with perfect autumn weather, was responsible for a crowd of 20,000 gathering at the old west side course. From the beginning, Brown Wisdom, coupled with My Dandy as the Reichert brothers entry was the favorite among those in the crowd. He opened at 2 to 1, went down to 3 to 5 on the second betting, and when the final mutuel numbers were hung out, he paid $5.24 to win, $2.94 to place and $2.62 to show. Golden Prince, always popular with a Chicago throng, paid $4.28 to place and $2.96 to show. Islam, coupled with Greenock, paid $3.66 to show.

The start was one of the best Morrissey has made this season. Nine noses were bobbin' up and down on even terms twenty strides after they left the Bahr gate. Then My Dandy shot to the front, Cheers was right with him, Golden Prince was close up, and Brown Wisdom was running in fourth and then fifth position, just waiting for Jockey Parmelee to give him his head.

My Dandy Shows Way.

As long as My Dandy showed the way Parmelee was content to rate Brown Wisdom back. But My Dandy began to quit as they hit the last turn. Parmelee shot Brown Wisdom forward. It was perfect teamwork. He sailed by those in front of him like they were standing still. Old timers were amazed at the burst of speed he showed.

"Look at him run," shouted the crowd. In forty strides he raced from fourth place into the lead. It was all over but the applause at the scales. Brown Wisdom, with the others all staggering and quitting, proceeded to stage a new rally, which completely whipped Golden Prince. That old fellow hasn't been conquered so decisively since he won the $100,000 Coffroth handicap last March.

Ties Track Record.

Brown Wisdom's mile and a sixteenth in 1:43 3-5 tied the track record made last year by Martie Flynn. If there had been another horse in the battle to force him to extend himself, Brown Wisdom might have neared an American record.

The others, excepting Flat Iron and Montanaro, had no excuses to offer and it is doubtful if this pair would have been much closer to the leader even with good racing luck. Flat Iron was crowded far back rounding the club house bend, and Jockey R. Jones came over with Golden Prince so sharply, he almost pushed Montanaro over the fence into the infield. Jockey Jones drew a five day suspension for rough riding, but he will be allowed to fill his engagement in the Gold Cup tomorrow on Carl Eitel before he goes to the ground.

Hawthorne Gold Cup Race Draws East, West Stars

The running of the $25,000 Hawthorne Gold cup at Hawthorne tomorrow will clear up all title disputes as far as the American handicap championship of the year is concerned.

Throughout the season Misstep had the western crown at his mercy. Diavolo's victories in the Saratoga cup and in the Jockey club Gold cup at Belmont have stamped him as the best in the east. Misstep hasn't invaded the east for any engagements and Diavolo's activities have been confined strictly to the Atlantic seaboard.

Thus the two sectional champions will come together if track conditions are favorable in the Hawthorne fixture. As it is a weight for age race, distance is a mile and a quarter. And as the field probably will be small, with little chance of crowding and each will pick up 126 pounds. The bumping, it should be a truly run test. The horse defeated will not have an excuse to offer unless there are unusual incidents in the battle.

Diavolo's claims to the eastern title were dimmed slightly when Sun Beau, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's speedy 3 year old, showed him the way home in a stake at Aqueduct. But in that contest Diavolo gave Sun Beau 12 pounds and was close to his heels at the finish. Sun Beau also is coming on from the east for the Hawthorne Gold cup, and at equal weights with Diavolo and Misstep will be able to demonstrate whether the victory he scored at Aqueduct was a fluke or whether he has improved enough to make a bid for the championship.

Another dangerous easterner in the contest will be Petee Wrack, which will race in J. R. Macomber's silks. If the going should be muddy, he may be hard to conquer. He defeated Reigh Count last year when he caught the champion slightly off form on a muddy track.

Other easterners in the struggle are Distraction, a stablemate of Diavolo, Display, Herbert B. Swope's Lativich, the Arden Farm's Sun Edwin, and the Morven Stud Stable's Whiskery. Western running mates of Misstep include Brown Wisdom, the 3 year old Karl Eitel, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Fair Ball, and J. W. Parrish's Rolled Stocking.

Display won the first running of the Hawthorne Gold cup last year. He has been close up in numerous rich engagements this season, but hasn't been able to score a victory. He turned in his best race over the Hawthorne course in August when he finished third in the Crusader's special, beaten two noses by Buddy Bauer and Easter Stockings.

The entries for the Gold cup closed a few days ago, and only the best handicap performers still in training were nominated. The entry list includes fifteen. There were eight nominated from the east and seven from the west.

SAVE MONEY

From the day you buy it, ownership of a Pontiac Big Six is an experience in economy. Not many of the thousands who have purchased this great car selected it simply because it is so inexpensive to own. Most of them bought it because they were attracted by its big car performance, its big car style, its big car safety and riding ease. But it is a fact, nevertheless, that with a Pontiac Big Six you actually save money. You save—

When you buy

The Pontiac Big Six costs less to buy—not because it is the lowest-priced car you can get—but because it is the lowest-priced car ever produced which offers so many advantages. Try to find in another car such features as the Harmonic Balancer which counteracts torsional vibration in the crankshaft, the Cross-flow radiator—the only basic development made in cooling systems during the past decade—and Pontiac's remarkably efficient, non-squeak, internal-expanding four-wheel brakes—and you will find that the car which offers them costs hundreds of dollars more to buy than Pontiac.

When you drive

You save in operation and maintenance with a Pontiac Big Six. During 1928, a large public utilities company operated 996 automobiles of 33 different makes. According to its accurately recorded figures, its Pontiac Sixes cost one cent less per mile than any other low-priced six. If you drive the average of 10,000 miles annually, this represents a saving of $100 each year. And today's Pontiac is even more economical than its predecessors because of several important improvements in design.

When you trade it in

You save with a Pontiac when you are ready for a new car. From the very beginning, Pontiac has been an unqualified success. And with each succeeding year its reputation for quality, dependability and long life has grown. As a result the demand for used Pontiacs has always exceeded the available supply. And that means that you save on your Pontiac Six even on the day you trade it in.

A car which combines such amazing economy with all of Pontiac's additional desirable qualities must command your first attention when you are in the market for any car costing less than $1000. Come in to see and drive the Pontiac Big Six. And bring your present car for our appraisal. You will be surprised at the ease with which you can own a Pontiac Big Six and enjoy its many advantages.

EDDIE COLLINS MAY MANAGE N. Y. YANKEES

New York, Oct. 5. — [Special.] — Baseball men were interested today in a report that Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, had selected Eddie Collins to succeed the late Miller Huggins as manager of the team.

Col. Ruppert and Secretary Edward G. Barrow, it was said, had decided to engage Collins after a secret conference here, but planned to withhold the news until after the world series.

Collins, one of the Athletics' coaches, broke in with that club when Connie Mack's scouts discovered him playing shortstop for Columbia university more than twenty years ago. He played second base for the A's in the world series of 1910, 1911, 1913, and 1914.

BADGER CAPTAIN GUIDED TOURISTS, BUT PREFERS GRID

Parks Gets an European Background.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Johnny Parks, husky Oklahoma boy who is captain of the University of Wisconsin football team, has a European background. He was a guide for a group of tourists who "did" the continent.

"What did you know about Europe?" he was asked.

"Nothing, but I guided them until the going got pretty tough. Then another fellow took over the guide job and I checked baggage," Parks explained.

The Badger leader spent five nights in Paris, but prefers Madison and Camp Randall stadium at regular haunts.

Fraternity brothers at the Alpha Delta house claim there were several attractive girls in the party which Parks escorted to places that were as new to him as to any of the tourists.

Parks, who is one of the most modest athletes who ever wore a Cardinal jersey, claims they were all old maids.

Parks would like to make the Badger crew. "I never rowed a shell before my sophomore year, but always wanted to learn," he said.

In his sophomore year, Johnny won his letter in the varsity boat. Last spring football practice kept him out of this sport.

Ramming his head into enemy formations has worn Parks' black locks a trifle thin on top during the last two years, but nobody dares to mention that. It doesn't affect his playing at guard of his praiseworthy leadership of the team.

Central Wesleyan Ekes Out 7 to 6 Win from Shurtleff

Alton, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Central Wesleyan of De Kalb, Ill., beat Shurtleff college of Alton here today, 7-6. The game was slow with the exception of the last quarter when Shurtleff started a passing game and went down the field for a touchdown.

Golf Tourney Season Ends; Interest Grows

With the finish of the Women's National championship yesterday, the competitive golf season has come to an end except for the temporarily homeless national professional championship, which more and more is coming to be a winter tournament. This year it is to be played somewhere in the south or west in December, so for all practical purposes this year's golf is ended except for the casual games that continue until snow drives the golfers indoors or south.

With the close of any season of sport, reminiscences are usually in order. Nearly every one's opinion is that more golf was played this year than ever before.

Middle Class Wants More.

In a few cases where the growth of private clubs has been faster than a town's population has been able to fill them, there has been a slight dropping off. But in practically every town there has been a tremendous growth in the number of daily fee courses. There also seems to be a lull in the building of municipal and country courses, but that isn't because of lack of demand.

The answer seems to be that the demand for "expensive" golf, that is, membership in a private club with its dues, caddies, dinners, set-ups, and so on, which often run the cost of golf up to $25 a game when figured over a season, is fairly well satisfied. But the demand for golf by less wealthy folks who can't afford the $500 to $1,000 a year for a private club but do want to play, is yet in the ascendency.

Another development of the present season seems to be a gradual lessening of interest in the star professional. A few years ago the winner of most any major championship was certain to be booked solid with exhibition matches for the next year. That still holds true, but galleries have been gradually falling off. Probably the answer lies in that golfers as a group have become more sophisticated, and would rather play their own game than tramp over 18 holes watching some one else hit the ball, even if that some one else does it better.

Game Loses Its Ballyhoo.

A corollary to that is the fact that sectional organizations are finding it more and more difficult to get entries for their championships. It wasn't many years ago when a golf club considered it an honor to be chosen for a championship, and this still holds true for national tournaments. Nevertheless and less are the members willing to give up playing on their course for a week in order to have the privilege of boasting that such and such a championship was held on "our course."

All of these things indicate that golf has grown out of its ballyhoo days. More and more the game is coming back to its original Scotch form of a pleasant method of contest and recreation, with the blah and hokum gradually falling off.

TAYLOR STANDS IN MASTRO'S WAY UP RING LADDER

Earl Mastro, a youngster from Chicago's west side who has been scaling the pugilistic heights with amazing speed, faces the most severe test of his career Tuesday night when he meets the veteran Bud Taylor at the Chicago stadium.

Endowed by the terrific body punches which has placed Taylor among the elite of boxers, Mastro is confident of punching his way to victory and thereby become foremost of the contenders for the featherweight title. That is certain he will bring Chicago the second world championship of the glove punches with almost unbelievable speed and accuracy and his footwork, always forward, is a delight to those who like boxing skill. In his last two fights, against Shea and Zorilla, he has added a stiff right cross to his leading left and now gives promise of becoming one of the hardest hitters in the featherweight ranks.

As for Taylor, the blond terror from Terre Haute is out to prove that he has lost none of his skill and punching power which have made him one of the most popular fighters of the last decade. Although handicapped by a bad hand for several months, Bud conducted fighting with somewhat less than his usual steam. Critics were quick to seize upon this as evidence that he was beginning to slip, but his record is fully recovered, and Bud is anxious to demonstrate he has many good fights in his system.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Jack Sharkey, the crying prize fighter, appears to be the heavyweight champion of the world, lacking only formal confirmation, which probably will take place in Miami during the winter. It is true that Mr. Sharkey hasn't done much in rising to the championship, but he unfurled the only genuine punch displayed by a heavyweight since Jack Dempsey knocked down Gene (Big Feet) Tunney in Chicago. Until a better man comes along he will suffice for champion.

Of course, Tuffy Griffiths and Max Schmeling have punched up a few people in the last year or so, but they were not really high class people, and, moreover, the punching was very messy by contrast with Sharkey's tremendous blow on Tommy Loughran's nose. Loughran is game and strong, but he was dazed for half the night, probably the first prize fighter of any talent at all to be knocked out by a punch on the nose.

Will Have to Fight with Max Schmeling.

At some time in the disorderly order of business Sharkey will have to fight Schmeling, because Max dealt fifteen rounds of horrible abuse to Paulino Uscudun last summer and had previously worn down Johnny Risko, both of whom had caused Sharkey considerable inconvenience. But in doing these things Schmeling evinced no such punch as Sharkey laid against Loughran's neat profile, and the punch, I maintain, is the payoff in the prize fighting business, but champion or otherwise, Mr. Sharkey is one young man who must be judged wholly as he is at a game and not on past performances or future possibilities. His record is spotty and inconsistent and he has crossed up the probabilities more times than any set of crap dice that ever tumbled off the baseboard.

Sharkey yelled, "I wanted to knock him out!"

In his first fight in New York, Mr. Sharkey met a tall, delicate youth named Sailor Hoffman and fought so badly that the prize fight commissioners, ever alert to preserve the purity of their ennobling sport, detained his money and called him in to explain.

"It is all a great mistake," Mr. Sharkey said. "I just happen to be a punk prize fighter, and that was the best I could do."

This was the first realization of Mr. Sharkey's most endearing charm which is his absolute candor. It has remained true and unspoiled all through his experiences with the millionaires, mayors, governors, journalists and common customers in New York and Florida. This quality, implying as it does, a unique kind of moral courage, will point his appeal to the public imagination, which is all that makes heavyweight champions any way.

He came into the dining room at Fleetwood in Miami Beach, Fla., one night last fall, tossed the menu on the floor and remarked abruptly: "This is the worst town I ever saw in my life," which was heresy and punishable by tar and feathers.

"What's the matter with this town?" I asked. "You're doing pretty well here; $100,000 for ten rounds with a musclebound wrestler."

Dislikes Handshaking with Dumb Strangers.

"I'm homesick," he said. "I wish to hell the fight was over. I'm going to jump over the ropes the minute Magnolia counts that bum out and tear for the train in my ring tights. I've gotta swell new home outside Boston, and I'd rather be there in the snow drifts with my wife and kids than down here getting sun burned and hand shaking a lot of dumb strangers.

"Do you know what I had to do? I had to make a speech at some kind of merchants' lunch. They are pulling me here and there, all over the joint to shake hands with big shots. What do I care about big shots? Why should I have to speak to a lot of hardware and clothing merchants for my money? I'm a fighter. Big shots don't do anything for me.

"I wish Dempsey would fight me again. We could make a lot of money. I saw him the other day and said, 'Dempsey, why don't you and I have another fight?' He said, 'Don't kid me Sharkey; you hit too hard.' I said, 'Don't kid me, Dempsey, you hit me plenty hard that time in New York.' I pleaded with him to fight me, but he wouldn't think of it. I don't hit any harder than he does."

Wanted to Knock Out Harry Wills.

Sometimes Sharkey cries in the ring. The night Patsy Haley disqualified Harry Wills for fouling him he walked to the ropes with his mouth pulled down and tears streaming down his cheeks, yelling: "I wanted to knock him out."

The night of the peculiar fight with Jack Delaney, who went down and out in a round, he lurched along the ropes with frenzied eyes and features twitching, like an addict "leaping" with heroin. And then, most engaging of all his remarkable public gestures, he uttered one remark which sums up the whole idea of all the prize fighters toward the customers, and he is the only one that ever had the candor to say it.

"Let them jeer," Sharkey said one evening, when the customers were on him for a languid fight in the garden. "I get their money."

A picturesque and entertaining young man, Mr. Sharkey is; it will be nice to have him for a champion.

Scissors King, Pole Grapple Tomorrow

Joe Stecher, former heavyweight champion, and Stanley Stasiak, Polish grappler, will meet in the windup of Promoter Joe Coffey's wrestling show at the Hippodrome tomorrow night. The match will be the first in a proposed heavyweight elimination tournament to select an opponent for Gus Sonnenberg, present titleholder.

Yesterday Coffey declared that he considered Stecher one of the greatest wrestlers of his weight since Frank Gotch. He pointed out that although many grapplers have attempted to imitate the Nebraskan's famous scissors hold, none has succeeded in mastering it. Stecher told Coffey that he is in perfect condition for the match and hopes to make short work of Stasiak.

Joe Malcewicz and Charley Hanson of Iowa will clash in the heavyweight semi-windup of the show. Hanson has defeated all of the leaders in the division with the exception of Sonnenberg, Lewis and Stecher. A third bout brings together Midget Fischer, claimant of the middleweight title, and Heine Engle. In another bout the veteran Bill Demetral will meet John Mandrick, Jugo-Slav heavyweight. Pete Schuh of Argo and Stratta Ruby will meet in another bout.

Giving a Good Account of Itself . . . Read what Viking Owners Say!

ALTHOUGH Viking is a new name to the automotive industry, this General Motors product has achieved a measure of success in the medium-price field which stamps it a car destined to create new standards of motor car value as well as new heights of motoring enjoyment.

Already, hundreds of motorists in all parts of the country have written to Olds Motor Works expressing their appreciation of Viking style and comfort . . . their enthusiasm for Viking performance. These owners praise Viking's superior qualities on the basis of their previous experience with many types and makes of cars. Their words are doubly significant for that reason.

Because Viking has inspired so many owners to put into words their opinions of this new 90-degree V-eight, and because these words describe with unerring directness the superior qualities which Oldsmobile and General Motors engineers worked for four years to build into this car, we are reproducing a few of these remarks, word for word, to show how actual experience has judged the Viking.

"Being a 'sophisticated' car owner, having owned many, I wanted the Viking when I saw it. When I drove it, the car sold itself to me. The car I turned in was a good one . . . I was just sold on something so much better in the Viking. It's the same old story, in America sales are stimulated by creating better and better products." —Salt Lake City, Utah

"I saw the Viking in your showroom here, and on looking it over I liked its roomy body, ample power, good brakes, automatic radiator shutters—and other features too numerous to mention. I am satisfied that it is the best car I ever had." —Elba, Neb.

"Knowing Viking to be a General Motors car, and having had very satisfactory experience with Oldsmobile, I bought it as soon as I saw its good-looking body lines and heard its price. I have owned many different cars, but I think that anyone who buys a Viking will find it an ideal all-round car, comfortable, and especially good-looking." —New Orleans, La.

"Am greatly pleased with Viking's beautiful lines. The car is easy to handle, easy riding, has plenty of power and quick getaway in traffic, and provides plenty of seating room. The motor is simple and easy to get at for valve grinding and adjustments." —Pontiac, Mich.

"I like the quiet performance of Viking's eight-cylinder engine. Viking rides like a Pullman car. And the finish and upholstery are as good if not better than higher priced cars offer." —Tacoma, Wash.

"I'm particularly sold on Viking's V-type eight-cylinder engine—its roomy, adjustable front seat—large capacity gas tank—easy riding—81 horsepower performance—hill-climbing ability—and the good workmanship on its body, and its balanced chassis design." —Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

"One of my friends in Milford who owns a Viking gave me a demonstration in his car. I was won over by its fine performance and good general appearance. I believe it is by far the best buy for the money." —Milford, N. H.

These expressions of owner opinion, taken at random from the many received, are indicative of the splendid service which Viking is giving in hundreds of American families throughout the country.

Ask your own friends who drive Vikings to tell you about the thorough satisfaction their cars are giving. Then examine and drive the car yourself. Your own experience will tell you why Viking owners are so keenly enthusiastic about Viking's comfort, performance, dependability, and all-round excellence.

PICTURE A $20,000 MADE-TO-ORDER CAR

WHAT WOULD YOU WANT IN THIS SUPERLATIVE CAR?
WHAT DO YOU FIND IN STUTZ AND BLACKHAWK?

Check your own answers to these fourteen questions

Suppose you were willing to pay $20,000 for an automobile made to your order, the last word in style, beauty and performance-with-safety. In writing your specifications, you would want to answer all the questions listed below:

1. Would you subject yourself and your family to the dangers of flying glass? Or would you equip your $20,000 automobile with safety glass all round?

I would have ☐ Ordinary Glass ☐ Safety Glass

Safety glass all around was pioneered by Stutz four years ago.

2. Would you be content with the ordinary three-speed transmission? Or would you prefer the more modern four-speed transmission?

I would have ☐ Ordinary three-speed transmission ☐ Transmission with four speeds forward

The Stutz transmission, with four speeds forward, provides superior performance and longer car life. The trend is toward four speeds.

3. Would you be satisfied with the conventional car which rolls backward on inclines when brakes are released? Or would you prefer Stutz Noback, which automatically prevents undesired back-rolling on inclines?

I would have ☐ Ordinary car without Noback ☐ The added protection of Noback

Noback is among the important safety devices pioneered by Stutz.

4. Would you select the conventional L-head type of engine? Or would you insist upon having the increased efficiency of the valve-in-head engine?

I would have ☐ Conventional type, L-head engine ☐ Advanced type, valve-in-head engine

The Stutz valve-in-head, line-eight engine is not only more powerful, it is also quiet, smooth and economical.

5. Would you accept valves actuated by rocker arms, with their greater noise and greater area of wearing surfaces? Or would you insist upon having the overhead camshaft with its direct-acting, simple and quiet valve operation?

I would have ☐ Conventional push-rods and rocker arms ☐ Silent overhead camshaft

As compared with rocker-arm valve mechanism, the Stutz overhead camshaft eliminates 198 wearing surfaces.

6. Would you be content with the single ignition found in ordinary cars? Or would you prefer dual ignition with two spark plugs for each cylinder, insuring greater power and economy?

I would have ☐ Single ignition ☐ Dual ignition

Dual ignition is one of the many features of advanced engineering found on Stutz and Blackhawk.

7. Would you want your engine to have the less efficient single carburetion as originally designed for four-cylinder cars? Or would you prefer the greater engine efficiency made possible by dual carburetion?

I would have ☐ A single carburetor ☐ Dual carburetion

Dual carburetion and dual intake contribute to the outstanding performance of Stutz and Blackhawk cars.

8. Would you be willing to have an automobile equipped with ordinary oil and grease cups? Or would you like the latest, Stutz one-thrust chassis lubrication system which feeds oil to all moving parts of the chassis in one operation?

I would have ☐ Ordinary oil and grease cups ☐ One-thrust lubrication system

9. Would you expect your $20,000 automobile to be equipped with ordinary headlights? Or would you prefer Ryan-Lites, which give long range without dangerous glare and which give side-illumination with added protection for night driving?

I would have ☐ Ordinary headlights ☐ New and improved Ryan-Lites

Ryan-Lites, standard equipment on Stutz and Blackhawk, are the only automobile lights that meet all legal requirements everywhere.

10. Would you be content with the conventional bevel gear drive? Or would you have the improved worm drive rear axle which permits the floorboards to be lowered 20 per cent and lowers the center of weight of the entire car?

I would have ☐ Conventional rear axle ☐ Worm drive rear axle

Worm drive is one of the fundamentals of Stutz-Blackhawk advanced engineering.

11. Would your made-to-order car be of the conventional type, with a relatively high center of weight? Or would you build safety into your car by lowering the center of weight?

I would have ☐ Conventional car, relatively unsafe ☐ Safety Stutz with low center of weight

Stutz low center of weight, made possible by worm drive, means better roadability, greater ease of control, improved riding, greater performance and greater safety.

12. Would you be content with the ordinary type of chassis frame, which yields to torsional strains? Or would you insist upon having a massive double-drop frame providing utmost safety?

I would have ☐ Ordinary chassis frame ☐ Massive double-drop frame

The Stutz double-drop frame has seven cross members, five of them tubular.

13. Would you have ordinary running boards suspended on brackets and hence easily collapsible in case of side collision? Or would you feel safer with Stutz side-bumper steel running boards built integral with frame?

I would have ☐ Running boards suspended on brackets ☐ Side-bumper steel running boards integral with frame

Stutz side-bumper steel running boards integral with the frame protect the occupants of the car in case of side-collision.

14. Would you specify conventional brakes with just ordinary braking power? Or would you feel safer with Stutz Feathertouch Booster Brakes?

I would have ☐ Ordinary conventional brakes ☐ Feathertouch Booster Brakes

Stutz is safest because it can stop in three-fifths the distance required by conventional cars.

In a nation-wide investigation, conducted by an impartial research bureau, owners of four other cars selling at the price of the Stutz were asked to express their opinion concerning six of the Stutz features mentioned above:

97 per cent wanted Safety Glass
66.5 per cent wanted four-speed transmission
90.5 per cent wanted Noback
81.5 per cent wanted low weighted safety
63 per cent wanted Feathertouch brakes
88 per cent wanted side-bumper steel running boards

Now remember it takes ten other cars to give you ten of the Stutz-Blackhawk features and Stutz still has many major features all its own.

Of course you would want all the advantages mentioned here if you purchased a $20,000 made-to-order car. But think how much easier it is to get them in a Stutz or Blackhawk.

Stutz has them all and instead of paying $20,000, you pay as little as $2995 to $8500 for a Stutz or $1995 to $2735 for a Blackhawk.

In no other American car will you find this combination of features, this advanced engineering which has made Stutz the embodiment of performance-with-safety.

Come to our showroom and see the New Series Cars. They are the finest and most beautiful cars Stutz ever built.

LEADERS SEEK TO DIAGNOSE FLYING INDUSTRY'S ILLS

Too Much Wall Street, Too Few Passengers.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Leaders in the aviation industry gathered at Kansas City recently to find out what was ailing aviation. They found that the industry was suffering from a serious condition of overproduction, that they were several jumps ahead of the public demand for airplanes and airplane transportation, and they sent out a bid for wider public support.

There are today thousands of new airplanes gathering dust in hangars and factories throughout the country with nobody to buy them and nobody to fly them. There are hundreds of luxurious air liners flying daily between important cities in the country, but many of them are operating with a discouraging number of empty seats.

Too Much Wall Street.

One of the industry's leaders apparently summed up the situation in this comment: "We are suffering from too much Wall street and a lack of engineering skill."

"In the manufacturing end of the industry the effects of overfinancing are apparent. Each succeeding air show brings out a wider variety of planes. Some manufacturers, apparently assured of liberal financial backing, have directed their attention toward more horsepower and brighter paint and have made little effort toward cleaning up the lines of their planes. The "haywire" designs in many of the planes still exist.

It has been estimated that $750,000,000 is now invested in the aviation industry. Forty-five air mail, express and passenger companies are flying an average of 75,000 miles daily. The industry reported that 52,934 passengers were carried during last year and estimate that that figure will grow to 150,000 next year. These figures are rather encouraging when it is considered that passenger carying is a comparatively recent departure in aviation, but the number of flying travelers is still too few to make the operators' account come out on the right side of the ledger.

Seek Air Mail Rate Cut.

Col. Halsey Dunwoody of the Universal Air Lines made this comment at the Kansas City conference: "We cannot continue to pay operating expenses from capital reserve. In order to produce dividends air transport lines must pay. We operators face certain definite needs which may be enumerated as public confidence, increased patronage, constantly improving service and better practical organization."

Considerable dismay was expressed by the operators over the request of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, who has called a conference for the purpose of reducing rates for the air mail. The air mail has remained the one dependable source of revenue to most operators and a cut in rate, the operators state, will seriously affect their pocketbooks.

A statement from the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America notes that the American public now has 232 approved airplane types from which to choose its private or commercial craft.

3,500 Built in Six Months.

Thirty-five hundred commercial and military airplanes, with a total retail value of $25,000,000, were produced in the United States during the first six months of this year, officials of the chamber report.

The report shows that during the first six months of this year the output equaled 80 per cent of the number of planes produced in 1928, while military plane production lagged behind last year's figures. Only 43 per cent of the total 1928 military production was reached during the six months' period, 7 per cent under normal 1928 schedule.

Reports from seventy-one leading manufacturers showed a total of 3,381 airplanes produced during the first six months of the year. Of this number 2,354 were designed for commercial use, representing a total value without motors of $17,032,747. Five hundred and twenty-seven military planes were produced with a total value, without motors, of $6,652,825.

Open Biplanes Lead.

Although there were more than seventy more plants engaged in the manufacture of aircraft, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce estimates that not more than 200 additional planes were produced by them. The six months' production, therefore, was conservatively estimated at 3,500. Of the 3,381 planes reported 3,107 were manufactured by members of the aeronautical chamber.

Adding airplane spare parts, the total value of airplanes and spare parts produced during the six months' period was estimated at $31,289,000. The 1928 reports did not include a retail valuation of planes, engines, or parts produced, so no comparison could be made on that basis.

The open cockpit biplane led the field in the six months' report for the largest number of a single type to be produced, 1,623 being reported. Cabin monoplanes ranked second, with 884. Although there were 500 more biplanes manufactured, monoplanes showed a value approximately $4,500,000 greater than biplanes.

There was a marked increase in the production of two place, open, cockpit planes, showing the favor this type is receiving for sport and training purposes. Eighteen seaplanes and flying boats were manufactured during the six months as contrasted with eleven for last year's total. Amphibians also showed a marked increase, fifty-three being manufactured this year as contrasted with thirty all last year.

While airplane and motor production in 1928 was heaviest during the first six months and began to decline toward the end of the third quarter, officials of the aeronautical chamber said that they expected a reverse situation to develop this year.

BUILT FOR SPEED

SHIPS CATAPULT PLANES.

NEW YORK.—Both the French liner Ile de France and the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, holder of the transatlantic speed record, have successfully catapulted planes from their decks. Both planes were loaded with mail.

EARLY FLYERS TO BE HONORED AT AIRPORT OPENING

Monument to Commemorate Performances.

A monument to the early flyers who performed in the international aviation meet held over Grant park in 1911 will be unveiled at the formal opening of Curtiss-Reynolds airport at Glenview on Oct. 20. The unveiling of the monument will be part of a pageant of aerial progress which will be held on that day to depict the strides made by aviation since 1911.

The monument will commemorate daring performance of some 40 "early birds" who took part in the 1911 show. Famous among those early flyers are Lincoln Beachey, Claude Graham-White, Tom Sopwith, Rene Simon, Roland Garros, Harry Atwood, Oscar Brindley, Jimmy Ward, Lee Hammond, Earl Ovington, Philip Parmalee, Howard Gill, St. Croix Johnstone, and other pilots who flew the early planes of Orville Wright, Glenn Curtiss, and Louis Bleriot.

Maj. Schroeder had charge of a Curtiss Shooting Star during the 1911 meet. His wartime record and world's altitude record, secured in 1919, later brought him fame. Walter Brookins, believed to be the first man to fly in Chicago, also will officiate.

More than 200 aircraft of many types, including planes flying in the 1929 national reliability tour, will take part in the air show, Maj. Schroeder announced. Planes will be flown by army, navy, and civilian flyers. During the afternoon John Livingston, winner of the 1928 transcontinental air Derby, will fly a sister ship to Beachey's Curtiss Pusher.

Many famous flyers and leaders in the aviation industry have been invited to attend the opening ceremonies of the new airport.

CANADA AIDS AVIATION.

The Canadian government will spend about $140,000 this year for the promotion of flying clubs. Most of this money will go for airplanes to be presented to the clubs. The Flying club membership in the Dominion of Canada is now more than 3,400.

CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB ANNOUNCES ROAD PROGRAM

Recommendations Sent to Gov. Emmerson.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago Motor club forwarded to Gov. Emmerson yesterday its recommendations for the state's $19,000,000 highway construction program in the metropolitan area during 1930 and '31.

The club's proposals differ from those of the citizen's committee, which was headed by Frank F. Wilsons, in that the motorists' organization would give preference to the widening of radial routes stretching from Chicago.

Summarized, the motor club program calls for 141.9 miles of widening, 34.9 miles of new four lane pavement, 68.2 miles of new two lane concrete, 25 bridges, 17 highway grade separations, and 46 railway grade separations. The committee recommended 134.1 miles of widening, 37.6 miles of new four lane pavement, 91.5 miles of new two lane concrete, 11 bridges, 5 highway grade separations, and 46 railway grade separations.

Would Relieve Congestion.

The citizens' group, which was dominated by the Chicago Regional Planning association and county highway engineers from the metropolitan area, proposed construction of roads circling Chicago before the arterial highways are widened.

"I realize," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, "that these circumferential roads, promised by former Gov. Small to further his political interests, must be built eventually because they are state bond issue routes. But I believe Gov. Emmerson desires to relieve traffic congestion in the metropolitan area before he fulfills his predecessor's promises."

The administrations of Du Page and Will counties sought these bypasses because they fill a local need and promote subdivisions. The motor club fought the early construction of these secondary routes because they are not the most urgent requirement from the viewpoint of traffic for the entire metropolitan area.

The Club's Program.

Gov. Emmerson has the committee's report under advisement.

The club's program in detail follows:

DISTRACTING BILLBOARDS

Here are examples of billboards designed to distract motorists from their driving. The pictures were taken on route 24A, the Waukegan road, in Lake county.

Such signs are a nuisance, if not a hazard to traffic, and the state highway department has been asked to investigate with a view of removing them.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

Chicago, Oct. 1.—I note the editorial, "Left Hand Turns." While I was chairman of the law committee of the National Conference of Street and Highway Safety, appointed by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, I had charge of the drawing of the Uniform Vehicle act, and we had certain studies on this subject before us.

It seemed fairly clear from these studies that while abolition of the left hand turn speeded up the traffic, that in fact it was much safer from the standpoint of the pedestrian and even from the standpoint of collision between cars than the right hand turn. This was for two reasons:

1. People making the left hand turn realize they are crossing the lane of traffic and are generally more careful than when they swing to the right around the corner, sometimes without warning, so that sometimes they are hit. So far as the pedestrians are concerned, the right hand turn is much more dangerous because of the shortness of the turn.

2. It seemed fairly clear that the safety was in inverse proportion to the shortness of the turn, so that the larger the arc the greater the safety.

This is because so far as the left hand turn is concerned people can see the car coming, while the sharp right hand turn is the most dangerous of all and is the one that really requires to be regulated if only safety is considered. This is met in some cities by compelling cars that are going to turn right to be in the center lane and cross the axis of traffic instead of turning directly around the corner, so that the pedestrian trying to cross is never caught unawares.

NATHAN WILLIAM MAC CHESNEY.

PARKING ON BOULEVARDS

Chicago, Oct. 3.—So much is being written in editorials and campaigns, and a fortune is going to be spent for the west side new overhead street, but why cannot something be done to relieve traffic temporarily on Jackson boulevard starting at Sacramento boulevard and west to Columbus park?

It seems all the politicians with their "I've got a drag star," who park along the right of way, have more power than the west park board or anybody else.

H. H. MUNSTERMAN.

BOULEVARD ON LAKE.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The great lake cities are fortunate in their location on water, for there is nothing more beautifying to a city than a boulevard facing a body of water. European cities take advantage of this feature to the greatest degree. Rio de Janeiro's waterfront is one of the wonders of the world.

Chicago's promising lake front development has placed her in the front rank of progressive cities. But what of the numerous cities and towns surrounding the shores of Lake Michigan? Why not enlarge the scope of the effort and include all the cities and towns fronting the lake? Are they turning their backs to such natural beauty, or are they taking steps to acquire and protect this feature for the coming generations?

The completion of the shore line boulevard from Grant to Jackson park brings to mind that such a shore boulevard should be continued south to the state line and bridges should be built off the steel company's inlet and the Calumet river inlet in South Chicago, giving a continuous drive along the shore and a grand approach to the city of Chicago from the east. R. DARGEL.

ON LOWER WACKER.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—How does it happen the entire section of lower Wacker drive at Wabash was taken away from the parking motorists in the vicinity, thereby compelling them to pay exorbitant prices for parking?

Undoubtedly this action was caused by the garage owners of the neighborhood. It has also been noticed that the garage owners are using the city posts, which have "no parking" signs on them, for their own advertisements as to the direction of the garage. BEN GREENWALD.

LIBERTYVILLE'S REPLY.

Libertyville, Oct. 1.—If Mr. Cermak lived in Libertyville he would be thankful for our stoplights and he also would understand that much of the traffic tie-up comes from the two railroads.

Most auto drivers seem to think they own the road and small chance we would have to get across the main street were it not for stoplights. Again, when parking in town, our only chance to back out is when the lights hold back the horde for a moment or two.

A LIBERTYVILLIAN.

COPS SELLING TICKETS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—A BIG PARADE. Time: Sunday afternoon, Sept. 29, 1929. Place: Mannheim road and points north, south, east, and west.

"Step a little closah, a little closah. I hold heah in my hands some tickets for a gala affair to be given by the Melrose Park Policemen and Firemen's Benefit association. Have your money ready. How many—two, three, or five? Better take a block. Blah, blah, blah, etc."

—the sole cause of a tieup in traffic for about five miles around Mannheim road and Lake street.

What a philanthropic mood I was in after crawling along shifting gears, stopping and starting for about thirty minutes and then being approached by one of these high pressure rural officers of the law peddling his wares!

Chicagoland still ranks high in rackets and they are not all speed traps.

G. P. S.

STATE TO MAKE SURVEY OF SIGNS ON AUTO ROADS

Many Distract Motorists, It Is Claimed.

Director Cleaveland of the state department of public works and buildings has ordered a survey of highway markers and of billboards on roads in the metropolitan area. His main object is to remove advertisements on the rights of way that confuse drivers.

The survey will also discover that many of the official markers are unnecessary and are a nuisance to motorists. It will also show that there is a need for directional signs labeling important intersections.

There has been a growing practice in the Chicago region for real estate men, barbecue purveyors, and roadhouse proprietors to erect signs on the highways carrying in large letters the word "STOP." In smaller letters will be the invitation to purchase a lot in the swampy hollow subdivision or to buy a sandwich at Sadie's place.

A Nuisance to Drivers.

A fast driver, on the lookout for warning notices, will stamp his brake pedal when his eyes catch the big letters, "S-T-O-P." This was the result intended by the designer of the trick sign, and there is a slight possibility that the ruse is good merchandizing strategy. But this tampering with the free movement of traffic is a nuisance to motorists, if not a public hazard.

A variation of this practical joke on the public was found a few weeks ago in the southwestern section of Cook county. A motorist going forty-five miles an hour on one of the lightly traveled pavements in that vicinity saw a red flag waving from one of the state highway department's "cross road" markers.

A Subdivider's Sign.

Thinking the flag was a warning of a serious danger, such as a cave-in and a broken bridge, the motorist skidded his tires to slow down to ten or fifteen miles an hour. Then he discovered that the red flag was part of the decorations used by a subdivider at the intersection of the gravel road with the concrete highway.

As for the multiplicity of official warning signs on the highways, experts contend that the great number of these markers reduces the efficacy of each. On the through routes, where a fast movement of traffic is essential for the highway to handle the large volume of automobiles, the dirt shoulders beside the pavement are cluttered with signs reading "cross road," "club entrance," "cemetery entrance," etc.

Signs of Little Importance.

Many of these cross roads are little used dirt trails. Even where they are gravel roads serving a local traffic the motor clubs argue that the automobile entering the main highway should come to a full stop and wait for a safe opening, but that the through traffic should not be annoyed with notices of these cross roads.

These same arguments apply to club entrances and cemetery driveways. It is the automobiles entering the through highway that should be warned to observe extreme caution.

With so many signs of little or no importance, the driver on a through highway is likely to fail to heed important markers, such as railroad crossings or junctions with other main highways.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Three models of 1930 Nash were placed on display for the first time last Friday. Heading the list is the big car with a twin ignition, eight cylinder motor that develops 100 horse power. The other two models are a twin ignition six and a single six. The line offers five wheel base lengths in three Nash price fields.

Refinements have been made in the mechanics and in the appearance of the car. The hood is longer and the lines are straightened. The radiator shells have been narrowed, giving a more graceful outline, with the ebonized shutters, as viewed from the front.

Nash eight carburetion has been brought to peak efficiency through dual manifolding and a new "high-high" speed jet that cuts in at 50 miles an hour to maintain maximum fuel economy in the higher ranges.

A new eight cylinder car in the medium price class is announced by Hupmobile with five body types. It follows the announcement of the 1930 Hupp six in the $1,000 field.

The 1930 eight develops 100 horse power and attains a speed of eighty miles an hour, according to the announcement. The body design is unlike anything ever produced by this company, having a single modernistic decorative scheme, used throughout for both the interior and the exterior.

Another front wheel drive automobile will enter the field early in 1930. R. E. Gardner Jr., president of the Gardner Motor company, announced that his company will exhibit its new front wheel drive car at the New York automobile show in January.

Marmon is completing arrangements to bring out a big eight this fall. The first public showing will be early next month.

A new Packard feature is an adjustable sun shade that takes the place of the visor on most car bodies.

AUTUMN LEAVES ON STREET ARE MOTOR HAZARD

A seasonal hazard met my motorists on the highways these autumnal days is the leaves on the pavements. Poets write about the trees dropping a blanket over the grass and flowers to protect them from the cold, but it is well for the automobile driver to keep his mind on the prosaic thought that leaves on the concrete may lead to a skid, crash, and tragedy. Motor clubs have broadcast the warning.

Traffic Congestion Body to Meet in Washington

Secretary of Commerce Lamont has called a meeting for Thursday in Washington, D. C., of an advisory committee on relief of traffic congestion. E. J. Mehren of Chicago is chairman. On Wednesday in Washington, the American Automobile association's committee on road widening and highway grade separations will meet to map the motoring organization's program for promoting these improvements. The chairman is Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

SAFETY PROBLEM IS QUESTION FOR MOTOR INDUSTRY

Must Study It or Suffer Financial Loss.

Paul Van Cleef, chairman of the board of directors of Chicago Safety council, is of the opinion that the automobile industry must devote some of its vast resources to the study of traffic safety, or it will suffer a heavy financial loss.

"There are various ways to combat the motor toll," Mr. Van Cleef writes. "There are many agencies that seek to control the situation. Few seem to grasp the idea that the prevention of accidents lies not in sudden crusades but in a well balanced educational program. There is a humanitarian basis for such activities which cannot be outweighed by any other consideration.

"Nevertheless, there is one group that has a direct commercial interest in reducing automobile accidents. That is the automobile industry.

Lack of Foresight.

"It finds itself today in a position somewhat akin to that of the liquor interests of the last generation. They brought about their own extinction through lack of foresight. Had they realized their own responsibility toward the public they served, they might not have been eliminated and an unending controversy would not have divided the nation. The automobile industry is confronted by the prospect of uncountable regulatory measures adopted by frantic lawmakers.

"Continual accidents, mounting in increasing numbers, will bring down the wrath of legislatures on a public which is, in the main, sane. These lawmaking bodies will formulate innumerable laws, many irksome, many needless, and, in the end, many so thoughtless that the riding public will prefer to go without cars rather than suffer the discomforts of driving.

Or, if this should not prove altogether true, the dangers of driving cars will become so great, due to the careless and irresponsible driving, that the majority of motorists will hesitate about car ownership. In the larger cities even today many people prefer to do without machines rather than assume the menace of ownership.

Industry Should Study Problem.

"What the auto industry can do is to study safety problems as they pertain to the automobile. With their vast technical powers, they are in an admirable position to do this. They can set up agencies for educating their customers in ways of safe driving. They can work with city, county, and state in constructing proper roads, in making highway rules, in unifying traffic control and in bringing system out of a chaotic mass of conflicting opinions and regulations.

"The only official safety group representing the automobile manufacturers today is a committee on safety of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It issues a monthly letter on the subject of safety, but makes no scientific study of the problem. It has made no impression on the traffic problem."

DIMMING HEADLIGHTS LAW IS VIGOROUSLY ENFORCED IN FRANCE

In France the law that requires a motorist to dim his headlights upon the approach of another vehicle is still in effect. The stranger, motoring in France, soon learns of the law and how irritated the native drivers are when it is not obeyed. Truck drivers, especially, lose their tempers. They have developed, too, a splendid technique of their own for punishing the disobedient driver. This involves turning their vehicles so as to block the road or street completely and keep it blocked until a policeman arrives to take the law violator to task or to court.

PROHIBITION KILLINGS: NO. 4, THE CASE OF LAWTON CARROLL

Dry Agents Freed in Federal Court.

"The President of the United States to the jailer of Lowndes county, Georgia:

"Whereas, on the 21st day of May, in the year of our Lord 1927, in the District court of the United States for the middle district of Georgia, in the City of Macon, the Hon. William J. Tilson, judge of said court, did order remanded and transferred from the Superior court of Lowndes county, in the Valdosta division of the middle district of Georgia, the case of the State of Georgia against one R. L. Hudson Sr., charged with the offense of murder, wherein the said named accused was charged with having on the 7th day of March, 1927, within the said Valdosta division of the said district, killed and murdered one Lawton Carroll—and it having been made to appear to the court that at the time of the killing of the said Carroll by the said accused the said accused was engaged in the performance of a duty as an officer of the United States, to wit: a federal prohibition agent of the United States, and because thereof the said accused was entitled to have said cause transferred and remanded to this court for trial:

"Therefore, you are hereby commanded in the name of the President of the United States to receive said accused into your custody, there to remain until discharged or remanded by due course of law.

"WILLIAM J. TILSON, Judge."

—From court records.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Valdosta, Ga., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Southern Georgia's most famous murder case in connection with federal prohibition enforcement is that of the state against R. L. Hudson Sr. and R. L. Hudson Jr. for the killing of Lawton Carroll, 20 years old, on March 7, 1927, by the younger Hudson, who was then 17 years old and acting under his father's orders.

Carroll, who was suspected of having liquor in his automobile, was shot in the back by the Hudson boy during a wild chase through the outskirts of Valdosta. He died three weeks later. The Baptist Young People's Union of Benevolence, which Carroll had attended, sent a wreath to his funeral. He was about to marry the daughter of a neighboring farmer.

The United States government came promptly to the defense of the Hudsons, as the father was the federal prohibition officer and internal revenue collector of the district. The United States attorney said the boy was his father's authorized deputy, but it does not appear that he had more than a verbal commission.

Community Excited.

This Georgia community, where liquor making is considered an ancient and inalienable right, was greatly wrought up over the killing, and the Hudsons were indicted in the state court for murder. After the federal government took over the trial, and the case had been delayed a year, and a jury selected from far away counties by court order, the Hudsons were acquitted.

It takes a lot of education to convince the average Georgian in this district, at least, that the killing of one boy by another boy over a matter of a little whisky is a decent and lawful procedure. Under the state law the possession and selling of liquor is only a misdemeanor. Prohibition enforcement in this section is a sort of hide and seek game in the dark swamps and wild woods back of the farms, with a fine or chain gang sentence considered fair upon capture and conviction, but no thought of killing and no right given under the state law to shoot except in self-defense.

There was no self-defense plea in this case.

A Broken Home.

Lawton Carroll came out of an environment that is producing moonshine makers and bootleggers by the same natural process that it grows watermelons, cotton, and tobacco. It would take the army to enforce the federal law here completely, just as the United States had to move in soldiers to enforce the cattle law in the "free state of Echols," as the county just above here is called.

Carroll lived out on the Lock Laurel road, about five miles from town, where his father, J. E. Carroll, has a "three horse farm," much gone to seed now, and bordered by a thick swamp and line of dark woods. There are other Carrolls along the road—a sort of clan—and they are proud of their watermelon crops. One is a county commissioner and another a county policeman.

Old Jim Carroll is discouraged and takes a little corn liquor now and then to cheer him up. He sits on the porch of his log cabin home under the shade of trees and flowering bushes this Saturday morning. Pigs, chickens, and tow headed grandchildren wander around the yard or peer from the doorways. A woman frying meat in the kitchen looks up with frowning suspicion upon the stranger. Old Jim however, is jovial and hospitable and invites the visitor to come in the parlor and hear the phonograph. Large colored crayon pictures of their dead son furnish the chief decoration here. The father is a tall, straight figure with white, stubby whiskers, a black felt hat, blue shirt, and overalls. His blue eyes look mighty straight and keen at a stranger. They soften and fill with tears at mention of his boy.

Says He Was a Good Boy.

"He was a good smart business man," says Old Jim. "He was working toward the light. He had schooling. He was a good boy. Gone to town that morning for watermelon seed. I didn't get out of bed. Do you hold they had a right to kill him?

"Prohibition, now, I'll tell you true blue—that is a money problem. The boys are going to have their whisky and there must be some change in the law to give it to them. It is God's good gift to his children. I like liquor and I drink it. Take these officers. I know one that is so straight nothing could stop him. Another would steal your liquor and mine, too. What are we going to do with them? A low, degraded lot."

Then the old man branches off into a chuckling story of how he and his sons and sons-in-law heard a lot of whistles and bells one day and went to town to go to the war—"to fight those bad boys over there"—and come to find out "it was the peace." They were a little too late, but willing.

The Road to Fortune.

Down the road a mile a young man, much like the picture in the Carroll parlor, the same type, stands by the side of a new roadster. He is pointed out as a prosperous young bootlegger. A Negro woman drives up to speak to him and he disappears. She waits by the woods in her car, and is said to be getting supplies for her little retail place in town. The killing of Lawton Carroll has produced more caution, that is all. The stills are in the swamps nearby, the trails, known only to the natives, leading through alligator and snake infested waters.

It is a fairly safe place to make and hide moonshine and the market is steady at $5 a gallon. Many are taking this sure road to money rather than worry about crops and toil in the sun.

Lawton Carroll was one of these. He had been caught three times, and three months before his death had been fined $500. It might be dangerous, but there was nothing wrong about it to his mind. He could go to the Church of Christ in the morning and make whisky in the afternono.

There was no evidence presented at the trial in federal court that he had liquor in his car on the morning he was shot, but on general principles he was fair game for the prohibition officers who knew him. His friends say he had no liquor in his car, but evidence indicates he did have. He had no gun.

DRY AGENT'S STORY

Carroll was never able to tell what happened on his last ride along the cotton fields and the Negro cabins, and the only story comes from the Hudsons. The elder Hudson made this statement in court:

"I had known that there was going to be a lot of liquor brought up that road that morning, that there would be several cars and Carroll would be one.

"So about 1 o'clock me and my boy and Mr. Hall [N. V. Hall, aged 20, son of a deputy sheriff] went out to a gentleman's house out there and parked in his yard, right at the county farm, and they said these cars would be along anywhere from 3 to 7 the next morning.

"So that morning [March 7] about 5 o'clock, one came up. Lights were on when we drove up to the man's gate at the fence—shined a light on the automobile when it passed. It was a coupe and we followed it on into town and after we got on the main street, ran around the car, stuck out my hand. We turned into the police station. He looked up and said: 'What will you have?' and I said: 'I want to look at this automobile.'

"'If I had known that I would have stopped,' he said.' 'I thought it robbers.' He opened the car and went off.

Delivering in a Ford Coupe.

"In the meantime Mr. Kemp [R. L. Kemp, policeman] came up and when he came he says:

"'This man don't haul whisky, but a lot of liquor is being brought in on this road. Mr. Lawton Carroll is one delivering every morning in a Ford roadster.'

"I told him I had information on Mr. Lawton Carroll; just caught him thirty days before that."

The prohibtion agent went on to relate this other capture of Carroll, as follows:

"We went out to the swamp back of his father's home three-quarters of a mile, stored the whisky in the swamp down there, and the evening before Mr. H— had found a five gallon jug out there, and we stayed out there until 10 or 12 o'clock. Knew have to go in there to get it, didn't go, go next morning about 7, and sure enough I saw Mr. Carroll trying to slip down to the jug, fixing to pour it out, and when I started at him he jumped up and ran through the swamp. I got the whisky and carried it to the car and there were three gallons of it. I turned it over to the sheriff."

Shot at the Tires.

Returning to the story of March 7, Hudson continued:

"But that morning we were parked out on the road about 7 or 7:30, saw Mr. Lawton Carroll about 100 yards from where we were parked. He knew us and put speed on and we followed him. Came down the corner of the filling station there, took the Lake Park road to the Oak Park tourist camp, and he turned into that road and we followed on behind him and just before that he chucked what looked like a pint bottle out. We ran around him and I opened the door and told him to stop, hold on a minute, and he turned to the left and passed us. Half or three-quarters of a mile further passed him again and I asked him to stop and he refused.

"Our car had stopped on us at that time, so we got out of the car, started up again and I suppose we had gone three-quarters of a mile, ran around him the third time, and I stepped out on the running board and my boy, too, and I said:

"'Hold on, Carroll; just a minute.'

"He paid no attention, still passed us, so I pulled my gun and shot twice at the tire, then the boy shot and the car got in good speed and got in a bump, jumping up and down. I lost my hat and the boy was about to fall off and I reached out and got him by the leg, gun went off just at that time. I couldn't tell which way that shot went and Mr. Carroll ran on for about one and a half miles, one speed then another, and I finally asked him why did he act that way.

"He looked like he was asleep and I asked him what was the matter; he couldn't talk. He struggled and we took him out of the car and placed him in our car. I turned up the seat of his car and found two one-half gallon jugs of whisky under the seat. I spoke:

"'Here is that whisky; send the sheriff just as quick as you can and get that boy to the hospital. I don't believe he'll live to get there, and I'll go get my hat and look after the car while you're gone.' And I went back and my hat was farther than I thought—went back at least a mile, and when I came back in sight of the car it was gone.

"Of course Mr. Carroll got shot and I want to say that I regret it very much. I wouldn't have done it for anything in the world; no intention whatever to hurt Mr. Carroll. I only merely thought I was in the performance of my duty; only way to get him to stop was to shoot the tires down. I always want to do the right thing, very sorry, hurt as bad as anybody could be, regret it the most of anything that ever happened."

Corroboration.

Hudson Jr. gave this explanation:

"What my father has told is the truth—only went out there to help him catch him, and after we chased him around it looked like the only way to stop him the best thing to do would be to shoot the tires. I swung out on the running board and I pulled my gun and at the third shot the car made a big jolt in low gear, threw my hand up, never saw the third shot, saw the first and second shot I made. After that he ran a mile and stopped and I went up there and spoke to him, saw he was hurt and we took him out and put him in the car. I seen the two gallons of liquor and we went on the hospital. I had no ill will, didn't intend to shoot him, wouldn't have done it for nothing in the world."

Hall said he was driving the car and these statements of the Hudsons were true.

There was great excitement in town and countryside over this shooting, and condemnation of the Hudsons was general.

"About 90 per cent of the people were against the Hudsons," said H. B. Edwards, a lawyer who represented the Hudsons throughout state and federal procedure. "If Carroll had been a first class citizen the Hudsons would have been convicted. As it was, they would have been convicted if the trial had been in the state court. In the state court the advantage was against us. In the federal court the advantage was with us. The delay of more than a year was helpful, of course, and everything seemed to work out for our benefit."

HELD FOR MURDER

The Hudsons and Hall were arrested after Carroll's death and on April 1 the Hudsons were held for murder after a hearing before J. G. Cranford, city judge—"bound over for the highest crime there might be in this state," the judge said. Hall was released. On May 21, 1927, a writ of habeas corpus cum causa was granted by William J. Tilson, then United States district judge, on petition of B. S. Deaver, then United States attorney in Valdosta. The state court had refused bail to the Hudsons, and they were lanquishing in jail, with popular approval.

After a hearing Judge Tilson (who is a brother of John Q. Tilson, Republican floor leader in congress) ordered that they be released on bonds of $25,000 each. On May 30 this bond was filed by Hudson Sr., but it was not until June 20 that the son was set free.

The petition for removal to the federal court, signed by the United States attorney, said the alleged crime of murder was not committed, but the shooting referred to was an accident.

"At the time of the alleged act," it was stated, "the petitioner was federal prohibition officer and deputy collector of internal revenue. The duties of R. L. Hudson Sr. included detecting and arresting persons engaged in violation of the national prohibition act.

"Petitioner R. L. Hudson Sr. knew the said Lawton Carroll as a man engaged in the liquor business; had information that he was at said time transporting a load of liquor in an automobile, and from the conduct of said Lawton Carroll and the appearance of said car had probable cause to think that liquor was being transported in said automobile and that a crime was being committed in his presence. R. L. Hudson Jr. was deputized, authorized and directed to assist. The said Lawton Carroll was accidentally shot while petitioners were attempting to stop said car and while petitioners were doing acts solely in enforcement of the national prohibition act."

The grand jury of Lowndes county, B. S. Richardson, foreman, thought differently of this affair, and on May 24 had indicted the Hudsons "for the murder on March 7 of one Lawton Carroll, a human being in the peace of the state, by then and there shooting him in the body with a pistol." Jim Carroll, the father, appeared as the prosecutor.

The Law's Delays.

With the case taken away from the state and waiting in the federal court, the first move of the government in defense was to seek delay for two or three terms. In this it was helped by circumstances. Judge Tilson was transferred to the east; Mr. Deaver, the United States attorney, was made a judge, but could not hear this case, as he had been disqualified by having signed the petition for the Hudsons. It was necessary to wait until Judge William H. Barrett of Augusta could come over to the Valdosta district.

E. K. Wilcox and Clifford E. Hay, attorney engaged for the prosecution, did not press for trial during part of this time because of the illness of Mr. Hay, who was unable to appear in court. The defense was conducted by Scott Russell, then United States attorney for the district; H. B. Edwards, Valdosta lawyer, who had been engaged early in the case by the Hudsons, and E. E. Cox, former congressman from Camilla, who was a friend of the elder Hudson.

GUNPLAY

It was not until Oct. 29, 1928, a year and seven months after the killing, that the case was called, pleas of not guilty entered, and the jury impaneled.

The evidence in the federal trial has not been transcribed, but the record of the hearing before Judge Cranford in the City court, shortly after the death of Carroll, was certified to

British Bases Important in Naval Parley

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Conversations of the utmost moment to the future of the United States as a sea power are in progress between President Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of Great Britain.

The character of the understanding reached by the heads of the two great English speaking nations will influence profoundly the fortunes of America in safeguarding her shores and her outlying possessions and in extending and protecting an ocean borne trade already the greatest in the world.

With the United States financially able to build the strongest navy in the world and seize the crown of mistress of the seas, Mr. Hoover is in a position to drive a bargain with Great Britain from which America will derive substantial advantages, in return for conceding future parity of naval power between the two nations.

What U. S. Safety Demands.

What the future of the United States as a trading power requires preeminently is the freedom of the seas and the removal of the potential menace to our ocean-borne commerce inherent in the situation of the British islands off our Atlantic coast, with their naval bases lying athwart our principal trade routes to Europe, South America and the Panama canal. It therefore falls out that one of the most important questions pertaining to the current Anglo-American conversations in Washington is whether Mr. Hoover will win from Mr. MacDonald an agreement comprising these major terms:

1. Actual parity between the American and British navies by virtue of which Britain will be unable to interfere with the trade of the United States as a neutral in time of war.

2. Either the cession of the British West Indies and Bermuda to the United States, or the demilitarization of the naval bases in these islands.

British Fear Our Sea Power.

The British are alarmed by the growth of American sea power. With 23 American ten thousand ton, eight inch gun cruisers building and provided for, Britain perceives the scepter of Neptune slipping from her grasp. With an American navy superior to or only equal to hers, she would be unable to trample on the neutral trading rights of the United States in another war as she did in the world war between 1914 and 1917. She would be compelled to accept the freedom of the seas.

So, Britain has set out to avert this consummation, to check our cruiser building program as she checked our battleship building program at the Washington arms conference in 1921-'22 and prevailed upon us to accept a battleship inferiority until 1942. The British tactics now are the same as they were then. They are playing upon pacifist and pro-British sentiment in the United States not only to support but to demand a policy of scuttling the American cruiser strength under the guise of establishing parity between the two navies.

That Britain is unwilling to concede actual parity and in reality is maneuvering to perpetuate the inferiority of American sea power is revealed by the outcome of the long range negotiations between Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald up to the time they faced each other for the first time at the White House yesterday.

What British Demands Meant.

In these preliminary negotiations the British refused to reduce their cruiser tonnage below 339,000, and were unwilling to concede more than 300,000 tons to the United States. Likewise they were unwilling to concede to us more than 18 eight inch gun cruisers, while allowing themselves 15 eight inch gun cruisers and four seven and a half inch gun ships, of virtually equal power. That would give the British 19 big cruisers to our 18.

Mr. Hoover was willing to forego the construction of two of the 23 big cruisers which the United States is either building or is scheduled to build under the program adopted by congress last winter. But even with 21 big cruisers mounting eight inch guns, the American cruiser strength would still be inferior to the British when the greater tonnage of small cruisers allowed Britain, and the superiority of the British in naval bases and in merchant ships capable of mounting six guns are taken into consideration.

The United States stands on the threshold of a stupendous development of foreign trade that, if all goes well, will become the bulwark of our present prosperity. Our transoceanic trade already is valued at $8,500,000,000 a year, the equal of British foreign trade, and in addition we have ocean borne domestic commerce, mainly through the Panama canal from coast to coast, valued at $6,000,000—a total of $14,500,000,000 of American foreign trade.

The $6,000,000,000 worth of cargoes in ocean going domestic trade is carried in American bottoms, but the greater part of the transoceanic trade amounting to $8,500,000,000 is carried in foreign ships. Our merchant marine, however, is reviving under recent legislation. The prospect is that in the not distant future the bulk of our exports will be transported overseas in American ships. The protection of this commerce will require a navy the equal of any other.

Menace to U. S. Trade.

The position of the United States, with the greatest foreign trade in the world passing along sea lanes dominated at our very doors by the naval bases of Britain, the mistress of the seas, is unparalleled in modern history. With naval bases at Halifax, Bermuda, Jamaica, and Trinidad, and

WEEKLY TOTAL THORN IN SIDE OF WALL STREET

Await Figures with Apprehension.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Of all the multitude of factors which sway the business situation and the market position generally the most important still equally the most mysterious and perplexing, is that of brokers' loans.

It has been literally the thorn in Wall street's side for many months and has been the most potent factor in the market deflation which now has continued almost a month, with many drastic declines in the leading issues.

Originally it was intended that the figures on brokers' loans, announced weekly, should serve as an index to the percentage of the country's available credit used for speculative purposes.

Spectacular Figure.

They have outgrown that capacity since all sorts of security borrowings from banks are thrown into the aggregate, and have become a spectacular figure, announced weekly, which throw Wall street first into a state of apprehension about what they may show, then into gloom if they show extravagant expansion—as they have for the last month—or into a state of enthusiasm if they should happen to show a decline.

In their present state the brokers' loan figures represent something for which they were not intended, a market club. The decision of the American Bankers' association at their meeting in San Francisco last week for an investigation of the brokers' loan situation, in order that these figures may become of real use to business and finance, and not the recurring weekly financial dynamite that they represent at the present time, was not unwelcome.

The main complaint, from the strictly market point of view, is that they do not actually represent what they appear to represent. They are supposed to be a reflection of the actual amount of the country's available credit supply used in the stock market, or at least that was what it was originally planned that they should represent. Now they reflect not only the credit used in the stock market, but also in a measure the new financing which has taken place, the taking up of rights by stockholders, unsold bonds on the shelves of originators or dealers, in fact everything in the way of securities on which banks in New York lend money.

Should Separate Items.

There should be a way of separating these items to show exactly what percentage of the loans represent speculative accounts, and what percentage new and undigested securities which have just been introduced to the public by bankers and have not yet achieved final distribution.

Any number of hypothetical cases may be stated. The new financing this year has been featured by the offering of a large number of investment trusts. They are the new fad in banking, and some $1,500,000,000 in these new securities have been sold to the public this year.

In a sense they are undigested, that is, while they have been sold by the bankers to dealers and individuals, the great bulk of them may be said to be in a state of flux, that is, they have not yet reached their places of final and intended destination, the strong boxes of investors. Until they do, a large share of them appear as brokers' loans, because money is being loaned on them by the banks, as they are "carried," awaiting this final distribution.

It probably would be surprising, even to Wall street, to ascertain the number and total of state bond issues which are included in the brokers' loan figures. They have nothing whatever to do with speculation; they are merely bonds which have been acquired by bankers and dealers awaiting improved bond market conditions, in which distribution may be made to ultimate holders.

To avoid tieing up their own funds, these securities often go into banking portfolios, against which loans are made, and are reflected in the brokers' loan figures naturally as an advance against securities.

Interest at Peak.

There is no disputing that the interest and traffic in securities now is greater than ever. It is a phenomenon of the country's prosperity and its tremendous prosperity during the last few years, and not the least of the peculiarities of this complex situation is that of one-half of the funds, approximately, come from a diversity of sources, such as surplus cash of corporations, of wealthy individuals, of investment trust and holding companies, of foreign interests and even foreign governments. These are lumped in the report as "others." That is, they are not banks.

The first brokers' loans figures were announced in 1918, figures ridiculously small as compared with the tremendous present total. It was not until the bull markets of 1928 and 1929 developed, however, that expansion—and possibly inflation—in these loans really started.

At the start of 1928 the figure was $3,310,923,000, by mid-year they had increased about $1,000,000,000 and crossed the $5,000,000,000 mark for the first time at the end of November. The $6,000,000,000 line was reached

Aug. 7 this year and since the August report the expansion has been a direct and extensive one, as follows:

In other words, there has been an expansion of $1,500,000 in the brokers' loan account from the low of this year to the maximum figure reached this week. Of this expansion $587,000,000 was established during the month of September, in a coincident with a generally downward trend in the stock market, in which many of the leading industrial issues were deflated by from 20 to more than 100 points.

One common belief exploded by the recent reaction in stocks is that investment trusts, or more particularly, trading corporations, stand ready to save the market situation whenever it becomes shaky.

The possibility that these holders of securities might themselves precipitate a decline through a common and concentrated desire to take profits had apparently not entered into the calculations of an unthinking element in Wall street.

This is what has happened, and, so far, there is not much evidence that the corporations have been exchanging their cash for securities even at the present depreciated prices.

Revive Movement.

The movement toward public regulation of investment trusts was revived this week in federal and state legislative circles with the announcement that the authorities were considering new measures for the supervision of the trusts.

At Washington the movement is led by Senator Cousens, who is expected to offer a resolution to inquire into the operation of the trusts and to determine whether the federal government has power to enact regulatory legislation. In New York state the movement is led by the joint legislative commission on banking and investment trusts, headed by Assemblyman Nelson W. Cheney. The commission had indicated that it was considering recommending legislation which would require investment trusts to publish their earnings and the contents of their portfolios at regular intervals.

Hearings which the committee has held in New York City have disclosed that it is not considering the drastic proposal made last year by Attorney General Albert Ottinger, which would have placed the trusts under the supervision of the superintendent of banks who would have been empowered to approve or reject applications for charters in this state.

Mr. Cheney declared at one hearing that he was convinced that the trusts should be made to give more information to their investors, but that he felt the commission should avoid setting up a bureau which would assume the responsibility of passing judgment on the trusts' investments and operations.

Legality in Doubt.

While intensely interested in plans for state regulation investment trust circles in New York believe that there is little likelihod of federal legislation, since there is considerable doubt concerning the constitutionality of the latter. Since the greater number of investment trusts would come within the scope of New York laws, it is felt that any move taken by the state would clarify the situation and would result in similar action being taken by other states.

A large number of trusts have indicated that they would be hostile to any special legislation at this time. Leaders in the investment trust field have declared that the expansion of the trusts has been carried on upon a sound basis. It is held by some executives that legislation requiring the publishing of investment trust earnings and portfolios at regular intervals is not essential, since many trusts have voluntarily taken a step in the direction of greater publicity concerning their activities.

The trend toward increased publicity has been encouraged also by the New York Stock exchange, which required the trusts which list their securities on the exchange to publish their holdings at regular intervals.

Another group of investment trust executives has indicated that it would welcome legislation which would not infringe upon their rights, and would prevent abuses from arising. Some authorities feel that the situation is analogous to the one which prevailed in the insurance business before the investigation by Gov. Hughes in 1906, although the abuses prevalent in the investment trust field are not comparable to the ones practiced by some companies in the insurance business before 1906.

TRUTH ABOUT KILLINGS BY DRY AGENTS

No. 4—The Case of Lawton Carroll in Georgia.

the federal court and tells a more complete story. The evidence of some of the Negroes who heard the shooting and found whisky by the roadside was not given at the second trial.

Dr. A. Griffin testified that the bullet which caused Carroll's death entered at the back and passed into the upper part of the left lung.

Charlie Love, a Negro, testified that he heard the shooting on Dasher street that morning and saw a small car just ahead of a larger one.

"The small car shaked up and down and slowed down very slow," he said. "There was a man on the running board or on the ground shot into the other car. It was just a little cooter back car, one man in it, some more in the other car, one shooting." He heard three shots.

J. M. Knight, tax collector, testified he heard Hudson Jr. say he did the shooting. W. B. Cook, attorney, said he heard Hall say he was driving the car and that Hudson Jr. shot.

There was a suspicion at the time that Hudson Sr. had taken all the blame he possibly could to shield his son, and that he did not shoot. Some doubted that he was in the car at all.

C. C. Brantley, editor of the Times, told of a telephone conversation with Hudson Sr. soon after the shooting. Hudson said then that he did not find any whisky in the car.

W. A. Pitts, a service station man, was one of those who ran into the Hudsons on the morning of March 7. He was coming into town at 5 or 5:30 o'clock and saw a car parked. Three men were in it. One had a flashlight and another had something that looked like a pistol. He reported this after he got into town, as he thought they might be holdup men. Later he identified Hudson Sr. as one of the men.

N. Baucom, another service station man, saw the Hudson car and stepped on the gas. They followed him into town and searched his car.

"They throwed a gun on us at the time of the search," he said, identifying all three men. J. E. Wilder's car was intercepted and searched.

R. L. Udderback, Negro carpenter, who lives near Fry's pasture and the scene of the shooting, said he heard four shots and saw "something like a crocus sack come out of the small car after the shooting."

An Impromptu Drinking Bout.

There was a quick gathering of Negroes in the neighborhood. Will Smith heard Udderback say, "They throwed something in the ditch," and he was out there in a hurry. He found two gallon jugs of white whisky, one in a sack, the other rolled out, both undamaged.

Q.—Did you get any of that whisky?

A.—Yes, sir. Henry taken a jug and we all taken a drink and taken the stoppers out of the jug.

Q.—So the officers killed the man and you got the whisky?

A.—I don't know. I got a drink out of one of the jugs and I didn't go no further with it.

Henry Simmons said:

"I got a gallon, drank some of it down there and poured some out. Yes, sir, skeered to keep it, drank as much as I could and poured it out."

Q.—How much?

A.—Drank right smart of it.

B. F. Stevens, United States deputy marshal, testified he met young Hudson on the street and he said he had shot a man and had left his father at the car.

"I asked him if he knew who he was shooting at and he said he commanded him to stop. He said no whisky was found in the car."

UPHOLDING THE LAW

Even after the long delay and the waning of public interest the government took no chance of local prejudice being reflected in the jury box. It took a practical change of venue by the same method as that followed in the Jones case in Florida on motion of Assistant Attorney General Norman J. Morrison. The United States attorney here, Mr. Russell, moved to exclude from the jury box all residents of Lowndes county. Mr. Wilcox, seeing that this motion would be granted, moved to extend it to exclude all men from four other adjoining counties. The result was that jurors drawn from Cook, Berrien, Lanier, Lowndes, and Echols counties were excluded. The Hudsons were tried by men from Brooks, Thomas, Colquitt, and Tift counties.

The jurors were bankers, business men, and retired farmers of these more remote counties, men of responsibility, who stand for law enforcement and whose predilections would make them side naturally with the government. It took only an hour to select the trial jury. Law enforcement in this case, according to the government plea, was to exonerate the government agents for this killing.

Although the trial was in federal court, it was on state law and under state procedure. Under the state law the Hudsons had no right to shoot at a man who was endeavoring to escape from a suspected misdemeanor. They were clearly liable to a manslaughter verdict at least.

The jurors were out four hours in reaching a decision. The United States attorney pleaded with them to uphold the government and "strengthen the hands of the prohibition officers."

The court gave instructions under which a manslaughter verdict could have been reached. The jurors must decide whether this was a wanton and grossly careless act, or an accident under conditions which justify shooting.

How They Figured It Out.

Evidence was introduced showing Carroll's liquor convictions. A picture of conditions in the countryside was painted. The jurors were given lawless men on one side and faithful federal officers, sitting up all night to do their duty, seeking to enforce the law, on the other side.

As one juror put it, a mistake had been made by the Hudsons, but it was necessary to uphold the government and the prohibition law. The plea of the federal attorney had found deep lodgment in his mind.

Another juror figured things out on another basis, but reached the same conclusion. This was that Hudson was a good sort of a man, an honest old sawmill hand who was doing his best to make a federal officer. His record was one of kindness. Several times he had let criminals get away with things when he might have been excused for shooting. He was not out to kill Carroll and that was an accident on the part of the son.

Now, the evidence showing that Hudson Sr. did not shoot, he could not well be convicted of murder. The father had called on his son and Hudson Jr. was merely helping out his daddy. It would not do to send him to the chain gang, for the father was responsible. So, in this dilemma, the juror decided to let both men off. Carroll had been dealing in liquor and his death did not mean a great loss to the community.

Such was the reasoning of the jurors. It was a verdict based on more things outside the evidence than in it.

Lawton Carroll was dead. Never again would he ride at dawn along the cotton fields and the turpentine forest, his girl's last letter held close in his coat pocket. In one of the snapshots which is preserved at home he is shown shooting craps with two Negro boys. Strange that a boy could shoot craps, make whisky and go to church. But his father said that was "working toward the light," whatever he meant by that.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

A distinctly improved tone featured the wheat market, especially at the close, with prices at the best of the day and "offers" were preferred in the late trading. The speculative atmosphere has been clarified by the break and it was said at the last that despite the reduction in the short interest on the part of the pit traders, the market was in shape to respond to constructive news. The striking feature was the stronger cash situation and reports from Winnipeg of 2,500,000 bu wheat being sold for export.

A point in favor of wheat holders was the strength in the Buenos Aires market, where October closed at $1.18¼, an advance of 9⅛c since last Monday. December wheat in Chicago on Sept. 30 closed at $1.35⅝, while yesterday it was $1.35@1.35¼. This indicates that the pressure on Argentine wheat is over and is taken as indicating a healthier situation in all wheat markets.

One of the largest local traders says it is too early to take a positive position on the bull side of corn. The country is offering new corn for shipment the last half of October at 6½c under December for No. 4, and 6c under for all October loading. November is 7c and December 8c discount. This is construed by speculators and cash handlers as rather against a bull market for the time being.

"Australia's wheat crop in the southern section is progressing fairly, although insufficient rains have fallen. The plant is withstanding the dryness satisfactorily and the forecast is for rain soon," says Broomhall's cable. "The remaining visible supply is now 6,240,000 bu, compared with 3,330,000 bu a year ago. Since Jan. 1 shipments aggregate 97,504,000 bu, against 68,639,000 bu last year. Argentine shipments for the same time have been 166,119,000 bu, compared with 216,720,000 bu last year. Weather in Argentina recently as favored growth."

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE

A firm opening was followed by a generally bullish session that saw several good gains marked up and fractional advances recorded by practically the entire list. The only exception to the upward trend was Storkline, which slipped two points in a light trade. The best performance of the day was staged by Central and Southwest new, which climbed over three points in an active trade. Temple B was up 2½ points on expectation of a bullish earnings statement, and Associated Gas finished at 66½, up 2¾ points for the day. Walgreen recovered its loss of the previous day and went on to record a good gain.

BRITISH BASES MEAN MUCH IN NAVAL PARLEY

Isles Off U. S. Coast Give Edge in Power.

potential aircraft bases at Sable island and Nassau, Great Britain is in a position to interrupt our trade at a moment's notice. We are virtually trading on sufferance of Britain. That Britain would accept such a position were the conditions reversed is unthinkable. We would be hearing much of the necessity of Britain possessing complete control of her trade lanes at all times.

Yet, important as is a proper regard for the safety of our country and of our sea borne trade, American statecraft never has concerned itself with the removal of the potential menace of the British islands at our shores. We purchased the Danish West Indies when there was danger of their sale to Germany, and Grant once sought to annex Santo Domingo, but our government never has undertaken to procure the cession or demilitarization of the British islands. Neither at the Paris peace conference nor in the Washington arms conference, nor in the war debt settlement in which we forgave Great Britain a greater sum due us than the British West Indies are worth, did the United States seek a disposition of these islands in the interest of our security.

This neglect of statesmanship is usually accounted for on the ground that the British islands will not become an actual menace to the United States unless the two countries should war upon each other and a war between the two English speaking powers is inconceivable. Britain, of course, is a prey to no such sentimentality. The British profess to regard war between the two nationas as unthinkable as we do, but they take no chances. They are unwilling to allow us a navy superior to or even equal to theirs.

Of course, however, it would not take a war between America and Britain to expose us to the menace of the British bases in the West Indies. If England were to become involved in another European war, with the United States neutral, the British West Indies would become the bases for the operations of British cruisers interfering with our neutral trade, as they did in the world war. With a cruiser strength superior to ours they would dictate to us as they did between 1914 and 1917. With parity of the two navies our cruisers would be able to protect our trade.

British Colonies Off U. S.

| | Area, square miles. |
|---|---|
| Bahamas | 4,404 |
| Bermuda | 19 |
| Barbados | 166 |
| Jamaica, Turks, and Caicos | 4,674 |
| Leeward islands | 715 |
| Trinidad and Tobago | 1,976 |
| Windward islands | 818 |

If Mr. Hoover were to propose the cession of the British islands to the United States or their demilitarization the British would be surprised and pained—not so much by the nature of the demand as by the spectacle of Uncle Sam asking instead of giving.

We would be asked no more than we gave at the Washington conference when we agreed to abandon Gaum as a naval base and stop fortification of the Philippines and other possessions in the western Pacific because Japan considered them a menace and would not sign the navy limitation treaty without such concession.

The British and Singapore.

Great Britain, on that occasion, regarded the Japanese concern as highly justifiable, but was careful to procure the exclusion from the demilitarized zone of Singapore, where the British were secretly planning to establish their great far eastern naval base now in course of construction.

To unofficial suggestions in this country that Britain cede the West Indian possessions to the United States the London government has retorted that the British empire is not for sale, a British ambassador having added that Albion never will sell her subjects into prohibition slavery.

But the suggestion of demilitarization of the islands has been more hospitably received. In fact, certain press utterances in London since the initiation of the present negotiations have speculated upon the value of a voluntary demilitarization of the islands as a gesture of good will toward the United States.

Really Mistress of Seas.

England is mistress of the seas by virtue of possession of the ships and the bases that confer preponderant sea power. The importance of bases is not generally understood. Ships operate from bases. With bases close to the theater of operations, the number of ships that can be used against the enemy may be greatly multiplied. Hence, it is a naval axiom that bases are the equivalent of ships.

In the world war the British fleet operating close to home ports was always reduced about 15 per cent by the absence of ships at the bases for repair. Had the same fleet, based on English ports, been operating off our Atlantic coast, there would have been difficulty in maintaining as many as half the ships on the scene of operations. If then the base were to be changed from England to Halifax the percentage of ships available at all times for operations would automatically rise from 50 to 85.

Availability of Submarines.

The British patrolled the waters between Iceland and the Orkney islands with cruisers based on Scotland 300 miles away. The patrols were about 40 per cent absent at base at all times.

The schedule of availability of submarines worked out by the United States navy, follows:

| | Pct. |
|---|---|
| In vicinity of base | 70.0 |
| 200 miles from base | 45.0 |
| 600 miles from base | 30.0 |
| 1,000 miles from base | 20.0 |
| 1,500 miles from base | 17.5 |

Of these vitally important bases, Britain has scores scattered all over the globe. That is why Britain can employ small cruisers operating at no time a great distance from a base. Of such bases the United States has only four—Guantanamo, Cuba; the Panama Canal Zone, Honolulu, and the Philippines. That is why we have little need for small cruisers, but do need big cruisers capable of operating far from a base.

Dominating the sea lanes on which our vast American commerce is borne are the British bases at Halifax, Bermuda, Jamaica and Trinidad. Halifax is upon the edge of our northern route to Europe. Bermuda is at the cross roads of the more southerly route to Europe and the regular route to South America. Jamaica stands at the Caribbean gateway to the Panama canal and the southern approach to the Gulf of Mexico. Trinidad lies athwart the Atlantic route from North to South America and the route from the Panama canal to Europe.

Value of British Bases.

Calculations of the value of these bases to Britain in a war with the United States are highly illuminating. If the British cruisers based on England or Gibraltar were to be assigned the mission of attacking American commerce between Cape Hatteras and Panama they would consume nine-tenths of their fuel going and coming, with the result that each cruiser could remain at the scene of operations only three days out of forty. Ten cruisers would not be enough to keep one cruiser constantly on the job.

If, however, the ten cruisers were operating from Bermuda, each would be able to spend 15 days out of 40 on station. The mere advance of the base 3,000 miles nearer to the scene of operations would increase the efficiency of the cruiser force 400 per cent. It is obvious that the existence of British bases close to our shore would enable a British fleet to exert virtually full strength in our waters.

No U. S. Base Off Europe.

On the other hand we have no bases in European waters and would be unable to maintain a fleet in any considerable strength so far from home, even if there were no hostile bases in our rear to jeopardize our line of supply.

In the event of a war with Great Britain the existence of these British bases off our Atlantic coast would force upon us the necessity of assuming the strategic defensive at the start and postponing an offensive until after capture or destruction of the bases.

The status of Halifax as a British base has become more interesting since 1926) when the imperial conference proclaimed Canada, as well as the other dominions, "autonomous communities within the British empire, equal to status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs."

Canada Might Be Neutral.

Under the terms of this commitment, Canada might remain neutral in a war between Britain and America. To respect such neutrality would deprive the United States of the occupation of British territory, the possession of which would go far to gain us acceptable peace terms. But on the other hand, if Britain were to abide by Canadian neutrality it would be deprived of the use of Halifax as a base, without which England could not maintain a fleet close to our coast.

Halifax is the key to British naval power in the western Atlantic. Hence, in the event of war with Britain, it would be essential that we make respect for Canadian neutrality contingent upon denial of Halifax as well as other Canadian ports to British warships.

Not far from Halifax is an island of great strategic importance to Great Britain in a war on this side of the Atlantic. This is Sable island. It is a small bit of land, but would be suitable for a base for aircraft operating against the continental area.

With Halifax neutralized the British forces might try to base on Newfoundland, which would be unsatisfactory, however, owing to the dearth of docks and repair facilities. Bermuda would be a cruiser and submarine base of inestimable value. Its harbor entrance channel is at present too shallow for modern battleships. It could be dredged for emergency use by battleships in two months and for regular use in six months.

West Indies More Suitable.

It is probable, however, that the British would choose the West Indies as the chief theater of war for the purpose not only of disrupting our traffic through the Panama canal, but of drawing our fleet to the Caribbean, 1,000 miles away from home bases and repair facilities.

With a main British base in the West Indies, possibly in the British Virgin islands or Samana bay, Bermuda would become an auxiliary base for the raiding of our merchant marine and our naval communications and for protecting British communications. Jamaica, with a fine harbor, on the line of communication with the Panama canal, would be a strategic point of the first importance. Trinidad would be indespensable as a fuel oil depot.

What History Tells.

In the war of 1812 the British islands off our shores were valuable bases for the British frigates blockading the United States and preying upon our commerce.

During the civil war Nassau and other British West Indies ports were the haven of British blockade runners carrying supplies to the confederates.

The extraordinary value of these islands to the British in the event of war between America and England is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic. It is a factor of supreme importance in the calculations of our strategists at the naval war college at Newport. It is recognized that with the British in possession of these islands off our shores the American fleet would be forced upon the strategic defense at once, because with these bases Britain would command our entire Atlantic seaboard, together with the Atlantic approaches to the Panama canal and the Gulf of Mexico. The American fleet would be unable to force an action except upon British terms.

RECOVERY OF LONDON STOCKS WILL BE SLOW

Confidence Still Is Lacking Abroad.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The process of healing the financial wounds inflicted on the stock exchange after two recent series of unprecedented shocks, is likely to be a prolonged and complicated operation.

City circles are still staggering under continual disclosures in the Hatry collapse and can find no adequate condemnation to express their feelings. If the market rumors are true, more "black Mondays," such as experienced this week, are ahead. Brokers, dealers, bank managers and others vitally interested, are asking the question of how much farther the irregularities have gone and what there is yet to be divulged.

The city is still a hotbed of rumors of still more fearsome relevations to come. It is not surprising, therefore, that an atmosphere of nervousness and uncertainty exists in the market, as it was already lacking normal support. Under such circumstances quotations everywhere become unduly depressed, nearly every stock in the stock exchange list declining this week.

See Precarious Situation.

It is useless to say that confidence is returning. The position of the more speculative shares especially, must remain precarious until the aftermath of the Hatry smash has cleared, the only actual business being confined to leading shares of proved and seasoned merits in limited sections. It is an open secret that the position of the stock exchange, which a committee is now endeavoring to elucidate, is probably the most difficult, delicate and serious ever experienced in the institution's annals, always excepting, of course, the position precipitated by the outbreak of war.

Investigators are attempting to unravel the tangle, but find themselves faced with an exceptional difficulty, while the stock exchange subcommittees are also confronted with an unprecedented problem of complexity.

The attitude of the banks in refusing to disclose the names of the customers also aggravates the difficulties of the official investigators endeavoring to elucidate the manifold operations of the Hatry group, and it is obvious that some months may be occupied in the necessary inquiries. There seems to be no doubt that the great steel rationalization scheme ended with the spectacular career of Clarence C. Hatry. He had to find millions of sterling in cash in order to carry out his purchases of the United Steel company's bonds and shares and of the subsidiary concerns being merged. The actual cause of the collapse, THE TRIBUNE learns authoritatively, was when Mr. Hatry and his co-directors learned finally and irrevocably that the plans they were engineering for the sale of the steel organizations to certain American interests were "off."

Confession Follows.

Then followed the confession of the forged scrip and the collapse of the whole pack of cards.

To date the effect of the higher bank rate upon the monetary position here has been completely favorable. Practically all of the principal foreign exchanges moved in favor of the sterling, although the French rate made a slow response and before the Paris recovery occurred further large amounts of gold had been taken out of the Bank of England for France. The demand, however, now appears to be subsiding, as momentarily it does not pay to send gold to France as an exchange operation.

Indications this week clearly point that the higher money rate in London is attracting foreign funds again. The sterling-dollar exchange has been strong, the main reason being a sharp improvement in the quotation, which was due mainly to the action of the American banks sending credits over here in order to take advantage of the high interest rates prevailing. Short term money, three months' bills, and acceptances were the chief media chosen.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden's defense of the bank rate raise at the Labor party conference this week confirms THE TRIBUNE'S earlier cables that the Bank of England was forced by outside pressure to take steps to prevent its gold resources from being further depleted. The recent outflow of gold to America, France and Germany, due to the high loan interest offered in those countries, was attracting the loanable capital from England and leading the abnormal demand for dollars, francs and marks, thus boosting the exchanges against the sterling.

Opinions Differ.

The chancellor's announcement of the formation of a government committee to inquire into the relations between banking and industry, was received with mixed feelings in city circles.

It is doubtful whether the government commission, however expertly experienced, will be able to discover a wholly satisfactory solution to the various problems involved. An inquiry into the vast intricacies of the financial system must necessarily cover an extended period. No doubt there is considerable occasion for improved methods, but when all facts have been disclosed it will probably be found that the colossal British war debt constitutes many of the evils complained of.

Walgreen Co. September Sales Gain Over Year Ago

Sales for the Walgreen company and subsidiaries for September of this year were $3,926,845.24, as against $2,644,029.61 for September, 1928, or an increase of $1,282,815.63, or 48.5 per cent. For the first nine months of 1929 sales were $33,108,026.34, as against $22,285,282.88 for the same period in 1928, an increase of $10,822,743.46, or 48.5 per cent.

CHICAGO BANK STOCK MARKET UNSETTLED AND LOWER FOR WEEK

Sharing the unsettlement characterizing stocks, the week's bank stock market has been one of slackened activity, with prices generally downward.

Continental Illinois Bank and Trust suffered severely, losing 50 points when it changed hands at 895, but it firmed up toward the close to 910 bid, offered at 915. First National and Central Trust of Illinois also came in for considerable recessions, the former dropping 30 points at 930 to 940, and the latter 10 points at 680 to 685. State Bank of Chicago continued in demand at 1300 bid. Foreman National sales ranged between 1230 and 1240, closing 1230 bid. Harris Trust and Savings was offered at 1055, but there were no buyers. National Bank of the Republic, after selling at 245, declined to 236 bid, offered at 238. Union was also heavy, being traded between 424 and 429. On the announcement of the Northwestern Trust-Home bank merger, Northwestern sold off from a high of 505 to sales at 485, at which price additional stock was offered without attracting buyers. Home bank followed the general trend and was offered freely at 455. Citizens State established a new all time high when transactions were recorded at 820.

One hundred was bid for Hammond Clock, but sellers were unattracted. Chicago Daily News common was heavy, sales being recorded between 37 and 38. The preferred, after early sales at 94, improved to 97 bid, 99 asked. Interstate Iron and Steel common was again in good demand, rising 5 points to sales at 71. Belden Manufacturing showed a 5 point gain, being wanted at 105.

HOOKUP OF G.M.C. WITH RADIO CORP. EXPECTED SOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—General Motors corporation's and Radio Corporation of America's tie-up in a new radio manufacturing and distributing company is expected to be announced the early part of next week with a statement that the two companies have united in the formation of a third company which will handle the distribution of radio sets manufactured by General Motors.

It is understood that General Motors and Radio corporation will each contribute $5,000,000 in capital to the new company and will each take 50 per cent of the stock. The new company will make a contract with General Motors for the manufacture of radio sets and combination radio and talking machine sets, it is understood, and beyond this contract General Motors will take no active part in the new company.

Radio corporation will license the new company under its numerous radio patents, it is understood, and also under various patents of the Victor Talking Machine company, which it controls, so that the entire manufacturing of radio sets and radio-talking machine sets will be vested in General Motors through the contract with the new company.

The Radio company will also have active control of the company, it is understood, especially in the distribution of the products, and the new arrangement will not interfere with existing dealer licenses and distribution contracts or dealer licenses. It will, however, it is said, release, Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing and General Electric companies from manufacture of Radio corporation radio sets and will also transfer considerable of the manufacture of the new Victor radio sets to General Motors' factories.

FISHER BROTHERS ARE LINKED WITH GT. LAKES CORP.

New York, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Active affiliation of the Fisher brothers with the direction and management of the Great Lakes corporation, the investing and trading company recently launched by Detroit financial interests, has been disclosed with the offering to stockholders of the Guardian Detroit-Union group of banking interests of 1,400,000 shares of no par capital stock at $25 a share.

Fisher & Co. and other interests identified with the venture have underwritten the offering and are paying into the corporation's treasury $3,500,000 for options, good for five years, on 700,000 shares of stock at $30 a share, or $5 more than the offering price. No part of the offering is to be available to the public.

Simmons Co. Stockholders Approve By-Laws Change

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Stockholders of the Simmons company have approved a change in the by-laws of the company permitting the board of directors to issue stock at its discretion. This action was in line with the plan of the company announced some time ago to expand its activities until it became a complete household furnishings manufacturing and distributing company. Action on the part of directors in issuing stock for the acquisition of other companies in perfecting such an organization was anticipated in presenting the change in the by-laws to the stockholders.

American Steel & Wire Co. Enlarges Waukegan Plant

Owing to increased demand for wire the American Steel and Wire company has started a large addition to its Waukegan works. The work will cost $900,000 and will be rushed so as to be ready for use within a few months. The building will be 500 by 80 feet in size and will be equipped with the modern wire drawing machinery which will increase the wire drawing capacity of the Waukegan plant 25 to 30 per cent when in operation, as well as requiring one hundred more employés.

Cites Need of New Forests in 3 States

BY SCRUTATOR.

Some real solution of the forestry problem probably is of more importance to Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota than to any other states. Twenty million acres of forest lands, long since cut over, are lying unproductive in their borders, and the forest service of the department of agriculture estimates that a loss of a dollar an acre, at least, is being suffered each year through failure to get new forests growing.

Up until 1926, it is pointed out, only one-third of 1 per cent of this vast area had been brought under any sort of reforestation program. If the rate of planting were speeded up to 100,000 acres annually, it is probable that each year's planting would have a value of fifteen million dollars when the timber grows to merchantable size.

Two hundred small sawmills and other woodworking industries could be supported by this raw material, according to Joseph Kittredge of the forestry service.

This authority sees as an integral part of a good policy the necessity for interesting private individuals and small communities as well as depending on the government and the states for forestry.

Specific Recommendations.

Specifically, he recommends scientific taxation, technical advice to owners, and long time credit arrangements as requisites to get private and community agencies started on the work.

It has been said here before that any forestry program that does not lean for its main support on lumbermen and paper mill owners is doomed to failure. Perhaps it may be fairly added as a good supposition that if taxes and credit on long, easy terms could be satisfactorily agreed on the business men in the United States would take care of the whole problem with scant governmental assistance. The federal services logically have the duty of preserving wooded areas for recreation; also they are best equipped to gather scientific knowledge and dispense it. But big businesses like lumber and paper should be handled by business men.

Value of Products.

Lumber and its allied industries, the bureau of the census reported in 1925, brought out products valued at more than three and a half billion dollars.

Paper, printing and related lines produced values exceeding four billions. Taken together, their values exceeded those of the steel and iron manufacturers and were only exceeded by foodstuffs and textiles in the American business field.

There is no necessity to discuss the vast amount of timber required for these trades, nor to point to the growing tendency to get them from Canada since our own forests, particularly those in the lake states, have become depleted. Lumbermen recognize the problem. Some of them have tried out projects of their own, but have come up against the taxation feature in many instances. It seems rather futile to expect growing trees that will not be merchantable for forty to sixty or more years to stand the expense of building roads through them, as one lumber company complained it had to do in the Pacific northwest while growing a forest.

Farm Wood Lots.

Another argument against growing in public parks is contained in the official figures which show that some two-fifths of the forest fires are caused by the carelessness of tourists and sportsmen. During three weeks in August alone the federal forest service spent more than a million dollars fighting 5,000 separate fires in six national forests. More than 2,000 blazes were attributed to human agencies.

Recently there has been some disposition to link up forestry with the farm. It is definitely established that about one-third of the timber in the country is in farm woodlots. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has recommended that low producing farm land be turned back to forests.

Little more than 350 million acres out of a total of nearly two billion in the United States are actually producing crops. Another 150 million are classed as farm lands, but don't produce. All of this surplus, besides millions more like the cutover lands, could be profitably planted and tended if the tax and credit situation were improved.

TWO MORE FIRMS JOIN NORTHWEST BANCORPORATION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 5.—Metropolitan National bank and Union Investment company today announced that they have become affiliated with the Northwest Bancorporation. # New Issues of Stock By Corporations Reached a New Peak This Year. September Broke Previous Records for the Month

News and Gossip of Stock Markets

Expert Turns Bullish.

Wall street heard yesterday that a well known market prognosticator, who hooked a good deal of publicity a month ago with his bearish predictions, has turned bullish and will shortly advise his clients to buy certain stocks. The list is said to include New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, United States Steel, Standard Oil of New York, and Anaconda.

Slump Reduces Speculators.

The mortality among stock exchange accounts was tremendous last week. Many an account that ran into six figures at the first of the week was entirely extinguished by Friday night. Many people who got through Thursday's break by the margin of an eyelash were thrown out of the market on Friday's recession. Some of the old familiar faces about brokerage offices were missing yesterday. Some of the small speculators were out rustling for jobs.

G. M. C. Snapped Up.

Large blocks of General Motors are being taken on a sliding scale and there seems to be plenty of bulls around present prices. The company's balance sheet on June 30 last shows an increase of more than $50,000,000 in investments in affiliated and miscellaneous concerns. This included a substantial interest in Opel of Germany, a 25 per cent interest in Bendix Aviation, and a 40 per cent interest in Fokker Aircraft. It has recently been reported that certain arrangements are in progress with the Radio corporation. Eventually the outcome of this expansion into other fields should be favorable, although the immediate results may be small.

Oils Pick Up.

Oils, which for more than a week have been showing signs of action, moved forward in more or less spectacular fashion yesterday. Leadership was held by Standard Oil of New Jersey, which poured over the tape in blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares. Conditions in the petroleum industry, according to interests closely associated with producing, refining, and marketing ends of the business, are much better than generally supposed.

Expect Easier Money.

With heavy offerings of funds on Friday sending the call money rate down to 6 per cent over the end of the week, bankers and money brokers were inclined yesterday to look forward to easier money conditions this week than prevailed last week when 10 per cent was touched on several occasions. With the strain of quarterly interest and dividend payments removed so that the money could return to the call loan market and with the lower level of stock exchange prices compared with a week ago, the financial community was inclined to look for a reduction in brokers' loans, provided stock and bond financing does not show a sudden increase. New financing in September set a new high record for any month, but, according to plans of bankers divulged thus far, it is doubtful if the October total will measure up anywhere near as high.

TO LINK INSULL KY. SYSTEMS BY HIGH VOLTAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—The electric power systems of the Kentucky Utilities company and the Kentucky Power and Light company, both controlled by the Middle West Utilities company, the principal Insull holding company, are to be linked soon by three high voltage transmission lines aggregating 115 miles in length.

The Kentucky Utilities company is the oldest utility company of the Insull group in Kentucky. It controls properties operating in the west, central and southeastern parts of the state. The Kentucky Power and Light is a subsidiary of the United Public Service company, recently acquired as a whole by the Insull interests. It operates in the northern and western parts of Kentucky.

The lines planned to link these two groups of properties will run approximately at right angles to the Kentucky and the Licking rivers, south of the Ohio river. There will be a new 66,000 volt line from Lexington, Ky., to Maysville, on the Ohio river, a distance of 60 miles; another 66,000 volt line from Shelbyville to Carrollton, a distance of 33 miles, and a third line of 33,000 volts covering 22 miles from Mt. Sterling to Salt Lick, near Morehead. The work will be completed next spring.

Various changes in the existing systems will be made necessary by these three powerful links. Certain transmission lines will be double circuited, others will be increased in capacity and at many points additional operating equipment will be installed. The powerful stations of the Kentucky Utilities company will increase the potential power supply of the Kentucky Power and Light from 5,000 to 25,000 horsepower without diminishing the supply of the former company.

Combustion Corp. Gets Orders Totaling $2,000,000

The orders were from the Bethlehem Steel corporation, Kansas City Power and Light company, and the Electric Railway and Light company of Milwaukee.

FOREIGN ISSUES DO BETTER THAN DOMESTIC BONDS

(New York bond list page 5.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5. — Bond prices showed small recoveries today in trading on the stock exchange, with the improvement in foreign loans amounting to considerably more than the recoveries in domestic issues. Convertible bonds, in sympathy with stocks, led in the advances, with trading running higher in volume of turnover than a week ago.

International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s lead a recovery of 3½ points, with American Telephone convertible 4½s were up 4⅝. There is still a spread of more than 20 points between the two issues in favor of the latter. American I. G. Chemical 5½s advanced 2 points, and Alleghany corporation 5s of 1949 up 1⅝. Atchison convertible 4½s moved up half a point.

Lorillard bonds were active on the news of the ending of the tobacco war, the 5½s gaining ⅝, while the 5s eased ⅜ of a point to 79½ after touching a high of 80 for the day. The activity traded Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s were up two points.

As has been the case for the last few days, foreign loans, with but very few exceptions, showed but fractional changes for the day. United States government bonds were dull and little changed during the two hour trading period.

Offerings of Bond Issues on Upgrade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Due to the fact that one issue of $30,000,000 was marketed this week, the total of new bond offerings for the week reached $56,416,000, compared with $26,331,000 last week and with $66,173,000 during the corresponding week of last year.

The major issue this week was that of the Canadian National Railways company 5s, due in 1969. These were offered at a price of 98½ by the Bancamerica-Blair corporation and associates. The issue, which is guaranteed unconditionally by the Canadian government, met a ready response, the bankers reporting today that more than $25,000,000 of the bonds had been sold.

Second Largest Issue.

The second largest issue of the week was the $7,250,000 General Water Works and Electric 6s, which were brought out on a 5.50 per cent basis. The third largest issue was $5,000,000 state of North Carolina 5⅛ per cent, short term notes, priced to yield 5.50 and 5.75 per cent. The issue of $3,942,000 city of St. Louis [Mo.] 4½s, offered in midweek, has all been sold.

Several weeks have elapsed since any bonds have been offered for investment trusts or financial corporations, new financing for companies of this classification being done through offerings of stock.

Offerings by Groups.

The offerings of bonds by groups for this and last week follow:

| | This week. | Last week. |
|---|---|---|
| Foreign | $30,400,000 | $3,500,000 |
| State and municipal | 16,266,000 | 3,631,000 |
| Public utility | 9,750,000 | 20,200,000 |
| Total | $56,416,000 | $26,331,000 |

There have been various reports of negotiations looking toward an early offering of European loans, but in view of the fact that foreign bonds on the stock exchange are now selling close to the low prices of the year, many bankers are of the opinion that foreign governments and corporations in need of new money will endeavor to hold off until later in the year. In some instances pressing requirements are being taken care of by means of banking credits which do not involve public financing.

AIR REDUCTION CO. ACQUIRES PURE CARBONIC STOCK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Approximately 75 per cent of the Pure Carbonic Company of America has been acquired by Air Reduction company, Inc., and U. S. Industrial Alcohol company, according to an announcement by the latter two companies.

Through the acquisition the two companies also acquire control of the assets and business of the Compressed Carbonic company, Inc.; the Pure Carbonic Company of Illinois, and the Pure Carbonic Company of California, which were recently acquired by the Pure Carbonic Company of America.

Certain of the stockholders of the old Pure Carbonic Company of Illinois retain their interest in the business as stockholders of the Pure Carbonic Company of America, according to the announcement, although Air Reduction and Industrial Alcohol have acquired about 75 per cent interest in that company.

The Pure Carbonic Company of America owns and operates plants producing carbon dioxide or controls by contract satisfactory sources of carbon dioxide, in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

BY FRED HARVEY.

(New York stock list page 5.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Empowered by heavy buying orders booming in from all points of the compass, the stock market turned on its pursuers today.

Under the leadership of tobacco shares the whole list surged forward in a body with the pace makers running up gains as high as $50 a share and the rank and file recovering anywhere from $1 to $10 a share on the losses suffered in the headlong retreat of yesterday and the day before. This tobacco movement followed announcement of increases in wholesale cigaret prices.

Trading on the rebounds was in many instances as violent as that on the breaks of the preceeding sessions.

All Groups Participate.

Every group participated in the recovery. Utilities were sensationally strong. Various specialties hit a dizzy pace in the early trading and kept up without a halt right through to the close, checking up some of the biggest advances of the abbreviated week-end session. Motor stocks—the motors came to life with a rush and the steels did themselves proud in a body with United States Steel common assuming its logical position at the head of the procession and recouping nearly 2 points of the loss it sustained yesterday.

Some of the rails were as nearly buoyant as they have been since the group succumbed to bearish pressure awhile back and the coppers came once more into their own.

Merchandise and oil shares kept step with the rest. A total of some 2,451,870 shares changed hands in the two hours.

Fireworks in Trading.

Fireworks in the tobacco stocks featured the brief session. Announcement of the increase in cigaret prices by three of the leading manufacturers of the country set shorts in hasty search of stock to cover their sales of the last few days and the lucky holders made their bidders "reach for 'em." The result was a bit of the liveliest trading the exchange has witnessed in a coon's age.

American Tobacco B, after opening up $20 a share on a block of 4,000, ran up swiftly to within a fraction of $220 for a gain of nearly $40 a share and held at that level until a few minutes before the close. Then it dropped back to 198, which left it still with a net advance of $33 a share for the day. The common stock of the same corporation shot up almost as sentionally, scoring a net gain of $36 a share.

Reynolds Tobacco B and Lorillard, which were traded in big blocks, also performed brilliantly, the former advancing more than $7 a share and the other nearly $11. Tobacco Products was up $3 a share at the close.

The tobaccos have been the "lost orphans" of the market for a long time due to the keen competition among the big companies which has been so destructive to profits all around. Some of the leading issues of the division have been on the downgrade for the better part of the year and investors in them have lost heavily.

Today's announcement of price boost was accepted to mean that the "war" is over and that the industry is to stand on its feet once more.

BETTER EXPORT DEMAND AIDS WHEAT PRICES

Corn Market Is Dull, but Closes Higher.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market showed a much firmer undertone yesterday, both in America and abroad, and sentiment was somewhat more favorable to the buying side, talk of a better export demand being a factor.

Fair sales abroad were claimed early while toward the last a Winnipeg operator wired that sales of Manitobas were placed at 2,500,000 bu, the largest day's business in sometime past. Futures here were taken by commission houses and the local element and closed with net gains of 1⅛@1⅛c. Winnipeg was 1⅝@1¾c higher.

The corn market was rather dull, but closed ⅛@¼c higher while oats were ⅛c higher. Rye was unchanged to ⅜c lower.

While wheat sold at the lowest prices since July 11 during the last week the inside figures were not maintained, and at the last net gains were 1⅝@2¼c higher as compared with the previous week, with corn 1⅜@1¾c higher. Oats unchanged to ⅛c lower and rye ¼c higher to 1½c lower for the week. Provisions were unsettled, lard being 10@27½c higher; ribs, unchanged and bellies, 25c higher to 20c lower for the week.

Export Demand Improves.

A gradual betterment in the foreign demand for cash wheat has been in evidence the last few days, and while the actual sales have not been large, some progress had been made in cleaning up the distressed hard winters that have been pressing of sale, and offerings from Argentina are on a higher basis. Sales in all positions for the day were placed at over 3,000,000 bu, including hard winters, durums and a cargo to the continent from the Pacific coast, but the bulk of the business was in Manitobas.

October wheat in Buenos Aires has gained sharply on Chicago during the past few days, and finished at $1.13⅛, up 2⅜c for the day, and 9¼c higher than the opening on Monday, and the change in the situation in the southern hemisphere has affected the Liverpool as well as the local market. Liverpool closed 1⅜@1⅝d higher with some buying of futures by a house that frequently acts for the Canadian pool. The trade looks for little change to be shown in the domestic visible supply statement on Monday. Primary arrivals during the past week were less than half of those of the same period last year.

Corn Trade Limited.

While the corn market averaged slightly higher there was little of interest to the trading, with the bulk of the business of a local character. The weekly forecast indicated generally fair with temperatures above the seasonal normal, which will be very favorable for conditioning the crop. The government will issue its October estimate on Wednesday, and the trade expects it to show little change from the 2,456,000,000 bu indicated a month ago. Country offerings of old grain to arrive were relatively small, with the spot basis steady to firm. Buenos Aires finished unchanged to ¼c higher.

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat was the largest in weeks, with early sales estimated at 800,000 bu hard winters, durums and Manitobas, but late in the day a Winnipeg message estimated that sales of Manitobas had been around 2,500,000 bu. Local handlers sold 110,000 bu corn, and 52,000 bu oats to the domestic trade. Purchases to arrive were 59,000 bu corn and 10,000 bu oats.

Cash wheat was again in fair demand in the Chicago sample market and the basis was firm at 2@3c under December for No. 2 red with No. 2 hard 4@4½c under and No. 1 northern, 2@4c under the future. Cash corn basis was steady to ⅛c higher with No. 2 mixed 2½@2¾c over; yellow, 2¾@3c over and white, 4@4½c over the December with No. 3 grades, 1¾@2¼c over. Cash oats basis gained ⅛@⅛c with No. 2 white, 2¾@3½c under, and No. 3 white, 4@5½c under December.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

EFFICIENT OIL BURNER RELIEVES FAMILY OF TOIL

Reduces Hazard of Fire, Expert Asserts.

(Next week will appear an article on winter windows, or storm sash, which give valuable protection to the home.)

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders' Editor.]

Many people who are still burning coal in their home, firing their own furnaces and laboriously removing the ashes often remark when the question of oil heat comes up:

"Well, oil burners are so new! When they become perfected——"

In answer to this one can say that while oil heat is not at the end of its development—and what mechanical achievement any more than what human being has yet reached that stage of perfection when further development is impossible—oil heat has passed far from the stage of the experimental to a period of assured and satisfactory service. There is no longer any reason why a home owner should not avail himself of the many advantages of this automatic heat while waiting for even more wonderful improvements which may come in the next decade.

It is sufficient to say that the oil burner of today has scarcely anything more in common with the oil burner of a decade ago than its name, and that there will be before long oil burners in a million homes in this country affording satisfaction and joy.

Satisfactory Installation.

Oil heating equipment dealers are experts in their line at the present time. When one buys an oil burner of recognized and standard worth one is assured that the installation will be as satisfactory as the burner—a very important factor in an oil burner's success—and that experienced men will be on call to remedy any slight difficulties which may arise.

No one pretends that an oil burner performs miracles. If a home owner is dissatisfied with his heating plant he had better have it changed so that he is satisfied with it. No oil burner can be a panacea for all the ills a heating plant may fall heir to.

For instance, if there is a room without adequate register or radiator surfaces, the oil burner cannot remedy that defect. Nor can an oil burner placed where a coal grate has been correct the difficulties of heating transmission in a heating plant where there is inadequate circulation of hot water or steam or warm air.

Has Automatic Control.

An oil burner does accomplish marvels, however, in many ways, but these are attained through the medium of an ordinary heating plant which gives a correct and proper amount of heat.

One of its big advantages is its automatic operation. These controls are the brains of the system, starting when heat is needed and giving it. These controls, furthermore, act as watchman to see that the burner's performance is perfect and operating as they do on the side of safety they see that the burner goes out if anything goes wrong.

Besides starting up the fire automatically in the morning the thermostat maintains an even temperature whenever heat is needed during the year, eliminating much danger of colds and illnesses of various sorts.

There is safety in oil as a fuel as far as fire is concerned when one uses a burner listed as standard by the underwriters' laboratories. It can be depended upon that the oil burner has been designed with this vital point in mind. Oil is contained in metal tanks and flows through tight metal lines to oil burning equipment located inside the boiler.

Reduce Fire Hazard.

Indeed, quoting John G. Gamber, past president of the National State Fire Marshals' association, an authority on fire prevention:

"Fully automatic burners actually reduce the fire hazard when compared with coal. No soot or sparks are formed. This eliminates all roof and chimney fires, which alone are responsible for more than 75 per cent of all dwelling fires. Also the handling of hot ashes in wooded receptacles is unnecessary."

Besides these advantages may be mentioned the possible utilization of basement space for recreation and study purposes or work and pleasure desk. Many playrooms occupy the space once occupied by coal bins, and even though the coal bins may be used for nothing more than extra storage space, the remainder of the basements through their cleanliness and freedom from coal dirt and ash dust are easily made livable and enjoyable.

Reduces Amount of Dirt.

This reduction of dirt not only in the basement but throughout the entire house makes a strong appeal to the woman in the home. Another factor which appeals to her is the labor saved in the firing of the furnace. A heating plant, coal fueled, takes time to run no matter how modern and efficient it may be.

Naturally the man in the home does the most laborious part of the work, the shaking down of the grates in the morning, the removal of ashes, the filling up of the firepot with coal and again in the evening the banking of the firepot for the long night ahead. There still remains, however, especially in cold weather when the furnace must be run to capacity, work for the woman to do. It has been estimated by statistic lovers that an average of an hour a day is expended by one or more persons in a household on the tending of a furnace in cold weather.

Wide Price Range.

This seems a conservative estimate—and when oil heat is installed no time is spent at all.

There is a wide variation in the price of oil burners, the cost ranging from considerably under $500 to more than $1,000. The cost depends upon the size of the burner and the type, as well as on what sort of installation is made. For instance, one can have a small tank in the basement for much less money than one can buy a large storage tank and have it buried.

As for the cost of operation, no fixed forecast can be made. In some instances it runs a little higher than coal. Again it costs approximately the same and occasionally there are instances where a house can be heated with oil for less than coal. One factor which makes for economy in oil heat is the fact that it is automatic and that the thermostat never allows the house to become overheated, thus wasting fuel.

ATTRACTIVE HIGHLAND PARK HOME

A snow scene showing the home of G. F. Mehren, 975 Ridgewood drive, Highland Park, Ill. This is a "Flagg" house, though the entire principle of the Flagg is not carried out due to atmospheric conditions being different in Illinois than in California. There is no basement and the furnace is fifteen inches below the living room with laundry adjacent to the kitchen.

The exterior is of various hues of rubble stone, reds, purples, grays and creams, laid with concrete and tuck pointed. Roof is of asbestos slate. In the living room is a large fireplace of the same stone as the exterior, with hearth raised 12 inches above the floor level and the bronze hood hanging over the fireplace hand hammered.

The lot is 75x265 and the house can be built for between $20,000 and $25,000.

PAINT UP THE OLD MAIL BOX AND MAKE BRIGHTER ENTRANCE

Every one knows how dignified and handsome is our modern built in mail box with its small visible lapel finished to harmonize with the door woodwork or the entrance lamp of wrought iron or the door knocker of bronze.

But while not everyone possesses this built in feature everyone can combine beauty and utility by painting up the old mail box so that it does its bit valiantly and well towards the beautifying of the whole.

Take a small brush—the same type of brush you would use on your kitchen chairs for example if you were planning to give them a coat of paint.

A black background is always effective for motifs that are vivid, whether that motif is floral or nautical. Leaves and vines and flowers are attractive. Or a ship or aeroplane motif appropriately suggests the distance and the ways that letters come. Indeed the background may be any color, or the motif almost any pattern—so long as the color harmonizes with the house and the design brightens up the box.

BOILER AND TWO TUBS FORM NEW LAUNDRY UNIT

A new and interesting laundry unit is on the market. It is made up of a center post to which a boiler and two tubs are mounted on individual platforms. These platforms are fastened to a rotating collar on the post so that they turn a complete circle and either tub or boiler may be swung directly over a gas burner. These tubs swing to the left or the right, so that one can bring the two tubs together or the boiler and either tub.

There is also above the platforms a 13 inch swinging faucet with mixing chamber for regulating the temperature of the water. The water can be sent into either tub or the boiler or into a washing machine used with the equipment.

Soap tray and rip board are also provided and the tubs and boiler of heavy copper are nickel plated inside and attractively lacquered outside.

When Building Is Time to Waterproof Basement

With the rapidly increasing use of basement space for recreation purposes it is well to remember—in building that "new" house in the spring—that it is much easier and less expensive to make a basement water tight in the beginning than to repair it afterwards.

IF YOU'RE IN DOUBT AS TO HOW TO FINISH YOUR WALLS, READ ON

Are you in doubt as to how to finish your walls? In modern residences we find them generally treated in one of four ways. You may cover a wall with wall paper; you can paint on a flat surface; you can employ tinted plaster or you can use any of the various textures developed to their ultimate degree of crude hand finished effects in the early English styles and rough heavy effects in the Mediterranean styles.

These plastic wall finishes easily work into any desired texture effect. One can simulate the surface of Caen stone or Travertine marble. Indeed one can have both in texture and color effect any artistic finish to fit in with one's d[illegible] scheme.

Answers to Questions on Home Owning

Certified Heating.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What is meant by certified heating? We are going to have a hot water plant installed. We live on the south side of Chicago. Shall I ask for this certified heating?

MRS. B.

Answer — Certified heating is the name for heating installed according to specifications prepared by the Heating and Piping Contractors National association. Certified Heating is in other words the name for a product which comforns to an iron bound standard of excellence. I should certainly have a contractor who would give me a bid on Certified Heating. You will know that you have an excellent heating plant conforming to certain definite engineering requirements, and that if it is in any way faulty the local association of heating and piping contractors will remedy the defects without charge. After your plant is installed the contractor will place a metal plate on the boiler stating that the heating plant conforms to Certified Heating standards and give you a certificate. This is a rather "long" answer to your letter, but the subject deserves it.

Furnace Is Smoky.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: My furnace smokes a lot these days when I start a fire. It doesn't seem to draw well and is sluggish and slow. I am always afraid of getting huge puffs of smoke in my face. Are there any small ways of remedying this? I don't want to go to the expense of having the furnace overhauled.

MRS. G.

Ans.: Try pouring a cupful of dry salt on the center of your fuel bed. Your furnace may have what is called soot poisoning or congestion of its breathing apparatus. Or when your fire is burning well sprinkle some scrap zinc on the fuel bed. You can get this from any hardware store. While doing this see that you give your heater plenty of draft. If this does not remedy matters I would advise having the furnace cleaned out by the suction cleaner method. In this way the accumulation of dust, dirt, and soot is removed.

About Ceilings, Roofs and Floors.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: There are several points I am uncertain about and wish that you would settle them for me. 1. What is the average ceiling height on first and second floors in a comparatively small house? 2. Are asphalt shingles durable as a roofing, and how do they compare in cost with asbestos shingles and ordinary stained shingles? 3. Should a plank floor be secured to a subfloor? 4. Can I count on plank floors staying in style?

MRS. K.

Answer—1. The average ceiling height of a first floor is 8 feet 6 inches and of a second floor 8 feet. 2. Asphalt shingles are an excellent roofing. Get comparative costs from your local dealer. 3. Yes. 4. Yes.

Gas Water Heater Preferred.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What do you think of the small coal or wood stoves in the basement for heating water? My husband wants me to buy one, but I would much rather have a gas water heater.

G. D.

Answer: That seems to be a matter to be decided on the basis of cost. If you can afford a gas water heater it is much to be preferred. The small coal or wood stove, while economical, means that you have all the trouble of running an extra fire summer and winter to heat your water.

Home Buying a Good Investment.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We have been hearing a lot of talk about how there are many more profitable ways of investing money than in the purchase of a home. How much per cent can I expect to make on my investment? We never have been able to save much money and it seems to me that if we bought a home we would at least have that much to the good in a few years.

ELINOR S.

Answer: You are perfectly right. In buying a home you don't get something for nothing nor get a 100 per cent dividend out of your investment. You don't even in the last analysis escape paying rent—excepting that you make yourself the landlord. But if as a home owner you [illegible] yourself to systematic saving and make from 6 to 8 per cent on your investment at the end of a few years you have the satisfaction not only of home ownership but also an asset on which in an emergency you can borrow a substantial sum. Of course you MIGHT have that money invested at interest instead and AGAIN you might not. But you have the home and then too, if one buys where property values can be expected to rise naturally—by this I do not mean any "boom"—you can sell for a profit.

SLEEPING PORCH INCREASES INDOOR SPACE OF THE HOUSE

While it goes without saying that a sleeping porch planned before a house is built is preferable, in order that one may have a properly interrelated whole, one can nevertheless add a very presentable sleeping porch to a house at some later time.

It often happens that as a family increases in size a house seems to grow increasingly smaller and an adequate sleeping porch, besides giving ample opportunity for fresh air and health, also increases indoor space.

A sleeping porch open on three sides offers a maximum amount of light and air. Screens in summer and windows in winter convert it into an extra room for all seasons of the year. And while in summer the lure of the sleeping porch is strongest it is in winter that one may need it most.

Consideration should be given to the location of the sleeping porch with respect to the sun. Some people prefer a west exposure, as they can sleep without disturbance from the sun's rays in the morning. Others prefer an east exposure just because they want those same sun rays in the early morning aslant their bed.

The south exposure is probably the most popular, but it is not always possible to build a sleeping porch on the south side of the house.

It is a big comfort to have a sleeping porch connect with a small dressing room. Sleeping porches can be awfully cold places in midwinter—pleasant to sleep on if one is adequately covered and protected, but good places to get away from as soon as one leaves the bed. The small dressing room adjacent to the sleeping porch can be comfortably warm at rising time.

CEDAR MIXTURE WHICH PROTECTS AGAINST MOTHS

Applied, in Plastic Form on Closet Walls.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Dark and unprotected clothes closets are in many instances fertile breeding places for the ever destructive moth. United States government statistics show that millions of dollars of crops and clothes are annually destroyed by these same moths.

A new method of closet protection against these destroyers is now possible for the home owner at small cost.

This is a cedar in plastic form—a blend especially prepared of genuine red cedar wood, cedar oils and plastic ingredients. Wherever one wants a cedar closet one can apply a mixture of this prepared cedar in plastic form and water and apply with an ordinary calcimine brush on new or old walls, walls which are painted or unpainted.

There is no wood to cut into pieces or to fit. One applies this almost as one applies a plastic paint, and one has the fragrance of a cedar closet together with its protection for furs, clothing and other similar household furnishings.

Cost Is Reasonable.

This is a new way of closet decoration and at the same time clothes protection.

Cedar has for years been recognized as a preservative, with cedar closet linings employed against the ravages of the moth. No home owner but would enjoy cedar closets in his home. But not every home owner can afford them.

This cedar in plastic form, however, is available at a cost so reasonable as to be possible in almost any home. It is easily applied either by the home owner or by experts.

This cedar comes packed in 10 and 25 pound cartons and it will cover from two to four square feet of wall surface per pound, depending upon the smoothness of the surface to be covered and the thickness to which the material is applied.

It is ready for application after it has been mixed with the correct proportion of clean water—3 parts of the plastic cedar to one part water.

Ordinary Brush Is Used.

An ordinary calcimine brush is then used, the brush scooped into the plastic material so as to pick up a good quantity and then brushed vertically, leaving one-sixteenth of an inch to one-eighth of an inch of material on the wall. The surface is easily smoothed out by vigorous strokes in all directions.

If one wishes a textured surface for the finish one can accomplish this by allowing the brush marks to remain. If a very smooth surface is desired, tool marks may be removed partially or entirely by stroking the wall surface with a celluloid triangle or a smooth, flexible piece of tin.

As simple as that! This plastic cedar, available now to home owners, is also being applied in the closets of apartment buildings and hotels.

Here's a new angle to the flat shortage situation. People unable to rent apartments are buying them. According to Harrison & Ready all of the two and three flat buildings sold by them are now being sought for homes. "Many people on finding they can't lease an apartment in the neighborhood wanted," they comment, "decide to purchase a building. There are more buyers on hand than there are available flat buildings."

They will be at the northeast corner of Harrison and Jefferson streets. The building at the corner will have a frontage of 51 feet on Jefferson and 170 feet on Harrison. At the eastern end of this building connection will be made through a six story structure, now standing, with a vacant lot. The vacant will be improved with a foundry building. Mr. Treat has prepared plans for a nine story building to cover the lot now occupied by the Pitkin Paint company in Clinton street.

REALTY MARKET IN GOOD SHAPE, BUILDER ASSERTS

Optimism regarding the present condition of the Chicago real estate market is expressed in remarks made by Robert Volk, realty man. Mr. Volk said in part:

"Some operators have been heard lately to complain that their business was poor. Some bankers say they are not seeking accounts of real estate dealers. Perhaps the conditions as we see them may interest such operators and bankers.

"We build and sell one family homes. At no time during our career have we met with such favorable results. We are carrying a larger pay roll than usual and building faster than ever. All completed houses and eighty-five per cent of those under construction are sold and we are taking orders for others to be built. It is the first time in fifteen years that we have carried no houses in inventory and are working to catch up to unfilled orders.

"First mortgages are readily obtainable at 50 per cent to 60 per cent and construction seconds at 75 per cent of the valuation. Collections continue very good. An analysis of our installment accounts shows that only one of our several hundred buyers is subject to legal action."

THREE BROTHERS BY THREE ROUTES GAIN SUCCESS

Ebys Show Dairying Is Individualistic.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Three brothers can become enterprising and successful farmers, yet remain individualistic in their methods; they can even be dairymen and still find expression for their personal preference in this business of food production.

Yet the fact that the three Eby brothers in Elkhart county, Indiana, have developed profitable dairying each in his own way while living in the same community served to pique my curiosity to visit them the other day. Purdue university university dairy leaders had told me about them. Having seen their farms, their herds, and talked with their families, I'm tempted to challenge the entire corn and dairy belt for another trio quite the same.

Started 18 Years Ago.

Mervin Eby, whose Lookwell farm is all its name denotes, started eighteen years ago to build his present herd of pure bred Guernseys. His first cows were bought from an Indiana cousin and brought to the 120 acre farm.

Other farmers in the neighborhood were interested in this breed of brown and white producers of such rich appearing milk. Mervin led the way, and soon the county began to draw attention from over the state. Through a neighborhood association, meeting monthly at Goshen, Elkhart county, Guernseys became leaders in Indiana cow testing association records.

The Lookwell herd of twenty-seven cows, bred and cared for as almost any good farmer in the middle west might do, has been built up from a nucleus of two cows kept by Mr. Eby after his sale in 1919. Housed in a neat, well arranged barn, they are supplying a special Guernsey milk that has found a ready market in the city near by.

Mrs. Eby, mother of three girls and three boys, takes measurable pride in showing visitors the neat little milkhouse, in which the milk is cooled, bottled, and held ready for delivery. With everything having to do with the Lookwell herd, from feeding and milking to the placing of caps on the bottles, mechanically done, the early day drudgeries of the milk farmer seem to be slipping away.

Brothers Choose Other Types.

The other two brothers, as already intimated, chose cattle widely different in color and habits. One, Ira, living near Mervin, has an outstanding herd of Ayrshires, the spotted white and tan or brown cattle with the graceful horns. The third brother, living several miles away, chose Holsteins, in common with a majority of the dairy farmers in Chicagoland.

Having just finished silo filling, these dairymen were still busy plowing and seeding wheat. They try to raise most of the roughage and some of the concentrated feed needed to maintain a fairly steady winter milk production on their own farms. Clover, some alfalfa, and soy beans are grown for hay. Most of the corn is used for silage—some for grain. Commercial dairy feeds are used the year around to balance the ration, even when the cows are on good summer pasture.

Marketing Methods.

While all three Eby brothers use modern methods of feeding and breeding good cattle, their marketing methods have differed as did their choice of breeds. Seeing the electric milking and refrigerating equipment on Mervin's farm, the need of careful handling of equipment in bottling and making individual deliveries to distant customers twice every day in the year, one realizes the personal attention, expensive equipment, and labor needed.

Perhaps that is why his brothers prefer to devote their entire attention to milk production, selling their herds' output wholesale to a single buyer.

Butter and Cheese Makers to Meet at Chippewa Falls

Wisconsin butter makers will meet at Chippewa Falls Oct. 8-10, according to an announcement made by H. C. Larsen, secretary of the state association. Methods of manufacturing and marketing dairy butter will be discussed.

Cheese makers of the state will hold their meeting in connection with the annual sessions of the American Cheese Makers' association, also in Chippewa Falls, Oct. 23 and 24, Secretary R. H. Sample of Osceola announces.

POULTRY ILLS PREVENTED BY CLEAN YARD

Simple methods of sanitation seem to be the best measures in preventing worms and other poultry diseases, according to a report Dr. Robert Graham and E. C. McCulloch of the University of Illinois have just issued.

Clean houses, clean feed, pure water, clean ground as provided by the double yarding system, and the placing of young chicks on new ground are the recommendations of these specialists. During the last five years approximately 60 per cent of the mature fowls sent to the College of Agriculture at Urbana for diagnosis have shown either round worm or tape worm infestation.

"Worms in the chickens' intestines are traceable to premises contaminated with worm eggs," says the circular. "The premises become contaminated through failure to rotate chicken yards, or as a result of allowing poultry a free range. On many farms where serious worm infestation has been encountered it is not uncommon to find that chickens have had access to the barnyard for a quarter of a century or more."

There is a limit to the use of medicines in controlling worm infestations, the college authorities advise, pointing out that if medicinal remedies seem advisable they should be used as prescribed by a local veterinarian.

CORN YIELDS SEVENTY-FIVE BY-PRODUCTS

Seventy-five separate and distinct byproducts made from corn are listed by James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, in assuring Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, that manufacturers will gladly coöperate with farmers in efforts to increase market outlets for corn.

From corn kernels come these products:

Corn syrup, cornstarch, hominy grits, hominy, corn flour, corn sugar, dextrine, corn bran, synthetic ammonia, corn oil cake, breakfast food products, wood alcohol, acetone, menthanol cornmeal, and corn oil.

From cornstalks the following byproducts can be made: Viocene [a wood gum], xylose [an unfermented wood sugar], cellulose nitrate, celluith, rayon [artificial silk], wall board, pulp board, paper, fiber, alpha cellulose, and pyroxylin varnish.

From corncobs can be secured: Acetic acid, chloroform, iodoform, alcohol, anesthetics, antiseptics, pipes, buttons, charcoal, washboards, curing for concrete floors, diabetic food dyes, furfurol, fire lighter, glue, hard rubber substitute, incense, menthanol, maple flavor, motor fuel, oxalic acid, pitch, plastics, punk, shampoo, rosin, tar, and sweeping compound.

Since many members of the manufacturers' association are in position to utilize many of these corn byproducts, Mr. Donnelly is furnishing the complete list, as shown above, to every member, he told Mr. Smith recently.

The sessions will be opened by the Hon. John Hammill, governor of Iowa, followed by a response from Dr. Henry C. Taylor, chairman of the association executive committee, and the presidential address by the Hon. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois.

Five farm women of Iowa will be honored Thursday evening with Mrs. Charles A. Sewell, home and community director of the American Farm Bureau federation, giving the address. The Friday morning meeting, with Gov. Lowden presiding, will be devoted to rural community programs. In the afternoon, ten sectional meetings led by prominent rural life authorities, will be held. The Henry C. Wallace memorial presentation is also to be made at this time.

AGRICULTURAL QUESTIONS

WINTERING FLOWERS.

Where and how can cannas be stored successfully over winter? Where can we get help in planning our lawn, location of flowers and shrubs? Will appreciate any information you will give to these questions. L. I. V.

REPLY.

As soon as frost wilts down the canna tops, cut them off down to about 6 inches above the ground. With as much soil as will adhere clinging to the roots [or rhizomes, as they are called], store them in a dry, cool place with just enough moisture in the soil to keep them plump. Too much will cause rotting, too little will cause them to dry up. Frank Ridgeway's Tribune book "Flower Gardening" will give help of real value in planning your lawn, location of flowers, etc. Price 15 cents—by mail 18 cents.

STARTING TO FARM.

The writer has bought a farm and wants to go into the dairy business. Any information you can give about producing high quality milk will be greatly appreciated. Where may we obtain bulletins on that subject?

G. W. F.

REPLY.

Little things well done at the proper time will go further toward producing high quality milk than all the beautiful barns and fancy equipment that the dairyman can buy, judging from a list of pointers just published by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, in a new circular, "Producing High Quality Milk." You should write for a copy.

Demand for milk of high quality is steadily increasing and the dairyman who learns how to produce it is certain to profit, according to M. J. Prucha, chief in dairy bacteriology, and author of the new publication. All there is to the production of high quality milk is: [1] clean barns, clean milk houses, clean milker, and clean and healthy cows; [2] proper washing and effective sterilization of all utensils, and [3] prompt cooling of the milk to 60 degrees Fahrenheit or lower and keeping it at that temperature until delivered.

Bacteria are the cause of deterioration in milk and hence must be controlled if high grade milk is to be produced. They must be kept out of the milk so far as possible and then those that do get in must be kept from multiplying. Bacteria and dirt are not the same thing, but dirt usually harbors large numbers of bacteria, especially the kind of dirt that is found on the cow's coat.

As dairy utensils are handled today, they are by far the most important source of bacteria in milk. Dirty cows add many bacteria, dirty barns will add some more, but these additions are small in comparison with what comes from the utensils. Every utensil that has a stale smell, no matter how well it was once cleaned and sterilized, may add millions of bacteria.

There is one good rule to follow: Wash the utensils as soon as possible after they are emptied. They also should be sterilized in some way. Chemical sterilization offers dairymen a very practical method of treating utensils, since on most dairy farms steam is not available and even hot water is hard to get in sufficient amounts.

Different kinds of chemical sterilizers, the drying of utensils in the air and sun, the importance of rinsing the utensils just before using, proper care of milking machines and the necessity of cooling milk quickly and thoroughly are among other points discussed in the circular. It is No. 341 and may be obtained upon request to the college at Urbana.

HOME MADE ICE WELLS SOLVE THE RURAL PROBLEMS

Water Frozen in Hole Acts as Icebox.

Suburbanites and rural householders who find refrigeration a problem may find the newly discussed ice well refrigerator one solution, at least from the economy standpoint.

It consists primarily of a pit in the ground, in which a solid cake of ice has been formed by running a small quantity of water into the hole daily during freezing weather. It has been patterned after plans developed by Canadian authorities, and has been satisfactorily used by the United States department of agriculture on their dairy field station at Mandan, N. D., in coöperation with the state college there.

On a well drained spot near the milk house and convenient to the well, a pit was dug 8 feet square and 9½ feet deep. The sides were boarded up with cheap lumber and the bottom covered to a depth of 1½ feet with coarse gravel to insure good drainage. A small house was erected over the pit. The floor was of two thicknesses of planking with building paper between the layers, and it was built in sections to permit easy removal during freezing.

Windows in the house provided air circulation in the winter, but were closed during the summer. A wooden rack or basket suspended from a pulley overhead served for raising and lowering the cans of cream and other food in storage.

Freezing was started in January. A small quantity of water, two to four gallons, was run into the pit each day. By the end of February there was a solid cake of ice 8 feet square and 6½ feet deep. When freezing weather was over, the house was closed tightly and the floor replaced.

Storage of cream was started May 25. The ice lasted through the summer, and Sept. 1, after a storage period of 98 days, there was still a block of ice 68 inches square and 22 inches deep, or 58 cubic feet of the 416 cubic feet in the original block. At the same rate of melting the ice will last until well into October.

Meat, fruit and vegetables as well as milk and cream were stored in the pit, and kept perfectly. No offensive odors were detected at any time during the summer in the well or in the stored products. These results obtained at Mandan represent only one season's trial, and the work will be continued with some variations.

Points suggested for consideration in building an ice well are the selection of a well drained site and provision of proper drainage so the ice water can run away from the bottom of the pit. The pit should be located as near the milk house as possible and near the well for water supply. The floor of the house should be tight so the air circulation can be reduced to a minimum during summer months. The cost of an ice well will vary with conditions, but by using home labor and the cheaper grades of lumber the cost will be small.

Yellow Corn Often Best for Pig Feed

Many feeders prefer yellow corn rather than white corn for feeding fall pigs.

When pigs are fed only corn and tankage or corn and skimmed milk, better results are secured when yellow corn is fed. Yellow corn is rich in vitamins which white corn lacks. When pigs are on good pasture the color of the corn makes little difference.

The deficiency of white corn can be supplied by feeding fine stemmed, leafy alfalfa hay. For every 100 pounds of white corn fed the pigs should consume five pounds of alfalfa hay.

DAIRYMEN TO HOLD FIELD DAY AT ROCK RIVER

A feature of the Illinois Holstein association field day at Rock River farms, Byron, Ill., Oct. 25, will be the address by C. V. Gregory, editor of Prairie Farmer, on the "Importance of Dairying and Dairy Cattle Raising in Illinois."

The program will be further enhanced by the appearance of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, owner of Rock River farms; W. S. Monscrip, famous Holstein breeder and judge; Dr. Robert Graham, chief pathologist of the Illinois experiment station, according to James B. Ball, state representative of the association.

All dairymen and friends of the dairy industry are invited to attend, bringing picnic lunches for this Holstein day in the beautiful Rock River valley, ten miles south of Rockford. ## YELLOW TO OPEN BIG CAB GARAGE ON WEST ADAMS

Called World's Largest; To House 600 Cars.

Finishing touches are being put to the nation's largest taxicab garage, the three story and basement structure at 731 West Adams street, taken over by the Chicago Yellow Cab company from the Parmelee company and remodeled by the former to meet its requirements. When ready for operation the garage will be able to handle an operating unit of 600 cabs, according to Thomas B. Hogan, vice president and general manager of the Chicago Yellow Cab company.

The Yellow Cab company acquired the long term leasehold formerly held on the property by the Parmelee company. The Parmelee company formerly used the building for offices, garage, and storage warehouse. It has moved to Monroe street and Racine avenue.

Will Abandon 2 Units.

Upon taking over the new garage the Yellow Cab company will abandon its smaller units located at Tenth street and Wabash avenue and at Twelfth street and Morgan street. The new structure will have 157,000 square feet of floor space available for cab storage and service needs.

The Adams street garage was taken because of its proximity to the downtown district. At business peaks large fleets of cabs can be dispatched to places where required on short notice. Further, it is expected that the time required for the shifting of crews can be cut from two hours to about a half hour. During the shifting period cabs are of necessity out of public service, though on the street.

Entrance on 2 Streets.

The building taken by the cab firm fronts 300 feet on Adams, just west of Des Plaines street, and extends through the block to Quincy street, giving entry and exit on two thoroughfares. About $150,000 was spent in remodeling it. Approximately 1,200 drivers will work out of the Adams street garage. The Yellow Cab company operates 2,500 cars and has nine other garages in Chicago and Evanston, with a major repair plant.

WALLACH BROS. TO TRY OUT FRENCH PLAN IN CHICAGO

Wallach Bros., Inc., general contractors and builders, yesterday announced their entrance into the investment field, originating real estate securities designed on the French plan, a successful New York idea. The new undertaking is part of a program of expansion which already includes the development of insurance and management.

The French plan of investment is characterized by the issuance of preferred stock subordinate only to a mortgage of approximately 50 per cent of the value of the land and building, the preferred stock and mortgage together representing the actual cost of the project. With his purchase of preferred stock, the investor receives a like number of shares of common stock as a bonus. All the proceeds from the building over and above the carrying charges are used for the retirement of the preferred stock. When it is retired the investor retains his common stock as a permanent investment.

One-half of the common stock is given out as bonuses, while the other half is retained by Wallach Bros. in payment for creating the security and for whatever moneys they may advance or their guarantee of completion of the building project.

"During the last seven years our firm has built more than sixty apartment houses in Chicago," said Nathan F. Wallach. "We have had to sell many of them in order to keep our capital free for further building operations. Under the French plan we will continue to hold an interest in all the buildings we erect."

DETROIT GROWS AIR MINDED IN ITS BUILDING

Skyscrapers Get Piped Ozone.

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—This town of motors, millionaires and multi-storied towers is growing "air minded" in a brand new way. For the first time in American construction history, we believe, office buildings here are being supplied with the luxury, comfort, health and efficiency of fresh pure air, cooled in summer and warmed in winter. In other words, "air conditioning," common enough in some of Chicago's biggest cinemas and dance halls and in some hotel dining rooms and lobbies, is in successful operation in two of Detroit's most modern office buildings, is being operated in Detroit's largest department store and is contemplated for its newest club building and other downtown towers.

Eighteen floors of the forty story, ferociously modernistic Union Trust building have locked windows, behind which the office men and women breathe cooler air in summer and warmer air in winter and purer atmosphere the year round than do office dwellers in nearby structures who bank up windows on hot days and who keep everything closed in chilly weather and breathe vitiated air as a result.

Two basements and the first six teen floors of the Union Trust building are supplied conditioned air, kept at the same temperature the year round. In the next block to the north another of Detroit's newest and most imposing towers, the forty-seven story Penobscot building, is supplying the first five floors with conditioned air.

Makes for Contentment.

And the men and women working in the quiet breathable atmosphere of the two huge structures not only are more contented and do better work, but they have less sickness the year around than do people employed in the ordinary buildings. This is on the authority of bank officials and the building superintendents and managers.

In the Penobscot building the five floors which are air conditioned are entirely used by the Guardian group of banks. In the Union Trust building the bank uses fifteen of the sixteen air conditioned above ground floors and the sixteenth is occupied by general tenants.

And the general tenants on the sixteenth floor are enthusiastic over "air conditioning." That seems to answer the argument of the renting agent of one big Detroit office building that air conditioning might be successful with a large organization like a bank, where an employé who objected to the temperature maintained would be told to look for another job, but that it would never work with private firms. He declared that if an attorney, for instance, liked his office at 80 in winter and couldn't get it, he'd break his lease or move as soon as possible.

He also pointed out that the fresh air fan who likes to work even in the zero months with the office mercury hovering around the sixty point would rise up in wrath and depart for new quarters if the building management told him he'd have to breathe his air at an official temperature of 70 degrees the year round.

Routs Old Man Humidity.

Edward T. Dow, superintendent of the Union Trust building, who hails from Glasgow and who is just leaving for another trip back to his birthplace, chuckled when told this comment.

"Tis not so," he said. "The individual tenant is not going to move unless he's uncomfortable, is he? And the tenant who works in an air conditioned office is comfortable, no matter what his own personal inclinations may be for either high or low temperatures, for here's where Old Man Humidity figures in the situation.

"Humidity is like Demon Rum in the liquor controversy, he's responsible for everything that's bad. When Old Man Humidity steps on the stage, no matter what the temperature is, the audience begins to wilt.

"Air conditioning knocks Old Man Humidity out of the picture. And with the old gentleman gone the office which has an even temperature, cooler than the outside air in summer and of course warmer in winter, is going to be a comfortable place to work in. And, to repeat, if it's comfortable, both the high temperature fan and the fresh air advocate are going to be satisfied."

Windows Kept Locked.

The windows are kept locked because, according to Mr. Dow, one open casement will completely demoralize the ventilating system. The building tenants on the sixteen floors where conditioned air circulates have learned this point and no one tries to open a window, says Mr. Dow.

A block away, the Penobscot building, towering forty-seven stories above Detroit's financial district, has air conditioning for its first five floors, used by the Guardian group of banks. According to Alfred Fonn, manager of the building, the bank has found that fresh pure air for its employés pays dividends in contentment, efficiency and good health.

The J. L. Hudson company, which has what it claims is the third largest department store in this country (being surpassed only by Marshall Field & Co., which ranks first, and Macy, New York) has tried air conditioning in the basement, first floor and upstairs in its several dining rooms. The manager stated it is a big success.

The new Pontchartrain club, now going up at First and Bagley, is to have its air conditioned for the main rooms. And, of course, the Detroit cinemas are air conditioned. Owners of several other proposed office buildings are considering the feasibility of air conditioning on a large scale.

Cleveland Has Unique Garage.

A trip around the tip of Lake Erie to the Ohio metropolis disclosed that Cleveland is not at all air minded. Not an office building could be found where air conditioning was used. But some novel and interesting garage projects were discovered, one of which probably is the first of its kind in the world.

This is the Bulkley building garage, part of which is snuggled under the main floor of the Allen theater, in the heart of Cleveland's Rialto, known as Playhouse square, where there are five amusement houses. Playgoers may drive their cars under the theater and walk up into the auditorium. Or they may drive up to the third floor of the garage, which is on a level with the auditorium of the Ohio theater, and walk into that playhouse.

Four floors of the garage are reached from the Bulkley building, which is on Euclid avenue. The cars drive in from the rear, considerably below the avenue level, passing by Cleveland's most beautiful building, the Hermits' club, a lovely, old English, half timbered structure, tucked away in an alley. It houses one of the city's most exclusive social organizations.

Used by Theatergoers.

According to E. A. Kane, manager of the Bulkley garage, there are two layers of concrete, one eleven inches thick and the other six inches, with three layers of sand, each two inches in thickness, separated by steel plates, as a fire ceiling between the garage and the Allen theater auditorium floor.

Mr. Kane states that during the theater season his garage is full every night with cars of playgoers. He also gets shoppers' cars during the day. The garage accommodates 650 machines.

Cleveland also has a combination office building and garage in the huge terminal group being erected by the Van Sweringen brothers from plans by Graham, Anderson, Probst & White of Chicago. The lower floors are used for cars and the upper floors of the eighteen story structure will contain offices.

LOCKER ROOMS FOR MILLIONAIRES

H. V. Von Holst designed the above structure—a $100,000 locker room which will provide space for 200 guests of the New Melody Farms Country club, the erstwhile estate of the late J. Ogden Armour, known as Mellody Farm. The locker house will be attached to the old Armour mansion by means of a pergola.

PURE AIR FOR MICHIGAN SKYSCRAPERS

On your left is the Union Trust building of Detroit, which is the world's first skyscraper, so it is claimed, which has installed air conditioning on a large scale. Sixteen floors above ground and two basements are cooled in summer and warmed in winter, with the temperature kept at 70 all the time and with the windows locked. The huge structure on the right is the Penobscot building, also in Detroit's financial district, where air conditioning is being carried out on a more modest scale. Five floors are supplied with pure air, with the windows kept closed the year 'round. More is told about these in the adjoining column.

EAST GOES WEST AND WEST MOVES TO KENILWORTH

Kenilworth, Ill., and Pasadena, Cal., exchange inhabitants as the result of the sale of Frank L. Millington of his residence at 126 Oxford road in the north shore suburb to E. F. Cranwell. Mr. Cranwell in turn sold his residence in Pasadena to Mr. Millington. Both houses were given at $65,000. Mr. Millington is moving to Pasadena and Mr. Cranwell is coming east. Lucille E. Larson of McGuire & Orr was broker.

Unit of Fifty to Rise at Arlington.

Announcement is made by I. Jay & Associates, 228 North La Salle street, that they are starting work on a first unit of homes of a development that will ultimately comprise 500 houses and involve an expenditure of $5,000,000. The first fifty homes will be located in Bert Laudermilk's Scarsdale development at Arlington Heights and the others will be located in places to be announced later.

Work is scheduled to start this week, with completion of the first house in thirty-seven days and the others following at the rate of one a day. Each house will occupy a lot 50x150 feet and there will be thirteen different designs—all of English feeling architecturally. Eventually there will be twenty-five designs. All houses will be two stories high.

According to Mr. Jay these homes will present a number of interesting features among which the first, perhaps, is the fireproof qualities they are to have. Each house will be built with the first and second floors of concrete on which will rest oak flooring. The foundation walls and footings will be of reinforced concrete and the roofs will be fireproof. Plastering will be on steel lath.

Mr. Jay states that there will be no load partitions of any kind, each floor and the roof being entirely self-supporting. Structural steel beams carried on columns running through the house will support the floor and wall construction for both the first and second floors. It is claimed that this type of construction will make for permanency and besides will have the additional merit of keeping out rodents and vermin.

Each house will have seven rooms and all will be equipped with the last word in conveniences, including contrivances that fold and roll away, ventilators, etc.

REALTY TRUST BUYS 4 PARCELS OF REAL ESTATE

Four real estate properties were purchased yesterday by the Security Investment Trust. The North Park apartment hotel at Ogden and Center, the Geneva terrace apartments at 2339-47 Geneva terrace, the Regal building at Market and Van Buren and the Sutherland apartment hotel at Drexel and 47th were bought.

According to J. Stanley Conroy, president of Conroy & Co., investment bankers, the total appraised value of the four properties is $5,858,122. The total average occupancy of the properties is reported to be more than 83 per cent.

JENS J. JENSEN TRADES FLATS FOR RESIDENCE

Jens J. Jensen, Chicago architect, has sold the nineteen apartment building at the southeast corner of Rosemont avenue and Rockwell street, lot 65x124, to Sydney J. Lumley for an undisclosed consideration, Mr. Lumley gave in part payment his ten room residence at the southwest corner of Green Bay road and Glenwood avenue, in Glencoe. The house stands on a lot 145x296. The Devon Realty company was broker for both parties.

Real Estate Department of H. O. Stone to Give Dance

A reception and dance will be given by the real estate department of H. O. Stone & Co. for its subdivision sales force on Oct. 15 at the Belden-Stratford hotel.

MELLODY FARM NOW CHANGING TO MELODY CLUB

Install Golf Course on Armour Lands.

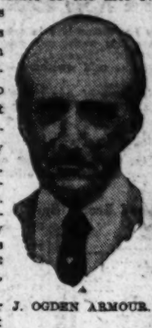
BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Mellody Farm, for many years the palatial country estate of the late J. Ogden Armour, is now in the hands of working men who are transforming it into one of the most luxurious and exclusive country clubs in America. Sale of the property by Mrs. Armour to a syndicate of wealthy Chicagoans was reported in THE TRIBUNE in June, 1928.



J. OGDEN ARMOUR.

A year later announcement was made that the 846 acre property was to be turned into a club—the membership in which was to be drawn from a selected few of the nation's millionaires and big business men. It was intimated that in addition to its social side the club was intended as a meeting place where big business could foregather in quiet while engaged in putting over important deals, or in consummating some of the gigantic mergers the vogue in the financial world.

An "L" Is Dropped.

And now herewith is the name of the organization—the Melody Farms Country club. The spelling of the name deserves some comment for it was only after years of effort that society and real estate editors were able to convince copyreaders and compositors that Mr. Armour's Mellody had two l's in it. The farm got its name in fact from Martin Mellody, one of five Irishmen from whom the packer bought the property comprising his estate. Now the new club comes along and drops an l, making it Melody—a procedure guaranteed to cause some confusion in editing circles.

In the work of transformation, the Armour mansion is to be left virtually as it is. The old house is in such good condition that is was found inexpedient to do anything much in the way of remodeling. Of fireproof construction, it is said that is would cost about $1,000,000 at present prices to replace it.

$100,000 Locker House.

H. V. Von Holst, architect, who is supervising the slight remodeling work and who designed a $100,000 locker house now under construction, speaks particularly of the music room occupying one wing. We'll have to take Mr. Von Holst's word as to the magnificence of this chamber. In the other wing Mr. Armour had a private office with a staircase going directly to the upper floors.

The lobbies and halls are spacious and fit in exactly with the club's reeds. There are some ten guest bedrooms in the building—all being large. Others are to be provided. In the basement the wealthy guests are going to find equipment for bowling and billiards. One more thing about the house—a part of the plumbing is gold plated. Finally it was designed by Arthur Heun.

The locker house, which was designed by Mr. Von Holst to conform architecturally with the mansion, will accommodate 200. It is connected with the main building by means of a pergola.

Board of Governors.

An eighteen hole golf course is being laid out under the supervision of Root & Hollister, landscape architects. It is expected to have it ready for play next spring. Other features are to be announced later.

The board of governors of the club consists of the following well known Chicagoans: Alexander F. Banks, Britton I. Budd, R. Floyd Clinch, B. A. Eckhart, Charles F. Glore, John H. Gulick, Martin J. Insull, Samuel Insull, D. R. McLennan, Joseph E. Otis, Stuyvesant Peabody, Arthur Reynolds, George M. Reynolds, B. E. Sunny, and George Woodruff.

A meeting of the board is to be held shortly at which officers will be elected and bylaws adopted.

Rent-a-Book Shops Lease a Corner on Sheridan Road

The Rent-A-Book Shops, Inc., have leased the store at the northeast corner of Sheridan road and Dakin street from J. B. Waller and will open their third branch there. Arnold T. Linder & Co. were brokers.

INDUSTRIAL BUILDING CONTINUES TO KEEP AT A HIGH LEVEL

Building construction is swinging into the fourth quarter of the year under favorable auspices, says a nation-wide survey issued yesterday by the Indiana Limestone company.

"Despite a sluggish condition in many of the districts, the final quarter is entered with confidence that the year as a whole will be one of sustained, normal activity," says Vice President Thomas J. Vernia.

"Prosperity is reflected in the large volume of commercial and industrial construction so far this year. This type of building exceeds that of the first nine months of last year by approximately 25 per cent, although this has been somewhat offset by the decline in residential construction, the entire industry is progressing in a stable, orderly way.

"New building in America for the first nine months of the year approximates $5,125,000,000. This figure, based on preliminary reports from several hundred cities and towns, shows about an 8½ per cent recession from the same period last year.

"The government's program of tearing down cheap, hurriedly constructed war time buildings and replacing them with gigantic structures of stone and steel will maintain a vital building market for some time to come. Public utilities, too, will keep the industry going at a brisk pace.

"An analysis of building activity in September indicates a continuous decline in residential construction, with public utilities projects composing between 30 and 40 per cent of the month's program. Industrial and commercial buildings show a continued high level.

"In metropolitan New York construction reflects a somewhat spotty condition, although totals on the whole remain in excess of last year.

"Chicago's progressive spirit continues to find expression in the erection of lofty skyscrapers. Residential construction still represents about 50 per cent of the city's entire program. Strenuous efforts are being put forth to make Chicago the wonder city by the time of the World's Fair.

"Major building projects on the western coast rose to a new high point. Southern states, particularly Texas, reported a marked increase in building operations. Construction activity in the northwest maintains an even keel.

"An indice of valuation of building permits in twenty leading cities shows New York at the head, with Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Boston, Houston, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Baltimore, San Francisco, Seattle, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Atlanta, New Orleans, following in the order named."

MRS. ZUKER PAYS $675,000 FOR FLAT BUILDINGS

Mrs. Hannah Zuker, wife of Samuel Zuker of 5329 Kenmore avenue, yesterday added to her prestige as being the largest woman holder of real estate in Chicago by purchasing two buildings, containing a total of 124 apartments, for a reported $675,000. This increases Mrs. Zuker's holdings to more than 1,500 apartments. She bought sixty-two flats at 512-20 Cornelia avenue and the same number at 517-25 Brompton place, from William Pickel. The Cochran-McCluer company was broker. Michael Gesas was attorney. Mrs. Zuker is the owner of the northwest corner of Clark and Madison.

NEW SECRETARY PLEADS CAUSE OF CLEANERS

Patterson Tells of Dyeing Worries.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Chicago needs the cleaning industry and the cleaning industry needs the confidence and respect of the citizens of Chicago, according to Clayton L. Patterson, the new secretary of the Chicago Master Cleaners and Dyers' association.

CLAYTON L. PATTERSON. [Moffett Photo.]

Mr. Patterson, who formerly was associated with the United States Chamber of Commerce, said there is perhaps no industry in Chicago that has been more frequently criticized by the public than the cleaning and dyeing industry. He pointed out that this condition is to be expected since the public knows less of the personnel and the processes of this industry than any other with which they come in contact.

"There is little romance connected with the dry cleaning business, and yet it contributes a large share to the health and happiness of the community through the prevention of disease," said Mr. Patterson.

Speaks of Dangers.

"Some women fail to realize the danger of cleaning garments in the home with inflammable liquids. State Fire Marshal Tracy of Iowa estimates that more than 800 women were burned to death in a year because of gasoline usage.

"We hear little complaint about the high cost of shaves or hair trims, shoe shines or laundry work, and yet the people of Chicago pay more for these services than in almost any other city in the country.

"Building costs are mounting each year, but cleaning costs are less today than they were ten years ago when labor in the cleaning plants was paid less than it is today.

"Chicago cleaners return the garment to you on a hangar, in a moth-proof bag, pressed and cleaned. Where out of town cleaners dry your garments on a clothes line, hung four deep, exposed to the weather, dirt and germs, Chicago cleaners dry these garments by machinery with superheated air which is both sanitary and safe."

Says Bankruptcy Nears.

Mr. Patterson said Chicago cleaners employ high grade union employés and guarantee them a work schedule of forty-four hours per week.

"The prices charged in Chicago for cleaning is far less than actual operating costs and cannot long be maintained," Mr. Patterson continued.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday, 20,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep.

Hogs lost most of the recent gain when week-end offerings exceeded requirements and led traders to expect moderately large receipts next week.

Arrivals at 6,500 were among the largest of the season for Saturday, with the proportion of directs smaller for the time of week. Losses of 10@20c were general, the average falling 15c at $9.55, while the top declined to $10.25, comparing with a top of $10.95 and average of $9.95 the previous Saturday. The range of prices was the narrowest in three weeks.

Continued large receipts of hogs for the time of year, coupled with the smaller eastern demand, sent prices to new low levels for the season during last week.

General Average Down.

The general average at $9.60 was lowest since week ending Feb. 2 and below any corresponding week since 1923. Arrivals at eleven leading centers during the week were 30 per cent larger than a year ago and nearly 35 per cent larger than two years ago.

The country is sending in more of the spring pig crop than is usual for this time of year, but quality keeps good and very little complaint is heard about the dressing of hogs. Average weights are running lightest since early in June, about the same as a year ago, when the movement was also early, and 10 lbs lighter than two years ago.

Buyers were well in control of the cattle market practically all week, and held prices at the lowest level in about seven months. The week's general average dropped to $13.00, lowest since March, being $1.10 under a year ago and 15c lower than two years ago.

This is the first time of the season that cattle have sold below the corresponding time in 1927. Six weeks ago cattle were averaging $2.45 above two years ago. Top steers stopped at $16.40 last week against $16.75 the preceding week and $17.00 week ending Sept. 21.

Lambs on Upgrade.

After establishing the lowest price levels for nearly three years, lambs reacted on strong eastern support late in the week and finished about 50c above the low spot. The average for the week, at $12.10, however, is lowest since December 1926, and below any corresponding week since 1921.

There has been some improvement in the demand for fresh lamb, although prices are still 2@4c per pound lower than a month ago on the wholesale market. Sheep receipts are running 35 per cent smaller than a year ago. The season to date total of westerns is 15 per cent smaller than during 1928.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 20,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep, against 31,014 cattle, 45,127 hogs, and 20,981 sheep a week ago, and 17,211 cattle, 37,506 hogs, and 23,141 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 56,000 cattle, 132,000 hogs, and 100,000 sheep, against 47,709 cattle, 131,016 hogs, and 105,632 sheep, a year ago.

MILL STRIKERS SWEAR POSSE SHOT TO KILL

Tell Judge How Five Union Men Died.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Marion, N. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The story of the riot at Marion mill gate, in which five striking union men were slain, was told by six witnesses here today before a crowded court room.

There was no tenseness in the air. Laughter swept the large room at intervals. Outside, in the streets all was peaceful. Only the presence of state militiamen posted outside the mill grounds gave evidence that a battle had been fought last Wednesday morning between striking unionists and a sheriff's posse.

Union headquarters was deserted. Everyone in authority had departed this morning for Raleigh, where Gov. O. M. Gardner was to confer with representatives of the United Textile workers union.

Strikers Repeat Charges.

The stories drawn from strikers who took part in the mill gate battle as told to Judge W. F. Harding in his investigation today were repetitions of what has been told before. Three things stood out:

That no striker was seen with a pistol or gun during the rioting.

That the picket line was prepared to offer resistence, and did attempt to prevent any worker from entering the plant.

That the fifteen or more members of Sheriff Oscar Adkins' posse shot frequently and accurately.

Almost any question is permitted in this inquiry and with such liberty the attorneys for the defense gave several of the strikers on the witness stand embarrassing moments.

J. L. Stuart or Stewart [he told THE TRIBUNE reporter it didn't make much difference how his name was spelled as he couldn't read and write much] was on the stand trying his best to tell both sides all about what he called the "big battle."

Attorney Barks at Him.

"How old are you, anyhow?" barked a whiskered attorney.

"Well, sir, I'm 36 years old," drawled the South Carolinian as he crossed an overalled knee and looked as if he felt he was away up north among enemies.

"Ever been married?" questioned the barking lawyer.

The witness held up a grimy fist. One finger uncurled, then a second, a third, and a fourth.

"Four times?" queried the lawyer.

"That's right," said the witness, "two of them dead, one divorced and I'm livin' with my fourth."

Stuart was asked why he was "armed" with a walking stick on the morning of the riot.

"It warn't much of a stick," he explained. "Just a little laurel root I dug up last season. It's about as thick as my finger and has got a knob on it 'bout the size of a hen egg. I needed it to beat away the weeds when I walked through the fields."

How About Blood Stains.

"O, I see," said the lawyer. "You used it to brush the morning dew off the weeds. Well, tell us how these blood stains got on it," he continued, as he suddenly produced the stick.

"Deputy Fender taked it away from me, that's how," said the man. "Fender throwed it on the ground and somebody rolled on it."

Stuart spent more than an hour on the stand. He described the scuffle between "Old man" Jonas and Sheriff Oscar Adkins, which he said started the ruckus.

"When Oscar collared the old fellow," said Stuart, "I grabbed the sheriff by the collar of his raincoat and tried to pull him off. Then a deputy put a gun on me and it warn't but a minute till they begun shootin'. I don't know who fired the first shot, but it warn't no striker."

Stuart tried hard to defend his union friends, but in defending the union made damaging admissions. He declared it was the purpose of the strikers to see that no person, officer or striker, entered the mill. He said the pickets had been taught to "lean against them" if people tried to push past the line.

Youth Describes Shooting.

Tom Patton, a youthful striker with powder burns on his right cheek, gave the most graphic account of the affray.

"I saw the deputies using gas and then their guns," he testified. "They looked like they were shooting to kill anybody who tried to come through. I heard Sheriff Adkins holler: 'Clean

Bandit Girl Reveals Her True Identity

The trim young woman who tried robbing a guest of the Chicago Beach hotel last Thursday with chloroform and a toy pistol told the Hyde Park police last night that she is Joan La Costa of Memphis, Tenn., a professional automobile racing driver, who gained wide publicity in 1926 when her car burst into flames in a speed trial at Daytona Beach, Fla.

For two days the girl had insisted she was Mrs. Josephine Rust, a native of Birmingham, Ala., and the wife of a Canadian bootlegger. Her story was that her husband had driven her to the hotel, thrust into her hands the imitation pistol and a wad of cotton drenched with chloroform, and commanded her to get the jewels of the woman in room 802.

The intended victim, Mrs. Rebecca Bobbe, grappled with the girl until other guests and hotel attendants came to her aid.

Admits Husband Is Fiction.

Rust, the young woman, admitted with sobs last night, was a fictional character invented to conceal her true identity, save her parents disgrace, and divide the burden of guilt. She gained knowledge of Mrs. Bobbe's residence, habits, and jewels through an acquaintance with her intended victim's brother-in-law, Hyman Bobbe, a furniture salesman of 6445 University avenue, she said.

"I have known Mr. Bobbe for six years," she said. "We were both interested in automobile racing. A few weeks ago we lunched together and I told him I was broke and utterly discouraged.

"He seemed sympathetic and said he would be able to help me if he had as much money as his brother, Joseph Bobbe. It was then that I first thought of the robbery scheme and I asked Mr. Bobbe many questions about the habits of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bobbe. Of course, I didn't tell Hyman Bobbe my purpose."

Bobbe Corroborates Story.

Hyman Bobbe, a man of 50 years, was informed by the police of the girl's statement and went to the station with his wife. He said he was acquainted with Miss La Costa and recalled what he thought was an innocent discussion of his brother's affairs with her. He was not detained.

Miss La Costa said she lived at the Lorraine hotel, 411 South Wabash avenue, and spent her time at aviation fields and race tracks where she lost most of her money. She will be arraigned in Felony court tomorrow morning on charges of assault and attempted burglary.

LINDY TO START AIR HUNT OVER JUNGLES TODAY

BELIZE, British Honduras, Oct. 5.—(AP)—The Lindbergh archaeological air expedition was completed this afternoon with the arrival of Dr. Alfred V. Kidder from Miami by airplane. The exploration of the Yucatan area of Mexico for ruins of the ancient Maya civilization will begin tomorrow.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is to be the only pilot on the exploring ship, although he will be accompanied by Mrs. Lindbergh, who has had experience in handling a plane. Dr. Kidder, head of the archaeological department of the Carnegie institution, will be assisted as guide and observer by Dr. Oliver Ricketson of the institution, who is known as one of the foremost authorities on this almost vanished race and its culture. The only other person on the plane will be a radio operator.

Col. Lindbergh has given emphatic instructions that no search is to be made for the party unless they should be missing for at least two days. The announced plans call for the return of the plane here each evening. During the next four or five days different sections of the tropical jungle will be surveyed from the air. The flights will carry the scientists over northeastern Guatemala, British Honduras and the states of Quintana Roo and Campeche in Mexico.

BLACK AND TAN CLUB IS RAIDED; 350 ARRESTED

The Dunbar club, black and tan gambling resort at 3441 Michigan boulevard, for years immune to police interference, was raided late yesterday by Chief Investigator Patrick Roche and his force of detectives from the state's attorney's office.

Roche and his men swooped down in their first raid on a black belt resort, surrounded the place, and then took 350 prisoners, about equally divided between blacks and whites. Every sort of known gambling device and game was in operation, according to the raiders.

The prisoners were placed in cells in nearby police stations. Each is to be taken through the police bureau of identification in a sift for criminals with records. They also will be taken to the general police showups at the detective bureau today.

Roche said the resort was operated by partners named Dunbar and Coe, but that neither was found in the place.

MRS. GANN MERE NO. 3 AS ISHBEL GOES A-CALLING

Mrs. Stimson First; Mrs. Taft Next.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Ishbel MacDonald, who doesn't seem to care where she sits at an American dinner table, went to call this morning on Mrs. Dolly Gann, who is said to care quite a bit. The daughter-hostess for Great Britain's prime minister and the sister-hostess for our Vice President didn't discuss the bothersome question of precedence.

But it is possible that the visit set a precedent, for Miss MacDonald called first on Mrs. Henry L. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state, second on Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the chief justice, and third on Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, half sister of Vice President Curtis. And this sequence was a direct reversal of the order in which current rules rank the trio.

An Expert Comments.

A state department analyst of social situations, clothing his remarks in the protective coloring of an informal chat rather than in the trappings of an official statement, pointed out that protocol etiquette places Mrs. Gann first, Mrs. Taft second, and Mrs. Stimson third.

"But," he added emphatically, "it would be ridiculous to expect anybody, in paying a few calls, to observe the same rigorous rules as in seating at formal dinner."

Miss MacDonald, obviously disinclined to paying too much attention to rigorous rules, left the British embassy with Lady Isabella Howard, wife of the British ambassador, and went at once to Mrs. Stimson. Since Mrs. Stimson was "not at home" they left cards and went on to the Taft home. Here again they "carded" rather than called.

Actually See Mrs. Gann.

Even though she was number three, Mrs. Gann was number one to receive a real call. For Mrs. Gann was waiting in the vice presidential suite of the Hotel Mayflower where she had arrived only two hours earlier after a journey from Kansas. She was just sending down to the railway station for her trunks when a reporter telephoned her news of the coming visit. Presently the British embassy telephoned verification. Mrs. Gann got a cup of coffee, refreshed herself with a dab of perfume, and was ready when the guests came.

"It was such a friendly, pleasant call," she explained later, "but not official, of course."

Mrs. Gann found the Scotch girl, whom she had never met, a "competent charming young woman," detected in her "a keen interest in our country"; but said she made no special queries about Kansas or the middle west.

Canadian Legation Next Stop.

From the Mayflower, Miss Mac Donald and Lady Isabella went to the Canadian legation, to call on Mrs. Vincent Massey, wife of the minister. The serious illness of Mrs. Michael McWhite, wife of the Irish Free State minister, struck from their list a possible fifth call, and the absence from Washington of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth prevented Ramsay Mac Donald's daughter from meeting Theodore Roosevelt's daughter.

Whether or not they will meet at the White House dinner Monday is a matter of sharp speculation, for nobody yet knows whether Mrs. Longworth will be back in town by then.

Later this afternoon, at the small luncheon which Mr. and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart gave for her; and still later at the White House, where she reviewed a troop of Girl Scouts, Miss MacDonald made it clear that she meant what she said in an interview this morning. Then, standing in the drawing room of the British embassy, she explained, "I have not come here to preach to American women. That would be such a bad thing to do."

She Sticks To England.

And every now and again, when somebody asked her what she thought of women in politics, or of married women in industry, or of the ceremony of edging one's lips with geranium tinted paste; she would repeat, "I am not here to preach."

Then, limiting her remarks to England, she said, "In politics, women have made good; but they're going to make better."

And again, "In the north of England many married women work in.

Three Wives Trade Blows Over Aviator

The involved domestic affairs of Carl Gibson, 33 years old, an armless aviator, who was disposed to frequent marriage but disliked divorce, were unravelled yesterday in the Warren avenue police station. The first, second, and third Mrs. Gibson all participated.

The aviator's second wife, Mrs. Jessie Nichols Gibson, 29 years old, was the complainant. She walked into Capt. Charles Essig's office about 1 p. m. and demanded her husband be arrested for bigamy.

Came Home with New Wife.

"He came home ten days ago with a new wife," she said. "I agreed to get out and live alone in a kitchenette if he'd pay the rent. The new Mrs. Gibson promised to take care of my two children."

"Neither of them kept their word and I want them jailed," she concluded.

A squad was dispatched to the Gibson abode, 3125 Congress street. Gibson, a superintendent of the Greek Aviation school in Elmhurst, was away at work but his latest wife was home.

"I divorced my first husband, William Gilles, and am Mr. Gibson's lawful wife," she proclaimed. "If you don't believe it call up Mr. Gilles at the barber shop in Oak Park. If Mr. Gibson's in trouble, I'll go through fire for him."

"You'll go to the station with me, ma'am," said Sergt. William Brophy.

Original Mrs. Gibson Chimes In.

"I'm going, too," chimed in another woman in the kitchen. She stepped out, donning her wraps, and identified herself as the original Mrs. Gibson, now Mrs. Rose Kelly Gibson Manley. She had tired of her legal mate, Manley, and had returned with her 9 year old son, Charles Gibson, to live with Charley's dad and his new wife.

Sergt. Brophy agreed that Mrs. Manley and Gibson's first offspring had better come along.

"You stole Carl from me," said Mrs. Jessie Nichols Gibson when all three wives were brought together in the station. "Now my toes are out of my shoes and there's nothing in the house for my children."

"Didn't I give you my alimony and collect my ex-husband's tips in the barber shop to buy you a dress?" retorted the third Mrs. Gibson.

Wed Second too Soon.

Mrs. Manley then explained that Gibson had married his second wife within a year of his divorce from herself. His haste invalidated the second marriage, Mrs. Manley argued, and Capt. Essig upheld her claim after consulting the statute books.

The bickering led to blows. Capt. Essig finally obtained peace by placing the wives in separate cells until Gibson was arrested last night.

The disposition of his case puzzled the captain. Gibson's second marriage he regarded as illegal but not necessarily bigamous, and the third, therefore, Capt. Essig held, was legal. The captain said he would seek counsel from the state's attorney's office.

Reveal Burial Alive Was Fatal Publicity Stunt

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Henri Boulogne was said tonight to have confessed to the police who arrested him that the burial alive of Clement Passal, alias marquis de Champaubert, was a publicity stunt that ended fatally by accident. Police had been guided to the burial coffin, from which protruded a rubber tube, by anonymous letters. These claimed that a group of aristocrats calling themselves "Knights of Themis" had executed vengeance on the fake nobleman to atone for the laxity of French law.

TRIBUNE ADVERTISEMENTS

PRESIDENT AND PREMIER TRADE VIEWS IN HILLS

Confer in Auto, Then Around Fire.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Cut off from the world in the Blue Ridge mountains of Virginia, the heads of the two great English speaking nations are taking counsel of each other over the week-end on ways and means to relieve their own peoples and all mankind of the burden of arming for war.

The first of these conversations between President Hoover and Ramsay MacDonald, premier of Great Britain, took place on the three and a half hour drive from the White House to the President's fishing camp on the headwaters of the Rapidan river, 100 miles from Washington. The two statesmen were the only passengers in the car on this drive.

After dinner at the camp there was further discussion before a roaring log fire of the projects which these two idealists—the one the humanitarian of socialism, the other the humanitarian of capitalism—have equally at heart. Together they began the exploration of paths to disarmament and the preservation of world peace.

Four Attend Conference.

Participating in the evening talk around the fireplace were Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Sir Robert Vansittart, British undersecretary of state for foreign affairs and secretary to the prime minister.

The party arrived at the camp at 6:15 o'clock.

Mr. MacDonald was housed in a cabin on the opposite side of a creek from that occupied by President and Mrs. Hoover.

Dinner was served in a cabin capable of seating 24 guests. The British embassy had telephoned the White House during the day to inquire if Mr. MacDonald should take his evening clothes and had been informed that the President never "dresses" for dinner when in camp.

Deliberations Secret.

These are all the details that percolated from this camp to the outside world, elaborate precautions having been taken to guard the deliberations of the two statesmen and their confidential aids. Ten miles from the camp a detail of marines barred access to the retreat. The only telephone line was that between the camp and the White House and the only information of what was taking place on the Rapidan was obtainable from the President's secretary, who guarded the White House end of the wire.

It is expected that an official disclosure of the results of the conversations of Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald will be made, either after their return from the camp or at the close of the prime minister's visit to Washington.

Agreement Held Essential.

That the question of navy reduction on a basis of the equality of the British and American sea forces is the burden of the discussion in the Blue Ridge is taken for granted. Both Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald recognize that agreement between the two principal sea powers of the world on a general plan of navy reduction is essential to the successful negotiation of an agreement among the five naval powers and to an eventual agreement of the land as well as sea powers on general disarmament.

It is known that what Mr. Hoover is proposing to Mr. MacDonald in these conversations is virtually a challenge to Great Britain to make such a sacrifice of ships as the United States made at the Washington arms conference of 1921-'22. To put it baldly, it is a challenge to the sincerity and good faith of the present British government, which professes to be desirous of such a reduction of navy strength as will reduce the burden of the British taxpayer.

Hoover Wants Reduction.

What Mr. Hoover wants, as he has stated repeatedly, is not merely limitation of naval strength, but reduction. What he is aiming at is a reduction of such extent that it will mean an enormous saving to British tax payers and considerable dimunition of the amount it will cost American tax payers for the ships that must be built to bring the American navy up to parity with the British. For, the disparity between the two navies is such today, that whatever the reduction Great Britain agrees to, it will be necessary for America to build up ships to attain equality.

But if Mr. MacDonald is really se-

ing to reduce the British tax burden, it will be necessary for him to scrap existing British ships with almost as free a hand as Harding and Hughes scrapped American ships at the Washington conference. So far, however, Mr. MacDonald has not consented to any reduction of a character that would mean a lowering of British taxes.

52 Cruisers Afloat.

The British have actually afloat and in commission today, a total of 52 cruisers, aggregating 311,991 tons. Now, what is the reduction they propose? In the negotiations preceding the departure of Mr. MacDonald for America, the British pronounced 50 cruisers aggregating 339,000 tons, the absolute minimum. They would scrap a number of small cruisers that are obsolete anyway, and replace them with a group of new cruisers, two less in number, but so much larger individually as to add 27,000 tons to the aggregate British cruiser strength.

This would mean no reduction of British taxes. In fact, it probably would mean an increase. The inference is that Mr. MacDonald has found himself not so free to reduce navy cost as he would like to be. He is a pacifist of so extreme a type that he was ostracized as a defeatist during the world war and expelled by his golf club in which it took his elevation to the prime ministership to bring about his reinstatement. If he were to consult his pacifistic instincts alone Mr. MacDonald doubtless would take the lead in navy scrapping. But at the head of the nation which is still the mistress of the sea and reluctant to yield that position, he has been compelled to compromise with his pacifistic principles.

Some idea of the restraint under which the prime minister labors in making the concessions required of Great Britain if there is to be actual navy reduction, is conveyed by P. W. Wilson, a British publicist who writes:

Fights for Party's Life.

"MacDonald is fighting for the very life of his party and political self. He has still to face two forces none the less powerful because they are silent and unseen. First, there is the foreign office, French in etiquette, with its grudge against a new world which canceled the Anglo-Japanese alliance and its intense jealousy of the democratic interests which dominate the United States and the British dominions. Secondly, there is the admiralty, claiming the last word on security, seeing no security except in tonnage and calibres, and insisting that calculations be based on the supposition that the United States is a potential enemy."

A confession that the admiralty was staying his hand in the negotiations with Mr. Hoover was implicit in the recent remarks of the prime minister before leaving London that he had gone as far toward meeting the American proposals of navy reduction as he could without precipitating resignations from the admiralty.

Hoover for 21 Cruisers.

Admiralty influence is supposed to explain the failure of the MacDonald counter proposals in the preliminary negotiations to accord naval parity to America. The British were unwilling to allow the United States more than 18 eight-inch gun cruisers, while they allotted themselves 15 eight-inch and 8 seven and one-half-inch gun cruisers of virtually the same power. The American navy general board flatly refused to accept such terms on the ground that parity would not be established thereby. As matters now stand Mr. Hoover is holding out for 21 big cruisers, though whether that would establish parity is open to question.

It was soon after their luncheon at the British embassy that Mr. MacDonald and his daughter, Ishbel, drove to the White House to be the guests of the President and Mrs. Hoover until next Tuesday. About 2:30 o'clock the party set out for the Rapidan camp. Mr. Hoover and Mr. MacDonald emerged from the White House without overcoats and were comprehensively photographed on the north portico. Then the two statesmen stepped into the White House limousine and were wisked away. Mrs. Hoover and Miss MacDonald followed in the next car. Secretary and Mrs. Stimson drove from their home in their own car.

Stenographer in Party.

That a discussion of importance at the camp was anticipated was indicated by the fact that included in the party was a White House stenographer and also Miss Rose Rosenberg, Mr. MacDonald's personal secretary and stenographer.

The forenoon was devoted by Mr. MacDonald to a round of calls with Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador. First they called on Vice President Curtis at his office in the senate wing of the capitol. The prime minister was closeted with the vice president for ten minutes. Then Mr. Curtis accompanied Mr. MacDonald to the chambers of the Supreme court, where the prime minister made a formal call on Chief Justice Taft. A few minutes later Mr. Taft, Mr. Curtis, and Mr. MacDonald walked out to the senate portico, where they posed for the photographers.

No call was made on the speaker of the house for the reason that Mr. Longworth is not in Washington, although the house is technically in session. While awaiting senate action on the tariff bill, the house is taking a three-day recess with only a handful of members in attendance, presided over by a speaker pro tempore designated by Mr. Longworth.

Longworths Are Away.

The Longworths will not be in Washington during the visit of the prime minister. If they were to accept invitations to the dinners given for the visitors, Mrs. Longworth would be compelled to yield precedence to Mrs. Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis. Mrs. Longworth is known to have refused invitations entailing such submission.

From the capitol the prime minister was driven to the state department where he made an official call upon Secretary Stimson. During the call the under-secretary and assistant-secretary were introduced to Mr. MacDonald. Then for half an hour the prime minister was closed in private talk with Mr. Stimson. When asked what they talked about Mr. Stimson made this enlightening reply:

"The talks we have had served the purpose, which is after all the main purpose as I understand it so far as it concerns me, of giving me the most interesting, attractive, and charming picture of a man I had never met before and we have already reached a basis of frank and friendly discussion, which on my part I shall be very happy to treasure as a memory and, I am sure, will help me in understanding some of my duties in the future."

Lloyd George Takes Cold; Suffers High Temperature

NOTTINGHAM, England, Oct. 5.—[U.P.]—David Lloyd George, former premier of England, fought off the effects of a severe chill today, and with a doctor's permission returned to London. He had been confined to bed earlier in the day with a high temperature and abnormal pulse that caused great anxiety. He was believed to have contracted the chill yesterday at a Liberal party massmeeting.

BRITAIN TO SCRAP USELESS SHIPS, IF PACT IS REACHED

[Copyright, 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Great Britain already has plans carefully worked out in event of her success at putting over her ideas regarding naval disarmament. According to the list of ships doomed to destruction if England's ideas prevail, which the Sunday Times will print tomorrow, England plans the same move as that which caught the United States napping once before. Great Britain will make a gesture of scrapping old ships already slated for retirement, replacing them with new and modern units.

Great Britain proposes to scrap twenty obsolete cruisers and build seven up-to-date vessels to replace them.

The obsolete six inch gun ships Britain is planning to scrap are the Birmingham, Conquest, Lowestoft, and Yarmouth. She goes all the way to the Australian navy to find two other useless ships, the Melbourne and Sydney. All these ships were laid down before the war and are already off or just coming off of active duty. Most of the rest of the ships that Britain will "sacrifice" come from older vessels of the C class which were launched during the early part of the war. They are the Comus, Cleopatra, Champion, Cambrian, Castor, Calliops, Carysfoot, Constance, Canterbury, Centaur, Dartmouth, and Concord. All are practically useless in event of the outbreak of war.

the mills, but it is due to economic pressure. Their husbands don't earn enough money."

To the question of cosmetics and costumes, she made a direct, visible answer. Her face had no rouge, powder, or lipstick. And she was wearing the same simple, comfortable ensemble suit she wore yesterday.

When she declined to discuss clothes as being "too personal," and when she merely laughed when somebody queried the inevitable, "It is true you are engaged to be married?" the questioners let her lead the conversation, and she took it right back to London and Juvenile court work, and the county council, and political campaigns.

Of her own speechmaking, she said, "I never speak extemporaneously, but I never write it out, or make notes. I think out a speech carefully, however."

Contrasting the brilliant, crowded welcome Washington is giving her now, with the quiet, subdued visit of two years ago, she exclaimed heartily "the quiet one was really the nicer."

Then, as if to balance the fervor of that remark, she added quickly, "but please don't think I didn't like it in New York yesterday, and the crowds here. Everywhere one could feel the warmth of sincerity in it."

And later this afternoon she slipped away from the official pattern of life and went, with her father and President and Mrs. Hoover to the camp in the Blue Ridge mountains, where a gray sky cast a homelike Scotch mist over the distinguished young woman from Lossiemouth.

35,000 WORDS ON MacDONALD ARE CABLED ABROAD

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The first twenty-four hours spent by Prime Minister MacDonald in the United States on this visit resulted in the cabling of about 35,000 words of newspaper copy abroad. The Western Union Telegraph company announced today that it had handled 20,000 words, most of it to the larger British dailies. The Postal Telegraph company, which operates the Commercial Cables, had made no accurate count, but estimated that 15,000 words had gone over its cables.

One large London newspaper alone took one-fifth of the total carried by the Western Union. Much of the material was filed by British journalists, but American press associations were well represented. The possibility that other days may surpass the first one was seen in the rapidly increasing amount of press copy handled toward the close of the first day.

WORLD BANK TO RESERVE SEATS FOR AMERICANS

Keep Door Open for Active U. S. Participation.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BADEN BADEN, Germany, Oct. 5.—The subcommittee examining the trusteeship of the Young plan super-bank for reparations met today with Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago as the American member.

It was pointed out that the presence of an American on this committee does not imply that the United States has an interest in the reparations payments or distribution, but merely in order that American members of the commission here to create the international bank may keep acquainted with all aspects of the problem.

Will Keep Door Open.

The principal function of the American delegates is to keep the door open for eventual participation in the super-bank by the United States—either the federal reserve bank or private bank groups, or both.

It is not expected that there will be any change in the attitude of the present administration, which distinctly opposes the federal reserve bank collaborating with the super-bank, but the belief is held that America probably will untimately participate in the bank for the protection of American interests and to aid in the simplification of international financing which the super-bank is expected to produce.

Reserve Places for Yanks.

European powers already have indicated a readiness to allot Americans a similar number of places on boards of governors, directors, and other supervising trustees as any of the big nations.

It is expected that these will be filled by private Americans, selected with the approval of Washington, but without official recognition by the American government.

FOR four generations the name "Steinway" has represented the foremost fine piano. A natural sequence to this world-wide reputation has often been a mistaken belief that Steinway ownership is beyond the reach of most incomes. People, to whom a Steinway would mean so much, have allowed this fiction to stand between themselves and the one instrument which would assure them the uttermost in musical satisfaction—the true expression of their talent and their children's talent. They have denied themselves all this (sometimes forever)—only because they did not really know how easy Steinway is to obtain. # LEADER KILLED 3 PALS AND SELF IN PRISON REVOLT

"Kidded" Guards Before "Executing" Them.

Canon City, Colo., Oct. 5.—(AP)—The vicious determination of one man dominated the four criminals who were at the bottom of the mutiny at the state penitentiary here which resulted in the killing of 12 men, the wounding of a dozen others and destruction of the prison by fire, it appeared tonight as investigators pushed their inquiry.

Danny Daniels, holdup man, was the moving spirit of the break for freedom and is credited with eleven of the killings, including the taking of his own life.

His aides, all of whom he put to death when the futility of further resistance was realized, were James Pardue, A. H. Davis and George [Red] Riley.

Seven guards were slaughtered and four other guards wounded before the trials ended the mutiny early Friday by committing suicide.

Stories told today by convicts and surviving guards indicated that few of the other prisoners were in sympathy with the plans of Daniels and his followers.

How Ringleaders Died.

The first eyewitness story of the scenes of horror came today from the lips of a convict who stood next to the cell in which Danny Daniels mapped out the lives of three of his pals, and then his own.

"At about 4 o'clock in the morning," said the convict, "Danny, who had been walking up and down the corridor in cellhouse number 3, called to Riley and A. H. Davis to him in the cell.

"'Boys,' he told them, 'we're fighting a losing battle. What will we do?'

"Pardue spoke up and said: 'Danny, end it with me before the guards get us.' Davis and Riley agreed.

"The two stood up. Daniels went into the cell, shot Pardue in the head, then shot Davis and Riley.

Blows Out Own Brains.

"Then Daniels went outside the cell, walked up and down for a minute and then said, 'Well, my pals are gone. I'll end it.'

"He put the gun to his head and pulled the trigger."

The convict told how Daniels "executed" the guards he held prisoner. "Danny questioned each guard before he killed him. He told J. J. Eelen, the first guard killed in cellhouse number 3, that he was going to kill him because he had hanged so many condemned convicts. He fired four shots into his body.

"Then he went along the cells and told the other guards that he could not do the same with them because he didn't have enough shells. 'You'll have to get along with one slug,' he told them.

"His methods were cruel. He told each guard beforehand when his time would come and then at intervals before he shot them he went to their cells and 'kidded them.'"

'WALK TO WORK' TOWN TO SPRING UP IN NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Battery Tower, the $10,000,000 forty story apartment hotel which is to be built as the first unit in Walk to Work town at the lower end of Manhattan, will make a bright mark on the skyline, according to detailed plans for the building announced today by Albert Moyer, president of Downtown Homes, Inc., the builders.

A group of old tenements already has been torn down for the project, which will be completed in the fall of 1930.

The building will contain 427 apartments of from one to four rooms, and 255 hotel rooms.

SCHOOL LAWYER SUBMITS QUIZ ON REASSESSMENTS

Thomas V. Sullivan, an assistant school board attorney, yesterday submitted questions to Harry S. Cutmore, director of the county real estate reassessment, John O. Rees, tax expert, and members of the board of assessors. The questions make official inquiry in behalf of the school board's contention that loop real estate appraisals have been reduced $300,000,000 below the 1927 valuations. The board also seeks another reply to the assertion that the reassessment has cut loop appraisals by 15 per cent in order to reduce the tax revenues of the city and the board of education.

GIRL TEACHER KILLED; ESCORT HURT IN CRASH

Miss Gertrude Goldstein, 23 years old, believed to have been a kindergarten teacher, was fatally injured, and McMurto Silver, 24 years old, president of the Silver-Marshall Radio company, living at the Pearson hotel, suffered a possible fatal skull fracture last night when Silver's car collided with one driven by Mrs. Susan L. Kunzman of West Chicago on North avenue, north of West Chicago, last night. Miss Goldstein died at midnight in the St. Charles hospital, and Silver was taken from there to the Geneva Community hospital. None of Mrs. Kunzman's party was injured.

After 24 hours unmarred by automobile fatalities, Cook county's 1929 motor toll moved ahead to 683 yesterday. The victims:

Joseph Sidlo, 6 years old, 1824 West 23d street. Run over by a truck in front of his home and died in St. Anthony's hospital. Police held the truck driver, Frank Lotrich, 1933 South Trumbull avenue, for the inquest.

Joseph Krutillo, 6 years old, 635 East 92d place. The boy clambered on the rear of a parked ice truck and was jolted off and run over when the driver, Dominic Petro, 8125 Ellis avenue, reversed the vehicle.

Mrs. Mary Fitzsimmons, 65 years old, a widow living at 317 South Throop street. While crossing Jackson boulevard at Throop street, she was struck by the car of Michael Baccash, 5615 Wayne avenue. Baccash drove her to the County hospital, where she died.

George Eberlen, 81 years old, 2175 Wilson avenue, who was born in 1848 in the old Fremont house at Lake and Dearborn streets. Died in the Ravenswood hospital of injuries suffered Sept. 27 when he was run over at Lawrence and Winchester avenues.

CANNON ASKS DRY LAW AMENDMENT TO JAIL ALL WHO BUY A DRINK

Richmond, Va., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr., chairman of the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, today said the time had come to amend the Volstead act so as to place the buyer and seller of intoxicants on the same footing before the law. He made this statement in commenting on the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia holding the purchase of liquor not an offense under the 18th amendment and the Volstead act.

"The purpose of the 18th amendment is to prohibit traffic in intoxicating liquors," Bishop Cannon said. "Buyers and sellers are both necessary to the traffic, and both are therefore equally responsible for its continuance. The openly declared purpose of certain citizens, many of them of wealth and high social position, to flaunt the beneficent aim of the law and to continue to purchase intoxicants, even at exorbitant prices and with knowledge that the bootleggers from whom they purchase are all criminals, frequently guilty of highway robbery and murder, compels the conclusion that the time has come to so amend the Volstead act that the purchase of intoxicants shall be made an offense equal with the sale and transportation."

CONFESSED ROBBERS SENTENCED.

Jerseyville, Ill., Oct. 5.—[U.P.]—Charles Buchanan and Edward Willis, who confessed to the robbery of the Fieldon State bank, were sentenced to indeterminate terms in the state reformatory at Pontiac by Circuit Judge Norman L. Jones here today.

PRINCE ADMITS HE'LL WED GIRL OF CANDY SHOP

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Announcement was made today at Aix-les-Bains by the Aga Khan himself of his intention to marry, on Dec. 4, the pretty French working girl, Andree Carron, whom he is said to have first seen serving behind the counter in a candy store at Aix-les-Bains. A report of the engagement was first published several weeks ago, but it was at once denied by the Aga Khan. Mlle. Carron, however, later admitted that the marriage was contemplated.

The story is not exactly parallel to that of King Cophetua and the beggar maid, for while the Aga Khan, as head of the Indian Mussulmans, is one of the richest men in the world and holds a social position in France and England equivalent to his rank, Mlle. Carron is of good middleclass birth, her father being the director of a Paris hotel. It was due to the fact that she was seen helping her aunt in a chocolate shop at Aix-les-Bains that the report spread that the religious head of Indian Mohammedanism had first seen her there.

His fiancée, who is a tall brunette, formerly worked as a modiste in Paris, where her sister is in business. She is a good golf and tennis player. She will be the second Christian wife of the Mussulman leader, his first wife having been the Princess Helene of Italy, who died some years ago, leaving two children. Unlike the Maharanfe of Indore, the former Nancy Miller, Mlle. Carron has announced she will not change her religion.

RESCUE 17 MEN, 2 WOMEN OFF SHIP IN STORM

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Seventeen seafaring men and the captain's wife and daughter were rescued today by the steam schooner Whitney Olson after they had taken to lifeboats when their ship, the french schooner Bretagne, became waterlogged during a storm off the Washington coast.

The vessel was left adrift and a coast guard cutter was sent to sink it.

Two Drowned as Boat Capsizes.

Newport, Ore., Oct. 5.—(AP)—At least two men were drowned late today when the troller Rustler capsized while crossing the bar here. The body of George Robinson, master, was washed ashore, while the body of Ike Robinson was believed by coast guards to be trapped within the sunken vessel.

DEVER'S WILL IS FILED; ESTATE SET AT $150,000

Friends and Relatives to Get $25,500.

The will of former Mayor William E. Dever, which he had signed jointly with his wife, Mrs. Katherine E. Dever, was filed yesterday before Mitchell E. Robin, clerk of the Probate court. The estate amounts to about $150,000, according to estimates. Except for special bequests, the property will be left in trust upon the widow's death to the two adopted sons, George and Daniel Dever.

Mr. Dever, who was mayor of Chicago from 1923 to 1927, died at his home at 5901 Kenmore avenue on Sept. 3 from cancer. He was 67 years old.

Bequests to friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Dever amount to $25,500, but these bequests will not be paid until after Mrs. Dever's death. Her sister, Mrs. Harriet Cunningham, Cambridge, Mass., will receive $10,000; Mary McCafferty, her niece, $5,000; John McCafferty, Salamanca, N. Y., her nephew, $1,000; Helen Phillips, a niece, $1,000, and Rosina Newman, niece, $3,000.

Mr. Dever's niece, Eunice McGuire of Alston, Mass., receives $2,000, and Edward Sullivan, 3839 Maplewood avenue, his friend of long standing, was bequeathed $2,000. The Charles Chote Memorial hospital, Woburn, Mass., receives $500 and the Home for Destitute Crippled Children $1,000.

One of the sons, Daniel, inherits the household effects and a membership in the Edgewater Golf club.

The will was drawn on July 15 1927, following Mr. Dever's retirement from politics and his taking of the position of vice president and trust officer of the Bank of America, which has since been merged with the Central Trust company.

SAYS IRISHMAN WROTE "BRITISH SECRET PAPER"

Stranger Produces Original of Shearer Document

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The hour was 2 a.m. THE TRIBUNE correspondent was reaching for his hat, when in walked a mysterious stranger.

"How would you like to have the Shearer document—the amazing British propaganda document that the United States senate committee has suppressed?"

"Very much indeed."

"Then here it is," replied the stranger, handing over a 29 page pamphlet, yellowed with age but reeking with mystery.

A Mysterious Stranger.

After hurriedly scanning the amazing document, and intrigued if not convinced, the correspondent sought the identity of the stranger.

"I'm Santa Claus, just Santa Claus," he said, and to this minute he still is known just as Santa Claus.

But the stranger talked freely of the yellowed and frayed pamphlet and with great familiarity.

"I've had this thing in my possession for about ten years," he said. "I think about ten thousand of them were printed, and I am surprised that somebody else has not come forward before this and produced the document which Shearer flashed on the unsuspecting senators."

The stranger cited numerous reasons why he knew the pamphlet was in fact the mysterious Shearer document and then volunteered the information that the author was not Sir William Wiseman, former head of the British secret service in this country and now connected with the Wall street banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Author an Irishman.

"Neither Mr. Wiseman nor any other Englishman wrote this pamphlet," the stranger said. "I know the author. He is an Irishman. He may have been in the British secret service at one time—he did serve in the British army—but he was not putting over British propaganda. He was serving his own purpose, which was to enhance his own standing with Irishmen in this country."

With all these unverified facts in hand, the correspondent set out to study the document and prepare to follow up all the hot clews.

Locate Shearer on Phone.

Mr. Shearer was located by long distance telephone at the home of his sister in Statmford, Conn. He was told of the pamphlet, bearing the title, "The Reconquest of America: Full Text of the Most Astounding Document Ever Discovered in the History of International Intrigue."

"I can't identify it from that," he parried.

The he was told the text was in the form of a letter to David Lloyd George and bore date of June 10, 1919, as disclosed at the Washington hearing. He was read other excerpts. He was told there was no signature at the end—coinciding with other of the few bits of description released by the senate committee.

"Where did you get the document?" asked Mr. Shearer.

"Out of a clear sky," he was told.

"I am oath bound; I cannot identify it for you; see my attorney, Daniel F. Cohalan," Shearer said, and that was that.

Mr. Cohalan was approached. The document was laid out on his desk. He reached over, pushed it upside down, refused to touch it or discuss it.

"Take the thing away!" he indicated. "You don't think I'm fool enough to tell you anything concerning any matter pending before the senate committee, do you?"

Lawyer Turns Reporter Out.

Before he had the chance to put numerous other questions regarding the authenticity of the pamphlet, the name of the author, and its alleged Irish instead of British origin, Mr. Cohalan ushered the correspondent out.

Next came an effort to consult Sir William Wiseman, charged with the authorship by Mr. Shearer in his Washington testimony. Mr. Wiseman was not accessible, but the slender thread of his connection with the pamphlet became apparent by reference to the preface of the publishers, the Statesman Press of 164 East 37th street, New York. This preface explains:

"A carbon copy of the following incomplete unsigned document was sent to us with an anonymous note stating that it had been found near 500 Madison avenue, New York City. At that address there is an apartment house. Inquiry revealed that Sir William Wiseman, chief of the British secret service in America recently had resided there."

Wiseman in Denial.

Denial already had come from Mr. Wiseman via Washington relay that he had written any "amazing British document." He assumed Mr. Shearer's document as given to the senators was the same as quoted in the Gaelic American, of Jan. 26 and Feb. 2, this year. The Gaelic American is a weekly newspaper published in New York "devoted to the cause of Irish freedom."

This was a red hot clew. The correspondent trekked to the New York library and asked for copies of the Gaelic American of Jan. 26 and Feb. 2. He got them and more. Across the top of the front page, issue of Jan. 26, screamed these lines:

"Plot to incorporate America in British empire revealed."

And lower down, in two column display type:

"Two paragraphs from secret British document trait of foreign intrigue against the United States."

And there follows this, over the signature of W. B. Shearer:

"Realizing the importance as well as the responsibility of a British document which is a suggested plot against the United States, I have placed photostatic copies of this document in the hands of the proper government authorities. At this time, however, I release two paragraphs, in part as follows:

[Extract quotation page 27.]

Turning to page 27 in the document which the mysterious stranger delivered at 2 a. m., the correspondent found the identical words quoted in the Gaelic American.

And in the Gaelic American of Feb. 2 there were "further quotations from a secret British document," published over the signature of W. B. Shearer and citing pages 11, 12, and 13 "from a British report." These quotations, to the extent of some 1,000 words, also were found identical with the pamphlet as furnished by the stranger.

Having convinced himself, therefore, that he had in his hands the "amazing British document" that Shearer had given to the senate committee and the committee had promptly suppressed, the correspondent besought to lift further the veil of mystery and question the alleged author, a leader among the New York Irish.

"I'm not interested; I will not see you," was the sum total of the alleged author's reply.

PRICES ON CIGARETS ARE ADVANCED BY 3 MANUFACTURERS

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Apparently, the cigaret price war is over. The makers of Camel, Chesterfields, and Lucky Strike cigarets advanced their wholesale prices today. The makers of Old Gold cigarets, because some officers are away today, will meet early next week to consider following suit.

The R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company was the first to change the price. From its offices in Winston-Salem, N. C., came a telegram:

"Effective Oct. 5 the list price of Camel cigarets will be $6.40 per thousand, less the usual discount." The price had been $6 a thousand. Liggett & Myers almost immediately following suit with Chesterfields, making the same change on the same price, and shortly afterward the American Tobacco company's Lucky Strikes were up.

The executive committee of the United Cigar Stores was called to meet on Monday to decide what to do about the retail price.

BRITISH EXPLAIN SHEARER PAPER AS 'JUST A JOKE'

"Written by an Irishman as a Burlesque."

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—According to declarations made here, the so-called secret British document cited by William B. Shearer in the senate inquiry and purported to have been written by Sir William Wiseman, one-time head of the British secret service in the United States, was actually written ten years ago by a young Irishman, formerly employed in British propaganda work in America.

It was intended by him as a joking satire on English propaganda efforts in America. The author is said to have sent copies to Sir William Wiseman, then in Paris, who showed it as a joke to President Wilson and Col. House.

"Nothing But a Joke."

These statements are contained in an article in the London Observer by S. K. Ratcliffe, a well known English writer. Mr. Ratcliffe said he could not at this time give the name of the author of the document.

"There was no secret British document," he said. "It was not a document at all. It was not even a fake.

"It was nothing more or less than a lark, joke, squib, a trivial piece of high spirited nonsense turned out ten years ago by an amusing and unusual Irishman who had done service for England during the war and was known to many of us in America after its close.

"I ran into this unsuspected man of destiny in New York a short time before his little masterpiece was issued from an obscure downtown press. It was a thin pamphlet purporting to summarize subterranean enteprises of the British government in furtherance of an astounding conspiracy for a reconquest of America.

"Shearer was right in just one particular. It was thrown into the form of a burlesque report sent from New York to the prime minister by Sir William Wiseman, whose position as director of the British secret service in America made him, of course, familiar to all journalists."

18 YEAR SENTENCE GIVEN MOTHER WHO POISONED HER SON

Belair, Md., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Mrs. Hattie Stone was sentenced today to serve 18 years in the penitentiary for the murder of her 15 year old son by poison. Judge W. W. Preston denied her petition for a new trial and pronounced the sentence, given under the jury's verdict convicting her of second degree murder.

Mrs. Stone fainted in the prisoner's dock after hearing the sentence pronounced, but was soon revived.

Mrs. Stone's son, George, died June 4, and examination of his body by a chemist revealed a quantity of poison. In her trial the state argued that the poison of which he died was fatal within two hours after being administered and declared nobody but the mother had given the boy any food, drink or medicine in a much longer time before his death.

A. F. OF L. TO HEAR SECRETARY DAVIS AT TORONTO MEET

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor were summoned today to meet tomorrow, to consider the final details of arrangements for the opening on Monday of the 49th annual convention of labor's central body.

William Green, president of the organization, said that he would be able to notify the councillors that Sir Henry Thornton, head of the Canadian National railways, had accepted an invitation to address the convention on Wednesday while J. J. Davis, American secretary of labor, would be heard on Friday and Peter Heenan, Dominion minister of labor, on the following day.

In addition, President Green prepared to lay before the board the record of his fruitless attempts to obtain the attendance of Ramsay MacDonald, labor premier of Great Britain, at one of the coming sessions owing to his many previous engagements.

JUDGE REFUSES 9 LIQUOR CASES ILLEGALLY DRAWN

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Judge Charles G. Nauert of the Adams County court today threw out for the second time nine liquor cases that had been certified to him from the Circuit court for a trial, on account of flaws in the certification. The judge did not place the blame on any one but said an attempt was being made to have his court bear the brunt of prosecutions. The state will probably file informations direct to the County court against all these defendants.

FIX TAX VALUE OF AIR RIGHTS FOR FIRST TIME

Merchandise Mart Figure Put at $2,306,319.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

For the first time in the history of Chicago, taxes are to be assessed against "air rights." The board of assessors placed a tax valuation yesterday against the Merchandise Mart, above the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks, north of the river and west of Wells street. The assessment is $2,306,319. The basic figure on which the air rights of the Merchandise Mart were reckoned is $10 per square foot.

The rule adopted by the board not only defines air rights but establishes the method of reckoning their tax value. It follows:

"The value of the air rights is the value of the entire fee under the building, less the added cost of constructing a building on air rights over a railroad, and less the loss in value owing to the loss of rentable space."

How Value Is Estimated.

The total area covered by the Merchandise Mart is 267,775 square feet. At $10 per square foot the resultant value would be $2,677,750. But there was a cost in erecting the building over the North Western tracks which would not have been occasioned under actual ownership of the land. That has been figured by the experts of the assessors, after examining the books of Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, the architects, at $200,000. That has been subtracted. The loss of rentable space [occupied by the railroad tracks] has been set at $104,164. That, too, has been deducted.

A third item of $67,267 has also been subtracted, due to the delay in permitting the construction to proceed. The agreement between the Merchandise Mart and the North Western railroad was made on May 7, 1927, but the deal could not be closed with the approval of the Illinois commerce commission. The result was that title was not transferred until Feb. 2, 1928.

With these three deductions the assessors fixed the value of the air rights at $2,306,319, which they say is 86.12 per cent of the value of the fee to the land under the mart.

The mart is supported on caissons which have been sunk to bedrock between the railroad tracks. The space occupied by these caissons aggregates only 76,000 square feet.

Plan Worked Out by Cudmore.

The plan of assessment was worked out by Harry Cutmore and his staff, who have appraised all the real estate in Cook county for assessing purposes. Property in the neighborhood of the mart was valued at $10 a square foot.

It has been held by attorneys for the assessors and the county board that air rights are not assessable until they are developed. When the Illinois Central railroad air rights are developed north of Randolph street, much higher values will be attached. Michigan boulevard property adjacent to the I. C. air rights has been valued for taxing purposes at $125 a square foot.

A much lower value is forecast for the air rights over tracks south of the loop.

As a procedure in determining value on air rights the assessors have classed them as "vertical subdivisions."

CIGARET ADS IN CLUB MAGAZINE AROUSE WOMEN TO PROTEST

Illustrations of women smoking cigarets which appeared in advertisements in The Clubwoman's World aroused the resentment of members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, it became known in a recent tiff between the federation and the magazine publisher, Will H. Howell. The federation formerly officially sponsored the publication.

"A nine months' contract with the cigaret company in question was canceled at the end of six months in deference to protests from members of the federation," Mrs. A. A. Fisher, editor of The Clubwoman's World, explained. "The advertisement of a plastic surgeon which also objected to was never repeated after publication in one issue.

"Nevertheless, last December the federation announced its withdrawal as a patron of the magazine. The magazine had been published independently, but the federation sent in copy and was supposed to promote circulation. Mr. Howell said he would continue to publish the copy sent him by the various clubs. His recent open letter sent to club members stating his situation, was written so that before the opening of the club season the club members would know the status of the magazine with regard to the federation."

FREES TRIO WHEN THEY AGREE TO NAME SUSPECT

Three men arrested on Friday, and charged with obstructing justice and conspiracy in connection with their refusal to identify in court a man who is alleged to have robbed them, were released late yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows after they had promised to make the identification when the case is heard again Nov. 12.

The three men are Martin Flatow, 1806 South Central Park avenue; Leo Ludlow, 1020 Lawrence avenue, and Clyde Starling, 4866 Winthrop avenue. They were arrested after they refused in Judge Joseph B. David's court to identify Richard Heinrich, who was charged with having robbed them in the Riviera Billiard parlor, 4750 Broadway, on May 11.

Lacks Cash for December, Schmidt Reveals.

City hall payrolls for December cannot be met in full unless the city council sanctions borrowing from the special assessment fund usually kept free from tax anticipation warrant entanglements. Figures sent to the council committee yesterday by City Controller Schmidt revealed the shortage of cash in miscellaneous funds on which the aldermen usually draw during the last few months of each year.

The actual cash in city treasury trust funds from which the aldermen are accustomed to borrow amounts to $9,539,925. Estimates of expenditures for the remainder of this year total $11,500,000, leaving the council the alternative of dipping into the special assessment fund or issuing script to pay the difference of $1,960,075.

Illegal, Lawyers Say.

Even the use of the $9,539,925 for city loans is illegal, according to attorneys, as it is borrowing above the 75 per cent of anticipated revenue authorized by law. It is accomplished, however, by dropping I. O. U.'s, sometimes referred to as "junior" tax anticipation warrants, into the miscellaneous funds.

Another conclusion drawn from the controller's figures is that the traction fund of $57,036,497 will be represented by only approximately $10,000,000 in cash with which to proceed with any subway plans that the council may adopt for next year. Cash balances in all city funds are apportioned among the separates funds by applying the ratio of the fund to the aggregate, which was done to ascertain the traction cash. This method would shrink the special assessment fund to $2,603,189.

Controller's Statement.

The controller's statement showing the amount of each fund follows:

| Fund— | Amount. |
|---|---|
| Corporate | $ 119,680 |
| Water | 2,637,540 |
| Public Library | * 155,806 |
| Traction | 57,036,497 |
| Miscellaneous | 13,683,599 |
| Special Funds. | |
| River Straightening | 2,708,175 |
| School Purposes | 35,619,046 |
| Special Assessment | 14,756,022 |
| Total | 126,716,370 |

Investments in tax anticipation warrants are shown as follows:

| Warrant— | Amount. |
|---|---|
| Corporate | $24,965,000 |
| School board | 25,700,000 |
| Firemen's pension | 715,000 |
| Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium | 2,050,000 |
| Public library | 1,480,000 |
| Police pension | 450,000 |
| Sinking fund for interest on bonded indebtedness | 1,175,000 |
| Total | $56,535,000 |
| Investments in city and Liberty bonds | 7,538,200 |
| Grand total | $64,093,200 |

The figures show a cash balance on hand, as of Sept. 30, of $62,623,170, of which $53,083,245 is in funds from which the council cannot borrow. There is a possibility, however, that the council will find itself in such dire need of funds with which to meet pay rolls that it will dip into the special assessment fund of $14,756,022.

Members of the finance committee will have these figures before them tomorrow morning at a special meeting called to discuss the financial situation. Civic organizations have been invited to be present to aid the aldermen in reaching a solution of the problem of obtaining money to run the first months of next year before additional cash is collected.

WATCHMAN DIES SUDDENLY.

CHICAGO AND NATION OPEN ANNUAL FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Nation-wide observance of fire prevention week, in accordance with a proclamation issued by President Hoover, begins today.

The purpose of the week as set forth in the proclamation is to promote efforts to reduce the great loss of life and property caused annually by fire. The insurance department of the United States Chamber of Commerce reports that hundreds of towns and cities throughout the country will carry on fire prevention activities during the coming week.

In 1908 America's fire waste amounted to $217,885,850, while in 1928 the loss totaled $472,224,568, more than double the 1908 figure, statistics show.

During the week speakers assigned by the Chicago fire prevention bureau will discuss means of fire prevention in public schools.

CITY TO HONOR PULASKI, PATRIOT KILLED IN 1779

Hoover, Governor Decree Rites This Week.

By proclamation of both President Hoover and Gov. Emmerson, the 150th anniversary of the death of Casimir Pulaski, the Polish patriot killed in the American Revolution while fighting under George Washington, will be observed in Chicago on Friday, the actual date of his death, and next Sunday, when larger groups may participate.

Superintendent of Schools Bogan and President Caldwell of the board of education have arranged for exercises in Pulaski's honor in all public schools next Friday. Similar exercises will take place in the Catholic parochial schools, high schools, and academies by order of Cardinal Mundelein.

Flags to Honor Patriot.

President Cermak has ordered a memorial exercise Friday noon in the County building. Flags will fly before the stores of State street merchants and every government building will display a flag by decree of President Hoover.

Friday's observance of the anniversary will center beneath the rotunda of the Federal building, where a committee of war veterans of Polish descent will unveil a bronze memorial tablet embedded in a marble column of the building. Among those to be present are Noble Brandon Judah, Gen. Frank Parker, and Collector of the Port Anthony Czarnecki.

Memorial Rites Sunday.

Sunday's memorial service will be at Soldiers' field. Troops from Fort Sheridan and sailors from the Great Lakes training station will march in parade. There will be band concerts, choral singing by Polish societies, and a patriotic address by Attorney General Carlstrom.

MILL STRIKERS SWEAR OFFICERS SHOT TO KILL

Tell Judge How 5 Union Men Died.

up on them; clear them out.' Then I saw Vickers fall, but first Jonas went down.

Shot at Four Times.

"It was during the second battle that Vickers went down. He was in the middle of the road and Adkins marched up to him and reached for his shoulder with one hand and toward his gun with the other. Then I saw Vickers drop and little rings of smoke rise up, but I never did see no gun in the sheriff's hand. It must have been the sheriff, though, because Vickers told me he didn't have a gun. Then the deputies started shooting my way and I sold out."

When a Carolinian says he "sold out" he means he ran away as fast as he could.

Woman Gastonia Witness.

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 5.—[U. P.]—A neighborly little woman of Gastonia, Mrs. Walter Griggs, enlivened the so-called Gastonia strike riot trial today as she spoke with emphasis about "goings on" which she didn't approve.

Mrs. Griggs was called by the state at the trial of seven men—union textile workers and labor organizers—who are charged with second degree murder in connection with the death of Chief of Police O. F. Aderholt.

She lived adjoining the union headquarters in Gastonia and spoke contemptuously of it, saying:

"They was always a huggin', a kissin', a smackin' and worse goin' on over there."

On June 7, the night Aderholt was killed, she heard a disturbance at the headquarters and called police. It was this call which summoned Aderholt to his death and resulted in three other officers being wounded as the officers and striking workers fought.

Expected Trouble, Witness Says.

The next state's witness, Mrs. Thomas Jenkins, was on the Suttlemire porch, across the street from the union grounds, on the night of the tragedy.

Mrs. Jenkins said the entire neighborhood expected trouble sooner or later from the strikers. She said she was recuperating from a long illness at the time of the shooting.

"When the officers arrived some one shouted, 'Women and children get back,' and I got back, too," she said.

"Did you go to bed, Mrs. Jenkins?"

"I went farther than that; I went clear to the back of the house, where I couldn't get shot."

Then Mrs. Onnie Neal was called and said of the defendant, K. Y. Hendricks:

"He rushed into my house and grabbed my daughter. He wanted to hide in my closet. Father asked what was wrong and Hendricks told him; 'We killed Chief Aderholt and Tom Gilbert; we think Roach and one of our men are goin' to die, too.'

"'Where's your gun?' my father asked him. 'I shot the damned thing out and threw it away and ran,' Hendricks told him."

Mrs. Neal said that Hendricks lived in the boarding house next door. She knew him very well and after the confession to her father Hendricks tried to get Dewey Martin, her brother-in-law, and a union organizer to drive him away from the place in a car.

Martin refused to help Hendricks get away, she told the court.

DON'T ANNOY PETTERS, YOU CAN'T STOP 'EM, BLEASE TELLS POLICE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Senator Cole Blease [Demo., S. C.], thinks Washington police are too much concerned over liquor and "petting."

Urging a senate investigation of the police department, brought under severe criticism in the mystery over the death of young Mrs. Virginia McPherson, he said:

"If there is one type of policeman I hate, it's the type that, armed with a flashlight, will sneak up on some boy and girl making love in the park.

"Why, you can't stop a thing like that, and it's foolish to try!

"Yet some policemen do it to fatten their records, even though they have to drag some young girl's name through the mud."

As to arrests for drunkenness, he asked:

"What's the sense in arresting a man because he's got a few toddies aboard? If he's minding his business and on his way, he ought to be left alone. Of course, if he's not, he ought to be arrested."

First Test of Shannon Electric Power Is Success

DUBLIN, Ireland, Oct. 5.—A test of the electricity supplied by the River Shannon development scheme was made between 6 p. m. yesterday and 7:30 a. m. today. Future tests are scheduled, and if all are as satisfactory as today's, the government will be ready to supply current to the entire Irish Free State by the end of October. The Shannon project, which cost $20,000,000, was completed in less than five years.

WIFE MURDER DENIED IN COURT BY BANK CLERK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5. — [Special.]—Robert A. McPherson Jr., indicted for the death of his young wife in the face of a coroner's jury verdict holding she was a suicide, today pleaded not guilty to a charge of strangling her to death with a pajama belt. Bail was not asked for the youthful bank clerk, who was remanded to jail pending trial.

Meanwhile, Policeman R. J. Allen, whose persistent and "unauthorized" attempts to solve the mystery of Mrs. McPherson's death caused his own suspension, as well as McPherson's indictment, was ordered restored to duty by the district commissioners. Allen had refused to appear before the special board named by the commissioners to investigate the grand jury's charges of inefficiency against the police department in the handling of the case, asserting that he could not be compelled to appear while under suspension.

Courtroom Jammed.

District Supreme Court Justice Peyton Gordon's court room was crowded to suffocation point this morning when the first step in the government's prosecution of McPherson was taken. Brought from the district jail in the "Black Maria" and handcuffed to another young white prisoner, McPherson smiled reassuringly at his father and mother as he entered the court room to be arraigned. A faint smile played about his lips as he listened to the clerk's reading of the indictment against him.

"How do you plead?" asked the clerk.

Returned to Jail.

"Not guilty," responded McPherson in a firm, even tone, turning his head and smiling again at his parents sitting among the spectators. After a brief conference with his attorney, John E. Leahy, the youth was hustled back to the cell room in the courthouse basement and a few minutes later was on his way back to the jail.

Leahy had agreed with John E. Laskey, the special prosecutor named by Attorney General Mitchell, not to press for immediate trial pending completion of the justice department investigation of the case.

MILK SICKNESS, CAUSED BY WEED, ATTACKS FAMILY

Dry Pastures to Blame; Farmers Warned.

An outbreak of "milk sickness," which attacked five members of a family was reported yesterday by Dr. W. E. Walsh at Morris, Ill. He warned that the disease may be prevalent this fall because the pastures have been burned out by drought. Dr. Walsh says the disease is caused by the drinking of milk from cows which have eaten the "white snake root" plant which remains green after pasturage is dried up. Although cattle often become poisoned from the plant, cows giving milk seldom show symptoms of the illness. Persons drinking their milk, however, become seriously ill.

Poison from Weed.

The poison of the white snake plant has been separated and identified by Dr. James F. Cauch of the government bureau of animal husbandry, Dr. Walsh said. The sickness existed in the lowlands of the middle west and as far south as Georgia 50 and 75 years ago, he said, many early settlers giving up their land and going back east because they did not know how to combat it.

The mother of Abraham Lincoln is known to have died of milk sickness, Dr. Walsh stated. Dr. William Osler, former authority of Johns Hopkins Medical school, named it "the most mysterious disease."

"The poison of 'milk sickness' takes hold of the liver, making the digestion of fat impossible," Dr. Walsh said. "The treatment consists in giving alkalis and injections of glucose into the veins.

Warns Farmers on Weed.

"To be safe during this dry season, all farmers should have their county agents search for the white snake root plant in hollows and underbrush and along all streams of their land."

Because of outbreak of the disease near Effingham and Vandalia, the Illinois department of agriculture recently has put out "snake root bulletins," warning milk producers about the disease and telling them how to recognize the plant and eradicate it.

Alimony Delayed

[Dubois Photo.]

Mrs. Alta Warsawsky Shorr, who lives in the Belden Stratford hotel with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Warsawsky, has been given until Oct. 26 to prove her grounds for temporary alimony from her estranged husband, Maurice J. Shorr, investment banker. When Circuit Judge Lynch learned yesterday that Mrs. Shorr is employed by the Chicago theater as a ballet dancer he temporarily denied her plea for support money. When Mrs. Shorr filed suit for divorce May 25 she charged her husband with having a "superiority complex" which prevented a contented marriage. Before her marriage at the age of sixteen, Mrs. Shorr was a member of the San Carlos and Ravinia opera ballets.

PUGILIST SEEKS DIVORCE; SAYS WIFE BEAT HIM

Put Over Plate Barrage, Mauler Complains.

Eddie Anderson, featherweight pugilist, accused his wife, Mrs. Alice Fischer Anderson, of "great austerity of temper" and cruelty in a bill for divorce filed yesterday in the Superior court. He will seek the custody of their 3 year old child, Alice, whom his wife has neglected, according to the charges. He resides at 10923 South Park avenue.

Hurled Plates, He Complains.

Defying his prowess as a professional boxer, Mrs. Anderson was accused of striking him with a fork and throwing breakfast plates at him on March 28, 1928, about four years after their marriage. Another charge was that she broke a vanity case over his head and then left him for a week.

Most of their quarrels, according to the bill, resulted from Mrs. Anderson's alleged neglect of their child. She would frequently leave her at home with a maid, but when Anderson would arrive home the child would be alone in the house.

Opposes Alimony Claims.

Anderson went to Montreal last March 10 for a prize fight. In spite of his protests, his wife visited Canada at the same time, leaving the child in the care of a colored maid, he charges. This caused the final separation. Mrs. Anderson lives at the Florence apartment hotel, 5406 Winthrop avenue, which her mother owns. He will oppose Mrs. Anderson's claim for alimony.

Deserted After 31 Years, Wife Says in Divorce Bill

After thirty-one years of married life Anton Bucher left their home at 5914 South Wood street on a hunting trip and has never returned, according to the divorce bill of Mrs. Lena Bucher filed yesterday in the Superior court. The desertion occurred March 20, 1927, according to Attorney Victor Frohlich, representing Mrs. Bucher. They were married in 1896.

SIMPSON LAYS TRANSIT DELAY TO COMPANIES

Demands Carriers Form Reorganization Body.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The blame for the delay in the transportation negotiations was nailed more firmly on the door of the transit companies yesterday by James Simpson, chairman of the citizens' committee.

In transmitting the report to Ald. Joseph B. McDonough of the "deadlock committee," headed by Charles M. Thompson, Mr. Simpson sent a covering letter emphasizing the urgency of a reorganization committee.

"They," said Mr. Simpson, referring to the Thompson committee, "have recommended a logical and practical course. A reorganization agreement is imperative. The most practical and feasible method of securing such an agreemnt is through a reorganization committee. Such a committee should be selected at once by the representatives of the companies involved. No one except the companies can appoint such a committee. Indeed, it should have been appointed two months ago.

"Companies Must Act."

"Necessarily, such a committee, to obtain results, must work out a financial structure and obtain an accord to it. This committee must also prepare the plan upon which the present holders will exchange their securities for securities in the new corporation. Again, no one but the present companies can undertake this task. Just as obviously, such a committee is compelled to ascertain upon what basis the needed added millions can be obtained to provide extensions, new equipment, and other betterments.

"No promise of improved and extended service is of any value until the pledge makers demonstrate that their financial setup is sound and capable of providing the necessary credit which will insure the extensions and improvements needed by the car riders. The car riders and the public are entitled to every reasonable assurance that better and more satisfying transportation will be provided. Therefore, we indorse the recommendation regarding a reorganization committee."

Requires Fiscal Merger.

Arguing the recommendation still further, the Simpson letter goes on:

"It is idle to attempt to solve the transportation problem without convincing evidence of the ability of the companies to perform the service which they assume in accepting a grant from the city. From our viewpoint, the existing companies have not made such a showing. A consolidation of the transit facilities necessitates a merger of the fiscal interests of thousands of security holders. There are divergent interests represented in the protective committees of the several companies, and there are many investors who are not represented by any protective committee."

The Simpson letter does plain talking on two other subjects. One of these is the program for subways and extensions of surface and elevated lines, on which the letter says:

"We approve just as heartily the subcommittee's recommendation with reference to a program for subways and extensions of lines. The estimated cost of the subways must of necessity be in the hands of the reorganization committee before it can complete its task. It must know how much new money is to be raised. It is also essential to careful estimating of future earnings that the plans for subways and extensions be determined before the financial structure is finally decided.

"We have been assured by the engineers to whom this work has been assigned that they will be ready to report by Oct. 14 on a program of construction and improvements for the first ten years of the ordinance franchise. In our opinion this engineering group has had ample time to prepare a comprehensive, if not an exhaustive, report; and we accordingly anticipate a large amount of informative material from them, with which they can reasonably be expected not only to give the basis of each recommendation but prove its value. They have promised, and we expect, specific recommendations on all extensions and improvements which the estimated income of the companies can provide for."

Wants Ordinance Plans.

In addition Mr. Simpson suggests to the aldermen that the lawyers go to work again on the ordinance. The chairman of the citizens' committee puts this suggestion in the following form:

"May we suggest that we believe that intensive work should be resumed in the ordinance-franchise. This work can well go along concurrently with that of the reorganization committee. No reason occurs to us why either should interfere with the other. Sundry important sections of the proposed ordinance can not only be agreed upon, but the exact text of each phrased while the financial features of the ordinance are being worked out."

HAUNTS OF GAY DOGS IN PARIS OF '90S FALL BEFORE U. S. TALKIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 5.—Provoking lament from greybearded Parisians, the Theatre des Capucines, for 35 years one of the most elegant of all boulevard show houses, has succumbed to the American talkie invasion and will henceforth be known as Cinema des Capucines. Its history during that time is equivalent in a great degree to the history of the upper crust for the theater's luxurious boxes had always been an amusement purveyor par excellence for royalty visiting Paris.

The biggest Paris comedy and opera stars have trod its boards at one time or another, including Gaby Deslys and Yvonne Printemps, both well known oldtimers on Broadway. Jeanne Marnac, Max Dearly, Gaston Dubosc, Prince Rigadin, and other theatrical luminaries had also played there.

The announcement made by the management today said: "The present perfection of the cinema art [meaning the advent of the talkies] will allow us to continue offering our patrons performances which are just as artistic as ever." While this is applauded by the rapidly Americanized French youth, it brings only groans from the old boys whose salad days coincided with the palmy period of the aristocratic old show house. Their state of mind was not improved by today's rumor that the Theatre de L'avenue, another old time show house, has recently "degenerated" into the advance guard of theaters about to yield to the pressure of the Yankee talkie.

WAITER QUARREL THEORY ON CLUB BOMB FIZZLES

When a quarrel among waiters of the Lake Shore Athletic club was aired yesterday before Judge Philip J. Finnegan, detectives believed the quarrel might be an explanation of the bombing of the club building last Tuesday evening. Lieut. George Barker, head of the bomb squad, questioned all the participants and later said he was satisfied the waiters' fight had no connection with the bombing.

Joseph Dufleck, 1508 North La Salle, a waiter who was discharged by the management, had obtained warrants, charging assault, against John Kerwin and Leon Peterson. When those two appeared in court yesterday they were accompanied by H. Albers, head waiter, who asked a warrant charging Dufleck with assault. Dufleck said the trouble was over wages paid by the club, and intimated the bombing was done by dissatisfied employes, but he had no information to substantiate his belief.

CHICAGO MOOSE TO RAISE $250,000 FOR BOYS' TOWN

A fund of $250,000 to build five buildings for the boys' village, Mooseheart, is to be raised by Greater Chicago lodge No. 3, Loyal Order of Moose.

The entire village, when completed, will have thirty buildings and will cost about $1,800,000. It will house 500 boys. The village was planned by Secretary of Labor James Davis, who is director general of the order. He is also chairman of the Supreme lodge committee in charge of raising funds to complete the village by 1933, when it is to be dedicated during the World's Fair.

Sycamore to Celebrate Opening of New Paving

The town of Sycamore has set aside next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday as a holiday to celebrate the opening of new pavement on route 64. A delegation from St. Charles and from Chicago's West Town Chamber of Commerce will take part in the affair.

RUTH M'CORMICK TEAMS POULTRY WITH POLITICS

Guides New Farm Project as She Plans Campaign.

Poultry and politics. Not ordinarily a congenial pair, together they constitute the double barrelled occupation to which Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick is devoting herself these autmn days. That she is giving to each one its due, and will continue to do so, is the boast of the energetic owner of the model Rock River dairy farms at Byron, Ill. Besides, there is the full time job of being a mother to Katrina, John, and Elizabeth, alias "Baisie."

With her campaign for the United States senatorship, in opposition to Senator Charles S. Deneen, already gathering momentum, Mrs. McCormick is dividing her time between her headquarters in Chicago and her farm at Byron. Here, she is busy rounding up the personnel of her campaign forces. There, she is overseeing the farm in general, and the poultry department in particular.

A Scientific Undertaking.

For the latter undertaking is an innovation, and the superintending of the operations in the latest model, efficient hen houses, and landscaping of the grounds around, is of especial interest. Like all the undertakings at Rock River farms, the project is based on the most scientific methods and the best equipment obtainable, as well as the best of stock.

"I make it a rule," Mrs. McCormick explained yesterday during a general survey of her lands, "never to exhibit at a stock show any animal that has not been bred and born on this farm. I think I'm perhaps the only exhibitor in the country with such a rule. The number of visitors and our correspondence proves, I believe, that the things we have been able to do here in a scientific way are widely known."

Starts Campaign Talks.

But the new hen houses receive only their due merit of attention. Already Mrs. McCormick, who traveled more than 10,000 miles and made from one to four speeches a day in her campaign for her present post of congresswoman at large from Illinois, is busy addressing meetings.

Yesterday was the last day on which she and all the members of her family will be together until the Christmas holidays. So it was made the occasion for an informal family gathering. Tomorrow Katrina will depart for school at Aiken, S. C. Mrs. McCormick will divide her time as usual between Chicago and Byron, and the two younger children will remain at the farm, continuing their education with tutors.

"By the latter part of next week," she said of her political outlook, "I expect to have my personnel picked and ready to start out in earnest. It promises to be interesting."

BRUNDAGE MEN SHY AT SWITCH TO G. O. P. TICKET

Make Republicans Leave Coalition, They Say.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Cook county's judicial campaign took on what might pass for a few metaphysical aspects yesterday. The Brundage sponsors of the "People's Ticket Against Coalition" advanced a claim that theirs is the "real Republican" ticket. They said their ticket contains four times as many Republican candidates as the Republican three cylinder ticket for Superior court. As to their proposal that the Republican organization put the twelve anti-coalitionists on the Republican ticket, they set forth that they are not knocking at the door as supplicants for adoption, but are merely asking for the right to use their own name.

"The transcendental fact is this," said Edward J. Brundage. "The People's Ticket Against Coalition is the actual Republican ticket. It has four times as many Republican candidates as the partial Republican ticket.

"Not Asking a Place."

"Our candidates are not asking to be placed on the Republican ticket. They feel they are just where they belong, on the people's ticket, because they have become candidates in order that the people might have a choice. The talk about going on the Republican ticket to fill the vacant spots comes from the rank and file of Republican voters and workers who are indignant because only a partial Republican ticket is offered."

The twelve Brundage non-coalition candidates in conference took the stand that they would not consider any proposal to be placed in the Republican column unless the sitting Republican judges who are on the Democratic ticket also go back under the Republican party circle. The Republican organization so far has been frigid towards the amalgamation idea; and last night leaders expressed the opinion that the middle would remain as it is.

Shield Sitting Judges.

Meanwhile, the seventeen sitting Superior court judges were placed in the category of the immune in the night's campaigning of the Republicans. In conformity with the customary dignity attaching to judicial elections, the present judges who are seeking reelection are to be set as far apart from the fighting as possible. Conversely, it is planned that the sitting judges, in their platform campaigning, will do little more than show themselves and make speeches disassociated from partisan and factional politics.

The real fighting will be over the vacancies—three on the Superior and two on the Circuit court bench—although at the polls this battle will enmesh the whole tickets in the results, as the twenty high men for Superior court win.

Deneenites Under Fire.

The battling of the "85 per cent vacant" Republican ticket, so called because it has only three nominees for twenty Superior court places, last night was directed against E. I. Frankhauser and Municipal Judge Daniel Trude, the two Deneen candidates for vacancies running on the Democratic ticket. Thomas V. Sullivan, in addressing a Republican rally, called Anton J. Cermak "the sugar daddy for two Deneen orphans."

"There is evidence," he said, "that when Papa Tony is looking the other way the two Deneen orphans will find bent pins in their chairs. Trude and Frankhauser, as Deneen orphans on the Democratic ticket, have displaced two good Democrats and all is not harmony in Step-daddy Cermak's family."

Recorder Clayton Smith, new Democratic managing chairman, mapped out the campaign at the golf links, and this week activities are to be launched. Meanwhile the candidates are awaiting the bar primaries, the dates for which are to be announced early this week.

FLYING POLICEMEN CATCH SUSPECT IN BARGE MAN'S DEATH

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—After a series of setbacks, New York police officers were successful early today in the department's first aerial attempt to capture an escaping suspect.

Early this morning an amphibian plane piloted by Arthur Chamberlain, newly appointed assistant secretary to the police commissioner, and carrying also Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney, with three assistants, overtook in Boston harbor the tugboat Harry S. Keeler and arrested Capt. William G. Baker.

The plane immediately started back to New York, where Baker must face a charge in connection with the death here of Capt. William Mehaffey, a barge commander and an alleged victim of a fatal beating at Baker's hands.

The airplane pursuit of the tugboat with the suspect aboard started yesterday.

MORE HOOSIERS TO BE ARRESTED IN DRY SCANDAL

80 Secret U. S. Warrants Awaited at Calumet.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Calumet politicians and officials are in a state of high tension waiting for the appearance of deputy United States marshals with eighty secret warrants which will be served in Gary and East Chicago Monday and Tuesday.

Secret service of the warrants is in accordance with orders of a federal grand jury which yesterday named almost 300 persons in this end of the state in indictments, mostly for violations of the dry law. United States Attorney Oliver Loomis promises that the list of those to be arrested will reveal some surprises, and all manner of speculation is being made as to their identity.

Trials Planned in November.

United States Marshal Emmet Hall will be in Hammond on Monday and Tuesday and those arrested will be taken there for approval of bonds.

Mr. Loomis announced today that he will attempt to bring most of the 300 defendants to trial in November. Most of the Lake county cases involve three big conspiracies to violate the dry law and all the defendants will be arraigned before Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick in Hammond on Nov. 4. At that time the government will make a strenuous effort to have an early trial date set for all three.

The exact natures of two of the conspiracies are being kept secret until the defendants are arrested. The first implicates a number of East Chicagoans, including Mayor Raleigh P. Hale, Chief of Police James W. Regan and Chief of Detectives Martin Zarkovich. Several more will be added with the new arrests.

Capiases Being Drawn.

It is generally believed here that one of the secret conspiracies deals with the "Carling incident" and today's reports were that defendants outside Gary will be included. This "incident" started with the capture of a truck load of Canadian beer en route from Detroit to Chicago by Gary police last Feb. 11. The beer was ordered destroyed, but whether this actually was done is a matter on which opinions vary.

The third conspiracy has most of northern Indiana guessing. Almost every one of prominence in the county has been suggested as a possible defendant, but the officials will say nothing.

Today Mrs. Margaret Cowgill, clerk of the United States District court here, spent most of her time drawing up arrest capiases which will be turned over to Marshal Hall on Monday.

DELAYS DECISION ON THOMPSON ACCOUNTING SUIT

The Illinois Supreme court at Springfield yesterday delayed final judgment in the $1,000,000 accounting suit of THE TRIBUNE against William Hale Thompson and six others, in connection with the collection of real estate expert fees from the city, until the next February term. The action was taken by the court to allow attorneys for THE TRIBUNE until Feb. 1 next to file briefs and arguments in the appeal of the defendants.

Josephine Faxon Becomes Bride

Wears Satin

The marrage of Miss Josephine Hood Faxon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Faxon of Highland Park, and Richardson Revell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander H. Revell, was solemnized yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Only members of the families and a few friends attended the ceremony, which was followed by a large reception at Exmoor Country club.

The bride wore a princess gown of eggshell satin and a tulle veil suspended from a cap of rose point lace and carried a sheaf of calla lilies. Her sister, Mrs. Joseph Lane, who acted as matron of honor, and Miss Priscilla Colt of Pittsfield, Mass., the maid of honor, wore vivid green princess gowns with matching hats and slippers, and carried bronze chrysanthemums. The flower girls, Joan Revell and Lorraine Hoover, wore frocks of peach colored chiffon, and held baskets of autumn flowers.

Alexander H. Revell Jr. was best man. Mr. Revell and his bride will live in Highland Park.

SELLS ARSENIC WITH INSURANCE; HELD FOR DEATHS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Oct. 5.—A new series of arsenic murders was unearthed in the town of Horitz today with the arrest of a life insurance agent, who sold a package of arsenic with every policy. Upon hearing of his arrest the agent's brother, who was operating the same game, immediately committed suicide.

The two brothers, Franz and Josef Karesch, had worked up a neat business among the ignorant peasants. Their method was to trace out rustics who were anxious to get rid of a member of the family. They would then approach these prospects with an attractive offer of a policy for the prospective victim.

The peasants persuaded their relatives to sign up, then poured a bit of arsenic in their coffee and collected. With the arrest of Karesch the police expect to solve a string of mysterious poisoning cases.

ADMIRAL RIPS INTO CHURCHILL ON WAR POLICY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer in the last government and first lord of the admiralty during the war, who has been visiting in Chicago, is fiercely attacked as "a headstrong political novice," and charged with effecting the resignation of Lord Fisher from the admiralty during the critical war period, in Admiral Sir R. H. Bacon's official biography of Lord Fisher, published today.

The book defends Lord Fisher for not resigning until after Mr. Churchill's distastrous Dardanelles project in 1915, by saying he was against the project from the start.

Mr. Churchill's services to the navy, says the book, were largely diluted with failure.

Police Surprise 3 Safe Robbers; One Captured

Investigating a report of a burglary early this morning in a warehouse of the Shaffer Oil and Refining company at Reese street and the river, Policemen Thomas McCarron and John Ryan of the Hudson avenue district discovered three men tampering with the office safe by flash light. Two escaped, and the third, identified as Charles Niwicki, 32 years old, 3457 North Springfield avenue, surrendered as the policemen opened fire. He refused to name his accomplices and was locked up for further questioning today.

William C. Boyden Jr., Chicago attorney, and Miss Margaret Wachholz of Chicago were married yesterday afternoon in New York. The marriage followed by a month Mr. Boyden's divorce from Mrs. Mary Carpenter Boyden, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter of Chicago.

Present at the ceremony were Mr. Boyden's sister, Mrs. Frances Peabody Magoun, and her husband, of Boston, and his uncle, John H. Finlay. Mr. Boyden and his bride will tour New England for a month. On their return to Chicago they will live at 900 North Michigan avenue.

Mr. Boyden is the son of the late William Cowper Boyden Sr., former president of the Chicago Bar association. He is a member of the law firm of Fisher, Boyden, Kales and Bell.

He Plans to Fool Bandits but They Fool Him First

His plan to outwit a pair of robbers last night cost Andrew L. Cervak, 1757 West Washington boulevard, his wallet holding $100. When the gunmen approached Cervak's car in which he was sitting with Miss Anna Niemeyer in front of her home, 4521 Wrightwood avenue, Cervak anticipated a search and dropped the billfold to the floor. Informing him they didn't want his money but the car, the robbers ordered the couple out before Cervak could retrieve his wallet and drove away.

BRAND SLOVAK CHIEF AS TRAITOR; SENT TO PRISON

50,000 Angry Followers Protest Sentence.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRATISLAVA, Czecho - Slovakia, Oct. 5.—Ten weeks' session in the most important treason trial since the creation of the Czecho-Slovakian republic in 1919 ended today with the juryless court of three judges sentencing Prof. Albert Tuka, secretary of the Slovakian Peoples' party and leader of 50,000 militant Slovakian Fascists, to 15 years in prison, with three years' loss of civil rights and permanent deprivation of the title of professor.

The totally unexpected verdict was greeted with howls of protest from a mob of 10,000 people, crowding the space in front of the court house. Mounted police were forced to intervene to establish order. Protest meetings are slated to take place in numerous towns tomorrow. The severity of the sentence has greatly increased the feeling of hostility between the Czechs and Slovaks in all parts of the country.

Tuka, an ardent Slovakian patriot, was charged with founding a semi-secret armed "Rodobrana." It was claimed that organization, which was patterned along the same lines as the Austrian Heimwehr, proposed that Slovakia should secede from Czecho-Slovakia and unite with Hungary.

Sought Aid of Reds, Charge.

The "Rodobrana" is alleged to have engaged Col. L. Kovacs, a Hungarian officer, as military adviser, and despite the Fascist trend of the organization, the prosecution maintained that Tuka tried to line up communists, besides the 50,000 armed members of the "Rodobrana."

The prosecution's gravest charge, however, is that Tuka planned to occupy Bratislava with 18,000 Slovakian autonomists last November, throwing out the Czech officials and occupying the railroads and public buildings throughout Slovakia.

The fact that the government, despite the severity of the charges, failed to present much condemning testimony, led to the general expectation that Tuka would either be freed or else be handed a trifling prison sentence. Together with Tuka, Anton Snasky, another alleged plotter, was given five years, although a third defendant, Alexander Mach, was acquitted.

Sought Slovakian Autonomy.

Tuka's defense was that he acted only for the love of the Slovakian people in demanding Slovakian autonomy within Czecho-Slovakia.

He claimed he was working to establish a new manner for Czechs and Slovaks living together, since the Pittsburgh treaty—providing for the formation of the Czecho-Slovakian republic—was only valid for ten years and expired this year. This treaty was signed under Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, now president of Czecho-Slovakia.

Tuka will be in prison on Oct. 27, when the Slovakian Peoples' party will present him as their chief candidate at the coming elections.

The resignation of the two sole Slovakian cabinet ministers is expected as a result of the sentence passed on Tuka. While the Slovakian element of the country is seething with indignation, the pro-Slovak newspaper Slovak was suppressed tonight for printing an article by Pater Hlinka stating that 500,000 Slovakians will back up Tuka solidly. Appeals by both Tuka and Sazky for release on $8,700 bonds were refused.

LOSING AND REGAINING THE PANAMA CANAL.

The Panama canal was dug by the United States. It is now controlled by the United States. It is fortified. The tolls are levied under treaty, and although it is required by that agreement that these imposts shall not be discriminatory in favor of American shipping, it is nevertheless an American ship canal, possessed, defended, and controlled by the United States.

If so distinguished a man as John Hay when secretary of state had carried through his first isthmian treaty negotiations with Great Britain the canal would have been dug at the expense of the United States taxpayers, but it would have been neutralized. It could not have been fortified. It could not be defended or held in war. It would now be as much British as American. It would be seized by the greatest sea power in time of need. When Hay surrendered American welfare there was no question as to what that power then was and for years would be. It was Great Britain. Hay signed a treaty proposing that the United States should dig a shipway connecting two American coasts and be unable to control it.

A delightful Briton who was denying that the Vice President of the United States could have social precedence over him, Lord Pauncefote, joined Mr. Hay in the diplomatic work. He was ambassador of Great Britain, the first to the United States. As ambassador he was a representative of the crown, a minister being accredited only from one government to another. The new ambassador, as the alter ego of the crown, would recognize that the President of the United States represented a sovereignty, but was unprepared to go further. Mr. and Mrs. Hobart should make the first call on him and Lady Pauncefote, if a Vice President and his lady were to be recognized. Mrs. Hobart good-naturedly countered this doctrine and in the end the ambassador's coach, on the precise instructions of his foreign office in London, stopped on the way at the Hobart door in Washington.

John Hay had been a midwesterner. He had been one of Lincoln's private secretaries. He had written some spirited verses of the midwestern soil. The people of the Mississippi valley could repeat "Little Breeches" with enjoyment. Hay as a diplomat with London affiliations had become irritated by the mention of this. "And thar sot Little Breeches, and chirped, as peart as ever you see, 'I want a chaw of terbacker, and that's what's the matter of me.'" It's retained in American anthologies. "Pike County Ballads" may preserve John Hay's name when it's been forgotten that he had a part in American diplomacy in Spain, England, and the department of state in Washington.

An American secretary of state who was embarrassed by the fact that he once had been a vernacular part of the Illinois-Mississippi valley country and a British ambassador who could not see the first in succession to the American chief magistracy unless that dignitary appeared first at his own door knocker agreed on a treaty which now seems incredible.

Pauncefote was inducing another country to build a new trade route and leave it unprotected. Behind him was the tradition which had thrown trade routes across the world under British guns mounted on the soil of other countries, as at Gibraltar. Wherever the British merchant marine needed British artillerymen they were there. With Hay there was the sense that this was right and inevitable.

The Hay-Pauncefote treaty to govern isthmian interoceanic canal construction—then considered with regard to the Nicaraguan route—was signed Feb. 5, 1900, and offered to the United States senate, where, as so often in the history of American international relations, a wisdom prevailed which was unknown to the department of state, to the diplomats exposed to foreign influence, and to the administration itself. In the wisdom of the senate, even if it abided in the minority of merely one more than one-third of the voting body, there has remained a sense of treaty prudence, of national guardianship, and of the future needs of the United States which frequently has been lacking in the administrative acts of the executive government. Hay had signed his name to a foolish and improvident agreement. It is useless to plead the explanations which lie in its historical past. They may illuminate the errors of a man overimpressed or oppressed by this background, but they would not have answered the accusations of the future. They could not explain an internationalized, undefended Panama canal, built by American money but out of American control, unfortified, undefended, flanked by British naval bases and useless to the United States when the United States might need it most for its own security.

If the executive department of the United States, the President, Mr. McKinley, and his secretary of state, Mr. Hay, had been given their way, Lord Pauncefote, the fidgety gentleman who stipulated that Mrs. Hobart must call on his family before his family called on hers, would have laid on the desk of the British foreign office this almost greater than the victory of Nelson at Trafalgar. We cannot believe that it would have stood the test of necessity, but what an incongruous act it would have been to set the name and good faith of the United States to such an agreement?

It is the conventional explanation of Hay's subservience to Pauncefote and to British requirements that he had the Clayton-Bulwer treaty facing him and that a solemn covenant of his country embarrassed him. This treaty was the product of pre-civil war diplomacy when the then popular British novelist was sent as minister to Washington and took up with Clayton, Zack Taylor's secretary of state, a settlement of Central American troubles growing largely if not wholly out of British intrigue in those regions.

The instinct, intelligence and policy which have made the British empire were engaged in making complications along the inevitable course of a new waterway and for the altogether moral reasons always found by the British in a field of oil or other material interests. A court plaster strip of Central American coast, known as the Mosquito coast, had been occupied reaching down to and covering the canal territory. The excuse of occupation was, as always, one of general humanity. The consequence was, as always, the creation of an area of special interest. Clayton, trying to clear up the record, had to recognize the fact which was one of British possession of territory. It was 1849-'50—many preoccupations—a war with Mexico just ended, a war between the states just becoming inevitable, the present uncertain, the future uncharted. What Clayton yielded in these circumstances offers no excuse for John Hay in 1900.

Inasmuch as the Hay treaty failed the episode has not been allowed to detract from his career, but it is a poignant incident which should not be forgotten. It is instructive and admonitory. The administration was as confident of putting the agreement through the senate as Mr. Wilson was confident of having his way with the covenant of the league of nations. Republican senators and Republican newspapers broke with the administration on the issue.

Platt of Pennsylvania, Hawley of Connecticut, Mason of Illinois, and others declared the necessary truth of national life. The Clayton-Bulwer treaty was abrogated by the inherent unacceptability of its terms. It was an agreement to which a nation could not possibly continue to subscribe. It had the element of destructiveness which made it invalid. The United States could not hold as forever binding a signature which would be ruinous, and the laws of nations recognize and justify the process by which such mistakes can be remedied. Technically, if that were important, Great Britain had abrogated it by settlements in reserved and forbidden regions. That aside, it was abrogated and denounced by national necessity and destiny, an unassailable position in national realism, but one which Hay could not see.

Nothing had been done under the older treaty because of troublous times, with the Crimean war coming in Europe and the civil war in the United States. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty also came into a troubled period. Great Britain was in the darker days of the Boer war and Anglophobes in America were making the most of that. Politically the empire was a bad horse to back here and an incident of the war helped the opposition in the senate. The American consul in Pretoria resigned, giving as his reason the statement that his position was intolerable because the British censors opened and held his official mail and because Mr. Hay would not support him. Even administration senators were convinced that Hay's full purpose in abandoning American interests was to reach an alliance with Great Britain.

It soon became apparent that the administration hopes of success were visionary. The treaty could not be accepted without provision for the control and defense of the canal by the United States. The senate, sound in its nationalism as it frequently has been when tested, made it plain that the canal when built, whether by the Nicaraguan or the Panama route, should be American, as it is today, but the guaranty of that was not found in the wisdom of the administration, able and conservative as it was in many respects.

There is a danger in the American system of government when it touches great international affairs, a danger seemingly inherent in it.

American administration is ephemeral, subject to popular hysteria and emotionalism. A crown is a continuity—until a revolution knocks it off. A republican executive thinks in the terms of the next election. A king and his ministers think with regard to the next grandson. The American protection against the fatality of this contact of the expedient present and the prudent and prescient future is that curious, powerful and erratic body, the United States senate, sometimes revealing only crossroads politics and at other times indicating real elder statesmanship, dignified and justified in the consequences of its decisions, as in this one which gave the United States the control of the canal which connects its two coasts.

TRANSPORTATION.

[Pittsburgh Post-Gazette.]

It is recalled in an official report on the commerce of the Mississippi river system that its banner year of the nineteenth century was 1889, when the total reached 28,289,502 tons. Yet, with the tonnage of the system in 1928 aggregating 62,500,000 tons, nearly two and a half times the old figure, we still speak of the rivers today as if they were "coming back." It should illuminate the transportation subject in general.

In the 40 year period under consideration, the railroad mileage of the country increased from 167,191 to 249,131. In addition, the great new transportation service, that of the automobile, developed, and now the airplane is giving similar promise. Yet, with the railroad systems still expanding, the demand for automobiles increasing yearly, and the call for aircraft steadily gaining volume, the insistence on waterway improvement also is growing.

The answer, of course, is that the population of the country has practically doubled in the last 40 years. Not only that, the demands of the average individual have been multiplied by a degree of prosperity never before known, production rates have literally been forced to new heights. Such a population—such a prosperous population—demands all the transportation facilities possible.

PROCESSION.

PROPHECY OF BETRAYAL

NOW, before the feast of the Passover, Jesus, knowing that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own that were in the world, he loved them unto the end. And during supper, the devil having already put into the heart of Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, to betray him, Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he came forth from God, and goeth unto God, riseth from supper, and layeth aside his garments; and he took a towel, and girded himself. Then he poureth water into the basin, and began to wash the disciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

So he cometh to Simon Peter. He saith unto him, "Lord, doest thou wash my feet?" Jesus answered and said unto him, "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt understand hereafter." Peter saith unto him, "Thou shalt never wash my feet." Jesus answered him, "If I wash thee not, thou hast no part with me." Simon Peter saith unto him, "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head." Jesus saith to him, "He that is bathed needeth not save to wash his feet, but is clean every whit; and ye are clean, but not all." For he knew him that should betray him; therefore said he, "Ye are not all clean."

So, when he had washed their feet, and taken his garments, and sat down again, he said unto them, "Know ye what I have done to you? Ye call me, Teacher, and Lord; and ye say well; for so I am. If I then, the Lord and the Teacher, have washed your feet, ye also ought to wash one another's feet. For I have given you an example, that ye also should do as I have done to you. Verily, verily, I say unto you, A servant is not greater than his lord; neither one that is sent greater than he that sent him. If ye know these things, blessed are ye if ye do them. I speak not of you all; I know whom I have chosen; but that the scripture may be fulfilled, he that eateth my bread lifted up his heel against me. From henceforth I tell you before it come to pass, ye may believe that I am he. Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that receiveth whomsoever I send receiveth me; and he that receiveth me receiveth him that sent me."

When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in the spirit, and testified, and said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." The disciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he spake. There was at the table reclining in Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved. Simon Peter therefore beckoneth to him, and saith unto him, "Tell us who it is of whom he speaketh." He, leaning back as he was on Jesus' breast, saith unto him, "Lord, who is it?" Jesus therefore answereth, "He it is, for whom I shall dip the sop, and give it him." So, when he had dipped the sop, he taketh and giveth it to Judas, the son of Simon Iscariot. And after the sop, then entered Satan into him. Jesus therefore saith unto him, "What thou doest, do quickly." Now, no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him. For some thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus said unto him, "Buy what things we have need of for the feast"; or, that he should give something to the poor. He then having received the sop went out straightway; and it was night.

When therefore he was gone out, Jesus saith, "Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him; and God shall glorify him in himself, and straightway shall he glorify him. Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me; and as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come; so now I say unto you. A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; even as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

Simon Peter saith unto him, "Lord, whither goest thou?" Jesus answered, "Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow afterwards." Peter saith unto him, "Lord, why cannot I follow thee even now? I will lay down my life for thee." Jesus answereth, "Wilt thou lay down thy life for me? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow, till thou hast denied me thrice."

"Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in me. In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so, I would have told you; for I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I come again, and will receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also. And whither I go, ye know the way." Thomas saith unto him, "Lord, we know not whither thou goest; how know we the way?" Jesus saith unto him, "I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father, but by me. If ye had known me, ye would have known my Father also; from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him."

Philip saith unto him, "Lord, show us the Father, and it sufficeth us." Jesus saith unto him, "Have I been so long with you, and dost thou not know me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father; how sayest thou, 'Show us the Father'? Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? The words that I say unto you I speak not from myself; but the Father abiding in me doeth the works. Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me; or else believe me for the very works' sake."

Lord of our far-flung battle line,
Beneath whose awful hand we hold
Dominion over palm and pine:
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The captains and the kings depart;
Still stands thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart:
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

Far called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire;
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the law:
Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget.

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard;
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And, guarding, calls not Thee to guard;
For frantic boast and foolish word,
Thy mercy on thy people, Lord.
Amen.

TANNIC ACID FOR BURNS.

THE tannic acid treatment of burns is displacing all other methods. Tannic acid is a powder with a peculiar appearance and feel. In the treatment of burns it is used as a freshly made 2 to 3 per cent solution in water.

Dr. S. J. Seeger says four teaspoonfuls of dry tannic acid dissolved in a glass of water makes a 2½ per cent solution. Dr. W. C. Wilson advises that first aid packets contain packets of tannic acid, each containing 94 grains. The contents of one package dissolved in six ounces of water make a 2½ per cent solution. This solution will keep for about two weeks, but after that the acid is changed gradually to a less effective chemical.

Dr. Harrold says the burned area should be cleaned of gross dirt, burned clothing and charred tissue, but no great, prolonged or painful effort should be made. Since the tannic acid is in watery solution any grease or salve should be removed from the wound as a preliminary step. Gauze soaked in the tannic acid solution is then applied to the burn and kept in place with the bandages for twenty-four hours. The gauze is moistened from time to time with the solution. The bandages must be kept soppy wet. At the end of that period the dressings are thoroughly moistened and removed.

Dr. Seeger avoids the discomfort of removing sticky dressings by spraying the wound with the tannic acid solution by means of an atomizer. The wound is sprayed every half hour for about eighteen hours. This ends the tannic acid application. When the dressings are removed the wound is found to be covered with a dark brown or black dry parchment-like covering.

The burned area is not covered. It is kept under a tent to keep the clothing or bed covering from sticking. An electric light or some other form of heat may be placed under the tent to help in drying the brown coat on the wound. The burn wound heals underneath this parchment covering. No dressing is used to cover it as a rule and not much treatment is given it. In a few cases boric acid dressings, particularly at the edges, are of service. Those are the exceptional cases. As the wound heals and new tissue and skin grow under it the brown parchment falls away. There is less scarring after this method than after any other. The wound is left in the best possible condition. There is less pain and less danger of infection. It may be necessary, however, as in all kinds of severe burns, to use sedatives or to give constitutional treatment.

CAN BE DONE WITH PAIN.

Disgusted writes: How can I get rid of tattoo marks? I had some put on about a year ago and now I don't like them. Surely there must be some way to get them off.

REPLY.

They can be removed. Any skin specialist can remove them. But getting rid of them is far more difficult, more painful, and more expensive than acquiring them.

HAIRCUT HURT ONLY SAMSON.

L. D. writes: We have a nine month old baby boy. He seems to be thriving and is apparently in good health. I clipped his hair, which was very thick. Is it detrimental to his health?

REPLY.

No.

Since Delilah's time hair cutting has never harmed any Samson or Samson successor.

POWDER AND BABY SKIN.

B. M. writes: Is powder harmful to the skin of a 14 year old girl?

REPLY.

Some powders are poisonous to some skins. Some cause a kind of hay fever. As a rule, powder does not harm the skin.

DIFFICULT TO PROVE AUTO DAMAGE.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My car was hit on the rear side wheel and overturned by another car which came up on the left of me. No one saw the accident, but every one judging the mishap says I had the right of way. The man agreed before me, my friend, and one officer that he was willing to pay half the damages, but when he heard the estimate of the damage he refused to do so. I asked him if he had insurance and he said yes, but when I asked the name of the insurance company he said he had none. Can I make him pay the full damage?

W. A. E.

To prove an automobile propesty damage case it is commonly necessary to introduce at least two and sometimes more sets of witnesses to cover the issues as to defendant's negligence, plaintiff's freedom from contributory negligence, the extent of the physical damage and the proper cash measure of that damage. The cost and difficulty of such proof is usually so disproportionate to the probable amount of recovery as to make suit inadvisable.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

HERCULEAN SPORT.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a vacant lot at the corner of East Division and Stone streets. The men and boys who pass there delight in pulling large pieces of masonry out on the sidewalk to test their strength and then leave them for pedestrians to stumble over who walk down Stone street. Is there not some way of eliminating this condition, either by having the owner clear the property or the city to keep the walk cleaned? It is dangerous for one that cannot see well to pass there. M. S.

Report is made that stones have been removed from sidewalk at the corner of East Division and Stone streets and notice served on owner of vacant lot to barricade same and keep it in safe condition.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

DIVORCE ADVISABLE.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife ran away from me 17 years ago. Neither I nor any of her folks has heard from her since. Would I have to get a divorce to marry again, or could I get married without a divorce? J. O.

We strongly advise you to secure a divorce before contracting another marriage.

RAKING LEAVES IN A WHIRLWIND

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 6, 1864.

NASHVILLE.—Latest reports from Gen. Forrest's rebel command place it west of the Tennessee and Alabama railroad and moving toward Florence and Muscle Shoals, apparently with the intention of making his way out of the district across the Tennessee river. On Oct. 2 Gen. Buford with part of Forrest's forces shelled Athens for two hours, then demanded its surrender. Lieut. Col. Wade of Indiana refused the demand and the fight continued, the rebels being repulsed with heavy loss.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.—In going over the field of the recent battle we found our dead stripped of clothing. Some were horribly mutilated. Several had been murdered after being wounded.

INDIANAPOLIS.—Joseph Bingham, editor of the Sentinel and chairman of the Democratic state central committee, was arrested by order of Gen. Hovey on the ground that he is a Son of Liberty and implicated in the charges against Dodd and Bowles. He is confined in the same cell with them in the United States courthouse.

SPRINGFIELD. — An immense crowd from all parts of the state gathered here for the great mass-convention in behalf of the Union state and national tickets. Among the speakers were Maj. Gen. John A. Logan, Senator Trumbull, William Bross, Gov. Yates, Senator Doolittle of Wisconsin, Col. R. G. Ingersoll, Gen. Oglesby, Maj. Gen. Palmer and several others.

CHICAGO.—Dr. W. K. Everson and Miss Carrie J. Billings were married on Oct. 4 at the residence of John Hamlin by the Rev. C. H. Fowler.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 6, 1899.

PRETORIA.—Further dispatch of troops has been temporarily suspended. President Kruger, in an interview in reference to rumors of incursions into British territory by burghers, said the republic had no intention of acting on the aggressive unless forced to do so by the military attitude of Great Britain in massing troops on the frontier, or by sending heavy reinforcements from over the sea. Latest advices fail to confirm reports that the Boers have invaded Natal, but it seems certain that the Transvaal troops are advancing. It is expected that the British reserves will be called out tomorrow and the total number of troops to be sent to the Cape is now estimated at 50,000.

NEW YORK.—Again it was a "no race" between the Columbia and the Shamrock for the America cup. Neither of the racers got within three miles of the turning point when the race was given up in disgust. The breeze was hardly sufficient to drive a boat a mile an hour.

CHICAGO.—The illumination of the court of honor for the fall festival was even more brilliant than on the night before and all streets in the vicinity were jammed. This morning Don Manuel de Aspeiroz, Mexican ambassador to Washington, will arrive, the first of the official guests. The Mexican national band will be at the station to greet him with Mexican national airs.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCT. 6, 1919.

CHICAGO.—Gary last night was the scene of steel strike clashes which were halted with the coming of four companies of militia. Eleven arrests were made, one man was shot, another seriously injured by a beating, and citizen police in autos were fired at from the streets. A mob of 500 strikers rushed the Tyler street gates of the plant of the United States Steel corporation. Another crowd tried to force an entrance to the plant of the American Sheet and Tinplate company. Rioting also occurred near the Illinois Steel company's plant in South Chicago. Eight other companies of militia are at East Chicago and Indiana Harbor. Brig. Gen. Harry B. Smith has authority to declare martial law if necessary. Today begins the third week of the strike.

WASHINGTON.—President Wilson has made some improvement in his condition. He rested well last night.

G. O. P.'S PRAETORIAN GUARD.

Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 25.—In your editorial, "Night Riders and Reds," you aptly suggest that "The Republican party does not want for its praetorian guard a faction representing ignorance, bigotry and superstition."

The party may not want it, but they have it. The Republican party in Indiana is now and for about ten years past has been, metaphorically speaking, marching up and down the political highways and byways side by side and arm in arm with the Anti-Saloon league and the Ku Klux Klan.

Shumaker, whether in prison or out, drinking buchu or not, still carries tens of thousands of votes in his vest pocket and can defeat or elect any candidate on any ticket, as he may desire. The Republican party may not want such a faction for its praetorian guard, but the leaders in that party who are after the bacon know where and how it is to be found now as they did in 1928.

Bigotry and ignorance are in the saddle in Indiana as well as in every other state adjoining it.

The only hope is that the horse that is under the saddle may die of overwork before civilization is trampled to death.

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

DON'T FLOOD US WITH ANSWERS.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—To settle an argument, I have several questions I would like to have answered.

What is an American? Who are the genuine Yankees? Can Chinese or Japanese become citizens of the U. S. A.? Who are the 100 per cent Americans?

JOHN J. KRAILL.

THE LION'S TAIL.

Chicago, Sept. 24.—May I inquire with all earnestness as to why THE TRIBUNE is deadly anti-English? Ever since the editorial, "Yes, this is London," appeared a year ago you have followed it up with constant sneering and nagging of the English people. You not only take a keen delight in exposing petty faults of ours, but exaggerate any news item out of all proportions.

One wouldn't mind if criticisms were offered in the proper manner. It is only when you get so hard boiled and cocksure of yourself in your expressions that you seem to forget the meaning of fair play and good will. The English people have enough worries and struggles without the want of malice—yea, I repeat—malice.

As for myself, I would rather a thousand times be content with my three cups of tea a day and still retain the human element that finds comfort in humanity and sociability than gorge myself with three solid meals and lose these necessary insights, which, unfortunately, is the ultimate result when one becomes well fed, double chinned, and spoiled.

BERNARD SAMUEL LIPMAN.

HUMANITY FOR THE FISH.

Forest Park, Ill., Sept. 26.—On the beautiful banks of the polluted, stagnant waters of the Des Plaines river, on the northern outskirts of Maywood, where a little creek runs into the Des Plaines river, can be seen not hundreds but thousands of dead fish in lengths from 12 to 16 inches, slowly decaying. Across the river is located the forest preserve.

If we preserve the forest, why not the fish? ARTHUR A. JAHR.

REFERRED TO AIR POLICE.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—I have just written Maj. Reed Landis asking if it isn't possible for some action to be taken to prevent airplane flying above football stadiums during games this fall.

People who pay for seats do not like the nerve racking sensation of having some old dilapidated plane flying around just to give the flyer a little pleasure. It causes many to miss important plays and is a practice that should not be allowed. Is it going to require a tragic accident to cause action on this unhappy practice? G. W. ROBERT.

OPERA IN ENGLISH.

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Intermittently some self-appointed expert will give his reasons for the civic opera deficit. Some want opera in English rather than in Italian, German and French. [The peculiar thing is that one can't understand what's being said regardless of what language an aria is sung in.] Any one who has heard a couple of "he shall die, he shall die, he shall dies," and some more "his blood shall flows" has had enough of opera in English.

As for new operas, in the last two or three years we have seen "Judith," "Der Rosenkavalier," "La Cena della Beffe," "The Witch of Salem," "The Bat," and revivals of Wagnerian opera and the highly successful "Don Giovanni."

"Judith" is the most successful opera [orchestrally] that has been written in recent years. It lasted merely one season and had, I think, poor audiences. "Judith," of course, is not art modern and if the civic opera slights the Russian school [Tschaikowsky, Rimsky-Korsakov, Borodin, and the ballets of Igor Strawinsky], it is because there is no audience for such undertakings in what our eastern friends call the hinterland. Besides, these operas require a different type of singer, preferably Russian, which the civic opera doesn't' possess.

Finally, the opera-goers want to go out singing "O terra, addio," or "La donna è mobile," so what is one to do?

IRWIN ROSEN.

BELT ROADS.

Hinsdale, Ill., Sept. 23.—I believe THE TRIBUNE originated the term "Chicagoland" to designate the sphere of influence within which "metropolitan Chicago" was supposed to lie.

And yet, when those of us in Chicagoland are interested in seeing the highways completed as planned in the $100,000,000 bond issue, we are told by the Chicago Motor club and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE that we are "all wet."

If the railroads that made Chicago what it is today had not been connected by belt railroads outside the congested city yards, the jam of freight would have been insurmountable.

Take a hunch from the railroads gentlemen, and let us have "belt highways" that will route the traffic off the congested city streets. Today there is not a through paved north and south route between Mannheim road and the Fox river, nearly twenty-four miles. Think of it! And that in Chicagoland!

Look at your road maps, gentlemen, and ponder what they tell you; and we call that Du Page county is in reality a corner of Cook. W. E. MARQUAM.

ILLINOIS MINE WORKERS DEFY NATIONAL HEAD

Lewis' Demand to Drop Suit Ignored.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The contest between President John T. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America and officers of the mine workers of Illinois reached the acute stage today. Following a demand from President Lewis that the Illinois organization's executive board repudiate a libel suit brought against international officers by A. C. Lewis, chief counsel for the Illinois Miners union, a statement was issued by the latter, declaring the suit would be prosecuted and defying the national executive.

With A. C. Lewis' personal statement concerning his determination to prosecute his libel suit was a memoranda of action taken by the Illinois district board in defiance of President Lewis. It stated that the board had refused to change the district constitution, as Lewis "had ordered." In explanation of this a subjoined note said:

Much Property Involved.

"The international, with only 30,000 members—bituminous—outside of Illinois, which has 60,000 members, wants to grab the district property and wreck the Illinois agreement with the operators. Several million dollars in property is involved. The Illinois district recently loaned the international $50,000, with which to pay office rent in the Merchants Bank building at Indianapolis."

In further defiance of President Lewis, the Illinois board redistricted the Franklin county subdistrict, where a provisional president, secretary and vice president are in control for the international organization. It directed that the local unions of Christopher, Valier, Sesser, and area north of the Illinois Central tracks, formerly under the jurisdiction of subdistrict No. 9, be placed in the Duquoin subdistrict.

The local union of Logan was assigned to the Saline county subdistrict. All other local unions under the jurisdiction of subdistrict No. 9 were placed under the jurisdiction of the Williamson county subdistrict.

Refuse to Vacate Office.

Another instance of the board's defiance of President Lewis was its refusal to vacate the office of district executive board member in the Peoria district, held by George Stouffer. The memoranda stated that President Lewis had ordered vacation of this office, but that his ruling would not be followed.

President Lewis came to Springfield today, following notice of the filing of the libel suit brought by Attorney A. C. Lewis. He dictated his letter demanding disavowal of the libel suit, addressing it to "Harry Fishwick, president, and all members of the executive board of district No. 12."

Text of Lewis' Letter.

President Lewis letter read in part:

"Gentlemen:

"Yesterday four lawyers employed by District 12, acting as principals or attorneys in fact, filed suit against the officers of the international union in the amount of $250,000. This suit is based upon the fact that the international officers have informed the members of our organization of the graft and corruption existing within District 12.

"The suit within itself is ridiculous, except in so far as it reveals the frantic mental processes of men desperate with fear and indicates a breakdown in the moral fibre of the officers of the district.

"The executive board of District 12, in session today, should approve or disapprove the action of its lawyers in filing the libel suit. If the several lawyers have acted witnout the authority of the district organization, their action should be disavowed and their associations with the union severed. If the action of the lawyers is approved, it will be equivalent to the district organization severing its relations with the international union.

"It is axiomatic that a house divided against itself cannot stand and the international union will not much longer permit a continuance of existing conditions to our union in Illinois."

Foot Troubles Cause Bad Health

They affect the body in many different ways. The feet swell, burn, ache; sharp pains under heels, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on marbles; corns, callouses, ingrown nails and bunions; excessive perspiration with offensive odor, overdeveloped ankles and legs, varicose veins; legs cramp, knees stiffen; pain in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck and poor circulation. MOST PEOPLE THINK THEY HAVE RHEUMATISM, NEURITIS, ARTHRITIS, WHEN THEIR TROUBLES ARE ALL CAUSED FROM THEIR FEET. Do not be discouraged. Regardless of what your condition may be or what you have tried, or whom you have consulted, Dr. Pinkston guarantees to relieve all foot troubles and cure nine-tenths of them regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment.

COURTESY

Politeness is an essential in lasting friendship. A reputation for courtesy is enough to make a person liked, whether it be in a social or business capacity.

As with individuals, so with stores. Salespeople are frequently discourteous when they have no thought of being so. Their attitude is reflected in their customers. The store thus wins a reputation for inattention and is disliked accordingly.

LAST RITES FOR STRESEMANN TO BE HELD TODAY

Lies in State in Reichstag; Find Political Testament

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The German reichstag, to which Dr. Gustav Stresemann belonged for almost 20 years, has been turned into a huge mourning cathedral where his body lies in state tonight in the dim light of two man size candles. Young attaches of the foreign office and young students are mounting the death watch, while the whole German nation and representatives of the whole world vie in paying homage to the dead leader.

There are not enough laurels and symbols of glory in the German capital or in all German gardens for the wreaths and garlands with which the masses are trying to express their admiration of Dr. Stresemann. Italy was asked to send the laurels needed by airplanes, but owing to the recent heavy storms in the north, Italy's laurels are still drenched and not fit for transportation. Now airplanes are rushing up laurels and lilies from Holland, Belgium and France to beautify the last ceremonies for Dr. Stresemann.

Take Remains to Reichstag.

In a simple hearse, drawn by four black horses with black plumes, Dr. Stresemann's coffin was carried to the reichstag from his villa on the Wilhelmstrasse after a short ceremony in which a priest sought to console the widow and relatives with the scriptural text "blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

Overcome with grief, one of Dr. Stresemann's youngest aids fainted at the side of the coffin, and it was that truly womanly woman, Kaethe Stresemann, the German leader's comrade for more than 25 years and the greatest loser of all, who sought to impart some of the courage for which she was struggling to the boy so overwhelmed by the tragedy of his leader's sudden death.

Former Prince Sends Tribute.

Dethroned German royalty has joined the potentates of the world in floral offerings heaped in lobbies of the reichstag. There is a wreath from the former Crown Prince Wilhelm with his initials and a golden crown on the ribbon.

This morning, in the presence of his closest friends, Dr. Stresemann's safe was opened, and much to their surprise they found a voluminous manuscript which they hope will be a political testament of the deceased to the German people. It is being studied carefully this afternoon, but friends are awaiting Frau Stresemann to recover so that she may decide what she wants conveyed to the German people.

Chancellor Hermann Mueller, under the strain of emotions of the last few days, has suffered a severe relapse of his gall trouble, which took him to death's door this summer. The chancellor's weak state of health is said to be responsible for the haste with which Dr. Julius Curtius was appointed foreign minister ad interim.

DOWNERS GROVE VOTES AGAINST $600,000 BONDS

An "official" unofficial election in which the residents of Downers Grove, western suburb, signified their choice for sanitary district trustees of the suburb, last night resulted in the "election" of the three candidates on the so-called Taxyayers' ticket by a margin of almost two to one over two other tickets.

The issue in the voting was a proposed $600,000 bond issue for the construction of a new sewage disposal plant.

What actually was done was that a straw vote was taken at the instance of County Judge S. L. Rathje of Du Page county, who, with power to appoint the sanitary district trustees, said he would abide by the people's choice.

The Taxpayers' ticket, opposing the bond issue, won by a vote of 2,157, against the Independent ticket, which got 992 votes; and the sitting trustees, for the issue, who got 291. The Independents took no stand on the bond issue.

George F. Repp, A. F. Brevillier, and Clyde W. Page were the successful candidates.

John Kasprzycki, first pastor of St. John Cantius Catholic church, former general of the congregation of the Resurrection and present superior of the novitiate of the order, will celebrate today the 50th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. ## Police Sniff Mash; U.S. Agents Find Large Still Police Sergeants William Houser and Frank West, sent from the Sheffield station early this morning to investigate complaints of a beer flat operating at 1640 Diversey parkway, discovered in the rear of that address a two car garage from which came an odor of mash. The board walls were hot to touch, Sergt. Houser said. When the sergeants knocked on the door lights inside went out. Government agents later forced the door and discovered a large still, an estimated 10,000 gallons of mash, and four secret exits.

Bomb Explosion Damages South Side Drink Parlor

A bomb burst at 2 o'clock this morning in the rear of a soft drink parlor at 5551 South Halsted street. The blast caused about $400 damage and aroused dwellers within a radius of two blocks. Squads from the Englewood police station were endeavoring to find the owner of the place.

"My Skin Nearly Drove Me Mad"

"I had blemishes and blackheads so badly, and used to fuss with them so much that my face looked red and raw. On the advice of a nurse friend I got a jar of Rowles Mentho Sulphur and used it faithfully for ten days. In 3 days' time there was a big difference in my skin and today it is as soft and clear as my ten year old sister's."

The sulphur in Rowles Mentho Sulphur clears the skin while the Menthol heals the sore, broken tissue. That's the two-fold action you want for skin troubles. Try Rowles Mentho Sulphur not only for pimples and blackheads, but for dry, scaly skin, rash, and itching eczema. IT WORKS! All druggists sell it in jars ready to use. Be sure it's Rowles.

Stevedore Won Riches and Great Power.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—William J. "Fingy" Conners Sr., publisher of the Buffalo Courier-Express, leading politician and sportsman of note, dropped dead of heart disease in his home here today. He was 72 years old.

The publisher had been in ill health for several months. He kept in harness to the last, however, having spent a good part of yesterday going over plans for a new building, for his newspaper with architects. Last night he played cards with a few friends for an hour or more and was apparently in fine spirits.

Up to a few years ago Conners was active in politics and at the time ranked as one of the leading Democrats of the state, if not of the east. He served as chairman of the Democratic state committee for four years and had a hand in the selection of various gubernatorial and other candidates of that party. For years his voice was influential in the national councils of the party.

Started on the Docks.

Starting life as a dock laborer, it was then he achieved the nickname of "Fingy" which stuck to him all through the years, Conners graduated into the saloon business and later into the brewing business. He began to invest his savings at an early date in lots in South Buffalo and as the city developed in that direction his holdings rose in value by leaps and bounds.

In the early eighties he obtained a stevedore's contract with the Union Steamboat company and soon had 3,000 men on his pay roll. His bank account mounted rapidly. He went into politics and it wasn't long before opponents realized that he was a power to be reckoned with.

Becomes a Publisher.

In 1895 he bought the Buffalo Enquirer, later renamed the Star, and still later the Morning Record and the Morning Courier, which he merged.

In 1916 Conners organized the Great Lakes Transit corporation, controlling about 85 per cent of the freight and passenger steamboats on the great lakes.

The publisher was twice married. His first wife, Catherine Mahaney, died in 1881. Twelve years later he married Mary A. Jordan of West Seneca, N. Y.

Body of Old Time Actor Awaits Claim of Friends

William English, 59 years old, said to be an entertainer and an old time actor, died in the county hospital yesterday from pneumonia. He had walked into the Des Plaines street police station last Wednesday asking for aid and was sent to the hospital.

His body is in the county morgue awaiting the claim of friends who may once have known him.

Nicholas Buck, a Friend of Abraham Lincoln, Dies

CHARLES E. WARD, FIGURE IN G. O. P. POLITICS, IS DEAD

CHARLES E. WARD.

Charles E. Ward, 56 years old, for years a practicing lawyer and figure in Republican politics in Chicago, died yesterday in Jacksonville, Fla., according to word received by relatives and friends in Duquoin, Ill., his native town. He had been in ill health for several years and for several months past had been confined to his hotel room in Jacksonville. The body will be brought to Duquoin for burial tomorrow.

Some years after being admitted to the bar in Michigan in 1894, Mr. Ward became a member of the Michigan legislature, rising to speaker pro tem of the house. He disappeared suddenly after he had been tried and acquitted in connection with the death of a young woman from an illegal operation. Later he was discovered by former Senator William Lorimer, then a congressman. He was working for Mr. Lorimer, bossing a crew of laborers. Mr. Lorimer took Ward into his office and soon made him his private secretary. He held the position several years.

A brother, Harry B. Ward, for several years closely connected with Mayor William Hale Thompson, now lives in Duquoin, where he was former postmaster.

The "Unusual" at Hursen Funerals

Whenever you attend a "Hursen" funeral, you realize at once why it is that thousands of families in Chicago and its suburbs have chosen Hursen to "conduct the funeral."

It is always one's desire to give the utmost, in service and elegance, as a final expression of devotion. Small establishments cannot provide the service, the quality, the elegance of materials, the environments of a "funeral-home," the superb array of automobile equipment, as Hursen provides them.

All this remarkable service, and new and unusual elegance, cost you much less than the charges you would have to pay anywhere else, without this Hursen super-elegance and unmatched service. It is this higher quality and low price policy upon which Hursen's, the greatest of all establishments of its kind in America, has been built.

This same Hursen Policy applies to every funeral, large or small. You may imagine that your distance away from any one of Hursen's 3 funeral-homes is too great to assure you this service. This is not the case. Whether you live 1 or 20 miles away, this same "Hursen" service and elegance is at your disposal. There is no extra charge for distance. So, call Hursen, of course!"

PREPARE TO TAG CITY FOR SICK AND NEEDY CHILDREN

Benefit League Will Seek $150,000 Tomorrow.

Dear Lord, send pleasant weather
On Monday, our Tag Day,
To help Your little children
On their long, weary way.

Written several years ago by a child, hundreds of needy and sick children will have that prayer on their lips today as workers prepare for the twenty-second annual tag day of the Chicago Children's Benefit league tomorrow.

A plea that Chicagoans contribute generously to the work of the 50 institutions for children was embodied in a proclamation issued by Mayor Thompson setting the day as the official tag day of the league, whose "membership comprises charitable organizations representative of all races and creeds in Chicago."

"Because the Chicago Children's Benefit league and the charities which benefit under its auspices are worthy ones, I urge upon all citizens to contribute generously thereto," the proclamation stated. "I ask that all the police and other employés of the city of Chicago afford the women who take part in this tag day and wear the credentials of the league every assistance and courtesy."

Seek to Raise $150,000.

"We have set our goal at $150,000," Mrs. Charles E. Frankenthal said yesterday in adding her plea for a successful tag day to that of the proclamation. "All the institutions are indorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce. Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—A severe heat wave which yesterday sent the mercury into the 90s, clung on today. On this, the fourth day of the wave, the thermometers here registered 88 degrees.

PANTAGES FACING NEW CHARGE OF WITNESS FIXING

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Pantages, the husband on trial on rape charges brought by a 17-year-old girl, and the wife facing a prison sentence for killing a man in an automobile acident, felt the stern pinch of the law today from a court of justice and a county grand jury.

Wife Free Until Oct. 25.

Mrs. Pantages, on a statement of Dr. Benjaman Blank, country physician, retained her freedom on $50,000 bail because she is "dangerously ill," and incarceration "might mean death." Judge Hardy permitted filing of an application for probation, which will be heard October 25, coincident with sentence. For the death of Juro Rokumoto last June, she might be imprisoned from one to ten years.

The Rev. R. P. Shuler drew the court's ire for his remark of alleged irregularities in the trial and a further failure to answer promptly a subpœna for today's hearing. The pastor's accusations were denied from the witness stand by Ira Gay, a juror, and Charles Bryant, court bailiff. Mr. Shuler is awaiting a bench decision on contempt of court charges placed against him for the statements.

Ivan R. T. Samsonoff, a state witness, caused the grand jury indictment in the husband's trial by asserting that a private detective told him he would be "taken care of" if he gave Mr. Pantages a "break."

The disclosure added another charge to the state's previous accusations that Pantages had attempted to muzzle witnesses following an alleged attack on Eunice Pringle, a dancer, last August in his private office.

CHARGE BRITAIN AIDED SCUTTLING OF GERMAN FLEET

Chiefs Tell 'Inside Story' of Scapa Flow.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—Students of the history of the world war and its aftermaths have always felt an element of mystery in the spectacular sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow on June 21, 1919. Fifteen capital ships, seven of Germany's best cruisers and fifty destroyers of the latest type, were scuttled by their own crews—in full view of the British and, according to the latest version, with their tacit consent.

There is no doubt whatever about it—the Gemans did their own sinking, but how could they do it, as suddenly, as smoothly, as carefully as they did in the face of strict British supervision, of a superb British secret service, of recalcitrant soviet-pacifistic German sailors?

Squadron Withdrawn.

Numerous conversations with German officers of the fleet scuttled in Scapa Flow, a close study of events and conditions prior to and after the sinking of the German fleet, convey the distinct impression that Great Britain lent her tacit approval to the sinking of the German fleet. The German crews were reduced to a convenient minimum by order of British authorities—the scuttling order of Admiral Reuter was carried to the Germans by British ships—the second British battle squadron was withdrawn from Scapa Flow on the day the British knew the German admiral expected a renewal of hostilities—only an inadequate guard was left.

And the motive for this tacit British coöperation in sinking the German fleet? "Fear of distribution of the German ships among the Allies," is the answer of Capt. Prahl, commander of Germany's former crack cruiser Brummer, claims. His ship, the fastest cruiser in the German navy, went down in the Scapa Flow scuttling. He was one of the best informed eye witnesses.

British Expect Sinking.

Admiral von Reuter, in charge of the German fleet at Scapa Flow, makes no bones about it. In his book "Das Grabmal des Deutschen Flotte" he states plainly his conviction that the British admirals not only expected the sinking but were positively surprised that it did not occur earlier. It could not have been done in a German port, the admiral writes: "Even if I had known at the time that Admiral Beatty did not expect our ships to arrive undamaged at their port of destination, I could not have sunk the fleet earlier because the majority of the crew were infected with bolshevistic ideas. These elements would have prevented the scuttling of the ships."

But the British admiralty came to his aid—knowingly or unknowingly—when it ordered the crews of the German ships reduced to a minimum—when on the morning of June 21, 1919, the second British battle squadron, under the command of Admiral Sir E. Freemantle steamed away from Scapa Flow, leaving only two destroyers and a few drifters and armed motor boats to watch the German ships.

Scarcely an Accident.

This can scarcely be an accident when you learn from Admiral von Reuter that the British censor saw to it that he received only papers that were four days old. The British were fully aware that on June 21, owing to these delayed papers, the German admiral was under the impression that the Germans would turn down the allied peace proposals and that he expected hostilities to be resumed immediately after the German formal refusal.

In Admiral Reuter's own words: "Being under the impression that hostilities would be resumed, it was my duty toward my country to sink the ships to prevent them from falling into the enemy's hands."

Nevertheless, though they deliberately left the German fleet without adequate supervision the day they knew the German chief expected a renewal of hostilities, the British tried to prove the scuttling of the Scapa Flow fleet was a deep laid plot of the new born German republic.

Might Lose Supremacy.

"Four times I was summoned before a British court martial," Capt. Prahl told THE TRIBUNE. "Every time they tried to make me testify that Admiral von Reuter acted in accord with instructions of the German government. It would be in line with the British policy practiced through centuries to let the other fellow do the job and then get the most out of it. The fact is the British feared a distribution of the German ships.

"Great Britain was then undisputed master of the seas. The British could gain little by adding a few German ships to their sea forces. But if the lion's share of the high class German ship material was alloted to her allies, to America or France, England would have run the risk of losing her naval supremacy.

"As to my ship, I knew the English coveted it. A cruiser making 32 knots per hour, able to carry 500 mines, was without equal in all the navies of the world at that time. I had taken my precautions. Zealous cleaning had reduced the guns to a heap of scrap iron and seawater pumped through the boilers does not improve the speed or the seaworthiness of a ship. If the British had tried to seize the ship by surprise it would have sufficed to apply my handkerchief to my nose in a certain manner and unseen hands would have opened the suice valves. Under no circumstances could I have surrendered my ship to the British.

Ordered to Sink Ships.

"On June 17 the commanders of the German ships received orders from Admiral von Reuter to sink their ships if the British forces attempted to seize the fleet by force or if a certain signal was set on the admiral's flagship.

"The order was distributed by the usual English dispatch boats to avoid arousing suspicion.

"It provided that all preparations be made to guarantee a speedy sinking of the ships. All doors and bull's eyes were to be kept open. Reliable petty officers and sailors were to be drawn into confidence. Measures were to be taken to open all valves and torpedo tubes at a moment's notice."

The question arises here how was it possible for the British mail carriers to bring these orders to the German commanders? Even newspapers were subjected to the strict censorship of the British authorities. By accident they could have overlooked one or two messages—but all of them? But Capt. Prahl only smiles and tells how the actual scuttling was done.

Everything in Readiness.

"Months before I had worked out all the details so as to act immediately when the order was passed. My personal kit, cut down to a minimum, lay in readiness weeks before the sinking. When at last the signal was given I was in pajamas. I slipped into thin silk socks and patent leather shoes, the most foolish thing to do under the circumstances. But I didn't care. Nothing mattered. The only thought in my mind was to sink my ship and that as quickly and thoroughly as possible. With a petty officer I rushed through the ship smashing in the bull's eyes of the lower cabins with iron bars. In the meanwhile the sluice valves had been opened and the crew boarded the boats.

"Remaining behind I hoisted the German war flag under machine gun fire of an English destroyer. The British fired to kill. Whatever may have been the plans of the British admiralty the British guard boats—such as were left at the moment of the sinking—had no order to practice leniency in case of an attempted scuttling.

German Captain Killed.

"The rigorous way in which the British tried to force the drifting German crews back to their ships is best shown in the case of the killing of Capt. Schumann, the commander of the battleship Markgraf. He as well as Dittman, a petty officer seated at his side, were shot to death by rifle fire although his boats into which the crew had taken refuge were flying the white flog. All in all one officer and seven sailors were killed and sixteen sailors wounded by the British during the sinking.

"On land we were conveyed to a prisoners' camp in Scotland and thence to England. At each station of our tour we received enthusiastic ovations. Whatever the English press may have said at the time, it was evident that the majority of the English people sympathized with us.

"Our fleet, once the pride of the German nation, reduced to so much scrap iron, saved the allied admiralties the trouble of deciding how the German ships should be divided up.

35 Loaves of Bread.

"It was only a few weeks ago," the captain added with a grin, "that I received a letter from a high auditing department of the admiralty requesting me to account immediately for 35 loaves of bread and 427 marks and odd pfennigs which then were the funds of his majesty's cruiser Brummer. I did not tell them the story about the patent leather shoes but I suggested they get in touch with the British company now raising the German ships. They might help the auditor retrieve a few not too palatable loaves of bread and a bundle of inflated paper marks."

Rear Admiral Junkermann, interviewed by THE TRIBUNE in Kiel, where he bosses the torpedo and mine department of the German navy, said: "Certainly some of the British navy men were mighty pleased to see the German ships out of the way. I doubt whether the English planned to take them over. To my mind a man of war, a complicated machinery with hundreds of various devices, each of which vary in the different navies, is of no great fighting value if it lacks a trained crew thoroughly acquainted with the engines, specific types of armament, etc.

"But it is a fact that without the British admiralty's voluntary or involuntary coöperation we never could have accomplished the feat. The British admiralty not only acquiesced in but even demanded repeatedly a reduction of the ship's crews which at the time of the sinking were reduced to one-tenth of their original force, i. e., 175 men for each battleship, 200 men per battle cruiser, 60 men for small cruisers, and 20 men for each destroyer.

"These reductions enabled us to get rid of the bad elements among the crews. Those who were infected by bolshevistic ideas would have opposed the sinking of the fleet.

"During the internment letters were frequently sent to members of the crews from Germany advising them to kill their officers. The sailors' soviet on board the flagship 'Friedrich der Grosse,' which had created any amount of trouble, could only be persuaded to leave the ship when a British destroyer came alongside with guns pointed at the mutinous crew. Finally, Admiral von Reuter was compelled to leave the ship and hoist his flag on the cruiser 'Emden.'

Loyal Men Kept.

"Naturally we took good care that these elements were removed whenever a reduction was requested by the British admiralty, keeping back the best and most loyal petty officers and sailors. That we chose our men well was proved by the eventual sinking."

Capt. Wollanke, in command of the battle cruiser "Von der Thann," shares the opinion of his comrade: "The high class German ships would have represented a substantial addition to the British naval forces, thus enabling them to counterbalance the rapid strides the United States was making in bringing their navy up to parity.

"And high class material the German ships were, as the battle of Jutland demonstrated to the world. We Germans know how to build ships. Take our new ship, the 'Ersatz Preussen.' I don't believe it has its match in the world. It is the speed that does it. The speed combined with a comparatively heavy armament. With its 27 knots per hour it can dictate the firing range to any battleship floating on the seas, making up for the shorter range of its guns by running closer up to the enemy and profiting by the greater firing velocity of its guns as compared to the heavy 14 or 16 inchers of the battleships. Any cruiser built under the Washington treaty is, of course, at a disadvantage because of its lighter armament."

Journeys Alone

Master Clayton Polley Jr., 4 years old, arrived on the New York Central at the La Salle street station yesterday, rather proud that he had made the trip from Rockland, Me., all by himself, and decidedly glad to see his parents again. Mr. Clayton, who lives at 2832 West 22d street, came to Chicago last spring to find work. Later he sent for his wife, the boy remaining with relatives for the summer. Master Clayton Jr. looked on Chicago with big wondering blue eyes upon his arrival, and decided it wasn't such a bad town for a little boy to live in. The journey was made under the direction of the Traveler's Aid.

ENRIGHT SAYS CITY OFFICIAL INVOLVED IN ROTHSTEIN CASE

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Richard E. Enright supplied a sensation in the city campaign today by announcing that he is ready to name a city official involved in the Rothstein case, and also to give proof that Brooklyn politicians are tied up with a "needle beer racket," in the shadow of Borough hall.

The mayoralty nominee of the Square Deal party had the spotlight today, his charges proving more exciting than F. H. La Guardia's assaults on Tammany wrongdoing.

As. District Attorney Joab H. Banton proceeded to prepare for the trial of George McManus, charged with the murder of Rothstein, Enright, who was once police commissioner, stated that he is ready to appear as a witness and tell what he knows of the murder.

Asserting he was convinced that neither McManus nor Hymie Biller fired the shot that killed Rothstein, Enright said that at least seven persons were present at the shooting and he would name two, "one of whom is a city official, fairly high up."

He intimated that he may have affidavits from men present at the time of the murder.

BURROWS TO BE HANGED ON FRIDAY, DEC. 13

The defense announced an appeal to the Arizona Supreme court would be filed in a few days.

Evidence at the trial was that Burrows killed Martin to obtain his motor car and money.

Burrows claimed Martin forced him to drink intoxicants and that he shot the salesman in a "drunken stupor" when Martin began to "abuse" him.

SEIZED ON FRAUD CHARGE.

Morris Kleinman, 44 years old, was arrested yesterday in the home of relatives at 1242 Hastings street. He is charged with defrauding Mrs. Rose Resnick, 5936 Roosevelt road, of $1,500 a year ago.

CAMP ALGONQUIN MAKES POSSIBLE 1,808 VACATIONS

Loyal Friends Make the Outings a Success.

Camp Algonquin, THE TRIBUNE'S camp on the Fox river, 45 miles north west of Chicago, gave 1,808 vacations of two weeks duration to the underprivileged of Chicago during the summer months. That was announced yesterday in a report from the United Charities of Chicago, which maintains the camp.

Congratulations over the "excellent showing" of Camp Algonquin, where the health rating was found to be 95.3 per cent was expressed by Health Commissioner Kegel in a letter to Samuel Insull Jr., chairman of the summer outings committee of the charities, according to the report. Dr. Kegel stated that much had been done to protect the health of the camp's guests.

Work Toward Common Good.

"The coöperation of other Chicago social agencies and public bodies helped materially in making for greater efficiency and economy in the management and maintenance of the camp," declared Edwin C. Jones, financial secertary, in his report. "The Elizabeth McCormick Memorial fund supplied a full time nutrition worker, a part time clerk, and a visiting physician who gave physical examinations.

"The board of education of Chicago assigned five teachers to the camp who planned and carried out with the counselors and members of the staff the recreational program for the children. The board also supplied sewing material and manual training classes conducted for the all-summer children. The camp management hopes next summer, through special gifts, to secure materials for the boys and girls spending only the two weeks period in the camp.

"The Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium gave the camp the service of their nurses through July and August. The Infant Welfare society this year extended its work to children between the ages of 2 and 6, and mothers were given lessons in the feeding and early training of their children at weekly conferences. Thirty-five young men and women volunteered their services as counsellors, their board, lodging and laundry being their only expense to the camp.

Museum and Library Help.

"Part-time services were given by a lecturer from the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation of the Field museum who gave nature talks to children. The Harris extension of the museum also loaned twelve cases of collections of stones, animals, leaves and flowers, to be exhibited in the dining room. Three hundred books came as a loan from the Chicago Public library.

Miss Elsa Hirsch, superintendent of northwest district, United Charities, conducted a Sunday sketching class for children, and found time to paint two Czecho-Slovakian mural paintings over the fireplaces in the dining room. The new boat house was built from the $1,000 estate of Clay E. Gentry, an employé of THE TRIBUNE.

Individual contribution, according to the report, included a flag pole, additions to two boys' dormatories, fireworks, an automobile, fifty blankets, two row boats, a steel table, dish washing equipment, paint for all the buildings, surgical supplies, breakfast foods, candy, oranges, orange juice, sewing machines, bathing suits, soup bowls, and daily newspapers.

Guests Express Gratitude.

"We have never had a better spirit of coöperation among the camp workers, nor more gratitude expressed from our guests than this year," declared Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities. "It has been a successful year."

And among those who made the year successful were the hundreds of loyal friends of the camp, who in their contributions through THE TRIBUNE'S Camp Algonquin fund, provided $5,294.66 toward the expense of the vacations.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF

A message to the Radio Public

THE responsibility of Leadership in Radio rests squarely upon the shoulders of RCA, because as the creator of broadcasting science, the creator of broadcasting apparatus, as the creator of dependable transoceanic wireless, RCA made it possible for the public to have broadcasting.

RCA, founded at the request of the United States Government, before our troops were demobilized, was expected to blaze the way in the radio field—scientifically, commercially, patriotically.

As a result of this there exists a radio-audience of 40,000,000 interested listeners. This is but one indication of how RCA has responded to the Government's call.

The success of many licensed manufacturers now engaged in exploiting RCA ideas and RCA patents, including the RCA Screen-Grid patents, is evidence of how faithfully RCA has worked to make available to the public the results of its experiments, not only through its own manufacture, but through licensed competitors.

As another big buying season commences, RCA ventures a few serious words of advice to its friends.

RCA is the only organization in the radio industry manufacturing a complete line of radio products—vacuum tubes (Radiotrons), receiving sets, reproducers, radio-phonograph combinations, broadcasting apparatus, centralized radio equipment, airport and airplane equipment, sound recording and reproducing apparatus, and transoceanic telegraphic apparatus.

In each of these great divisions of radio manufacture RCA is recognized as the pioneer and leader of the industry. In its laboratories it is pioneering in new fields for the further progress of radio.

RCA is now presenting to the public the only complete line of fine quality radio sets—tuned radio frequency, Screen-Grid and Super-Heterodynes—sets that range from $54 to $690.

Tried, tested and perfected, each of these Radiolas—from the lowest to the highest priced—is the finest radio set that can be bought anywhere at any comparable price. RCA has the lowest priced, high quality radio sets in the market. They are built in a full range of different models to take care of every known requirement of broadcast reception.

These Radiolas are the work of the same engineers and scientists who designed America's leading broadcasting stations, who have made America a world center of transoceanic radio communication, who perfected the vacuum tube, who introduced the electro-dynamic speaker, who developed and perfected the wonderful Super-Heterodyne circuit, who gave the industry "all-electric" operation, who developed Screen-Grid Radiotrons and the Screen-Grid circuit.

To those about to purchase their first radio set, and to those who hesitate to make an experiment in replacing an obsolete model, we say:

Insist upon an RCA Radiola. It is backed by the reputation and experience of a world-wide organization.

Insist upon seeing the whole Radiola line. Your Radiola dealer will demonstrate to you that there is a Radiola exactly fitted to your reception requirements and your location—and at a price you can easily afford. He will consider it a privilege to serve you. He has been a leader in his line in your community for a number of years, and he will be with you through the years to come.

NORRIS VOWS TO SIFT LOBBY EVIL TO VERY BOTTOM

He'll Name Committee Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Promise of the most comprehensive and searching investigation of Washington lobbyists ever undertaken was made today by Senator George W. Norris [Rep., Neb.], chairman of the senate judiciary committee, in announcing that a subcommittee to conduct the inquiry will be named Monday.

No organization or group that has appeared in Washington in recent years for or against major legislation is to be overlooked, according to the Nebraska senator, who declared "We cannot and will not make fish of some and fowl of others" and added that he intends to appoint a subcommittee that "will go through to the end."

Tariff Lobbies First Target.

While it is probable that the initial efforts will be directed toward uncovering tariff lobbies the senator made it plain that before the investigation is complete, wet and dry organizations, church lobbies, pacifist, and "big navy" and army groups, power propagandists and any other association which has spent money to convert congress to its program will have been required to open their books.

In discussing the lobby evil Senator Norris said:

"No lobby to my mind is more insidious than the social lobby, and the investigation ought to throw sufficient light on that nefarious group to run it out of existence. There is an enormous amount of money spent by this lobby in entertainments, dinners and the social whirl which ropes in many unsuspecting legislators and can be an indirect influence on their actions.

Where Does Money Come From?

"What we want most is to find out where this social lobby gets its money and how it spends it.

"Those organizations which have a legitimate right to interest themselves in legislation and are on the level should have no hesitancy in furnishing the committee with the fullest information on the sources of their funds and how such funds are used. Those who hesitate will condemn themselves immediately."

SENATE URGED TO INVESTIGATE SHIPPING BOARD

McKellar Is Stirred by Audit Disclosures.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Appointment of a special committee to investigate the operations of the United States shipping board, and particularly Controller General J. R. McCarl's charges that ships have been sold by the board through the merchant fleet corporation to irresponsible purchasers, was proposed in the senate today by Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.].

Under the senator's resolution, a select committee of five senators would undertake an inquiry paralleling that by the justice department which was ordered yesterday by President Hoover.

According to the controller, an audit, covering shipping board operations from 1921 to 1928, showed that a total of 321 ships which it cost the government $408,062,898 to build have been sold for $45,962,308, of which latter amount only $15,413,000 was paid in cash. In the report, the controller general questioned the ability of some of the purchasers to meet their obligations.

In announcing that he had called upon Attorney General Mitchell to study the report in an effort to determine whether any of the alleged irregularities in the board's transactions constituted violations of the law, President Hoover pointed out that the controller general made no charges of malfeasance against the board members but attributed the losses sustained to bad business judgment.

The McKellar resolution would authorize the special committee to "make a thorough investigation into all the acts and doings of the United States Shipping Board and Merchant Fleet corporation and especially into the question of sales of ships by the board, the prices secured, the terms under which the ships have been sold, the character and responsibility of the purchaser, the change in terms and other facts relating to the conduct of the board and of the fleet corporation."

EIGHT FIREMEN SENTENCED FOR SETTING FIRES

Mineola, L. I., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The eight volunteer firemen of Glen Cove, L. I., who were arrested a month ago for having set a number of fires over a period of years so that they could put new fire fighting apparatus in use and pose as village heroes, were sentenced today by Nassau County Judge Lewis J. Smith in Mineola.

Sentences of from two to four years in Sing Sing prison were imposed upon Thomas J. Moore and Raymond E. Sprague, said to have been the arson leaders. Edward J. Baker was sentenced to Elmira reformatory for an indefinite term and Frederick Doxey to the New York state institution for the mentally deficients.

The other four were given suspended sentences of from two to four years in Sing Sing prison and placed on probation. They are Edward Peets, Henry Cobbs, Lawrence Crier, and Norman Long because their families need their support.

AGE OF "SHOCK" MAKING INROAD, DOCTOR STATES

The present mechanistic age has "shocked" the human body so it is more susceptible to disease than formerly, according to Dr. Lloyd Arnold of the University of Illinois college of medicine.

"It took nature many thousands of years to build up an automatic system of control within the human body," Dr. Arnold said. "The heart, lungs and digestive system, for instance, depend on this involuntary nervous system for their functioning.

"Inventions in the past century have changed radically the mode of life for which the human body was planned. The rapid changes have subjected the nervous system to constant shocks, weakening its defense against disease germs.

"Medical science, however, rapidly is learning how to assist nature in meeting these shocks."

TWO DIE IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Gerald Lucas and Frederick White were killed when their car went into a ravine here shortly before daylight today.

THE MAGIC BRUNSWICK TEST FOR TONE

Enables You To Compare Actual Studio Broadcasting with Radio Reception . . .

WHEN you listen for the first time to a program received through the NEW Brunswick Radio, you realize that there is an almost magical difference, and that that difference can best be termed "Studio Quality" Radio Reception.

For neither the Radio, the Station nor the miles of intervening air seem to exist. You are magically transported to the very studio in which the artists are performing.

He will demonstrate the Brunswick Radio to you as all other sets are demonstrated, but also will demonstrate it to you as no other set can be demonstrated.

He will re-create the most dramatic and convincing Test for Radio "Tone" and "Reception" ever conceived, reproducing for you a Radio Program broadcast May 4th last, at 12:11 midnight, in the Studio of Station WABC, New York.

You will hear this program just as though you had been in the Studio at the time it was broadcast.

You're out-of-date without an Eight!

Illinois registers 110% increase in Eights

As proof of the tremendous growth in public preference for eight-cylinder cars, registration figures in this State for the first seven months of 1929 tell their own story. Eights above $1,000 showed an increase of 110 per cent, while Sixes in the same price field decreased 12 per cent.

The tendency is the same the nation over. In 43 states,* Eights above $1000 increased 94 per cent. Sixes declined 18 per cent.

Nobody can doubt the evidence. We are passing into an eight-cylinder era. Already, all of the finest American cars are Eights. In fact, 41 per cent of all makes are Eights, and the number is constantly increasing.

Spurred on by an Eight-minded public, Studebaker set out two years ago to build a high-quality Eight that could be sold at moderate six-cylinder cost.

Studebaker today leads the world in the manufacture of Eights—Eights that are champions—holders of 11 world records for speed and endurance and more American stock car records than all other makes combined—Eights which are remarkably economical—smooth, flexible, brilliant.

Before investing in your new car, drive a smart new Studebaker Eight—President, Commander or Dictator. Bear in mind that Studebaker's 77 years of manufacturing integrity stand back of every one of these cars. And remember, too, that your new car will be worth more a year from now—if it's an Eight!

DAWES MATCHES WITS IN LONDON; KEEPS SECRETS

Razzes and Is Razzed at Press Club Dinner.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 5. — Ambassador Dawes was a guest tonight at the London Press Club dinner, at which Lord Riddell presided. The general, who is about to leave for America to attend a meeting of the financial committee of the Chicago centennial exhibition, decited two speeches from Lord Riddell and got away with his own diplomatic secrets intact, during an evening of facetious speechmaking. Mr. Dawes avoided the subjects of disarmament and Anglo-American relations in general. He did, however, deliver a parable based on "Caesar's Commentaries" and "Plutarch's Lives," which, he said, he had been reading of late.

Mr. Dawes got an even break with Lord Riddell in facetiousness. Lord Riddell introduced diverse subjects, from the Shearer case to his own work at the Washington naval conference.

Share Bottle of Champagne.

At dinner they shared a bottle of champagne with Richard Henry Little, Tribune columnist, who also made a speech and told several funny stories.

Tonight's affair was described as a momentous gathering and the speakers expressed appreciation at seeing Mr. Dawes, who was mentioned as one of the principal participants in the epochal events which are in the making. No mention was made, however, of the fact that Mr. Dawes was leaving suddenly for a visit to the United States.

The menus had cartoons on the back, showing Lord Riddell in a dinner jacket, shaking hands with Mr. Dawes, who was limned as an angel of peace, with wings on his shoulders, a pipe in his mouth and a naval yardstick in his hand.

Gentle Razz for Dawes.

Lord Riddell introduced Mr. Dawes as the latest of a distinguished set of ambassadors from America, beginning with Ambassador Page. Some one in the audience yelled: "How about Choate?" which had an unpleasant historical connotation. Then some one asked if Mr. Dawes had a yardstick with him. Lord Riddell imitated an American accent, while Mr. Dawes pulled away on his underslung pipe.

In enumerating Mr. Dawes' accomplishments, Lord Riddell came to three books which the general had written, which, he said, had put him to sleep. He said, however, that he remembered one phrase in Mr. Dawes' book which impressed him—"Real power ought to be camouflaged just the same as a heavy cannon." This, Lord Riddell said facetiously, was a sign that Mr. Dawes was a philosopher.

Dawes Replies in Kind.

Mr. Dawes replied in a similar facetious vein. He told Lord Riddell and the London journalists that he had a lot of information which he would not give them. He complained of the necessity imposed on American ambassadors here to compete with British orators and said that the business of exchanging compliments over cousinly relationships was being overworked.

Then Mr. Dawes got to his parable. He announced that "Caesar's Commentaries," "Thucydides," and other classical writings have been drawing his attention lately. Coming to the point, he revealed that Caesar and other generals had a practice of going out in front of their armies before a battle and making speeches to pep up the soldiers.

Once, he said, all of Caesar's soldiers were running away, except the Tenth legion. The Roman emperor made a speech, telling them that their Gallic enemies were men twelve feet high, dougty and dangerous warriors. He deliberately made things out as badly as possible and then appealed to the men not to run away. All came back and joined the Tenth legion, Mr. Dawes said. He emphasized that leadership was important.

Refers to Hoover, MacDonald.

His parable evidently had something to do with President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald, but the general did not mention it. He concluded that he felt sentimental about the rousing reception given Prime Minister MacDonald in New York yesterday.

Mr. Dawes' repartee brought Lord Riddell back for a second speech, in which he spoke of William B. Shearer and his own press service for the British at the Washington naval congress.

"Mr. Shearer got dollars for his work," he said, "but I got a special cigar box as a gift from the British, American, Japanese, and French journalists as a testimonial of their appreciation."

Then, obviously referring to Shearer, he said: "I've got a truthful face; my friends tell me that I was intended to be a cardinal."

Mr. Dawes wore a sphinxlike expression and pulled away at his underslung pipe.

Vatican Dickers With Russia for a Religious Agreement

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—Coincident with the announcement that the Labor government has agreed to resume diplomatic relations with Russia comes a report from Rome quoting the Fascist paper Il Tevere that the Vatican also has resumed negotiations with the soviets—negotiations which were broken off last spring—in an effort to reach a religious concordat between Catholicism and bolshevism. These negotiations, according to Il Tevere, are taking place in Berlin between the papal nuncio, Msgr. Pacelli, who negotiated the recent concordat between Prussia and the Vatican, and the Russian ambassador in Berlin, Krestinsky.

Previous Parleys Failed.

It is an open secret in Rome that Pope Pius XI. since the time he was papal nuncio to Warsaw just after the war has been preoccupied with the situation of Catholicism in eastern Europe, especially in Russia. It is openly discussed in the Eternal City that since becoming pope he has been ambitious to return the Slavs to the folds of Catholicism, from which they split in the middle ages.

The Vatican has made several attempts to enter relationship with the soviets. The first occurred in April, 1922, at Genoa during the interallied conference when Msgr. Sincero, now Cardinal Sincero, conferred with G. V. Chicherin. That conference failed. Other conversations occurred subsequently, notably on Dec. 1 of last year and in January of this year at Rome.

Reasons for Split.

The difficulties between the Vatican and the Kremlin are said to be in substance as follows: Russia does not want to recognize a Catholic hierarchy, that is, bishops and archbishops; nor does it want to sustain ecclesiastic patrimony; it desires that the priests and bishops be maintained wholly by the contributions of their adherents; the Russian government will not permit the priests to maintain schools, educational institutions or libraries, or carry on propaganda, but it is willing to grant liberty of worship and freedom inside the churches.

The Vatican problem appears to be whether it can adapt its principles to the soviet legislation. Just as it has found means of conforming to conditions in other countries, it is reported to be studying modalities for adaptation to events in Russia.

It will be remember that Pope Pius in his speech last May, in criticizing Premier Mussolini for what transpired after the Lateran pact, said that "to save souls the pontiff would enter into negotiations even with the devil."

POPE WINS LAW SUIT FOR $162 IN HUNGARY COURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 5. — Pope Pius XI. today won an award of $162.40 in court of law in the town of Kecksekemet for the Holy See. He sued for Rome's share of an estate left by Michael Bakonyi, wealthy landowner, who died in 1907.

In his will M. Bakonyi left the Holy See a thousand crowns [at that time about $200] but which it was only supposed to obtain upon the death of M. Bakonyi's widow. His widow died two years ago and her heirs attempted to settle the legacy in the terms of post-war currency, which would have made the church's share just 20 cents.

Through the bishop of Waitzen, however, the pope started suit for the full amount on the basis of prewar currency. The court decided that the heirs would have to pay 70 per cent of the legacy's pre-war value.

TAILOR DEAD; SUICIDE SUSPECTED.

The body of Eman Soukup, 50 years old, 2333 Richland avenue, Berwyn, was found in the rear of his tailor shop in the Carlton building, Winnetka, yesterday. Acid burns about the mouth led police to believe that he had committed suicide.

MAN WHO SENT YORK ON FAMOUS EXPLOIT GETS D. S. C. AT LAST

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Eleven years after being shot down by German machine gun bullets in no man's land, Sergt. Bernard Early of New Haven, Conn., today was awarded the distinguished service cross for bravery in the action in which Sergt. Alvin C. York won world wide fame.

Standing in the army war college arena before 10,000 spectators, he received the decoration from Assistant Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley.

The veteran, who is unable to work because of wounds that will never heal, was cited for conspicuous gallantry and outstanding leadership that inspired York and the remainder of his detachment of 17 men to carry on against 200 of the enemy, and the killing of 26 and capture of 132 Germans by York.

PICKLE PLANT ROBBED.

Burglars early yesterday broke into the H. H. Hall company's pickle plant at 1807 West Lake street and took $1,100 that had been placed in the pay envelopes for the employes.

BANDITS STEAL MACHINE GUN IN NAVAL ARMORY

Use for River Fighting Is Feared.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Detroit police and department of justice operatives today opened an intensive search for a heavy machine gun stolen at 6:40 a. m., from the Michigan naval reserve armory.

Covering a lone guard with revolvers, two thugs trundled the weapon to their automobile and sped away.

Police first feared the theft presaged a bank or pay roll holdup, and a general alarm to all precincts, cruisers and scout cars was broadcast. When the machine gun's weight was considered, officers expressed the belief that it more likely would be used in gang warfare or for hijacking on the Detroit river or in Chicago.

The stolen gun is a 30 caliber, water-cooled, counted Browning. Without water or ammunition it weighs 50 pounds. The cooling apparatus requires seven gallons of water and the ammunition belt holds 250 rounds.

Shortly after news of the theft reached federal authorities Thomas C. Wilcox, chief of the department of justice operatives here, called three of his men to his office. Their orders, except that they related to the machine gun theft, were not disclosed.

Department of justice men, according to Wilcox, are not armed except when embarking on a hazardous undertaking, and weapons were issued to these. Officers at the naval armory disclosed that in the last several months a number of light air cooled Browning guns, automatic pistols, and new .22 caliber weapons developed by the government have been stolen from the armory.

NEW YORK IS FACING VEGETABLE FAMINE AS TRUCKMEN STRIKE

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Two thousand truck drivers who transport New York's fresh fruit and vegetables from the railroad terminals went on strike today after a week of negotiations with truck operators had failed to achieve a settlement of differences.

The drivers met with the Market Truckmen's association this afternoon and reiterated their demand for an eight hour day with time and a half for overtime but the owners again refused and the strike was on.

A shortage is not expected before the middle of the week, because a large supply of produce is already in the hands of commission merchants and retailers, but prices, it was predicted, will begin to ascend Monday.

The strike leaders said, will tie up approximately 2,000 railroad cars containing about $4,000,000 worth of produce.

Prof. Michelson's Condition Reported to Be Improving

The condition of Prof. Albert A. Michelson's temperature, pulse, and Michelson, noted University of Chicago scientist, who has been seriously ill of pneumonia at the Presbyterian hospital, was reported greatly improved yesterday and is better than at any time since he was first stricken, a week ago, his physicians said. Prof. respiration were nearly normal, the report indicated.

He Laughingly Sets His Car Afire; Police Save Him

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Jack O'Day took a tip from a bygone time and tried to start his car by building a fire under it. "I'm havin' a hot ride!" he shouted to passersby from the driver's seat of the blazing car, which was destroyed. Firemen rescued him and police filed a charge of intoxication.

POLITICAL FOES OF AUSTRIA WAR OVER REFORMS

Schober Hopes to Adopt Fascist Policy.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 5.—Sweeping constitutional reforms, aimed at stuffing the Fascist policy down the throat of Austria's administration and at the same time weakening the Socialist stronghold of the key city, Vienna, will be proposed by the new Schober government when parliament reconvenes on Oct. 15, it was learned today.

The success of the contemplated reforms depends on the outcome of the game of hide and seek which the Fascists and Socialists are playing daily awaiting the opening of parliament. In principle the Socialists are bitterly opposed to the attempts of the bourgeois majority to institute a miniature Mussolini régime. Actually, however, they are hinting that their barks will be worse than their bites if the ambitious Fascists are not willing to hand out a few vital sops in order to gain their ends.

Depend on Three Points.

The heimwehr program depends principally upon three points, two of which, if passed without compensating compromises, may outwind the Socialists.

The first point deals with presidential power and is not particularly antipathetic to the Socialists. According to the proposal, the president is to be elected by direct suffrage instead of by parliament, as he is at present, and his term be increased from four to seven years. The chief executive at the same time will be converted from a figurehead to an active official with the right to dissolve parliament, appoint his own ministers, and create special laws in case of an emergency.

The second point, however, is aimed at the very heart of Austrian socialism. It would change Vienna's present curious dual status of a municipality and province to a municipality and part of the province of Lower Austria, thus burying the 100 per cent Socialist capital of 107 square miles in a Fascist province with an area of 7,451 square miles and paralyzing Socialistic power.

Would Abolish Upper House.

The third point, which is raising a roar of protest from the Socialistic ranks, where it is declared to be a direct transplantation of Mussolini's methods in Austria, demands the abolition of the Austrian upper house or present worn-out "Bundesrat," consisting of fifty members, whose main job, it is said, is to do nothing. The businesslike Fascists hope to throw out the bundesrat and substitute an economic council, composed of sixty members, chosen for vocational proficiency rather than parliamentary ability.

Since the tiny representation of workers is overwhelmingly outnumbered by employers in the proposed new upper house, the Socialists declare they will have none of it.

The Socialists have 71 deputies against 74 Fascists, eleven Pangermans and nine Agrarians. Since the constitutional changes require a two-thirds majority, the Socialists are sufficiently strong enough to balk any reforms they do not approve, and it appears highly probable that a private conference between now and Oct. 15 may result in compromises, permitting the government to railroad a portion of the program through, while the opposition retains enough rights to continue holding its own.

AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL HERE.

Charles Herzmansky, secretary to the Austrian migration office at Vienna, has arrived in Chicago, after a tour of all Canada, during which he investigated the conditions and progress of Austrians who have emigrated to the new world. Herr Herzmansky also gathered information on the basis of which Austrians who emigrate to America in the future may be advised as to the best location for them and according to the line of work they intend to pursue.

Herr Herzmansky is now making a tour of the United States on a similar mission. He will visit his countrymen, most of whom, he says, have settled in the eastern and northern states, and to gather data which will be compiled into a complete report on his return to Austria.

Herr Herzmansky said he found unbounded opportunities for his countrymen in Canada and the United States and that most of them were happy and contented. Very few, he said, returned to their native land after coming to America. Since 1922, Herr Herzmansky said, about 27,100 Austrians have emigrated to the United States.

ADVISORY BOARD NAMED FOR AIR LAW INSTITUTE

Director Fagg Collecting Library for School.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Prof. Fred D. Fagg Jr., managing director of the new air law institute at Northwestern university, yesterday made public a list of lawyers and authorities in the field of aviation law who will serve on the advisory board of the institute.

Classes in the air law institute will be opened next summer. The new department was opened on Oct. 1, and Prof. Fagg and his associates are now collecting a special library for the study of the legal phases of aviation. The institute is a new departure in this country.

The lawyers who will serve on the advisory board are:

George G. Bogert of the school of law of the University of Chicago, one of the first to promote the development of air law in this country.

Col. Henry Breckenridge, New York lawyer and representative of the board of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics.

Chester W. Cuthell, chairman of the committee on aeronautic law of the American Bar association and general counsel for the Curtiss aviation interests.

Capt. Rowan A. Greer of the judge advocate general's department of the United States army and a specialist in military phases of air law.

George B. Logan, chairman of the legislative committee of the St. Louis air board, author and lecturer on air law at the school of law of Washington university.

Justin Miller, dean of the University of Southern California law school, who gave the first course in air law in any university law school.

William F. MacCracken Jr., former assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics and secretary of the American Bar association.

Carl Zollman, lecturer in air law in the Marquette university school of law.

"There is a real need for a clearing house of legal ideas pertaining to air navigation," Prof. Fagg stated yesterday. "The growth of air transportation has given rise to municipal ordinances, state laws, federal regulations and international conventions. If these laws be ill formed or in conflict, we shall experience again the chaos in legislation that existed during the expansion of the railroads."

CHIEF OF POLICE SAVES CHILDREN FROM MAD DOG

Chief of Police Clayton Tiffany of Mundelein saved a number of children yesterday from a large German police dog, which suddenly went mad. The children were attending a party on the lawn of Harry Pfanenstill, Mundelein garage owner, when the dog suddenly came snapping and snarling down the street and dashed into their midst. Vivian Pfanenstill, 9 years old, was bitten on the leg by the animal before Chief Tiffany's attention was attracted by the screams of the fleeing children. The chief ran on the lawn and attracted the dog to himself. The dog leaped at his throat. Tiffany sidestepped and clubbed the animal to the ground. Then he stepped back, drew his revolver and shot the animal.

STREET CAR INJURY FATAL.

Oliver S. Larson, 60 years old, 6611 South Wood street, died at the county hospital yesterday from injuries received when he was struck last Friday by a street car at Ashland avenue and West 65th street.

BOND PROPOSALS OF $47,696,000 TO VOTERS NOV. 7

$2,600,000 Tax Boost in County to Be Asked.

Bond issues totaling $47,696,000 will be placed on the ballot at the Nov. 6 judicial election for the approval of the voters, the records of the board of election commissioners showed yesterday. In addition a proposal to increase the county's tax revenues by $2,600,000 for one year to pay the expenses of the recent revaluation of property in the county will be submitted to the voters.

The county and the park boards are seeking funds for the construction of highways and grade separations to relieve traffic congestion and speed the motorist to his destination and to provide comfortable surroundings to the thousands of visitors in the forest preserves. The city is asking for money to rid itself of four year old debts contracted by the condemnation of property along Ashland and Western avenues and La Salle street for widening purposes.

Proposals for Bonds.

The governmental units submitting the bond proposals and the amount requested by each are as follows:

| Government— | Amount. |
|---|---|
| City | $18,576,000 |
| West parks | 20,000,000 |
| Lincoln park | 3,000,000 |
| County—grade separations | 3,320,000 |
| County—forest preserves | 2,500,000 |
| Total | $47,696,000 |

Acclaimed by the west siders as a forward step in awakening their section of the city to its trade and residential possibilities, the $20,000,000 program for the construction of the Austin-Kinzie elevated highway leads the program. It is considered of immense value for the reclamation of waste lands and for providing an outlet to the congested territory now inadequately served by major thoroughfares.

To Provide Superhighway.

Construction of this superhighway for a distance of six and two-thirds miles between Clinton street and Austin boulevard, the western city limits, will be made possible by approval of these bonds. The route, to be placed on a fill along the northern edge of the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks, will eliminate seventy-six grade crossings and make it possible for motorists to cover the entire distance in ten minutes without speeding.

The other highway proposal is contained in the Lincoln park $3,000,000 bond issue. Extension of the park drives from Montrose avenue, the present terminus, to Foster avenue is planned. Congestion at the turn into Montrose avenue from the park and at Clarendon avenue, where most traffic veers to the north again, will be relieved, according to the park commissioners.

Would Pay Landowners.

The city's bond issues would be used to pay awards to owners of property condemned by the city for the widening of Western and Ashland avenues and La Salle street. While these judgments remain unpaid, according to members of the city council, the property owners suffer, as they are handicapped in leasing, selling or improving their lands and buildings.

Additional bonds to complete the improvements by paving the streets and lighting them were defeated by the council. The cost of this work, which would have been done by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, and Michael Kennedy, commissioner of gas and electricity, was estimated at $16,000,000. The judgment money will not go through Faherty's hands, according to attorneys.

Grade separations, which would be financed by the $3,320,000 bond issue, are planned by the county board to reduce the number of accidents and to increase the speed and volume of traffic on arterial highways in the metropolitan area. The state's share of the program, which includes thirty-eight grade separations and three traffic circles, is estimated at $4,300,500.

Would Improve Preserves.

Development of the forest preserves by providing shelters and comfort stations, draining marshes, and building swimming pools would be financed by the forest preserves bond issue of $2,500,000. At present the water supplies are inadequate and many polluted, according to Gen. Abel Davis, chairman of the commissioners' advisory committee.

Work on the property revaluation will cost about $3,000,000, of which $2,600,000 would be returned to the county commissioners by an increase in the county tax rate of six cents for each $100 of assessed valuations for one year. This project will be on the ballot. Debts incurred since the county board authorized the proposal raised the total from their estimate of $2,600,000.

BILL TO ALLOW CONSUMER VOICE IN TARIFF URGED

Senator King Makes $5,000 Speech.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Appointment of a consumers' counsel to represent the general public in cases before the tariff commission was proposed today by minority members of the senate finance committee. The suggestion was embodied in an amendment to the tariff bill introduced by Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.].

The amendment provides for the appointment of a consumers' counsel by the President at a salary of $12,000. It is provided that it shall be the duty of the counsel "to appear in the interest of the consuming public in any proceeding or investigation before the commission and to conduct such independent investigation of matters relative to the tariff laws of the United States as he may deem necessary to enable him properly to represent the consuming public in any proceeding before the commission." The counsel may not actively engage in any other employment.

Senator F. M. Simmons [Dem., N. C.], ranking minority member of the finance committee, stated that he would urge adoption of the amendment, but Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], majority leader, ridiculed the proposal.

"Just what branch of the consuming public is the counsel to represent?" queried Senator Watson. "Every person is a consumer and all the members of the tariff commission represent consumers."

The senate failed to make any headway in a three hour session today. Senator W. H. King [Dem., Utah] occupied almost the entire session with a speech attacking the tariff bill. So voluminous were the exhibits which Senator King caused to be inserted in the Congressional Record in connection with his speech that Senator Watson estimated that the cost to the taxpayers would be approximately $6,000.

COSTE AND PLANE IN CHINA; RUSSIA ABANDONS HUNT

MOSCOW, Oct. 5.—(AP)—After definitely establishing the fact that the French aviator, Coste, had crossed the Russian border into Manchuria on Sept. 29, Russian aviation authorities tonight abandoned all search for the missing long distance flyer.

They learned that Coste's red Breguet had passed into Chinese territory at 2 p. m. over Abagaptuevsk, 30 miles southeast of Manchuria station. This station is just across the border from Manchouli, eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern railway, where heavy fighting between Russian and Chinese soldiers occurred in the first days of October.

The Russians had no trace of Coste, who left Le Bourget flying field Sept. 27 in an attempt to set a new nonstop world's distance record after he crossed the frontier. Searching parties had previously been sent out to comb the wilderness east of Lake Baikal.

DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS.

Wheeler was divorced several months ago after he charged that his wife fled to Milwaukee with a swimming instructor of the athletic club.

WIFE SLAYER ON TRIAL.

FIFTEEN NAMED TO FORM WOOL GROWERS' CO-OP

BY PAUL POTTER.

Fifteen wool and mohair marketing agency officials were named as a committee to organize and incorporate the huge central coöperative marketing corporation for sheep growers here last night.

The names of twenty-one farm leaders from all wool producing areas of the country were selected and handed to Chairman Alexander Legge of the federal farm board at the close of the two day wool marketing conference. From this list the farm board is to select seven men who will act as an advisory commodity committee.

Plans completed call for the formation of a central selling agency with a capital stock of a half million dollars to be used for operating purposes. Thirty-six coöperative wool and mohair marketing organizations were represented.

L. B. Palmer of Columbus, O., is chairman of the committee; Byron M. Wilson, Kinley, Wyo., vice chairman, and James A. Hopper, Salt Lake City, Utah, secretary. The other members are R. A. # DOS PASSOS IS MARRIED TO A CHICAGO GIRL

New York, Oct. 5.—(AP)—The secret marriage of John Dos Passos, author, to Miss Kate Smith of Chicago was revealed here today.

The marriage took place in August "somewhere in Maine," Dos Passos said. The author met his bride in Tampa, Fla., last winter. She also is a writer.

They expect to leave for Europe on their honeymoon in a few days. The bridegroom is a native of Chicago.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses with or without undershorts, as they do not do where the lump is and not where the opening is.

The opening is seldom if ever larger than a dime or be pea (no matter the size of the rupture), and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil.

The Brownsville Shield-Coupler, in combination with the Retainer-Stapler (Patent No. 747247 and other patents pending)—a scientific achievement in highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being a vast advancement over all former methods, exemplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions, which distinguished personal patrons of all nations.

You demand safety and comfort—and drive a modern automobile. Why park an old-fashioned heating system in your basement? The unhealthful conditions in most homes during the winter months are caused by the dry, stagnant and unhealthful heating of obsolete heating systems. Unless your present heating plant automatically supplies your home with humidified, circulating air and ventilation, it is in the same class as a 20-year-old automobile and should be replaced.

A modern Holland Vaporaire System does more than just heat. It provides circulation, ventilation and the proper amount of humidity so vital to the health and comfort of every family. The legislators of 21 states have demanded by law that the health of your children be protected in school—insisting upon circulating, humidified, warm air. Modern physicians and health authorities agree that dry, stagnant heat in most homes is the principal cause of colds and illnesses of the respiratory organs.

Holland engineers have made available a combination heating, cooling and ventilating system that keeps your home healthful and comfortable all the year around. This system, with a built-in electric power unit, forces healthful, refreshing, humidified air gently through every room in your home, heating it in wintertime and cooling it in summer—obsoleting the old type of system that offers dry heat alone.

Holland Vaporaire is custom-built and engineered to fit the needs of your home exactly. It keeps the air moist and moving—teeming with life and energy. It automatically vaporizes from 3 to 25 gallons of water daily to humidify and circulate clean, pure air—a patented Holland method that protects health and guards against cold. Holland is a lifetime system that banishes the dread of winter forever. Every Holland is installed by factory-trained engineers. Your complete satisfaction is guaranteed in writing. It works equally well with oil, gas, coal or coke. The Holland system is reasonable in price and the terms are most liberal.

Winter is almost here. Don't delay and miss the benefits of a Holland system. There is a Holland branch near you. Have a factory-trained engineer call. The facts are free. Telephone the nearest factory branch or use the coupon below.

NEW MECHANICAL ANTI - AIRCRAFT GUN ON DISPLAY

Army Will Demonstrate Automatic Weapon.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The United States army's newly mechanized anti-aircraft artillery system, in which electrical "robots" supplant artillerymen as gun crews and automatically "man" highly perfected weapons of eight times the striking power of the world war "archies" will be demonstrated publicly for the first time in its entirety at Aberdeen proving ground, Maryland, on Thursday for the benefit of civilian engineers and industrial executives attending the eleventh annual meeting of the Army Ordnance association there.

A spectacular day and night demonstration of the new mechanism, said by army officers to be the only equipment of its kind in existence, will form one of the features of the huge program of army ordnance firing which has been arranged by Maj. Gen. Clarence C. Williams, chief of ordnance, United States army, to show technical and manufacturing leaders of the country the tremendous advances made in ordnance design during the last year, according to an announcement by C. A. Russell of 600 West Jackson boulevard, chief of the Chicago ordnance district.

5,000 Delegates on Hand.

Army Ordnance association delegates numbering 5,000 will arrive at Aberdeen by special train from all parts of the United States, with large contingents coming from New York City, Boston, Detroit, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, St. Louis, and even San Francisco. Cabinet officials, high ranking army and navy officers, and military observers from European armies will be present.

Included in the big spectacle will be firing of the latest and most effective implements of warfare possessed by the United States army today. From the mightiest sea coast gun, which hurls a ton of steel thirty miles, to quick firing machine guns, smoke screens, aerial bombs, and speedy armored cars, the ordnance material to be shown in action with full service charges of explosives will embrace all major weapons developed by the army ordnance department to combat invaders from the air, land, and sea.

Projecting a stream of one hundred shells a minute at aerial targets speeding one hundred miles an hour, a battery of the latest design of three inch anti-aircraft guns will give the first demonstration of the new mechanized firing system.

Night Firing.

Sleeve targets will be towed thousands of feet overhead by fast pursuit planes from Selfridge field, Michigan. On the ground troops of the 61st Coast Artillery Regiment (anti-aircraft) from Fort Monroe, Virginia, ordered out by Maj. Gen. Andrew Hero Jr., chief of coast artillery, which includes all anti-aircraft units, will operate the firing mechanism.

In thrilling, realistic portrayal of a night air raid the anti-aircraft firing will be repeated after dark, when the heavens will be painted bright with streaming red tracer bullets, the flare of huge searchlights, bursting shells, and ghostly illuminated planes.

"Robot" gunners, electro mechanical devices, technically called torque amplifiers, will train the long nosed "archies" on the swiftly shifting targets with unerring accuracy far beyond the eye of the most skilful artilleryman.

Mechanical Brain.

Directing the "robots" is a marvelous mechanical "brain," so simple in operation that soldiers can be trained within an hour to handle it expertly but which automatically solves intricate ballistic problems that a mathematician would require hours to compute. Essentially this director is a supercomputing machine which automatically and continuously observes the target and computes its future position in space.

Aiming the battery of four guns is reduced to a process of sighting through two telescopes, each operated by an artilleryman. One keeps the guns aimed horizontally and the other vertically. Between them they also adjust the fuses of the shells, so that they explode and scatter their fragments at the plane.

Army ordnance officers claim for the new battery that it is at least eight times as effective as anti-aircraft batteries used during the world war. They point out that the number of guns in the battery has been doubled, each gun fires more than twice as often, and the rate of accuracy has been more than doubled. Each of the new battery's four guns fires twenty-five shots a minute—each shot being a fifteen pound high explosive shell that reaches a ceiling of almost 40,000 feet and that can be set to burst at any altitude, scattering its fragments when it does burst at the rate of 4,000 feet a second.

REMOVE STREET CAR LINES THAT DISTURB DUCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 5.—The Pallazzo Venezia, Premier Mussolini's new quarters, with its gorgeous lofty ceilings and spacious room, would be an ideal place to work in were it not for the unceasing noise of street cars. An endless number of them in this part of the city pass from one distant point to another along the Via Plebescito and Venice square right under the window where Il Duce works. Clanging bells, scraping cars, jogging along intermittently, carry their echo into his large study.

In spite of the double windows of street car lines along this part of the city are to be removed and replaced the palace, the noise is deafening. For this reason, in the near future all with buses, which will pass on the other side of the palace.

It will be remembered that when the foreign office was moved from Consulta palace, near the Quirinal, to Chigi palace, there was the same annoyance from street cars on the Via Tribone. These were removed, in order to render Il Duce's study in the foreign office quiet. If the electric buses prove noisy there is a possibility that the office will be changed back to the hall of victory in Chigi palace, which, since Dino Grandi has been made minister of foreign affairs, has been kept closed and unused.

BANDIT HOLDS UP RESTAURANT.

A bandit early yesterday forced Salona Trifa to open the door of the restaurant at 2915 Fullerton avenue, where he is employed as a waiter, and rifled the cash register of $40.

Roumanian Minister's Life Attempted; Sequel to Riot

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Oct. 5.—The shooting by soldiers of 30 striking miners at Lupeni two months ago had a sequel today in the attempted assassination of Alexander Vajda-Voevod, minister of the interior. As the minister was about to enter his car, after leaving his office, a 20 year old youth named Goldenberg, approached and fired a shot which splintered the car window, but missed the minister. Pursued and seized by the police and spectators, the man said that his act was one of revenge for the Lupeni shootings.

WORLD SERIES RIVALS READY; BATTLE TUESDAY

BRUDER'S ON HIS WAY—WILDCATS WIN!

Hank Bruder starts on another thrust into Butler's line. Bruder was one of the main factors in Northwestern's opening triumph over Butler, 13 to 0, yesterday at Dyche stadium. He plunged two yards for the first six points in the second period and added six more in the third quarter when he started from Butler's 16 yard line, ran off right tackle and cut back over the center for the touchdown. He then place kicked the extra point. The Purple attack was ragged and lacked sustaining power. Here it seems as if Northwestern might be using hands on the offense, which isn't according to the book. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Baseball's final gesture until another year promises to be a puzzle play.

Starting Tuesday afternoon at Wrigley field the Cubs, new to world series toil, and the Athletics, equally strange in the business of being involved in the argument for baseball's most coveted honor, are slated to go to work for what they can get out of it.

The public—maybe 50,000 daily in Chicago and 40,000 daily in Philadelphia—will pay and pay dearly for the privilege of watching the spectacle, and the contending athletes in the end will sweep up most of the contributions. But whether the Cubs or the Macks will gather up the bigger portion is the puzzle. On the face it appears to be anybody's fight. You must dig deep to find excuse to favor either.

Matter of Base Hits.

In the lull between the present moment and 1:30 Tuesday afternoon there will be discussion of possibilities. There'll be talk of strategy on the part of the two leaders. But at 1:30 the world series will become a matter of base hits and nothing more. Strategy won't produce hits in the pinches. If it could, there wouldn't have been a lapse of 15 years between Connie Mack's pennant triumphs. Strategy is guessing under a fancy name. A manager guesses right on his pitchers and pinch batters, and they term him a strategist.

The return of Mack to a world's series role is a story in itself. He deliberately broke up his great team in 1914. He had put it together in what seemed to be an easy and inexpensive way. He thought he could do it again. He summoned them from the highways, the lots and the campus. Most of them went back whence they came. The process proved a failure. Then Mack decided to buy the best the market afforded. Then he began to get somewhere, but even then didn't arrive with his valued cargo until after his most serious rival stopped.

Money Helped Build Cubs.

The Cubs themselves are not innocent of the charge that money made them what they are today. When William Wrigley got control he instituted big business methods. It took several years to build up an organization and to land the kind of manager he wanted.

Then, with the different arms of the organization reaching out into the shores to watch for prospects and the bank roll to buy whatever was good among the majors, the present team began to take form. Each year of McCarthy's four season régime new units were added. The last was Hornsby and the setting was complete. The Cubs, however, if the real figures were revealed, probably would be found to have spent less than Mack to reach the coveted goal.

LACKADAISICAL ATHLETICS WIN FROM YANKS, 8-4

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—The Philadelphia ball players, who have been going a bit stale and spending their money in anticipation of the world series receipts these last two weeks, returned to action in a mild way this afternoon, winning a mock ball game from the Yankees, 8 to 4.

Using the Yankees for experimental purposes, Mr. Connie Mack exercised three pitchers, Mose Grove, George Walsingham Earnshaw and John Picus Quinn, three innings apiece.

Grove pitched with much spirit, striking out three hitters and allowing only two hits, singles by Ruth and Durocher. Earnshaw had moments when he seemed distinctly bush league, but he undoubtedly sensed the phoney character of the ball game as a contest. The Yanks got two runs in the fifth inning during his administration on three hits and a base on balls. John Picus Quinn, the licensed spitball pitcher, gave two runs in the seventh, on a double by Durocher, an error by Joe Boley and a single by Mark Koenig.

Sherid Excused Early.

Roy Sherid, an old football player, started pitching for the Yankees and was removed in plenty of time to put on his clothes and cross the Harlem River to the Polo grounds, where New York U. was playing West Virginia Wesleyan.

Sight unseen, your correspondent would wager a few shillings that the football players performed to more trade and more enthusiastic trade

Bleacher Ticket Sale for Series Starts Tuesday

For those who lack reserved accommodations but still have the desire to attend the current world's titular baseball opening Tuesday at Wrigley field, the following information is conveyed:

The first real action of the series probably will come tomorrow night. The bugs who want first shot at the bleacher accommodations will begin to line up at Wrigley field before sundown. Another line will form before the window where the 2,500 grandstand standing room tickets will go on sale at $3 a head.

The sale of the 12,000 bleacher tickets will open at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning. It may be moved up an hour if the waiting line is long enough. Only one bleacher ticket will be sold to a person and the purchaser will have to pass right into the park without tarrying. Neither will the buyers of the grand stand admissions be permitted to linger. The sale of the latter will open at 9 o'clock.

Holders of the 17,000 box and 18,000 grand stand reservations won't have to hurry. A large corps of ushers, augmented by city police, will see that nobody holds a seat unless able to produce the numbered coupon.

Glenna Collett Takes U. S. Golf Title by 4 and 3 Win

BY HARLAND ROHM.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—Glenna Collett won the women's golf champion ship of the United States for the fourth time and the second consecu tive year, over the Oakland Hills coure, today. She defeated Mrs. Le ona Pressler of Los Angeles, 4 and 3, in the 36 hole final, which was as fine a golf match as women ever played.

That margin might just as well have been called 5 and 3, for Glenna sank a putt of 29 feet 1½ inches for an eagle, after being dormie 4, and conceded Mrs. Pressler her putt, just six inches shorter, for a half. Probably for the first time in golf history, the length of the winning putt was accurately known, but in this case the officials measured both of them with a steel tape to see which was away.

Both Play Good Golf.

In contrast to the usual wobbly finals of major golf tournaments, the golf of both was worthy of the championship. Glenna scored 38—41—79, against a par of 82; and Mrs. Pressler, 40—40—80; in the first round.

Glenna, who had won the national title in 1922, 1925, and 1928, saved her greatest golf for the finish, however, as she played fifteen holes in the afternoon in even fours, 9 under women's par. Giving Mrs. Pressler an eagle on the final hole, she was 7 under women's par, yet had lost three holes.

There was little to choose between their games, except in putting, and it was that made the difference. Glenna's tee shots were somewhat longer and perhaps a little straighter, but Mrs. Pressler had a definite advantage in her iron shots. But she couldn't get the short putts down. She missed three putts of less than a yard and a couple of others hardly longer. She also ran one perfect stymie when she had a two foot putt to halve the second hole. In contrast, Glenna sank two 30 foot putts and two others of more than 15 feet.

Glenna 1 up at Noon.

The champion got away to flying start by winning the first two holes with birdies, due primarily to an 18 foot putt on the first hole and a stymie that kept Mrs. Pressler from a half on the second. She was 2 up in nine holes, but Mrs. Pressler caught her on the thirteenth, where the Los Angeles woman got down her only good putt of the day, a 15 footer for a 2. She had missed a two footer for a win on the tenth.

They went along halving for four holes, Glenna saving herself a half in eagle 3's on the sixteenth by downing a 35 footer after Mrs. Pressler had laid a long iron pitch within a foot of the cup.

Glenna's second three putt green cost her a win on the seventeenth, but Mrs. Pressler was equally generous on the eighteenth, missing a three foot tap for a half, so Glenna stood 1 up at noon.

In the afternoon the Providence girl who recently moved to the Pacific coast and is now from the Press club on the Del Monte peninsula, playing the best golf any one in the tournament has played in the week, covered the first nine holes in 35, even men's par. So although Mrs. Pressler was three under women's par, she lost three more holes. Here again putting told most of the story, for Glenna holed a ten footer for a two on the third and Mrs. Pressler missed a yard putt on the fourth, Glenna winning both.

Mrs. Pressler Rallies in Vain.

Mrs. Pressler made her last stand on the tenth and eleventh in the afternoon. She put a pitch dead to the pin on the tenth to win it, and had a short putt for a four on the eleventh. But Glenna holed a 15 foot downhill putt for a three. They halved three holes, Mrs. Pressler missing a six footer for a win on the thirteenth, leaving Miss Collett dormie four.

Both were somewhat short of the pin with their seconds on the last hole, and after sighting the putts, the referee pulled out a steel tape and measured them. Glenna was away, but apparently she could not miss for she batted the ball over the twisting green straight into the cup.

Any doubts of the frequent assertion that Glenna is the greatest woman golfer in the United States should have been definitely blotted out by her playing this week. It was even more impressive than last year, when she spreadeagled in the field for this week she has to fight through a freak draw which sent her against star after star.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 5.—Those who say the current Notre Dame football club is the greatest since the famed four horsemen era will have to wait another day to prove it. A score of 14 to 0, the ratio hung up this afternoon at Indiana university's homecoming, wasn't exactly what Irish partisans expected for Knute Rockne's 1929 bow.

This is not to say Knute's boys aren't going to do great things later on, for they showed that great talent abounds, needing only more of the rigorous days instructions and practice which they are sure to get, beginning no later than next Monday.

Confining the debate to this afternoon, it must be said Indiana is not as good as advertised, particularly in reference to the line, which should have been a setup for Notre Dame's speed and power. But it wasn't and as a result Notre Dame won by a smaller margin than in any contest between the two institutions since 1920, when Notre Dame conquered by the slim difference of 13 to 10.

Here's One for the Book.

Today's going on had flashes of brilliancy, at that. Strangely enough, however, the biggest thrill of the afternoon ended with an error which probably won't happen later on. Frank Caridco intercepted a forward pass in the second quarter, and with an open field ahead of him, made a dash of 63 yards toward the Indiana goal. Seven yards from the mark he got nervous about the side line and attempted to cut in. In so doing, he dropped the ball for almost no reason at all and it promptly was recovered

Northwestern subdued Butler 13 to 0 in the season's grid opener at Dyche stadium yesterday, but did not appear impressive in the accomplishment. The contest proved largely a defensive affair, both teams failing to show anything startling with their running attacks. Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Ia., provided unexpected strength in the second game of the double header and Coach Hanley was forced to call back most of his regulars to win the nightcap, 27 to 18.

The Wildcats' expected backfield power failed to materialize and only on one occasion was it capable of a sustained drive. This came in the third quarter, when Al Moore, stocky little sophomore full back, and Hank Bruder, half back, alternated in carrying the ball in a drive which terminated in a touchdown.

Statistics reveal a highly stubborn defense on the part of the visiting Bull Dog gridders from Indianapolis. Northwestern made 7 first downs, which were fairly well distributed throughout the game, only two coming in succession. The Wildcats were good for 135 yards and made 52 yards on three successful passes out of 9 attempts.

Bruder, Cavosie Star.

Hank Bruder shared the honors of the day, if any, with John Cavosie, Butler's great half back star. Bruder did all of the scoring and made several flashy runs which provided the few thrills of the day. Defensively, the work of the Wildcats left little to be desired.

Northwestern's first touchdown materialized in the second quarter when Riley blocked Cavosie's punt and the ball rolled out of bounds on the visitors' three yard line. Northwestern was given the ball and in one smash at the center of the line Bruder went over. Griffin failed to drop kick the goal.

Drive Ends in Score.

Early in the third quarter Northwestern started a concerted drive on smashes at the line by Bruder and Moore. The first two downs placed the ball on Butler's 15 yard line, where Bruder started around his right end, cut back over center and crossed the goal line unmolested. The blocking on this run was perfect.

In the final period Butler opened up with a forward passing attack which carried them beyond midfield for the first time during the game, but the spurt was nipped when Bruder intercepted a pass.

The reserves which started the Cornell game for the Purple proved unable to cope with a flashy attack featured by some great running by Capt. Cook and Grant. Cornell scored early in the game when Cook dashed 15 yards for a touchdown. Most of the Purple regulars were inserted in the lineup then and the complexion of matters changed. Both teams scored frequently on sensational runs and on passes which kept the crowd in an uproar, something they had not done in the first game.

Cornell Rallies Near End.

Cornell, although two touchdowns behind, came back in the closing minutes to score a touchdown on a long pass, Grant to Cook. Cornell made a total of 192 yards by passes. Northwestern-Cornell lineup:

| NORTHWESTERN (27). | | CORNELL [18]. |
|---|---|---|
| Eylar | L. E. | Bribal |
| Haug | L. T. | Weisel |

Substitutions: Chicago—Keane for Van Nice, McNellis for Bunge, McKenzie for Temple, Shidman for Marshall, Schmidt for Hamberg. Diefendorf for Shidman. Beloit—Rasinski for Fessler, Kelzy for Kennal, Williams for Meeuwsbrink, Sullivan for Rasinski.

The University of Chicago opened its season on Stagg field yesterday with victories in both ends of a double header. The Maroon varsity trimmed Beloit, 25 to 0, and the reserve eleven bested a plucky little Lake Forest team, 9 to 6.

Beloit failed to furnish much of a test in the opening fray. The Badgers accounted for but three first downs. However, Chicago exhibited an effective hard driving running attack with two sophomore backs doing the heavy duties.

Joe Temple, former Oak Park star, started at full back and scored first for the Maroons early in the second quarter after he and Knudson had carried the ball from midfield. Temple drop kicked for the extra point.

Kanne, another sophomore back, got off a beautiful quick kick on the first play of the second half after the kick off, Capt. Kelly trapping the ball on Beloit's four yard line. Baker kicked out of bounds on his own 21 yard line and Temple crashed to the 6 yard line where he was injured and was forced to leave the game.

Lake Forest scored first after a long pass from Martin to Orr put the ball on the 27 yard strip. Another pass to Hernley gave Lake Forest the ball on the two yard line. Criddle crashed through for a touchdown, but the try for the extra point was wild.

Chicago finally got under way and had Lake Forest on the defensive in their own 30 yard line the rest of the half. The stubborn north shore team held on their 5 yard line, but Martin's kick was blocked and he was thrown behind his own goal for a safety, giving the Maroons 2 points.

Two long passes from Wattenberg to Boesel and Towein gained 55 yards on two plays and Bluhm slipped through for a touchdown as the half ended.

WORLD SERIES HEROES? DON'T FORGET MATTY

Shut Out Philadelphia 3 Times in 1905.

BY DON MAXWELL.

Turn back the musty pages of world series history, read and recall the stories of the battles for title and coin, and you will be impressed by the importance one man played in determining the result.

Every world series has had its hero. Most of them have had their goats. Superlative pitching by one man or tremendous hitting by one player has given a league champion the world title, more frequently than has general team play. One muff, one bit of stupid thinking, one failure to deliver in a pinch by one man, it seems, has been the factor costing his team the world series crown.

Remember That 1905 Series.

Do you remember way back when the Giants and Connie Mack's Philadelphia pennant winners fought for the world title in 1905?

Comiskey's White Stockings had battled the cagey Mr. McGillicuddy's boys in what the sport writers of those days [this day, too] would call a "hectic drive?" Philadelphia nosed out our team and went into the world series rated the equal of the Giants in strength.

The dopesters hadn't counted on that one man—that one hero.

They might have acclaimed Christy Mathewson the hero after the opening game. Even then they—the smart fans—didn't realize that the big right hander was knocking on the door of baseball's hall of fame.

Matty Allows Four Hits.

Matty held the Philadelphia batters to four hits, no two of which came in the same round, and he gave Connie's boys not a single run. Whitewash was their portion.

Charles Dryden, baseball writer, covering that game for THE TRIBUNE, summed it up when he wired:

"Matty held Philadelphia in the hollow of his hand at all stages of the proceedings."

Chief Bender, Indian pitcher of renown, put Philadelphia back on even terms when he held New York scoreless while his teammates were scoring three runs.

Rain postponed the third game and made it possible for Mathewson to come back sooner in the series than Mack had anticipated.

Makes Macks Look Helpless.

Again he held Philadelphia to four hist. Again the Giants won, this time 9 to 0. Quoting Mr. Dryden:

"What Matty did on the opening day merely was repeated—this time with a large majority in favor of the Giants. Matty is a peach in the repeating line. He caused Mack's men to feel even worse than they looked. Only one man reached second base, and he wasn't there long enough to memorize the scenery."

The Giants won their third victory by virtue of good pitching by Mr. McGinnity of the iron arm and then came Matty back to complete his triumph and to write his name indelibly in the ledgers of world series fame.

Two to 0 was the score by which the Giants captured the game and the title. Five hits were all that the Philadelphia batters got.

Christy Mathewson had pitched the Giants to three of their four triumphs. He had allowed only 13 hits in those three games and not a run. If that isn't baseball hero stuff, what is?

A Substitute Makes Good.

It hasn't always been the star of the season who has shone most brightly in the world series. In one series, at least, that of 1906 when the Chicago White Stockings defeated the Chicago Nationals, it was a substitute infielder who won the bay leaves.

Maybe you recall the story of George Rohe. George Davis, idol of southside fans and one of the great shortstops of his day, was unable to play in the series' games. Rohe was put in the lineup of Fielder Jones' pennant winners. And Rohe, it was whose name made the headlines after the first day's game.

Nick Altrock, to be sure, was the winning pitcher, and great in a 2 to 1 triumph. But Rohe shared with Nick, the glory of the day. It was "his long drive past Sheckard into the seats that put the Sox in the game in the fifth inning and it was his honor to score the run of the game. Not satisfied with that Rohe performed the second most spectacular feat of the game when he reached up and speared with his gloved hand a liner which Harry Steinfeldt intended for at least three bases in the seventh inning."

Stars Again in Third Game.

Nor was Rohe to rise to stardom in only one game.

THE TRIBUNE'S account of the third game in that memorable series began with this:

"By one excruciatingly timely blow with his bat George Rohe, substitute, decided a sensational pitching duel between Ed Walsh and Jack Pfiester yesterday, enabling the White Stockings to carry to their southside haunts, the third game in the world series with the Chicago Nationals. That one blow, a stinging three base hit, scored every one of the three runs made in the game, and Walsh did the rest by holding Chance's champions helpless all the way."

Riffle the pages of baseball record. The most interesting stories you will read, the incidents that resume their vividness in memory, are the stories and achievements of some one player.

To be sure, every world series has had its outstanding players. Great pitching, hits when hits meant ball games, sparkling fielding plays, have given the championship battles of the past thrills to be remembered and stories to be retold.

The world series between the Cubs and the Athletics will be no different. Some one will be star above his teammates.

Who will it be on Tuesday?

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send your name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune. For today's question Mrs. Elvin R. Coon, 709 West Broadway, Logansport, Ind., was awarded $5.

The Question.

On what team are you betting to win the world series?

The Answers.

Abraham Rosenberg, 317 West Monroe street, salesman—On the Cubs, of course. I already have wagered about ten dollars on them. And, I am not worrying about that ten spot. But I have no tickets to the series; haven't been able to get them. There may be a chance in the bleachers, but not if I have to stand in line all night.

L. H. Bakken, 6219 North Artesian avenue, salesman — I am betting on Philadelphia because the Athletics have a better balanced team. The Cubs possess harder hitters, but I think the Athletics have better fielders and pitchers. I am not attempting to secure tickets because I saw the world series at St. Paul last year. This season I am going to football games.

Ned McCormick, 203 North Wabash avenue, advertising — The Cubs. I haven't put up any actual money, but I may later if I find takers who will give suitable odds. I am an ardent Cub fan. Their weakest link is stronger than the weakest link in the Philadelphia team. Thank good fortune, I have tickets, opposite the third base line.

Raymond Meichin, 1617 North Karlov avenue, errand boy—If I were betting on any team I'd wager on the Athletics. They are a better team—on paper, of course. In fielding, I imagine the Cubs would beat them out, but they haven't the pitchers the A's have. Connie Mack, in my opinion, also has hitters to match the best Cubs' sluggers, what with Cochrane, Simmons, Foxx and Miller. Yes sir, my money would go on the A's.

Felix G. Schmidt, 75 East Wacker drive, commercial artist—I am not betting, but if I were I would on the Athletics. I'd rather see the Cubs win, but at the same time it would not be well to let sentiment run away with my judgment. My judgment is that the Athletics are the stronger team.

He's also the second ranking pitcher in the American league, with 23 games won and 8 lost.

Series Rivals Ready; First Game Tuesday

purchases proved morning glories. But the old gentleman, to whom baseball and the American league owe much, deserves credit for trying.

Unlike many series of the past, both teams will swing into action with the best they possess. There are no injuries on which alibis can be built later for the loser. The Macks finished their season with no apparent letdown. The Cubs slipped considerably after a strenuous race, but in the last week scrambled back into their former free hitting mood. They always have been at their best when the competition was toughest, and their revival in the waning days of the race proves McCarthy still has the power to arouse them when trouble impends.

If it wasn't that Zack Taylor was around and ready for work, the Cubs might have reason to lament the absence of Gabby Hartnett. Hartnett is a cripple, just as he has been all season, but his absence as a catcher during the series can't be termed a calamity. Taylor since the day he joined the Cubs in July was as steady as a timepiece. He can't hit with Hartnett, but is dangerous. Neither can he throw with Gabby when the latter has his arm, but the Macks don't run wild on the bases.

Managers Mum on Hurlers.

Mainly because it adds to the importance of the event, both managers threaten to remain silent until the last moment about their pitching choices for Tuesday's inaugural. By the way he worked his staff the last few days of the race, it looks as if McCarthy's mind is set on Charley Root, the logical man.

Some of Mack's silence on the subject may be due to other than a desire to be mysterious. Having two excellent hurlers at his command, it should be easy for him to decide; but there are little items he must consider.

He must figure what effect the opening glamor might have on Grove, who occasionally is influenced by surroundings. He must consider whether Grove might not weaken himself, even before starting, by wondering what eight right handed hitters might do to him. It won't surprise anybody if Mack pins his starting choice on the steadier Earnshaw.

STEERS RELEASE STOCK.

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 5.—[U.P.]—Word of the release of Milton Stock, manager of the Dallas Texas league baseball team, was received today. Stock for the last several years has been successful as pilot of the Dallas Steers.

CUBS AND A'S FACE IMPOSING SERIES RECORDS

Must Hustle to Beat Past Feats.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

With Mr. McCarthy's Cubs and Mr. Mack's Athletics geared up to do bigger and better things this week, it is likely that more than one world series record of long standing will be shattered.

Many of these records have withstood the buffeting of a thousand ball players, however, and not a few of them will stand up against the Cubs and Athletics.

There are pitchers' records which have been hanging around for a long time. One will be remembered by old time Chicago fans who saw Big Ed Walsh set a world series strikeout record of 12 in the Sox-Cubs series of 1906. Incidentally, Jack Pfeister of the Cubs fanned nine of the Hitless Wonders in that game. Another pitchers' record of note is that of Hod Eller of Cincinnati, who struck out six White Sox batters in succession in the 1919 series. Still another is that of Herb Pennock, who turned in a three hit game in both the 1926 and 1927 series. And as for bases on balls Jack Coombs of the Athletics issued the record nine against the Cubs in 1910.

Ruth and Gehrig Hold a Few.

Of course, the shelf holding the world series batting records is all cluttered up, what with the doings of those two fellows from New York, George H. Ruth and Henry L. Gehrig. Both are tied for the most home runs in a series—four—the Babe getting his quartet in the 1926 series and Lou his last year. The Babe also holds the record for home runs in one game. It's three, and he's done it twice, once in 1926 and again last year.

Casey Stengel hung up another mark for Hornsby, Wilson, Foxx, and Simmons to aim at when, in 1923, he won two games for the Giants with home runs. Dutch Reuther of the Reds established the record for triples in one series game by poking out a pair in the 1919 series. The doubles record of four was set by Frank Isbell of the White Sox against the Cubs in 1906.

The Athletics hold the records for the highest and lowest club batting percentages, hitting .317 against the Cubs in 1910 and only .162 against the Giants in 1905. The Giants hung up the game percentage record, of .513, when they got 20 hits in 39 times at bat in 1921. They also hold the mark for most hits in one series, collecting 74 in the eight games with the Red Sox in 1912.

Pipp Makes 92 Putouts.

Individual fielding records also should receive some attention in the series this year. In 1921 Wally Pipp of the Yanks was credited with 92 putouts for the first baseman's record. George Kelly of the Giants holds the putout record for one game with 19. Aaron Ward of the Yankees set the assist record of 34 in the 1921 series. Ed Roush made the outfielders putout record for one series with 30 in 1919 and shares the game putout record of eight with Mike Donlin of the old New York Giants.

Zach Taylor and Mickey Cochrane also may do some business with the catcher's records. Muddy Ruel of the Senators holds the series record of 51 putouts and 56 chances accepted. And then there's that unassisted triple play made by Bill Wambsganss of Cleveland in 1920, the only one on record in the world series.

The Boston Red Sox of 1918 set the highest club fielding percentage for a series with a mark of .996, while Brooklyn holds the lowest, .942. The 1916 Red Sox negotiated four double plays for the game record in that department. The series record of 10 was established by Washington in 1924. The Detroit club of 1909 made 19 miscues for the series error record, while the White Sox admit to the game record for error, making six in 1906 and tying themselves in 1917.

Mack Out for Record.

Mr. Mack himself will be out to set another record and if his Athletics take the series, he'll do it. Connie is tied with John McGraw and the late Miller Huggins as the only managers winning three world's series championships, and a victory for him will establish a new mark.

HERE ARE RULES FOR CUBS' PARK TRAFFIC IN SERIES

Police Commissioner Russell yesterday announced the traffic regulations that will prevail during the world series games at Wrigley field. These rules, which will cover the area bounded on the north by Sheridan road, the east by Halsted street, the south by Roscoe street, and the west by Herndon street, follow:

Sheffield avenue from Waveland avenue to Addison street, and Waveland avenue from Sheffield to Seminary avenue will be closed to traffic by city ordinance.

Single line parking only will be permitted; double line parking will be prohibited.

Parking will not be permitted in Addison avenue from Herndon to Halsted streets, or in Clark street from Byron to Roscoe streets, or in any alleys.

Left turns will not be permitted in the restricted area, except northbound traffic in Sheffield avenue, which will be permitted to turn left in Addison street. "U" turns will not be permitted in blocks nor at street intersections.

Automobiles will be permitted to form in double line to receive passengers on the south side of Addison street from Sheffield avenue west, and on the north side of Addison street from Clark street west, after the seventh inning of each game.

The above regulations will be effective between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. each day of the series here.

Blues Score in Fifth, Conquer Red Wings, 1-0

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 5.—In an old fashioned pitchers' battle, the Kansas City Blues of the American association took the third game of the little world series from the Rochester Red Wings, International league champions, today, 1 to 0.

Lackadaisical Macks Defeat Yankees, 8 to 4

than the champions and the runnersup of the American league were called upon to entertain. After Sherid was removed, Ed Wells pitched for the Yankees and pitched to the end regardless.

Mr. Mack sat on his feather pillow in the corner of the Athletics' dugout, nominally commanding the antics of his chaps, but a man who went down to see him about some world series tickets came back up to the press cage to report that he was paying very little attention to the ball game. Mr. Mack was going over a thick sheaf of correspondence relating to world series tickets and methodically marking "no" on each one with a thick, muddy pencil.

This was the first time the Athletics have had an opportunity to play any ball since last Sunday and only their fifth game in two weeks. Naturally all members of the troupe are insisting that they are quite merry and bright but the probability is that they have lost some of their knack in this time.

A New Record for Mack.

They have another game with the Yankees tomorrow afternoon, barring rain, sleet or snow. This afternoon's victory was their 103d of the season constituting a minor statistic. That is, these boys are the first club Mr. Mack ever had who won 103 games for him, the previous record having 102. It is not much of a statistic and Mr. Mack, after all his years among the statistics, seemed quite unconcerned about it.

There was some scattered attendance in the grand stand and in the right field bleachers, most of it done up in overcoats and here and there the eye caught the dull glint of a beaten-silver flask being up-ended.

Not only were the ball clubs competing against the football games, but they were attempting to do business in the heart of the Bronx, one of the most populous Jewish centers in the world on the dawn of the Jewish year five thousand and something, when most of the neighbors were at the temples.

Simmons Hits Home Run.

The Athletics had a pleasant afternoon of it. Mule Haas got a triple and a double, Al Simmons hit a home run in the ninth, Jimmy Foxx hit a double, and Mickey Cochrane, Bing Miller and Jimmy Dykes made two singles apiece. Simmons' home run described a rainbow course into the left field pavilion where a young customer sitting alone rose languidly, reached out with his meat hand and plucked the ball from the air on the fly. He then sat down as Simmons jogged around the bases following behind Cochrane who had just rapped the second of his singles.

After tomorrow's ball game, the Athletics will toss their harness into the trunks and take a seven o'clock train for Philadelphia along with the general run of passenger traffic. But at North Philadelphia they will detrain and go aboard a special for the run to Chicago, leaving about 9:30 in the evening and arriving Monday afternoon.

There will be a large delegation of wives in the party and the stag car rules normally obtaining on ball players' pullmans will be suspended for the duration of the world series, which is to say that all gents must draw on their pants behind the Pullman curtains and not in the aisles.

Idleness Costs Money.

Incidentally, in compliance with the world series rules, Mr. Mack has cut down his personnel to 25 souls who will be admitted to the dugout for the series. And, owing to the shortage of world series tickets in his town, he has not only permitted but urged his extra men to retire to their various distant homes without waiting to see the series.

The idleness of the last week has cost some of the athletes serious amounts of money as they found themselves reading the ads of the new automobiles, fall coats and the like, and this is dangerous reading for young men on the point of receiving from $5,000 to $7,000 each. Only this morning, Cochrane, Perkins, and Mose Grove, out walking on 5th avenue for exercise, were lured into a clothing store where they each bought one huge fuzzy yellow overcoat with belted back, one yellow cap of the model worn by song pluggers at the six day bike races, one pair of actors' yellow gloves and one yellow walking stick.

Odds Here Favor A's to Win Series, Also First Game

With the advance guard of world's series visitors here the betting on the outcome of the championship diamond battle open at Cubs park Tuesday became lively late yesterday and last night.

On La Salle street, yesterday morning one wager of $6,000 against $5,000 with the Athletics the favorites was reported. This was on the series. Another bet of $1,100 against $1,000 was made that the Athletics win the opening game.

Many other smaller wagers were reported with the Athletics being the 6 to 5 favorite in all of them. There is an abundance of Cub money for the first game, and it is expected that by tomorrow night it will be even money take your choice on the result of the opening struggle.

Tribune Radio, Scoreboard Will Tell Series Story

If you weren't one of the lucky fans to get tickets to the world series or if you are otherwise unable to attend any of the games, you can keep in touch with what's going on at Wrigley field or Shibe park every day in the series. THE TRIBUNE has erected a huge scoreboard on the south side of the fifth floor of the plant in the rear of The Tribune Tower. The inning-by-inning score of each game will be placed on the board. The figures are visible from Wacker drive.

The inning-by-inning scores of the games also will be displayed in the second floor windows of the Union Trust building, Madison and Dearborn streets, directly above THE TRIBUNE'S loop public service office.

Quin Ryan and Pat Barnes will present play by play descriptions of each game through W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station. Loud speakers have been installed at both of THE TRIBUNE'S outlying public service offices at 1011 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street, where fans who can't be at the games may hear a detailed story of their progress.

HOUSEHOLDERS RECEIVE O. K. ON ROOF BLEACHERS

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Three judges sitting en banc ruled today that householders whose homes afford a view of ball games played at Shibe park may erect bleacher seats on their roofs for the accommodation of several hundred fans who will be unable to get inside the park during the world series. Police had sought to prevent the crowding of roofs, fearing accidents may result.

Arthur C. Conwell, who appeared as spokesman for 20 interested home owners, said each roof would accommodate from 70 to 100 spectators, and that seats will cost about $10 each.

REDS SHUT OUT CUBS, 9-0; SPOIL 100 WINS HOPES

Cincinnati, O. Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Joe McCarthy sent his champion Cubs through their next to the last workout this afternoon in preparation for the world series and when the nine innings were over, Cincinnati had heaped a 9 to 0 defeat upon them. It was the final appearance of the Cubs on Redland field.

What honor there was in the contest, if it may be called that, went to Rube Erhardt, a Chicago boy, who pitched his one good game of the year holding the Cubs with five hits. In only one inning did he allow them to put two hits together.

At that, the Cubs didn't seem to care a bit about what happened, even though the defeat cost them their chance to win 100 games this year. They swung their bats listlessly and ran bases carelessly.

After Cincinnati had piled up a 2 to 0 lead on Mournful Mike Cvengros, McCarthy showed his utter disregard for victory by removing Hack Wilson, Rogers Hornsby and Charley Grimm from the lineup. Johnny Moore went into center field, Clarence Blair to second base and Charley Tolson to first.

Swanson, Stripp Star.

Until the seventh inning, the Cubs obtained only one hit off Erhardt but Blair and Cuyler got blows in this frame. Schulte produced one in the eighth and Moore came through in the ninth.

Swanson and Stripp enjoyed a field day at Cvengros' expense, Swanson drove out a triple, double and single and Stripp contributed three singles. In all, the Reds collected fourteen hits, four of which were triples.

Cvengros started shakily but really didn't go to pieces until the sixth when Cincinnati put over three runs.

Swanson and Critz led off with singles to right in the first inning, Swanson eventually moved into third and in a position to score on Walker's infield out a moment later.

Cvengros managed to get along then until the third, when Swanson doubled to right, counting on Kelly's scatch infield hit to McMillan after Critz and Walker had been disposed of.

Allen Smacks Triple.

In the sixth Allen led off with a triple to left and scored when Beck made a wild throw to McMillan after taking Stephenson's throw to the infield. A walk to Goodh, Stripp's single and Swanson's triple to center produced the other two runs in this inning.

Mack May Not Name Twirler Until Tuesday

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Connie Mack has been asked so many times recently who will pitch the first game for the Athletics in the world series he is getting tired answering.

"Well, I can say truthfully," is Mack's invariable reply, "that right now I don't know, and I don't think I will know until the series is about to start. Here's the way I argue it:

"Suppose I tell some one he is to pitch and later on conditions compel me to change my mind. That pitcher starts to worry and wonders what has happened.

"I haven't decided even whether it will be a right hander or a left hander. All you questioners can keep right on guessing, but nobody will know who is going in until 15 minutes before game time."

Most of the dopesters believe Earnshaw, the A's star right hander, will draw the opening assignment against the Cubs. However, Mack is some what noted for pulling the unexpected and is a past master at outguessing the opposition. His two southpaws, Grove and Walberg, both are anxious to refute the claim that the Cubs make mincemeat of left handers.

Pillette Hurls No Hit, No Run Game on Coast

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Herman Pillette, right handed pitcher of the Missions, led his team to victory today by pitching the first no run, no hit game of the season in the Pacific Coast league and the only game since 1903 in which no more than two men reached first base.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Wisconsin rallied in the second half to outplunge and outpass Colgate and march relentlessly to a 13-6 victory in the first East-West intersectional grid clash of the season here today.

The Colgate score came before the contest was two minutes old and left the 30,000 spectators cold. In five plays after the opening kick off Colgate carried the ball to the Badgers' twelve yard line. Then Dowler swept around end for a touch down.

In the third period Hal Rebholz, Sammy Behr and Ernie Bill Lusby, cut loose with a powerful offensive which carried the Badgers into the lead.

Gantenbein Goes Over.

Wisconsin started its march for a touch down when Hart's short punt landed on Colgate's 35 yard line in the first five minutes of the third period. Lusby hurled a pass to Gantenbein that was good for first down on Colgate's 16 yard line. Lusby hit left tackle for three yards.

Behr threw a left handed pass to Gantenbein who grabbed the ball near the Colgate goal posts and went for a touch down, tying the score. Lusby planted a drop kick between the bars for the extra point.

The second Badger score came after a march down the field which was punctuated with a 35 yard gallop by Hal Rebholz to Colgate's 25 yard line. Russell Rebholz, brother of Harold, replaced Lusby and in two attempts made first down on Colgate's nine yard line. Colgate went back to its four yard line on an offside penalty.

Dowler Is Hurt.

But Colgate could match the Wisconsin heroes with those of her own. Hart and Dowler figured prominently in the Colgate touchdown. After receiving the kickoff Dowler made eight yards around end and Hart passed to Yablock for first down on Wisconsin's 36 yard line. Hart tossed again to Yablock, this time for first down on the 12 yard mark, then Dowler made his run for a touchdown.

Dowler was removed early in the third period with an injured leg. Capt. Cox at center, and Huntington and Haines, tackles were outstanding in the easterners' line.

The teams were equal in first downs, each scoring ten. Hal Rebholz, with 69 yards was the leading ground gainer of the game, followed by Hart of Colgate with 43. The kicks of Rebholz and Lusby averaged 41 yards and those of Hart 34.

Colgate completed nine passes for 126 yards while the Badgers threw four for 78.

OHIO STATE WINS

Columbus, O., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—In a rather drab and uninteresting football game, Ohio State university opened its 1929 season here today, by defeating Wittenberg college, 19 to 0.

Ohio State made its first score in the game, when McConnelly intercepted a pass from Smith and raced thirty-five yards for a touchdown. After Wittenberg had punted out of bounds on their own 30 yard line. Hess and Holman worked the ball to the 10 yard line, where Hess took it over. Barrett kicked goal. The third touchdown came when McClure and Hess marched thirty-five yards for a score, McClure bucking it over on the fourth down.

[illegible] MONMOUTH, 0

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—The University of Iowa football team defeated Monmouth here today, 46 to 0. Oran Pape starred with several long runs, one of which ended in a touchdown. He averaged 12 yards in eleven tries.

Shortly after the start of battle Glassgow made the first touchdown for Iowa with a 27 yard run around left end. Thomas put over the second counter in the second quarter.

The longest run of the game was made by Sansen, substitute full back. He took the ball on his own 45 yard line and raced 55 yards for a touchdown.

GO! CHICAGO, GO! IT'S A TOUCHDOWN!

Knudson crashes through Beloit's line for a touchdown in the opening game at Stagg field. Chicago won, 27 to 0, and exhibited a strong plunging and running attack which the Badgers could not halt. Knudson, with Temple, did most of the ball carrying. Here he's going over, but it is a matter of inches.

Peters Dashes 50 Yards As Illini Down Kansas, 25-0

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Although the Kansas Jayhawkers battled valiantly, they provided feeble opposition to the determined onslaughts of Zuppke's University of Illinois, Big Ten champions, who opened the season with a one sided victory, 25 to 0.

Fumbles temporarily halted the Illini in the opening period, which ended when Pete Yanuskus, sophomore back, who made his first appearance for Illinois, carried the ball to the threshold of the Jayhawker goal. Kansas held momentarily, but Yanuskus soon circled the Kansas left side for a touchdown. Robinson plunged across shortly for another score.

Peters Runs 50 Yards.

Frosty Peters made the longest run of the afternoon in the third period, returning a punt. Frosty ran all over the field, coming near to both sidelines and eluding numerous crimson jerseyed tacklers. At the 15 yard line he was still loose but slipped and fell. He had covered 50 yards. Evans soon swept the Kansas right side for a touchdown.

Clark Root, little sophomore back, making his debut, from scrimmage ran 30 yards for the fourth touchdown.

In the fourth period the Jayhawkers stiffened, with Page and Lawrence carrying the ball, menaced the Illini goal for the first time. In this period the Jayhawkers made their only first downs, six. Page fumbled on the 11 yard line, where Bergeson recovered and a chance for score went glimmering.

The Illini completed eight out of 22 passes and Kansas three out of 14. Zuppke's men made 12 first downs and were given another by a penalty.

Zuppke used 30 men in all. Wietz, Lanum, Schultz, Walker, and Steinman, all of whom would have played a prominent part in the game, were held out on account of various disabilities. They were not needed to accomplish the rout of the Missouri Valley representatives.

Zuppke Uses New Men.

Kawal, center; Useman, end; Huddlestun, guard, and Irwin and Evans, backs, were among the new players introduced by Zuppke. Humbert, who had been considered for end, was brought back to his old place at full. Olaf Robinson, last year's full back, played an important part in downing the Valley lads.

Although the Jayhawkers never got going until the final period, Capt. Lyman and his squad battled hard and by breaking up many Illini passes managed to keep down the score.

Michigan: Roach for Auer, Sorenson for Steinke, Hewitt for Dreveling, Heslin for Hudson, Poorman for Hayden, Samuels for Poe, Cornwell for Truskowski, Morrison for Gembis.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Uncovering a brilliant running sophomore back in Roy Hudson an improved Michigan eleven again turned back the annual challenge of Michigan State by a score of 17 to 0. The crowd was estimated at 35,000.

If the Wolverines are going to be a passing team this year they did not show it against State. Only two passes were attempted by Kipke's Wolverines. In Hudson, chunky left hander, Kipke has a man capable of sliding off tackle for gains nearly every time he took the ball. His 21 efforts were good for 190 yards. Hudson went through right tackle early in the fourth period, shook off 3 tacklers and ran 79 yards for a touchdown with fine blocking. He opened the game by running the kickoff 30 yards to put the Wolverines in good position at the very start.

The first score of the game came in the middle of the opening quarter after a penalty and a short punt left Michigan in possession of the ball on State's 29 yard line. Hudon went off tackle for first down on the 14 yard line. Michigan was off side but Dahlem and Gembis squeezed through for 5 and Hudson cracked through to State's 2 yard line. Gembis made the touchdown and kicked goal.

Hudson fired the first gun in a march to Michigan's second score, cutting through tackle for a first down on the Spartan 39 yard line for a gain of 23 yards. Dahlem made another first down on the 23 yard line. Hudson, Simerall, and Gembis added 13 more yards but the Spartans held and Gembis booted a field goal from the 31 yard line.

JACK ELDER LEADS NOTRE DAME TO VICTORY, 14 TO 0

Scores 2 Touchdowns Against Indiana.

by Unger of Indiana and carried and kicked back into a safer realm.

Jack Elder and Moon Mullins had better fortune with their dashes and as a result Elder scored both the Irish touchdowns. Before the Carideo misfortune in the second quarter, Elder made a forward pass to Mullins good for 45 yards and then carried the ball himself the remaining 23 yards to a touchdown. Carideo kicked the goal.

Elder's second touchdown was a fine piece of work. He bucked the center of the Indiana line, paused to get his bearings after finding himself clear and then started a beautiful zig zag trip to the goal line. Carideo again kicked the extra point.

Indiana Had No Chance.

Indiana never developed a scoring chance except in the second quarter when a fumbled punt and a 16 yard pass, Balay to Faunce, placed the ball on Notre Dame's seven yard line. The Irish showed no great exertion in halting the threat and the Indiana offensive was blasted with a blocked forward pass on fourth down, which didn't even reach the goal line.

Indiana made only three first downs during the afternoon's enterprise, a faint effort as compared with Notre Dame's 15. The only place in which the downstate Hoosiers showed supremacy was staying away from the pitfalls which fetch penalties. Notre Dame was penalized 110 yards as contrasted with Indiana's 10.

Page's men had a slight edge in the forward passing department, completing four out of 12 for 69 yards, while Notre Dame was content to try 10, of which three were successful for a total of 60 yards.

In the matter of gaining ground through rushing, the Irish were vastly superior, through this technique Notre Dame gained 351 as compared with Indiana's 53.

In addition to the previously mentioned speedsters, Elder, Carideo and Mullins, husky Joe Savoldi is a person of whom you will hear much ere the snow falls. He was most brutal in his onslaughts against Indiana's first line defense and is very rapid in the broken field as well.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 5.—Minnesota beat Coe 39 to 0 here this afternoon as Dr. Spears' green but speedy team made its debut before a crowd of 25,000.

The Gophers' play was spotty throughout as Dr. Spears rushed in every available man.

Through the four periods, brilliant open field running by Brockmeyer and Riebeth stood out. # KANSAS AGGIES ARE BEATEN BY PURDUE, 26-14

Harmeson Leads Attack of Boilermakers.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 5.—Purdue's reconstructed football team opened its 1929 season here this afternoon by riding rough shod over Bo McMillin's Kansas Aggies, 26 to 14. Phelan used a new back field of four sopohmores to open the game and kept Pest Welch, evidently wishing to save his star for the coming tilt with Michigan here next Saturday.

Yunevich, Purvis, Hope and White drove down the field in 15 plays to the two yard line. Then Purvis crashed over to turn the Purdue senior Derbies loose and give the Boilermakers a lead they never lost.

Glen Harmeson, fleet footed veteran quarter back, appeared in the middle of the game in the new rôle of half back, and promptly proceeded to reel off neat runs and toss forward passes with precision. Purdue's third touchdown came in the second quarter as the result of a long pass from Harmeson to Kissell, while in the third quarter Harmeson's touchdown followed Caraway's spectacular catch that put the ball on the 14 yard line. The Product of 25 Years of Progress

5 Speeds forward and 2 reverse in all Heavy Duty Internationals

Yes, more than that, for back of the twenty-five years of actual truck building experience is almost seventy-five years of engineering and manufacturing experience that has gone into other products of the Harvester organization.

International Heavy-Duty Trucks reflect this experience in design and construction and prove its soundness in the performance.

The new heavy-duty engines are noted for their simplicity, sturdiness and economy of operation. All models have five speeds forward and two reverse, and all have 4-wheel brakes.

There are new clutches, new transmissions and double reduction or chain final drive. There are increased capacities and there are bodies and wheelbase lengths to meet the requirements of each individual job. Capacities range from 2½ to 5-ton.

Come in and go over this International Heavy-Duty construction with critical eye—then take one of these trucks out and test it on your job without obligation.

Besides Heavy-Duty Trucks, the International line includes the ¾-ton Special Delivery, the 1-ton Six-Speed Special, and Speed Trucks for 1¼, 1½, and 2-ton loads. Backing the trucks is an unequaled service organization—there are now 174 Company-owned branches in the United States and Canada and dealers everywhere.

40,000 WATCH TROJANS DEFEAT OREGON STATE

Jones' Eleven Scores a 21-7 Victory.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Southern California's football team cleared one hurdle in their race for a title by toppling Oregon State, the team which upset New York U. last autumn, 21 to 7, today. Forty thousand saw Coach Howard Jones' boys pack three touchdowns into the second quarter and lose a fourth touchdown in the third when Tappaans' interception of a pass was called back because a teammate was off side.

During the course of play Jones gave a demonstration of how strong is the reserve strength of this year's Trojan eleven by shifting from first to second to third teams, ending the game with fifth stringers in a number of positions and the Trojans still threatening to score. Southern California made 14 first downs to seven but lost 165 yards on penalties.

CALIFORNIA, 0; ST. MARYS, 0.

Berkeley, Cal., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—California's football team lived up to its record for securing ties by holding the St. Mary's collegians from Oakland, 0 to 0, here today. St. Mary's was on the Bears' one yard line in the fourth quarter, but California held. St. Mary's suffered its big scare in the fourth quarter also when California ran the ball to the 15 yard line, but Garrity fumbled. Seventy thousand saw the game.

Georgia Tech Makes Debut in 27-13 Win

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Georgia Tech's reconstructed Golden Tornado launched its 1929 championship drive at Grant field today by defeating the scrappy Mississippi A. and M. eleven, 27 to 13. The Tornado was not the smooth running machine which mowed down all opposition in 1928, but showed flashes of consistent form.

Under the generalship of Earl Dunlap, an unerring passer, Tech established an early lead which was never seriously threatened, despite the crafty and daring work of "Pappy" Pappenheimer, the Mississippians' field general.

It was Dunlap's rifelike passes to Jones, speedy end, that gave Tech the edge and scoring punch necessary to win.

Practically every offensive drive the Aggies launched hinged on Pappenheimer, who flipped passes to Harris, blocked while a fellow back smashed into the Tornado line, kicked when his team failed to gain, and carried his end of running with the oval. Lineup:

| AGGIES [13]. | | TECH [27]. |
|---|---|---|
| Sistrunk | L. E. | Jones |

LINDBLOM WINS FOURTH; DEFEATS NEW TRIER, 14-6

Victors Forced to Limit by Passing Attack.

Lindblom of the central section continued to prove that it has designs on the City league title by defeating New Trier, co-champion of the Suburban league last year, 14 to 6, in their annual game at Normal Park yesterday. It was the fourth straight victory of the season for Coach Moore's eleven, but they were forced to the limit to outdo New Trier's passing attack.

The game wasn't ten minutes old before the south siders, headed by Schabes, advanced to New Trier's one yard line and Condon plunged over for the touchdown. The young suburban team, which replaced New Trier's champions of last year, came back in the second period and opened up with a volley of passes which terminated with Capt. Hicks' receiving Paulson's toes from the 20 yard line and going over for a touchdown.

In the fourth quarter Lindblom continued to play straight football and worked the ball to New Trier's 21 yard line, where Ziman took it over after a series of plunges. Capt. Febel added another point after touchdown.

If you should lift the body of every car

in Buick's field—
and compare the chassis—
then you too would choose

The New BUICK

If you were to lift the body from the chassis of any one of a hundred cars—and compare the vitally important details of chassis design and construction—you would find Buick so outstandingly superior in all phases of fine car engineering that you would almost inevitably make Buick your choice. Here is what you would see in this famous chassis:

Buick's great new Valve-in-Head engine—developing 99 horsepower in the 124- and 132-inch models, and 80½ horsepower in the 118-inch models. The most powerful automobile engine of its size in the world. Representing 26 years of constant, aggressive improvement. Triple-sealed against wear, and incorporating such signal refinements as counter-weighted crankshaft with torsion balancer, carburetor heat control and positive-pressure gas pump. Unapproached in sturdiness, all-round performance—ability, reliability and economy as well.

Buick's new Controlled Servo Enclosed Mechanical Brakes—revealing clearcut leadership over any other brakes of the day. Of the widely-favored internal-expanding type. Providing smooth, positive, silent braking, with minimum pedal pressure. Assuring absolute control of the car over all roads. And—because fully protected against dust, dirt and water—operating at maximum efficiency in any weather.

Buick's new frictionless steering gear and new Road Shock Eliminator—twin advancements introduced by Buick. Providing marvelous new handling ease. The Buick wheel offering effortless control throughout its entire turning range—and the new Road Shock Eliminator assuring complete freedom from annoying jolts and jars, even over the roughest roads.

Buick's unprecedented provision for riding comfort—new, longer rear springs, and new Lovejoy Duodraulic Shock Absorbers, front and rear. Working in perfect harmony—combining to check both bound and rebound—and providing a degree of riding ease without parallel anywhere.

And, finally, such established Buick superiorities as the famous double-drop frame of finest, toughest steel . . . the massive side and cross members reinforced at points of stress to insure the greatest roadability and long life . . . the celebrated torque tube drive, Buick multiple-disc clutch, self-lubricating differential, and numerous other features.

When the list of Buick's chassis features—entirely aside from the irresistible appeal of Buick's new Fisher Bodies—reads like a roll-call of all that is soundest and best in fine car engineering . . . and when, in addition, you can buy a Buick for as little as $1225, f. o. b. factory . . . what wonder that all comparisons lead to Buick! What wonder that more than 2,000,000 people have invested their money in Buicks—and that from two to five times as many are purchasing this new Buick as any other automobile priced above $1200!

KLEIN, O'DOUL EXCEL HORNSBY'S BATTING MARKS

Chuck Hits 43d Homer; Lefty Totals 254 Blows.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 5.—(AP)—The Phillies ended their 1929 campaign today in what to them was a blaze of glory. They divided two games with the Giants to slip into fifth place ahead of Brooklyn, which dropped two contests to Boston, and saw Frank O'Doul clinched the batting championship.

O'Doul got six hits, including his forty-second home run, in eight times at bat to run his total for the season to 254 and his batting average to an even .400. The Philly outfielder's total of safe drives is four ahead of the league record set by Rogers Hornsby in 1922 and three short of George Sisler's major league mark of 257 made in 1920. O'Doul is the first batsman for the National league since 1925 when Hornsby led with 403. Klein hit his forty-third home run in the opener, bettering Hornsby's National league record by one. The Rajah won the major league home run championship in 1922 with forty-two circuit blows. Other National league scores:

DAN HOWLEY RESIGNS FROM BROWNS' HELM

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Dan Howley manager of the St. Louis Browns, announced today that he would not manage the club in the 1930 campaign. Howley's three year contract with the Browns ends this season.

Howley said conditions were not satisfactory in the St. Louis American League club and that he had decided not to talk contract with Phil Ball, owner of the Browns. "I'm merely going to see him to say goodbye," Howley said.

Asked concerning his plans for the future, Howley replied that he has nothing in view. He plans to go to West Palm Beach, Fla., this winter and expects to establish a connection before the 1930 season opens. Advised of Howley's announcement, Ball expressed regret. He said he did not know who would be Howley's successor.

HEYDLER SHUNS RASH 'GUESSES,' BUT LIKES CUBS

No Longer Neutral After N. L. Season Ends.

New York, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Following his unhappy experiences in the world series of 1927 and 1928, John Heydler, National league president, is not making any rash predictions on the outcome of the series between the Cubs and Athletics. Heydler admits a wholesome respect for the Athletics and Connie's pitchers, but if the clubbing lineup of the Cubs does not crash its way through to a glorious National league victory genial John will be the most disappointed man in Garden City.

"We have had some bitter world series pills to swallow but also have had our years of rejoicing," remarked Heydler today. "After what we went through in 1927 and 1928 I can realize how Col. Ruppert and his associates must have suffered in 1922. It is not easy to get yourself all worked up over a baseball event and then see your representative go through a series without a victory.

"You know for a league president a world series is the only opportunity he has to work himself into a state of enthusiasm. In all league contests the president must be strictly neutral.

"Certainly we have a splendid chance of winning this year. The Cubs have a terrific punch and are one of the strongest teams we have entered in a world series. No doubt Mr. Mack has a fine ball club. He must have to win more than 100 games and beat a team like the Yankees.

"However, it is asking much of any pitching staff to hold the Cubs."

SPACE FOR 7,000 AUTOS.

One of the features of the new Arena Sports club of St. Louis is the parking accommodations for 7,000 automobiles.

American Giants Shut Out Homestead Grays by 1-0

The American Giants yesterday won the first of a five game series from the Homestead Grays of Pittsburgh, 1 to 0. The lone tally came in the third on singles by C. Williams and Bell with Jeffries' sacrifice and McDonald's out sandwiched in between. The visitors filled the sacks with one out in the eighth but a fast double play snuffed out their hopes.

JUVENILES FACE OLDER HORSES IN PIMLICO STAKE

Weight for Age Race Tops Meeting.

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Among the interesting fixtures at the Pimlico autumn meeting Nov. 1 to 13 is the Weight for Age stake at six furlongs, which closed with 80 nominations from 46 owners. A race of this description brings two year olds and upward together at standard poundage, and gives a fairly accurate method of comparing the merits of the contestants on a scientific basis.

There is little difference between two and three year olds at this period of the year, when the Pimlico Weight for Age is decided. The juveniles should hold their own with the older horses at the scale weights.

Among the two year olds entered for the Weight for Age are H. G. Bedwell's Red Briar, Belair stud's Wrattle, Archibald Barklie's Wayne, Mrs. J. Simpson Dean's Skid, Dixiana's Mucker, Hi Chick, and Irish Polly; Howe stable's Gowan, Gold Brook, and Tetrarchal; Mrs. W. M. Jefford's Good as Gold; Kershaw stable's Misnot, S. W. Labrot's Night Signal, Fortunate Youth, Porphyry, Rocket Glare, and Wild Fowl, Rancocas Stable's Mohatam, and Grattan; Rappahannock stable's Big Spring, Sage stable's Mad Hattie, Walter J. Salmon's Swinfield, Snowflake, and Perfect Play, Salubria stable's Panda, Tedlu stable's Spearhead, P. M. Walker's Cymbal, and William Ziegler Jr.'s Golden Plume.

The older horses nominated include such good performers as Arden farm's Sun Edwin, J. N. Camden's Martinique, W. R. Coe's well bred Scot's Grey, Vanity, and Sweep Out, Dixiana's Voltear, Bud Fisher's Igloo, Robert L. Gerry's two time Futurity winner, High Strung; E. R. Bradley's Buddy Bauer, Le Mar Stock Farm's Misstep, Rancocas stable's Mowlee, Leucite, and Mei Foo, Sagamore stable's Balko, Salubria stable's Strolling Player, W. F. Scheid's My Sis (which ran so well last spring), Warm stable's 1926 Preakness winner Victorian, Wheatley stable's Distraction, H. P. Whitney's Tantivy and Spinner, George D. Widener's Jack High, Joseph E. Widener's great gelding, Osmand, and William Ziegler Jr.'s Chianti and Polydor.

Pintail Duck Tests Patience of Any Hunter

BY BOB BECKER.

In early October after the blue winged teal have deserted middle west marshes and preceding the arrival of the first canvasbacks and mallards from the north, the duck hunter undertakes the job of decoying the sprig or pintail duck.

He's a great sport, this wary, long necked duck. A regular old rubberneck, the kind of a duck that will give a decoy layout the once over with a suspicious eye and then repeat the operation a dozen times before swinging down to the seductive calling of live decoys. The old spiketail is plenty fun for the impatient gunner who is waiting for action in a duck blind.

When the pintail decides to come into decoys he makes a picture that no other puddler duck can duplicate, because neither the mallard, teal, widgeon nor gadwall knows how to set his wings and put on the brakes like the crafty old sprig. The latter will be coming up wind so high in the air that you are likely to pass him up as being absolutely unable to get down within gun range.

Suddenly he sets his wings and, then teetering and rocking in the wind, slides down the ozone as if pulled by a string. Presto. There he is ready to join the decoys. There is nothing prettier in the water fowl game than a slim, white breasted, long tailed pintail coming down the "ladder" when a stiff wind is making him work to keep an even keel.

After putting on a show like that the pintail is apt to come around later and steal a bunch of ducks from you. Last fall we had such an experience along the Illinois river. With two or three brace of mallards circling our decoys a pintail would crash the show, be too suspicious to decoy and then lead all the birds away.

Air-Cooled POWER

for the speed and pick-up of record-breaking performance—and for stamina and utmost reliability . . .

Air-cooled power is different! It is the most progressive and modern type of power in any motor car. When compared point for point with other engines the advantages are overwhelmingly in favor of the air-cooled motor.

That is why Franklin has been able to capture every major road record—the only car to accomplish such a dramatic performance demonstration. In a run on Pike's Peak, Franklin scored another triumph by flashing up and down the Peak 12 times—150 miles—without stopping—in the astonishing time of 4 hours, 25 minutes!

It is the stamina, force, dependability and flexibility of air-cooled power that has caused 80% of all airplane manufacturers to adopt the air-cooled type of engine. Where unusual performance is required, air-cooling wins. Try a ride in the brilliant Franklin. You'll see instantly why it has the airplane feel.

BROWN WISDOM, DECEIVER, WINS $5,000 HANDICAP

Rallies to Tie Hawthorne Track Record.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Brown Wisdom, the old deceiver, galloped to a brilliant victory by four lengths in the $5,000 added Grant Park handicap at Hawthorne yesterday, showing the most remarkable rally ever witnessed on the ancient Hawthorne course. Brown Wisdom seemed to fly around his rivals on the lower bend and come on to win by four lengths from Golden Prince, the Coffroth handicap winner. Islam was a distant third, not even threatening the fleet Brown Wisdom.

The victory was scored in track record time, for Brown Wisdom ran the mile and a sixteenth in 1:43 4-5, causing the son of Brown Prince I.-Prodigy to loom up as a dangerous contender for the Gold Cup to be run tomorrow. While his speed and easy victory yesterday bordered on the sensational, he came out of the race fresh and apparently none the worse for the performance.

Reichert Entry Pays $5.24.

Nine went to the post in the stake and the presence of the crack field in the battle, along with perfect autumn weather, was responsible for a crowd of 30,000 gathering at the old west side course. From the beginning, Brown Wisdom, coupled with My Dandy as the Reichert brothers entry was the favorite among those in the crowd. He opened at 2 to 1, went down to 8 to 5 on the second betting, and when the final mutuel numbers were hung out, he paid $5.24 to win, $3.34 to place and $2.62 to show. Golden Prince, always popular with a Chicago throng, paid $4.28 to place and $2.96 to show. Islam, coupled with Greenock, paid $3.66 to show.

The start was one of the best Morrissey has made this season. Nine noses were bobbin' up and down on even terms twenty strides after they left the Bahr gate. Then My Dandy shot to the front, Cheers was right with him, Golden Prince was close up, and Brown Wisdom was running in fourth and then fifth position, just waiting for Jockey Parmelee to give him his head.

My Dandy Shows Way.

As long as My Dandy showed the way Parmelee was content to rate Brown Wisdom back. But My Dandy began to quit as they hit the last turn. Parmelee shot Brown Wisdom forward. It was perfect teamwork. He called by those in front of him like they were standing still. Old timers were amazed at the burst of speed he showed.

"Look at him run," shouted the crowd. In forty strides he raced from fourth place into the lead. It was all over but the applause at the scales. Brown Wisdom, with the others all staggering and quitting, proceeded to stage a new rally, which completely whipped Golden Prince. That old fellow hasn't been conquered so decisively since he won the $100,000 Coffroth handicap last March.

Ties Track Record.

Brown Wisdom's mile and a sixteenth in 1:43 3-5 tied the track record made last year by Martie Flynn. If there had been another horse in the battle to force him to extend himself, Brown Wisdom might have neared an American record.

The others, excepting Flat Iron and Montanaro, had no excuses to offer and it is doubtful if this pair would have been much closer to the leader even with good racing luck. Flat Iron was crowded far back rounding the club house bend, and Jockey R. Jones came over with Golden Prince so sharply, he almost pushed Montanaro over the fence into the infield. Jockey Jones drew a five day suspension for rough riding, but he will be allowed to fill his engagement in the Gold Cup tomorrow on Carl Eitel before he goes to the ground.

Hawthorne Gold Cup Race Draws East, West Stars

The running of the $25,000 Hawthorne Gold cup at Hawthorne tomorrow will clear up all title disputes as far as the American handicap championship of the year is concerned.

Throughout the season Misstep had the western crown at his mercy. Diavolo's victories in the Saratoga cup and in the Jockey club Gold cup at Belmont have stamped him as the best in the east. Misstep hasn't invaded the east for any engagements and Diavolo's activities have been confined strictly to the Atlantic seaboard.

Thus the two sectional champions will come together if track conditions are favorable in the Hawthorne fixture. As it is a weight for age race, distance is a mile and a quarter. And as the field probably will be small, with little chance of crowding and each will pick up 126 pounds. The bumping, it should be a truly run test. The horse defeated will not have an excuse to offer unless there are unusual incidents in the battle.

Diavolo's claims to the eastern title were dimmed slightly when Sun Beau, Willis Sharpe Kilmer's speedy 3 year old, showed him the way home in a stake at Aqueduct. But in that contest Diavolo gave Sun Beau 12 pounds and was close to his heels at the finish. Sun Beau also is coming on from the east for the Hawthorne Gold cup, and at equal weights with Diavolo and Misstep will be able to demonstrate whether the victory he scored at Aqueduct was a fluke or whether he has improved enough to make a bid for the championship.

Another dangerous easterner in the contest will be Petee Wrack, which will race in J. R. Macomber's silks. If the going should be muddy, he may be hard to conquer. He defeated Reigh Count last year when he caught the champion slightly off form on a muddy track.

Other easterners in the struggle are Distraction, a stablemate of Diavolo, Display, Herbert B. Swope's Lativich, the Arden Farm's Sun Edwin, and the Morven Stud Stable's Whiskery. Western running mates of Misstep include Brown Wisdom, the 3 year old Karl Eitel, Mrs. John D. Hertz's Fair Ball, and J. W. Parrish's Rolled Stocking.

Display won the first running of the Hawthorne Gold cup last year. He has been close up in numerous rich engagements this season, but hasn't been able to score a victory. He turned in his best race over the Hawthorne course in August when he finished third in the Crusader's special, beaten two noses by Buddy Bauer and Easter Stockings.

The entries for the Gold cup closed a few days ago, and only the best handicap performers still in training were nominated. The entry list includes fifteen. There were eight nominated from the east and seven from the west.

SAVE MONEY.

From the day you buy it, ownership of a Pontiac Big Six is an experience in economy. Not many of the thousands who have purchased this great car selected it simply because it is so inexpensive to own. Most of them bought it because they were attracted by its big car performance, its big car style, its big car safety and riding ease. But it is a fact, nevertheless, that with a Pontiac Big Six you actually save money. You save—

When you buy

The Pontiac Big Six costs less to buy—not because it is the lowest-priced car you can get—but because it is the lowest-priced car ever produced which offers so many advantages. Try to find in another car such features as the Harmonic Balancer which counteracts torsional vibration in the crankshaft, the Cross-flow radiator—the only basic development made in cooling systems during the past decade—and Pontiac's remarkably efficient, non-squeak, internal-expanding four-wheel brakes—and you will find that the car which offers them costs hundreds of dollars more to buy than Pontiac.

When you drive

You save in operation and maintenance with a Pontiac Big Six. During 1928, a large public utilities company operated 996 automobiles of 33 different makes. According to its accurately recorded figures, its Pontiac Sixes cost one cent less per mile than any other low-priced six. If you drive the average of 10,000 miles annually, this represents a saving of $100 each year. And today's Pontiac is even more economical than its predecessors because of several important improvements in design.

When you trade it in

You save with a Pontiac when you are ready for a new car. From the very beginning, Pontiac has been an unqualified success. And with each succeeding year its reputation for quality, dependability and long life has grown. As a result the demand for used Pontiacs has always exceeded the available supply. And that means that you save on your Pontiac Six even on the day you trade it in.

A car which combines such amazing economy with all of Pontiac's additional desirable qualities must command your first attention when you are in the market for any car costing less than $1000. Come in to see and drive the Pontiac Big Six. And bring your present car for our appraisal. You will be surprised at the ease with which you can own a Pontiac Big Six and enjoy its many advantages.

Drives Outboard Boat at 34 M. P. H.; Claims Record

The trophy for the individual high point scorer was awarded to Douglas A. Haskins of Quincy.

EDDIE COLLINS MAY MANAGE N. Y. YANKEES

New York, Oct. 5. — [Special.] — Baseball men were interested today in a report that Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, had selected Eddie Collins to succeed the late Miller Huggins as manager of the team.

Col. Ruppert and Secretary Edward G. Barrow, it was said, had decided to engage Collins after a secret conference here, but planned to withhold the news until after the world series.

Collins, one of the Athletics' coaches, broke in with that club when Connie Mack's scouts discovered him playing shortstop for Columbia university more than twenty years ago. He played second base for the A's in the world series of 1910, 1911, 1913, and 1914.

BADGER CAPTAIN GUIDED TOURISTS, BUT PREFERS GRID

Parks Gets an European Background.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Johnny Parks, husky Oklahoma boy who is captain of the University of Wisconsin football team, has a European background. He was a guide for a group of tourists who "did" the continent.

"What did you know about Europe?" he was asked.

"Nothing, but I guided them until the going got pretty tough. Then another fellow took over the guide job and I checked baggage," Parks explained.

The Badger leader spent five nights in Paris, but prefers Madison and Camp Randall stadium at regular haunts.

Fraternity brothers at the Alpha Delta house claim there were several attractive girls in the party which Parks escorted to places that were as new to him as to any of the tourists.

Parks, who is one of the most modest athletes who ever wore a Cardinal jersey, claims they were all old maids.

Parks would like to make the Badger crew. "I never rowed a shell before my sophomore year, but always wanted to learn," he said.

In his sophomore year, Johnny won his letter in the varsity boat. Last spring football practice kept him out of this sport.

Ramming his head into enemy formations has worn Parks' black locks a trifle thin on top during the last two years, but nobody dares to mention that. It doesn't affect his playing at guard of his praiseworthy leadership of the team.

Central Wesleyan Ekes Out 7 to 6 Win from Shurtleff

Alton, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Central Wesleyan of De Kalb, Ill., beat Shurtleff college of Alton here today, 7-6. The game was slow with the exception of the last quarter when Shurtleff started a passing game and went down the field for a touchdown.

Golf Tourney Season Ends; Interest Grows

With the finish of the Women's National championship yesterday, the competitive golf season has come to an end except for the temporarily homeless national professional championship, which more and more is coming to be a winter tournament. This year it is to be played somewhere in the south or west in December, so for all practical purposes this year's golf is ended except for the casual games that continue until snow drives the golfers indoors or south.

With the close of any season of sport, reminiscences are usually in order. Nearly every one's opinion is that more golf was played this year than ever before.

Middle Class Wants More.

In a few cases where the growth of private clubs has been faster than a town's population has been able to fill them, there has been a slight dropping off. But in practically every town there has been a tremendous growth in the number of daily fee courses. There also seems to be a lull in the building of municipal and country courses, but that isn't because of lack of demand.

The answer seems to be that the demand for "expensive" golf, that is, membership in a private club with its dues, caddies, dinners, set-ups, and so on, which often run the cost of golf up to $25 a game when figured over a season, is fairly well satisfied. But the demand for golf by less wealthy folks who can't afford the $500 to $1,000 a year for a private club but do want to play, is yet in the ascendency.

Another development of the present season seems to be a gradual lessening of interest in the star professional. A few years ago the winner of most any major championship was certain to be booked solid with exhibition matches for the next year. That still holds true, but galleries have been gradually falling off. Probably the answer lies in that golfers as a group have become more sophisticated, and would rather play their own game than tramp over 18 holes watching some one else hit the ball, even if that some one else does it better.

Game Loses Its Ballyhoo.

A corollary to that is the fact that sectional organizations are finding it more and more difficult to get sponsors for their championships. It wasn't many years ago when a golf club considered it an honor to be chosen for a championship, and this still holds true for national tournaments. But less and less are the members willing to give up playing on their course for a week in order to have the privilege of boasting that such and such a championship was held on "our course."

All of these things indicate that golf has grown out of its ballyhoo days. More and more the game is coming back to its original Scotch form of a pleasant method of contact, and recreation, with the blah and hokum gradually falling off.

TAYLOR STANDS IN MASTRO'S WAY UP RING LADDER

Earl Mastro, a youngster from Chicago's west side who has been scaling the pugilistic heights with amazing speed, faces the most severe test of his career Tuesday night when he meets the veteran Bud Taylor at the Chicago stadium.

Unawed by the terrific body punching which has placed Taylor among the elite of boxers, Mastro is confident of punching his way to victory and thereby become foremost of the contenders for the featherweight title. Earl is certain he will bring Chicago its second world championship of the throws punches with almost unbelievable speed and accuracy and his footwork, always forward, is a delight to those who like boxing skill. In his last two fights, against Shea and Zorilla, he has added a stiff right cross to his leading left and now gives promise of becoming one of the hardest hitters in the featherweight ranks.

As for Taylor, the blond terror from Terre Haute is out to prove that he has lost none of his skill and punching power which have made him one of the most popular fighters of the last decade. Although handicapped by a bad hand for several months, Bud continued fighting with somewhat less than his usual steam. Critics were quick to seize upon this as evidence that he was beginning to slip, but his hand is fully recovered, and Bud is anxious to demonstrate he has many good fights in his system.

Backing up the Taylor-Mastro bout is the heavyweight semi-windup between Salvatore Ruggirello, giant Italian, and Les Kennedy, California aspirant. In their last appearance at the stadium, Ruggirello kayoed Pete Wistort in less than two minutes.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Jack Sharkey, the crying prize fighter appears to be the heavyweight champion of the world, lacking only formal confirmation, which probably will take place in Miami during the winter. It is true that Mr. Sharkey hasn't done much in rising to the championship, but he unfurled the only genuine punch displayed by a heavyweight since Jack Dempsey knocked down Gene (Big Feet) Tunney in Chicago. Until a better man comes along he will suffice for champion.

Of course, Tuffy Griffiths and Max Schmeling have punched up a few people in the last year or so, but they were not really high class people, and, moreover, the punching was very messy by contrast with Sharkey's tremendous blow on Tommy Loughran's nose. Loughran is game and strong, but he was dazed for half the night, probably the first prize fighter of any talent at all to be knocked out by a punch on the nose.

Will Have to Fight with Max Schmeling.

At some time in the disorderly order of business Sharkey will have to fight Schmeling, because Max dealt fifteen rounds of horrible abuse to Paulino Uzcudun last summer and had previously worn down Johnny Risko, both of whom had caused Sharkey considerable inconvenience. But in doing these things Schmeling evinced no such punch as Sharkey laid against Loughran's neat profile, and the punch, I maintain, is the payoff in the prize fighting business, but champion or otherwise, Mr. Sharkey is one young man who must be judged wholly as he is at a game and not on past performances or future possibilities. His record is spotty and inconsistent and he has crossed up the probabilities more times than any set of crap dice that ever tumbled off the baseboard.

Sharkey yelled, "I wanted to knock him out!"

In his first fight in New York, Mr. Sharkey met a tall, delicate youth named Sailor Hoffman and fought so badly that the prize fight commissioners, ever alert to preserve the purity of their ennobling sport, detained his money and called him in to explain.

"It is all a great mistake," Mr. Sharkey said. "I just happen to be a punk prize fighter, and that was the best I could do."

This was the first realization of Mr. Sharkey's most endearing charm which is his absolute candor. It has remained true and unspoiled all through his experiences with the millionaires, mayors, governors, journalists and common customers in New York and Florida. This quality, implying as it does, a unique kind of moral courage, will point his appeal to the public imagination, which is all that makes heavyweight champions any way.

He came into the dining room at Fleetwood in Miami Beach, Fla., one night last fall, tossed the menu on the floor and remarked abruptly: "This is the worst town I ever saw in my life," which was heresy and punishable by tar and feathers.

"What's the matter with this town?" I asked. "You're doing pretty well here; $100,000 for ten rounds with a musclebound wrestler."

Dislikes Handshaking with Dumb Strangers.

"I'm homesick," he said. "I wish to hell the fight was over. I'm going to jump over the ropes the minute Magnolia counts that bum out and tear for the train in my ring tights. I've gotta swell new home outside Boston, and I'd rather be there in the snow drifts with my wife and kids than down here getting sun burned and hand shaking a lot of dumb strangers.

"Do you know what I had to do? I had to make a speech at some kind of merchants' lunch. They are pulling me here and there, all over the joint to shake hands with big shots. What do I care about big shots? Why should I have to speak to a lot of hardware and clothing merchants for my money? I'm a fighter. Big shots don't do anything for me.

"I wish Dempsey would fight me again. We could make a lot of money. I saw him the other day and said, 'Dempsey, why don't you and I have another fight?' He said, 'Don't kid me Sharkey; you hit too hard.' I said, 'Don't kid me, Dempsey, you hit me plenty hard that time in New York.' I pleaded with him to fight me, but he wouldn't think of it. I don't hit any harder than he does."

Wanted to Knock Out Harry Wills.

Sometimes Sharkey cries in the ring. The night Patsy Haley disqualified Harry Wills for fouling him he walked to the ropes with his mouth pulled down and tears streaming down his cheeks, yelling: "I wanted to knock him out."

The night of the peculiar fight with Jack Delaney, who went down and out in a round he lurched along the ropes with frenzied eyes and features twitching, like an addict "leaping" with heroin. And then, most engaging of all his remarkable public gestures, he uttered one remark which sums up the whole idea of all the prize fighters toward the customers, and he is the only one that ever had the candor to say it.

"Let them jeer," Sharkey said one evening, when the customers were on him for a languid fight in the garden. "I get their money."

A picturesque and entertaining young man, Mr. Sharkey is; it will be nice to have him for a champion.

Scissors King, Pole Grapple Tomorrow

Joe Stecher, former heavyweight champion, and Stanley Stasiak, Polish grappler, will meet in the windup of Promoter Joe Coffey's wrestling show at the Hippodrome tomorrow night. The match will be the first in a proposed heavyweight elimination tournament to select an opponent for Gus Sonnenberg, present titleholder.

Yesterday Coffey declared that he considered Stecher one of the greatest wrestlers of his weight since Frank Gotch. He pointed out that although many grapplers have attempted to imitate the Nebraskan's famous scissors hold, none has succeeded in mastering it. Stecher told Coffey that he is in perfect condition for the match and hopes to make short work of Stasiak.

Joe Malcewicz and Charley Hanson of Iowa will clash in the heavyweight semi-windup of the show. Hanson has defeated all of the leaders in the division with the exception of Sonnenberg, Lewis and Stecher. A third bout brings together Midget Fischer, claimant of the middleweight title, and Heine Engle. In another bout the veteran Bill Demetral will meet John Mandrick, Jugo-Slav heavyweight. Pete Schuh of Argo and Stratta Ruby will meet in another bout.

Giving a Good Account of Itself . . . Read what Viking Owners Say!

ALTHOUGH Viking is a new name to the automotive industry, this General Motors product has achieved a measure of success in the medium-price field which stamps it a car destined to create new standards of motor car value as well as new heights of motoring enjoyment.

Already, hundreds of motorists in all parts of the country have written to Olds Motor Works expressing their appreciation of Viking style and comfort . . . their enthusiasm for Viking performance. These owners praise Viking's superior qualities on the basis of their previous experience with many types and makes of cars. Their words are doubly significant for that reason.

Because Viking has inspired so many owners to put into words their opinions of this new 90-degree V-eight, and because these words describe with unerring directness the superior qualities which Oldsmobile and General Motors engineers worked for four years to build into this car, we are reproducing a few of these remarks, word for word, to show how actual experience has judged the Viking.

"Being a 'sophisticated' car owner, having owned many, I wanted the Viking when I saw it. When I drove it, the car sold itself to me. The car I turned in was a good one . . . I was just sold on something so much better in the Viking. It's the same old story, in America sales are stimulated by creating better and better products." —Salt Lake City, Utah

"I saw the Viking in your showroom here, and on looking it over I liked its roomy body, ample power, good brakes, automatic radiator shutters—and other features too numerous to mention. I am satisfied that it is the best car I ever had." —Elba, Neb.

"Knowing Viking to be a General Motors car, and having had very satisfactory experience with Oldsmobile, I bought it as soon as I saw its good-looking body lines and heard its price. I have owned many different cars, but I think that anyone who buys a Viking will find it an ideal all-round car, comfortable, and especially good-looking." —New Orleans, La.

"Am greatly pleased with Viking's beautiful lines. The car is easy to handle, easy riding, has plenty of power and quick getaway in traffic, and provides plenty of seating room. The motor is simple and easy to get at for valve grinding and adjustments." —Pontiac, Mich.

"I like the quiet performance of Viking's eight-cylinder engine. Viking rides like a Pullman car. And the finish and upholstery are as good if not better than higher priced cars offer." —Tacoma, Wash.

"I'm particularly sold on Viking's V-type eight-cylinder engine—its roomy, adjustable front seat—large capacity gas tank—easy riding—81 horsepower performance—hill-climbing ability—and the good workmanship on its body, and its balanced chassis design." —Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

"One of my friends in Milford who owns a Viking gave me a demonstration in his car. I was won over by its fine performance and good general appearance. I believe it is by far the best buy for the money." —Milford, N. H.

These expressions of owner opinion, taken at random from the many received, are indicative of the splendid service which Viking is giving in hundreds of American families throughout the country.

Ask your own friends who drive Vikings to tell you about the thorough satisfaction their cars are giving. Then examine and drive the car yourself. Your own experience will tell you why Viking owners are so keenly enthusiastic about Viking's comfort, performance, dependability, and all-round excellence.

PICTURE A $20,000 MADE-TO-ORDER CAR

WHAT WOULD YOU WANT IN THIS SUPERLATIVE CAR?
WHAT DO YOU FIND IN STUTZ AND BLACKHAWK?

Check your own answers to these fourteen questions

Suppose you were willing to pay $20,000 for an automobile made to your order, the last word in style, beauty and performance-with-safety. In writing your specifications, you would want to answer all the questions listed below:

1. Would you subject yourself and your family to the dangers of flying glass? Or would you equip your $20,000 automobile with safety glass all round?

I would have ☐ Ordinary Glass ☐ Safety Glass

Safety glass all around was pioneered by Stutz four years ago.

2. Would you be content with the ordinary three-speed transmission? Or would you prefer the more modern four-speed transmission?

I would have ☐ Ordinary three-speed transmission ☐ Transmission with four speeds forward

The Stutz transmission, with four speeds forward, provides superior performance and longer car life. The trend is toward four speeds.

3. Would you be satisfied with the conventional car which rolls backward on inclines when brakes are released? Or would you prefer Stutz Noback, which automatically prevents undesired back-rolling on inclines?

I would have ☐ Ordinary car without Noback ☐ The added protection of Noback

Noback is among the important safety devices pioneered by Stutz.

4. Would you select the conventional L-head type of engine? Or would you insist upon having the increased efficiency of the valve-in-head engine?

I would have ☐ Conventional type, L-head engine ☐ Advanced type, valve-in-head engine

The Stutz valve-in-head, line-eight engine is not only more powerful, it is also quiet, smooth and economical.

5. Would you accept valves actuated by rocker arms, with their greater noise and greater area of wearing surfaces? Or would you insist upon having the overhead camshaft with its direct-acting, simple and quiet valve operation?

I would have ☐ Conventional push-rods and rocker arms ☐ Silent overhead camshaft

As compared with rocker-arm valve mechanism, the Stutz overhead camshaft eliminates 192 wearing surfaces.

6. Would you be content with the single ignition found in ordinary cars? Or would you prefer dual ignition with two spark plugs for each cylinder, insuring greater power and economy?

I would have ☐ Single ignition ☐ Dual ignition

Dual ignition is one of the many features of advanced engineering found on Stutz and Blackhawk.

7. Would you want your engine to have the less efficient single carburetion as originally designed for four-cylinder cars? Or would you prefer the greater engine efficiency made possible by dual carburetion?

I would have ☐ A single carburetor ☐ Dual carburetion

Dual carburetion and dual intake contribute to the outstanding performance of Stutz and Blackhawk cars.

8. Would you be willing to have an automobile equipped with ordinary oil and grease cups? Or would you like the latest, Stutz one-thrust chassis lubrication system which feeds oil to all moving parts of the chassis in one operation?

I would have ☐ Ordinary oil and grease cups ☐ One-thrust lubrication system

One-thrust chassis lubrication is among the many convenience features of the Stutz and Blackhawk.

9. Would you expect your $20,000 automobile to be equipped with ordinary headlights? Or would you prefer Ryan-Lites, which give long range without dangerous glare and which give side-illumination with added protection for night driving?

I would have ☐ Ordinary headlights ☐ New and improved Ryan-Lites

Ryan-Lites, standard equipment on Stutz and Blackhawk, are the only automobile lights that meet all legal requirements everywhere.

10. Would you be content with the conventional bevel gear drive? Or would you have the improved worm drive rear axle which permits the floorboards to be lowered 20 per cent and lowers the center of weight of the entire car?

I would have ☐ Conventional rear axle ☐ Worm drive rear axle

Worm drive is one of the fundamentals of Stutz-Blackhawk advanced engineering.

11. Would your made-to-order car be of the conventional type, with a relatively high center of weight? Or would you build safety into your car by lowering the center of weight?

I would have ☐ Conventional car, relatively unsafe ☐ Safety Stutz with low center of weight

Stutz low center of weight, made possible by worm drive, means better roadability, greater ease of control, improved riding, greater performance and greater safety.

12. Would you be content with the ordinary type of chassis frame, which yields to torsional strains? Or would you insist upon having a massive double-drop frame providing utmost safety?

I would have ☐ Ordinary chassis frame ☐ Massive double-drop frame

The Stutz double-drop frame has seven cross members, five of them tubular.

13. Would you have ordinary running boards suspended on brackets and hence easily collapsible in case of side collision? Or would you feel safer with Stutz side-bumper steel running boards built integral with frame?

I would have ☐ Running boards suspended on brackets ☐ Side-bumper steel running boards integral with frame

Stutz side-bumper steel running boards integral with the frame protect the occupants of the car in case of side-collision.

14. Would you specify conventional brakes with just ordinary braking power? Or would you feel safer with Stutz Feathertouch Booster Brakes?

I would have ☐ Ordinary conventional brakes ☐ Feathertouch Booster Brakes

Stutz is safest because it can stop in three-fifths the distance required by conventional cars.

In a nation-wide investigation, conducted by an impartial research bureau, owners of four other cars selling at the price of the Stutz were asked to express their opinion concerning six of the Stutz features mentioned above:

97 per cent wanted Safety Glass
66.5 per cent wanted four-speed transmission
90.5 per cent wanted Noback
81.5 per cent wanted low weighted safety
63 per cent wanted Feathertouch brakes
88 per cent wanted side-bumper steel running boards

Now remember it takes ten other cars to give you ten of the Stutz-Blackhawk features and Stutz still has many major features all its own.

Of course you would want all the advantages mentioned here if you purchased a $20,000 made-to-order car. But think how much easier it is to get them in a Stutz or Blackhawk.

Stutz has them all and instead of paying $20,000, you pay as little as $2995 to $8500 for a Stutz or $1995 to $2735 for a Blackhawk.

In no other American car will you find this combination of features, this advanced engineering which has made Stutz the embodiment of performance-with-safety.

LEADERS SEEK TO DIAGNOSE FLYING INDUSTRY'S ILLS

Too Much Wall Street, Too Few Passengers.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Leaders in the aviation industry gathered at Kansas City recently to find out what was ailing aviation. They found that the industry was suffering from a serious condition of overproduction, that they were several jumps ahead of the public demand for airplanes and airplane transportation, and they sent out a bid for wider public support.

There are today thousands of new airplanes gathering dust in hangars and factories throughout the country with nobody to buy them and nobody to fly them. There are hundreds of luxurious air liners flying daily between important cities in the country, but many of them are operating with a discouraging number of empty seats.

Too Much Wall Street.

One of the industry's leaders apparently summed up the situation in this comment: "We are suffering from too much Wall street and a lack of engineering skill."

In the manufacturing end of the industry the effects of overfinancing are apparent. Each succeeding air show brings out a wider variety of planes. Some manufacturers, apparently assured of liberal financial backing, have directed their attention toward more horsepower and brighter paint and have made little effort toward cleaning up the lines of their planes. The "haywire" designs in many of the planes still exist.

It has been estimated that $750,000,000 is now invested in the aviation industry. Forty-five air mail, express and passenger companies are flying an average of 75,000 miles daily. The industry reported that 52,934 passengers were carried during last year and estimate that that figure will grow to 150,000 next year. These figures are rather encouraging when it is considered that passenger carrying is a comparatively recent departure in aviation, but the number of flying travelers is still too few to make the operators' account come out on the right side of the ledger.

Seek Air Mail Rate Cut.

Col. Halsey Dunwoody of the Universal Air Lines made this comment at the Kansas City conference: "We cannot continue to pay operating expenses from capital reserve. In order to produce dividends air transport lines must pay. We operators face certain definite needs which may be enumerated as public confidence, increased patronage, constantly improving service and better practical organization."

Considerable dismay was expressed by the operators over the request of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, who has called a conference for the purpose of reducing rates for the air mail. The air mail has remained the one dependable source of revenue to most operators and a cut in rate, the operators state, will seriously affect their pocketbooks.

A statement from the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America notes that the American public now has 232 approved airplane types from which to choose its private or commercial craft.

3,500 Built in Six Months.

Thirty-five hundred commercial and military airplanes, with a total retail value of $25,000,000, were produced in the United States during the first six months of this year, officials of the chamber report.

The report shows that during the first six months of this year the output equaled 80 per cent of the number of planes produced in 1928, while military plane production lagged behind last year's figures. Only 43 per cent of the total 1928 military production was reached during the six months' period, 7 per cent under normal 1928 schedule.

Reports from seventy-one leading manufacturers showed a total of 3,381 airplanes produced during the first six months of the year. Of this number 2,354 were designed for commercial use, representing a total value without motors of $17,032,747. Five hundred and twenty-seven military planes were produced with a total value, without motors, of $6,652,825.

Open Biplanes Lead.

Although there were more than seventy more plants engaged in the manufacture of aircraft, the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce estimates that not more than 200 additional planes were produced by them. The six months' production, therefore, was conservatively estimated at 3,500. Of the 3,381 planes reported 3,107 were manufactured by members of the aeronautical chamber.

Adding airplane spare parts, the total value of airplanes and spare parts produced during the six months' period was estimated at $31,289,000. The 1928 reports did not include a retail valuation of planes, engines, or parts produced, so no comparison could be made on that basis.

The open cockpit biplane led the field in the six months' report for the largest number of a single type to be produced, 1,623 being reported. Cabin monoplanes ranked second, with 884. Although there were 500 more biplanes manufactured, monoplanes showed a value approximately $4,500,000 greater than biplanes.

There was a marked increase in the production of two place, open, cockpit planes, showing the favor this type is receiving for sport and training purposes. Eighteen seaplanes and flying boats were manufactured during the six months as contrasted with eleven for last year's total. Amphibians also showed a marked increase, fifty-three being manufactured this year as contrasted with thirty all last year.

While airplane and motor production in 1928 was heaviest during the first six months and began to decline toward the end of the third quarter, officials of the aeronautical chamber said that they expected a reverse situation to develop this year.

BUILT FOR SPEED

SHIPS CATAPULT PLANES.

NEW YORK.—Both the French liner Ile de France and the North German Lloyd liner Bremen, holder of the transatlantic speed record, have successfully catapulted planes from their decks. Both planes were loaded with mail.

EARLY FLYERS TO BE HONORED AT AIRPORT OPENING

Monument to Commemorate Performances.

A monument to the early flyers who performed in the international aviation meet held over Grant park in 1911 will be unveiled at the formal opening of Curtiss-Reynolds airport at Glenview on Oct. 20. The unveiling of the monument will be part of a pageant of aerial progress which will be held on that day to depict the strides made by aviation since 1911.

The monument will commemorate daring performance of some 40 "early birds" who took part in the 1911 show. Famous among those early flyers are Lincoln Beachey, Claude Graham-White, Tom Sopwith, Rene Simon, Roland Garros, Harry Atwood, Oscar Brindley, Jimmy Ward, Lee Hammond, Earl Ovington, Philip Parmalee, Howard Gill, St. Croix Johnstone, and other pilots who flew the early planes of Orville Wright, Glenn Curtiss, and Louis Blériot.

The monument is to be a fountain decorated with many models of early day aircraft, with one heroic figure holding aloft a replica of the Curtiss Pusher flown by Lincoln Beachey at the 1911 meet. The ceremony will be conducted by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, vice president and general manager of the Curtiss Flying service here.

Maj. Schroeder had charge of a Curtiss Shooting Star during the 1911 meet. His wartime record and world's altitude record, secured in 1919, later brought him fame. Walter Brookins, believed to be the first man to fly in Chicago, also will officiate.

More than 200 aircraft of many types, including planes flying in the 1929 national reliability tour, will take part in the air show, Maj. Schroeder announced. Planes will be flown by army, navy, and civilian flyers. During the afternoon John Livingston, winner of the 1928 transcontinental air Derby, will fly a sister ship to Beachey's Curtiss Pusher.

Many famous flyers and leaders in the aviation industry have been invited to attend the opening ceremonies of the new airport.

CANADA AIDS AVIATION.

The Canadian government will spend about $140,000 this year for the promotion of flying clubs. Most of this money will go for airplanes to be presented to the clubs. The Flying club membership in the Dominion of Canada is now more than 3,400.

CHICAGO MOTOR CLUB ANNOUNCES ROAD PROGRAM

Recommendations Sent to Gov. Emmerson.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Chicago Motor club forwarded to Gov. Emmerson yesterday its recommendations for the state's $19,000,000 highway construction program in the metropolitan area during 1930 and '31.

The club's proposals differ from those of the citizen's committee, which was headed by Frank F. Wicland, in that the motorists' organization would give preference to the widening of radial routes stretching from Chicago.

Summarized, the motor club program calls for 141.9 miles of widening, 34.9 miles of new four lane pavement, 43.3 miles of new two lane concrete, 35 bridges, 17 highway grade separations, and 46 railway grade separations. The committee recommended 104.1 miles of widening, 37.6 miles of new four lane pavement, 91.5 miles of new two lane concrete, 11 bridges, 1 highway grade separations, and 46 railway grade separations.

Would Relieve Congestion.

The citizens' group, which was dominated by the Chicago Regional Planning association and county highway engineers from the metropolitan area, proposed construction of roads circling Chicago before the arterial highways are widened.

"I realize," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, "that these circumferential roads, promised by former Gov. Small to further his political interests, must be built eventually because they are state bond issue routes. But I believe Gov. Emmerson desires to relieve traffic congestion in the metropolitan area before he fulfills his predecessor's promises."

The administrations of Du Page and Will counties sought these bypasses because they fill a local need and promote subdivisions. The motor club fought the early construction of these secondary routes because they are not the most urgent requirement from the viewpoint of traffic for the entire metropolitan area.

The Club's Program.

Gov. Emmerson has the committee's report under advisement.

The club's program in detail follows:

The motor club urges the state to consider rerouting the main highways to take through traffic off congested business streets of villages and towns.

DISTRACTING BILLBOARDS

Here are examples of billboards designed to distract motorists from their driving. The pictures were taken on route 21A, the Waukegan road, in Lake county.

Such signs are a nuisance, if not a hazard to traffic, and the state highway department has been asked to investigate with a view of removing them.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

Chicago, Oct. 1.—I note the editorial, "Left Hand Turns." While I was chairman of the law committee of the National Conference of Street and Highway Safety, appointed by Secretary of Commerce Hoover, I had charge of the drawing of the Uniform Vehicle act, and we had certain studies on this subject before us.

It seemed fairly clear from these studies that while abolition of the left hand turn speeded up the traffic, that in fact it was much safer from the standpoint of the pedestrian and even from the standpoint of collision between cars than the right hand turn. This was for two reasons:

1. People making the left hand turn realize they are crossing the lane of traffic and are generally more careful than when they swing to the right around the corner, sometimes without warning, so that sometimes they are hit. So far as the pedestrians are concerned, the right hand turn is much more dangerous because of the shortness of the turn.

2. It seemed fairly clear that the safety was in inverse proportion to the shortness of the turn, so that the larger the arc the greater the safety.

This is because so far as the left hand turn is concerned people can see the car coming, while the sharp right hand turn is the most dangerous of all and is the one that really requires to be regulated if only safety is considered. This is met in some cities by compelling cars that are going to turn right to be in the center lane and cross the axis of traffic instead of turning directly around the corner, so that the pedestrian trying to cross is never caught unawares.

PARKING ON BOULEVARDS

Chicago, Oct. 3.—So much is being written in editorials and campaigns, and a fortune is going to be spent for the west side new overhead street, but why cannot something be done to relieve traffic temporarily on Jackson boulevard starting at Sacramento boulevard and west to Columbus park?

It seems all the politicians with their "I've got a drag star," who park along the right of way, have more power than the west park board or anybody else.

H. H. MUNSTERMAN.

BOULEVARD ON LAKE.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—The great lake cities are fortunate in their location on water, for there is nothing more beautifying to a city than a boulevard facing a body of water. European cities take advantage of this feature to the greatest degree. Rio de Janeiro's waterfront is one of the wonders of the world.

Chicago's promising lake front development has placed her in the front rank of progressive cities. But what of the numerous cities and towns surrounding the shores of Lake Michigan? Why not enlarge the scope of the effort and include all the cities and towns fronting the lake? Are they turning their backs to such natural beauty, or are they taking steps to acquire and protect this feature for the coming generations?

The completion of the shore line boulevard from Grant to Jackson park brings to mind that such a shore boulevard should be continued south to the state line and bridges should be built off the steel company's inlet and the Calumet river inlet in South Chicago, giving a continuous drive along the shore and a grand approach to the city of Chicago from the east. R. DARGEL.

ON LOWER WACKER.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—How does it happen the entire section of lower Wacker drive at Wabash was taken away from the parking motorists in the vicinity, thereby compelling them to pay exorbitant prices for parking?

Undoubtedly this action was caused by the garage owners of the neighborhood. It has also been noticed that the garage owners are using the city posts, which have "no parking" signs on them, for their own advertisements as to the direction of the garage. BEN GREENWALD.

LIBERTYVILLE'S REPLY.

Libertyville, Oct. 1.—If Mr. Cermak lived in Libertyville he would be thankful for our stoplights and he also would understand that much of the traffic tie-up comes from the two railroads.

Most auto drivers seem to think they own the road and small chance we would have to get across the main street were it not for stoplights. Again, when parking in town, our only chance to back out is when the lights hold back the horde for a moment or two.

A LIBERTYVILLIAN.

COPS SELLING TICKETS.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—A BIG PARADE. Time: Sunday afternoon, Sept. 29, 1929. Place: Mannheim road and points north, south, east, and west.

"Step a little closah, a little closah. I hold heah in my hands some tickets for a gala affair to be given by the Melrose Park Policemen and Firemen's Benefit association. Have your money ready. How many—two, three, or five? Better take a block. Blah, blah, blah, etc."

—the sole cause of a tieup in traffic for about five miles around Mannheim road and Lake street.

What a philanthropic mood I was in after crawling along shifting gears, stopping and starting for about thirty minutes and then being approached by one of these high pressure rural officers of the law peddling his wares!

What crude methods in the art of salesmanship and what a field for operations!

Chicagoland still ranks high in rackets and they are not all speed traps.

STATE TO MAKE SURVEY OF SIGNS ON AUTO ROADS

Many Distract Motorists, It Is Claimed.

Director Cleaveland of the state department of public works and buildings has ordered a survey of highway markers and of billboards on roads in the metropolitan area. His main object is to remove advertisements on the rights of way that confuse drivers.

The survey will also discover that many of the official markers are unnecessary and are a nuisance to motorists. It will also show that there is a need for directional signs labeling important intersections.

There has been a growing practice in the Chicago region for real estate men, barbecue purveyors, and roadhouse proprietors to erect signs on the highways carrying in large letters the word "STOP." In smaller letters will be the invitation to purchase a lot in the swampy hollow subdivision or to buy a sandwich at Sadie's place.

A Nuisance to Drivers.

A fast driver, on the lookout for warning notices, will stamp his brake pedal when his eyes catch the big letters, "S-T-O-P." This was the result intended by the designer of the trick sign, and there is a slight possibility that the ruse is good merchandizing strategy. But this tampering with the free movement of traffic is a nuisance to motorists, if not a public hazard.

A variation of this practical joke on the public was found a few weeks ago in the southwestern section of Cook county. A motorist going forty-five miles an hour on one of the lightly traveled pavements in that vicinity saw a red flag waving from one of the state highway department's "cross road" markers.

A Subdivider's Sign.

Thinking the flag was a warning of a serious danger, such as a cave-in and a broken bridge, the motorist skidded his tires to slow down to ten or fifteen miles an hour. Then he discovered that the red flag was part of the decorations used by a subdivider at the intersection of the gravel road with the concrete highway.

As for the multiplicity of official warning signs on the highways, experts contend that the great number of these markers reduces the efficacy of each. On the through routes, where a fast movement of traffic is essential for the highway to handle the large volume of automobiles, the dirt shoulders beside the pavement are cluttered with signs reading "cross road," "club entrance," "cemetery entrance," etc.

Signs of Little Importance.

Many of these cross roads are little used dirt trails. Even where they are gravel roads serving a local traffic the motor clubs argue that the automobile entering the main highway should come to a full stop and wait for a safe opening, but that the through traffic should not be annoyed with notices of these cross roads.

These same arguments apply to club entrances and cemetery driveways. It is the automobiles entering the through highway that should be warned to observe extreme caution.

With so many signs of little or no importance, the driver on a through highway is likely to fail to heed important markers, such as railroad crossings or junctions with other main highways.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Three models of 1930 Nash were placed on display for the first time last Friday. Heading the list is the big car with a twin ignition, eight cylinder motor that develops 100 horse power. The other two models are a twin ignition six and a single six. The line offers five wheel base lengths in three Nash price fields.

Refinements have been made in the mechanics and in the appearance of the car. The hood is longer and the lines are straightened. The radiator shells have been narrowed, giving a more graceful outline, with the ebonized shutters, as viewed from the front.

Nash eight carburetion has been brought to peak efficiency through dual manifolding and a new "high-high" speed jet that cuts in at 50 miles an hour to maintain maximum fuel economy in the higher ranges.

A new eight cylinder car in the medium price class is announced by Hupmobile with five body types. It follows the announcement of the 1930 Hupp six in the $1,000 field.

The 1930 eight develops 100 horse power and attains a speed of eighty miles an hour, according to the announcement. The body design is unlike anything ever produced by this company, having a single modernistic decorative scheme, used throughout for both the interior and the exterior.

Another front wheel drive automobile will enter the field early in 1930. R. E. Gardner Jr., president of the Gardner Motor company, announced that his company will exhibit its new front wheel drive car at the New York automobile show in January.

Marmon is completing arrangements to bring out a big eight this fall. The first public showing will be early next month.

A new Packard feature is an adjustable sun shade that takes the place of the visor on most car bodies.

AUTUMN LEAVES ON STREET ARE MOTOR HAZARD

A seasonal hazard met my motorists on the highways these autumnal days is the leaves on the pavements. Poets write about the trees dropping a blanket over the grass and flowers to protect them from the cold, but it is well for the automobile driver to keep his mind on the prosaic thought that leaves on the concrete may lead to a skid, crash, and tragedy. Motor clubs have broadcast the warning.

Traffic Congestion Body to Meet in Washington

Secretary of Commerce Lamont has called a meeting for Thursday in Washington, D. C., of an advisory committee on relief of traffic congestion. E. J. Mehren of Chicago is chairman. On Wednesday in Washington, the American Automobile association's committee on road widening and highway grade separations will meet to map the motoring organization's program for promoting these improvements. The chairman is Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club.

SAFETY PROBLEM IS QUESTION FOR MOTOR INDUSTRY

Must Study It or Suffer Financial Loss.

Paul Van Cleef, chairman of the board of directors of Chicago Safety council, is of the opinion that the automobile industry must devote some of its vast resources to the study of traffic safety, or it will suffer a heavy financial loss.

"There are various ways to combat the motor toll," Mr. Van Cleef writes. "There are many agencies that seek to control the situation. Few seem to grasp the idea that the prevention of accidents lies not in sudden crusades but in a well balanced educational program. There is a humanitarian basis for such activities which cannot be outweighed by any other consideration.

"Nevertheless, there is one group that has a direct commercial interest in reducing automobile accidents. That is the automobile industry.

Lack of Foresight.

"It finds itself today in a position somewhat akin to that of the liquor interests of the last generation. They brought about their own extinction through lack of foresight. Had they realized their own responsibility toward the public they served, they might not have been eliminated and an unending controversy would not have divided the nation. The automobile industry is confronted by the prospect of uncountable regulatory measures adopted by frantic lawmakers.

"Continual accidents, mounting in increasing numbers, will bring down the wrath of legislatures on a public which is, in the main, sane. These lawmaking bodies will formulate innumerable laws, many irksome, many needless, and, in the end, many so thoughtless that the riding public will prefer to go without cars rather than suffer the discomforts of driving.

Or, if this should not prove altogether true, the dangers of driving cars will become so great, due to the careless and irresponsible driving, that the majority of motorists will hesitate about car ownership. In the larger cities even today many people prefer to do without machines rather than assume the menace of ownership.

Industry Should Study Problem.

"What the auto industry can do is to study safety problems as they pertain to the automobile. With their vast technical powers, they are in an admirable position to do this. They can set up agencies for educating their customers in ways of safe driving. They can work with city, county, and state in constructing proper roads. In making highway rules, in unifying traffic control and in bringing system out of a chaotic mass of conflicting opinions and regulations.

"The only official safety group representing the automobile manufacturers today is a committee on safety of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It issues a monthly letter on the subject of safety, but makes no scientific study of the problem. It has made no impression on the traffic problem."

DIMMING HEADLIGHTS LAW IS VIGOROUSLY ENFORCED IN FRANCE

In France the law that requires a motorist to dim his headlights upon the approach of another vehicle is still in effect. The stranger, motoring in France, soon learns of the law and how irritated the native drivers are when it is not obeyed. Truck drivers, especially, lose their tempers. They have developed, too, a splendid technique of their own for punishing the disobedient driver. This involves turning their vehicles so as to block the road or street completely and keep it blocked until a policeman arrives to take the law violator to task or to court.

PROHIBITION KILLINGS: NO. 4, THE CASE OF LAWTON CARROLL

Dry Agents Freed in Federal Court.

"The President of the United States to the jailer of Lowndes county, Georgia:

"Whereas, on the 21st day of May, in the year of our Lord 1927, in the District court of the United States for the middle district of Georgia, in the City of Macon, the Hon. William J. Tilson, judge of said court, did order remanded and transferred from the superior court of Lowndes county, in the Valdosta division of the middle district of Georgia, the case of the State of Georgia against one R. L. Hudson Sr., charged with the offense of murder, wherein the said named accused was charged with having on the 7th day of March, 1927, within the said Valdosta division of the said district, killed and murdered one Lawton Carroll—and it having been made to appear to the court that at the time of the killing of the said Carroll by the said accused the said accused was engaged in the performance of a duty as an officer of the United States, to wit: a federal prohibition agent of the United States, and because thereof the said accused was entitled to have said cause transferred and remanded to this court for trial:

"Therefore, you are hereby commanded in the name of the President of the United States to receive said accused into your custody, there to remain until discharged or remanded by due course of law.

"WILLIAM J. TILSON, Judge."

—From court records.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Valdosta, Ga., Oct. 5.—[Special.]—Southern Georgia's most famous murder case in connection with federal prohibition enforcement is that of the state against R. L. Hudson Sr. and R. L. Hudson Jr. for the killing of Lawton Carroll, 20 years old, on March 7, 1927, by the younger Hudson, who was then 17 years old and acting under his father's orders.

Carroll, who was suspected of having liquor in his automobile, was shot in the back by the Hudson boy during a wild chase through the outskirts of Valdosta. He died three weeks later. The Baptist Young People's Union of Benevolence, which Carroll had attended, sent a wreath to his funeral. He was about to marry the daughter of a neighboring farmer.

The United States government came promptly to the defense of the Hudsons, as the father was the federal prohibition officer and internal revenue collector of the district. The United States attorney said the boy was his father's authorized deputy, but it does not appear that he had more than a verbal commission.

Community Excited.

This Georgia community, where liquor making is considered an ancient and inalienable right, was greatly wrought up over the killing, and the Hudsons were indicted in the state court for murder. After the federal government took over the trial, and the case had been delayed a year, and a jury selected from far away counties by court order, the Hudsons were acquitted.

It takes a lot of education to convince the average Georgian in this district, at least, that the killing of one boy by another boy over a matter of a little whisky is a decent and lawful procedure. Under the state law the possession and selling of liquor is only a misdemeanor. Prohibition enforcement in this section is a sort of hide and seek game in the dark swamps and wild woods back of the farms, with a fine or chain gang sentence considered fair upon capture and conviction, but no thought of killing and no right given under the state law to shoot except in self-defense.

There was no self-defense plea in this case.

A Broken Home.

Lawton Carroll came out of an environment that is producing moonshine makers and bootleggers by the same natural process that it grows watermelons, cotton, and tobacco. It would take the army to enforce the federal law here completely, just as the United States had to move in soldiers to enforce the cattle law in the "free state of Echols," as the county just above here is called.

Carroll lived out on the Lock Laud road, about five miles from town, where his father, J. E. Carroll, has a "three horse farm," much gone to seed now, and bordered by a thick swamp and line of dark woods. There are other Carrolls along the road—a sort of clan—and they are proud of their watermelon crops. One is a county commissioner and another a county policeman.

Old Jim Carroll is discouraged and takes a little corn liquor now and then to cheer him up. He sits on the porch of his log cabin home under the shade of trees and flowering bushes this Saturday morning. Pigs, chickens, and tow headed grandchildren wander around the yard or peer from the doorways. A woman frying fish there looks up with frowning suspicion upon the stranger. Old Jim however, is jovial and hospitable and invites the visitor to come in the parlor and hear the phonograph. Large colored crayon pictures of their dead son furnish the chief decoration here. The father is a tall, straight figure with white, stubby whiskers, a black felt hat, blue shirt, and overalls. His blue eyes look mighty straight and keen at a stranger. They soften and fill with tears at mention of his boy.

Says He Was a Good Boy.

"He was a good smart business man," says Old Jim. "He was working toward the light. He had schooling. He was a good boy. Gone to town that morning for watermelon seed. I didn't get out of bed. Do you hold they had a right to kill him?

"Prohibition, now, I'll tell you true blue—that is a money problem. The boys are going to have their whisky and there must be some change in the law to give it to them. It is God's good gift to his children. I like liquor and I drink it. Take these officers. I know one that is so straight nothing could stop him. Another would steal your liquor and mine, too. What are we going to do with them? A low, degraded lot."

Then the old man branches off into a chuckling story of how he and his sons and sons-in-law heard a lot of whistles and bells one day and went to town to go to the war—"to fight those bad boys over there"—and come to find out "it was the peace." They were a little too late, but willing.

The Road to Fortune.

Down the road a mile a young man, much like the picture in the Carroll parlor, the same type, stands by the side of a new roadster. He is pointed out as a prosperous young bootlegger. A Negro woman drives up to speak to him and he disappears. She waits by the woods in her car and is said to be getting supplies for her little retail place in town. The killing of Lawton Carroll has produced more caution, that is all. The stills are in the swamps nearby, the trails, known only to the natives, leading through alligator and snake infested waters.

It is a fairly safe place to make and hide moonshine and the market is steady at $5 a gallon. Many are taking this sure road to money rather than worry about crops and toil in the sun.

Lawton Carroll was one of these. He had been caught three times, and three months before his death had been fined $500. It might be dangerous, but there was nothing wrong about it to his mind. He could go to the Church of Christ in the morning and make whisky in the afternono.

There was no evidence presented at the trial in federal court that he had liquor in his car on the morning he was shot, but on general principles he was fair game for the prohibition officers who knew him. His friends say he had no liquor in his car, but evidence indicates he did have. He had no gun.

DRY AGENT'S STORY

Carroll was never able to tell what happened on his last ride along the cotton fields and the Negro cabins, and the only story comes from the Hudsons. The elder Hudson made this statement in court:

"I had known that there was going to be a lot of liquor brought up that road that morning, that there would be several cars and Carroll would be one.

"So about 1 o'clock me and my boy and Mr. Hall [N. V. Hall, aged 20, son of a deputy sheriff] went out to a gentleman's house out there and parked in his yard, right at the county farm, and they said these cars would be along anywhere from 3 to 7 the next morning.

"So that morning [March 7] about 5 o'clock, one came up. Lights were on when we drove up to the man's gate at the fence—shined a light on the automobile when it passed. It was a coupe and we followed it on into town and after we got on the main street, ran around the car, stuck out my hand. We turned into the police station. He looked up and said: 'What will you have?' and I said: 'I want to look at this automobile.'

"'If I had known that I would have stopped,' he said. 'I thought it robbers.' He opened the car and went off.

Delivering in a Ford Coupe.

"In the meantime Mr. Kemp [R. L. Kemp, policeman] came up and when he came he says:

"'This man don't haul whisky, but a lot of liquor is being brought in on this road. Mr. Lawton Carroll is one delivering every morning in a Ford roadster.'

"I told him I had information on Mr. Lawton Carroll; just caught him thirty days before that."

The prohibition agent went on to relate this other capture of Carroll, as follows:

"We went out to the swamp back of his father's home three-quarters of a mile, stored the whisky in the swamp down there, and the evening before Mr. H— had found a five gallon jug out there, and we stayed out there until 10 or 12 o'clock. Knew there until 10 or 12 o'clock. Knew there until 10 or 12 o'clock. Knew

Aug. 7 this year and since the August report the expansion has been a direct and extensive one, as follows:

|---|---|
| Aug. 21 | $6,085,000,000 |
| Aug. 28 | 6,217,000,000 |
| Sept. 4 | 6,354,000,000 |
| Sept. 11 | 6,474,000,000 |
| Sept. 18 | 6,569,000,000 |
| Sept. 25 | 6,761,000,000 |
| Oct. 2 | 6,894,000,000 |

In other words, there has been an expansion of $1,500,000 in the brokers' loan account from the low of this year to the maximum figure reached this week. Of this expansion $587,000,000 was established during the month of September, in a coincident with a generally downward trend in the stock market, in which many of the leading industrial issues were deflated by from 20 to more than 100 points.

One common belief exploded by the recent reaction in stocks is that investment trusts, or more particularly, trading corporations, stand ready to save the market situation whenever it becomes shaky.

The possibility that these holders of securities might themselves precipitate a decline through a common and concentrated desire to take profits had apparently not entered into the calculations of an unthinking element in Wall street.

This is what has happened, and, so far, there is not much evidence that the corporations have been exchanging their cash for securities even at the present depreciated prices.

Revive Movement.

The movement toward public regulation of investment trusts was revived this week in federal and state legislative circles with the announcement that the authorities were considering new measures for the supervision of the trusts.

At Washington the movement is led by Senator Couzens, who is expected to offer a resolution to inquire into the operation of the trusts and to determine whether the federal government has power to enact regulatory legislation. In New York state the movement is led by the joint legislative commission on banking and investment trusts, headed by Assemblyman Nelson W. Cheney. The commission had indicated that it was considering recommending legislation which would require investment trusts to publish their earnings and the contents of their portfolios at regular intervals.

Hearings which the committee has held in New York City have disclosed that it is not considering the drastic proposal made last year by Attorney General Albert Ottinger, which would have placed the trusts under the supervision of the superintendent of banks who would have been empowered to approve or reject applications for charters in this state.

Mr. Cheney declared at one hearing that he was convinced that the trusts should be made to give more information to their investors, but that he felt the commission should avoid setting up a bureau which would assume the responsibility of passing judgment on the trusts' investments and operations.

Legality in Doubt.

While intensely interested in plans for state regulation investment trust circles in New York believe that there is little likelihood of federal legislation, since there is considerable doubt concerning the constitutionality of the latter. Since the greater number of investment trusts would come within the scope of New York laws, it is felt that any move taken by the state would clarify the situation and would result in similar action being taken by other states.

A large number of trusts have indicated that they would be hostile to any special legislation at this time. Leaders in the investment trust field have declared that the expansion of the trusts has been carried on upon a sound basis. It is held by some executives that legislation requiring the publishing of investment trust earnings and portfolios at regular intervals is not essential, since many trusts have voluntarily taken a step in the direction of greater publicity concerning their activities.

The trend toward increased publicity has been encouraged also by the New York Stock exchange, which required the trusts which list their securities on the exchange to publish their holdings at regular intervals.

Another group of investment trust executives has indicated that it would welcome legislation which would not infringe upon their rights, and would prevent abuses from arising. Some authorities feel that the situation is analogous to the one which prevailed in the insurance business before the investigation by Gov. Hughes in 1906, although the abuses prevalent in the investment trust field are not comparable to the ones practiced by some companies in the insurance business before 1906.

TRUTH ABOUT KILLINGS BY DRY AGENTS

No. 4—The Case of Lawton Carroll in Georgia.

the federal court and tells a more complete story. The evidence of some of the Negroes who heard the shooting and found whisky by the roadside was not given at the second trial.

Dr. A. Griffin testified that the bullet which caused Carroll's death entered at the back and passed into the upper part of the left lung.

Charlie Love, a Negro, testified that he heard the shooting on Dasher street that morning and saw a small car just ahead of a larger one.

"The small car shaked up and down and slowed down very slow," he said. "There was a man on the running board or on the ground shot into the other car. It was just a little cooter back car, one man in it, some more in the other car, one shooting." He heard three shots.

J. M. Knight, tax collector, testified he heard Hudson Jr. say he did the shooting. W. B. Cook, attorney, said he heard Hail say he was driving the car and that Hudson Jr. shot.

There was a suspicion at the time that Hudson Sr. had taken all the blame he possibly could to shield his son, and that he did not shoot. Some doubted that he was in the car at all.

C. C. Brantley, editor of the Times, told of a telephone conversation with Hudson Sr. soon after the shooting. Hudson said then that he did not find any whisky in the car.

W. A. Pitts, a service station man, was one of those who ran into the Hudsons on the morning of March 7. He was coming into town at 5 or 5:30 o'clock and saw a car parked. Three men were in it. One had a flashlight and another had something that looked like a pistol. He reported this after he got into town, as he thought they might be holdup men. Later he identified Hudson Sr. as one of the men.

N. Baucom, another service station man, saw the Hudson car and stepped on the gas. They followed him into town and searched his car.

"They throwed a gun on us at the time of the search," he said, identifying all three men. J. E. Wilder's car was intercepted and searched.

R. L. Udderback, Negro carpenter, who lives near Fry's pasture and the scene of the shooting, said he heard four shots and saw "something like a crocus sack come out of the small car after the shooting."

An Impromptu Drinking Bout.

There was a quick gathering of Negroes in the neighborhood. Will Smith heard Udderback say, "They throwed something in the ditch," and he was out there in a hurry. He found two gallon jugs of white whisky, one in a sack, the other rolled out, both undamaged.

Q.—Did you get any of that whisky?

A.—Yes, sir. Henry taken a jug and we all taken a drink and taken the stoppers out of the jug.

Q.—So the officers killed the man and you got the whisky?

A.—I don't know. I got a drink out of one of the jugs and I didn't go no further with it.

Henry Simmons said:

"I got a gallon, drank some of it down there and poured some out. Yes sir, skeered to keep it, drank as much as I could and poured it out."

Q.—How much?

A.—Drank right smart of it.

B. F. Stevens, United States deputy marshal, testified he met young Hudson on the street and he said he had shot a man and had left his father at the car.

"I asked him if he knew who he was shooting at and he said he commanded him to stop. He said no whisky was found in the car."

UPHOLDING THE LAW

Even after the long delay and the waning of public interest the government took no chance of local prejudice being reflected in the jury box. It took a practical change of venue by the same method as that followed in the Jones case in Florida on motion of Assistant Attorney General Norman J. Morrison. The United States attorney here, Mr. Russell, moved to exclude from the jury box all residents of Lowndes county. Mr. Wilcox, seeing that this motion would be granted, moved to extend it to exclude all men from four other adjoining counties. The result was that jurors drawn from Cook, Berrien, Lanier, Lowndes, and Echols counties were excluded. The Hudsons were tried by men from Brooks, Thomas, Colquitt, and Tift counties.

The jurors were bankers, business men, and retired farmers of these more remote counties, men of responsibility, who stand for law enforcement and whose predilections would make them side naturally with the government. It took only an hour to select the trial jury. Law enforcement in this case, according to the government plea, was to exonerate the government agents for this killing.

Although the trial was in federal court, it was on state law and under state procedure. Under the state law the Hudsons had no right to shoot at a man who was endeavoring to escape from a suspected misdemeanor. They were clearly liable to a manslaughter verdict at least.

The jurors were out four hours in reaching a decision. The United States attorney pleaded with them to uphold the government and "strengthen the hands of the prohibition officers."

The court gave instructions under which a manslaughter verdict could have been reached. The jurors must decide whether this was a wanton and grossly careless act, or an accident under conditions which justify shooting.

How They Figured It Out.

Evidence was introduced showing Carroll's liquor convictions. A picture of conditions in the countryside was painted. The jurors were given lawless men on one side and faithful federal officers, sitting up all night to do their duty, seeking to enforce the law, on the other side.

As one juror put it, a mistake had been made by the Hudsons, but it was necessary to uphold the government and the prohibition law. The plea of the federal attorney had found deep lodgment in his mind.

Another juror figured things out on another basis, but reached the same conclusion. This was that Hudson was a good sort of a man, an honest old sawmill hand who was doing his best to make a federal officer. His record was one of kindness. Several times he had let criminals get away with things when he might have been excused for shooting. He was not out to kill Carroll and that was an accident on the part of the son.

Now, the evidence showing that Hudson Sr. did not shoot, he could not well be convicted of murder. The father had called on his son and Hudson Jr. was merely helping out his daddy. It would not do to send him to the chain gang, for the father was responsible. So, in this dilemma, the juror decided to let both men off. Carroll had been dealing in liquor and his death did not mean a great loss to the community.

Such was the reasoning of the jurors. It was a verdict based on more things outside the evidence than in it.

Lawton Carroll was dead. Never again would he ride at dawn along the cotton fields and the turpentine forest, his girl's last letter held close in his coat pocket. In one of the snapshots which is preserved at home he is shown shooting craps with two Negro boys. Strange that a boy could shoot craps, make whisky and go to church. But his father said that was "working toward the light," whatever he meant by that.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

A distinctly improved tone featured the wheat market, especially at the close, with prices at the best of the day and "offers" were preferred in the late trading. The speculative atmosphere has been clarified by the break and it was said at the last that despite the reduction in the short interest on the part of the pit traders, the market was in shape to respond to constructive news. The striking feature was the stronger dash situation and reports from Winnipeg of 2,500,000 bu wheat being sold for export.

A point in favor of wheat holders was the strength in the Buenos Aires market, where October closed at $1.18¼, an advance of 9¼c since last Monday. December wheat in Chicago on Sept. 30 closed at $1.35⅝, while yesterday it was $1.35@1.35¼. This indicates that the pressure on Argentine wheat is over and is taken as indicating a healthier situation in all wheat markets.

One of the largest local traders says it is too early to take a positive position on the bull side of corn. The country is offering new corn for shipment the last half of October at 5½c under December for No. 4, and 6c under for all October loading. November is 7c and December 8c discount. This is construed by speculators and cash handlers as rather against a bull market for the time being.

"Australia's wheat crop in the southern section is progressing fairly, although insufficient rains have fallen. The plant is withstanding the dryness satisfactorily and the forecast is for rain soon," says Broomhall's cable. "The remaining visible supply is now 6,240,000 bu, compared with 3,330,000 bu a year ago. Since Jan. 1 shipments aggregate 97,504,000 bu, against 68,639,000 bu last year. Argentine shipments for the same time have been 166,119,000 bu, compared with 216,720,000 bu last year. Weather in Argentina recently as favored growth."

CHICAGO CURB EXCHANGE

A firm opening was followed by a generally bullish session that saw several good gains marked up and fractional advances recorded by practically the entire list. The only exception to the upward trend was Storkline, which slipped two points in a light trade. The best performance of the day was staged by Central and Southwest new, which climbed over three points in an active trade. Temple B was up 2½ points on expectation of a bullish earnings statement, and Associated Gas finished at 66½, up 2¾ points for the day. Walgreen recovered its loss of the previous day and went on to record a good gain.

BRITISH BASES MEAN MUCH IN NAVAL PARLEY

Isles Off U. S. Coast Give Edge in Power.

potential aircraft bases at Sable island and Nassau, Great Britain is in a position to interrupt our trade at a moment's notice. We are virtually trading on sufferance of Britain. That Britain would accept such a position were the conditions reversed is unthinkable. We would be hearing much of the necessity of Britain possessing complete control of her trade lanes at all times.

Yet, important as is a proper regard for the safety of our country and of our sea borne trade, American statecraft never has concerned itself with the removal of the potential menace of the British islands at our shores. We purchased the Danish West Indies when there was danger of their sale to Germany, and Grant once sought to annex Santo Domingo, but our government never has undertaken to procure the cession or demilitarization of the British islands. Neither at the Paris peace conference nor in the Washington arms conference, nor in the war debt settlement in which we forgave Great Britain a greater sum due us than the British West Indies are worth, did the United States seek a disposition of these islands in the interest of our security.

This neglect of statesmanship is usually accounted for on the ground that the British islands will not become an actual menace to the United States unless the two countries should war upon each other and a war between the two English speaking powers is inconceivable. Britain, of course, is a prey to no such sentimentality. The British profess to regard war between the two nationas as unthinkable as we do, but they take no chances. They are unwilling to allow us a navy superior to or even equal to theirs.

Of course, however, it would not take a war between America and Britain to expose us to the menace of the British bases in the West Indies. If England were to become involved in another European war, with the United States neutral, the British West Indies would become the bases for the operations of British cruisers interfering with our neutral trade, as they did in the world war. With a cruiser strength superior to ours they would dictate to us as they did between 1914 and 1917. With parity of the two navies our cruisers would be able to protect our trade.

British Colonies Off U. S.

| | Area, square miles. |
|---|---|
| Bahamas | 4,404 |
| Bermuda | 19 |
| Barbados | 166 |
| Jamaica, Turks, and Caicos | 4,674 |
| Leeward islands | 715 |
| Trinidad and Tobago | 1,976 |
| Windward islands | 516 |

If Mr. Hoover were to propose the cession of the British islands to the United States or their demilitarization the British would be surprised and pained—not so much by the nature of the demand as by the spectacle of Uncle Sam asking instead of giving.

We would be asked no more than we gave at the Washington conference when we agreed to abandon Gaum as a naval base and stop fortification of the Philippines and other possessions in the western Pacific because Japan considered them a menace and would not sign the navy limitation treaty without such concession.

The British and Singapore.

Great Britain, on that occasion, regarded the Japanese concern as highly justifiable, but was careful to procure the exclusion from the demilitarized zone of Singapore, where the British were secretly planning to establish their great far eastern naval base now in course of construction.

To unofficial suggestions in this country that Britain cede the West Indian possessions to the United States the London government has retorted that the British empire is not for sale, a British ambassador having added that Albion never will sell her subjects into prohibition slavery.

But the suggestion of demilitarization of the islands has been more hospitably received. In fact, certain press utterances in London since the initiation of the present negotiations have speculated upon the value of a voluntary demilitarization of the islands as a gesture of good will toward the United States.

Really Mistress of Seas.

England is mistress of the seas by virtue of possession of the ships and the bases that confer preponderant sea power. The importance of bases is not generally understood. Ships operate from bases. With bases close to the theater of operations, the number of ships that can be used against the enemy may be greatly multiplied. Hence, it is a naval axiom that bases are the equivalent of ships.

In the world war the British fleet operating close to home ports was always reduced about 15 per cent by the absence of ships at the bases for repair. Had the same fleet, based on English ports, been operating off our Atlantic coast, there would have been difficulty in maintaining as many as half the ships on the scene of operations. If then the base were to be changed from England to Halifax the percentage of ships available at all times for operations would automatically rise from 50 to 85.

Availability of Submarines.

The British patrolled the waters between Iceland and the Orkney islands with cruisers based on Scotland 300 miles away. The patrols were about 40 per cent absent at base at all times.

The schedule of availability of submarines worked out by the United States navy, follows:

| | Pct. |
|---|---|
| In vicinity of base | 70.0 |
| 200 miles from base | 45.0 |
| 600 miles from base | 30.0 |
| 1,000 miles from base | 20.0 |
| 1,500 miles from base | 17.5 |

Of these vitally important bases, Britain has scores scattered all over the globe. That is why Britain can employ small cruisers operating at no time a great distance from a base. Of such bases the United States has only four—Guantanamo, Cuba; the Panama Canal Zone, Honolulu, and the Philippines. That is why we have little need for small cruisers, but do need big cruisers capable of operating far from a base.

Dominating the sea lanes on which our vast American commerce is borne are the British bases at Halifax, Bermuda, Jamaica and Trinidad. Halifax is upon the edge of our northern route to Europe. Bermuda is at the cross roads of the more southerly route to Europe and the regular route to South America. Jamaica stands at the Caribbean gateway to the Panama canal and the southern approach to the Gulf of Mexico. Trinidad lies athwart the Atlantic route from North to South America and the route from the Panama canal to Europe.

Value of British Bases.

Calculations of the value of these bases to Britain in a war with the United States are highly illuminating. If the British cruisers based on England or Gibraltar were to be assigned the mission of attacking American commerce between Cape Hatteras and Panama they would consume nine-tenths of their fuel going and coming, with the result that each cruiser could remain at the scene of operations only three days out of forty. Ten cruisers would not be enough to keep one cruiser constantly on the job.

If, however, the ten cruisers were operating from Bermuda, each would be able to spend 15 days out of 40 on station. The mere advance of the base 3,000 miles nearer to the scene of operations would increase the efficiency of the cruiser force 400 per cent. It is obvious that the existence of British bases close to our shore would enable a British fleet to exert virtually full strength in our waters.

No U. S. Base Off Europe.

On the other hand we have no bases in European waters and would be unable to maintain a fleet in any considerable strength so far from home, even if there were no hostile bases in our rear to jeopardize our line of supply.

In the event of a war with Great Britain the existence of these British bases off our Atlantic coast would force upon us the necessity of assuming the strategic defensive at the start and postponing an offensive until after capture or destruction of the bases.

The status of Halifax as a British base has become more interesting since 1926, when the imperial conference proclaimed Canada, as well as the other dominions, "autonomous communities within the British empire, equal to status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs."

Canada Might Be Neutral.

Under the terms of this commitment, Canada might remain neutral in a war between Britain and America. To respect such neutrality would deprive the United States of the occupation of British territory, the possession of which would go far to gain us acceptable peace terms. But on the other hand, if Britain were to abide by Canadian neutrality it would be deprived of the use of Halifax as a base, without which England could not maintain a fleet close to our coast.

Halifax is the key to British naval power in the western Atlantic. Hence, in the event of war with Britain, it would be essential that we make respect for Canadian neutrality contingent upon denial of Halifax as well as other Canadian ports to British warships.

Not far from Halifax is an island of great strategic importance to Great Britain in a war on this side of the Atlantic. This is Sable island. It is a small bit of land, but would be suitable for a base for aircraft operating against the continental area.

With Halifax neutralized the British forces might try to base on Newfoundland, which would be unsatisfactory, however, owing to the dearth of docks and repair facilities. Bermuda would be a cruiser and submarine base of inestimable value. Its harbor entrance channel is at present too shallow for modern battleships. It could be dredged for emergency use by battleships in two months and for regular use in six months.

West Indies More Suitable.

It is probable, however, that the British would choose the West Indies as the chief theater of war for the purpose not only of disrupting our traffic through the Panama canal, but of drawing our fleet to the Caribbean, 1,000 miles away from home bases and repair facilities.

With a main British base in the West Indies, possibly in the British Virgin islands or Samana bay, Bermuda would become an auxiliary base for the raiding of our merchant marine and our naval communications and for protecting British communications. Jamaica, with a fine harbor, on the line of communication with the Panama canal, would be a strategic point of the first importance. Trinidad would be indespensable as a fuel oil depot.

What History Tells.

In the war of 1812 the British islands off our shores were valuable bases for the British frigates blockading the United States and preying upon our commerce.

During the civil war Nassau and other British West Indies ports were the haven of British blockade runners carrying supplies to the confederates.

The extraordinary value of these islands to the British in the event of war between America and England is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic. It is a factor of supreme importance in the calculations of our strategists at the naval war college at Newport. It is recognized that with the British in possession of these islands off our shores the American fleet would be forced upon the strategic defense at once, because with these bases Britain would command our entire Atlantic seaboard, together with the Atlantic approaches to the Panama canal and the Gulf of Mexico. The American fleet would be unable to force an action except upon British terms.

ECOVERY OF ONDON STOCKS ILL BE SLOW

onfidence Still Is Lacking Abroad.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Oct. 5.—The process of ...ing the financial wounds inflicted ...e stock exchange after two re... series of unprecedented shocks, is ...ely to be a prolonged and compli... operation.

...ty circles are still staggering ...der continual disclosures in the ...ory collapse and can find no ade... condemnation to express their ...ings. If the market rumors are ..., more "black Mondays," such as ...perienced this week, are ahead. ...kers, dealers, bank managers and ...ers vitally interested, are asking ...e question of how much farther the ...egularities have gone and what ...ses is yet to be divulged.

...e city is still a hotbed of rumors ...d still more fearsome relevations to ...me. It is not surprising, therefore, ...at an atmosphere of nervousness ...d uncertainty exists in the mar..., as it was already lacking nor... support. Under such circum...nce quotations everywhere become ...ably depressed, nearly every stock ...e stock exchange list declining ...k week.

...ee Precarious Situation.

It is useless to say that confidence ...s returning. The position of the more ...eculative shares especially, must re... precarious until the aftermath of ...e Hatry smash has cleared, the only ...ual business being confined to lead... shares of proved and seasoned ...orts in limited sections. It is an ...en secret that the position of the ...ock exchange, which a committee is ...w endeavoring to elucidate, is prob...y the most difficult, delicate and ...rious ever experienced in the insti...ion's annals, always excepting, of ...rse, the position precipitated by the ...tbreak of war.

...Investigators are attempting to un...el the tangle, but find themselves ...ed with an exceptional difficulty, ...ile the stock exchange subcommit... are also confronted with an un...recedented problem of complexity.

...e attitude of the banks in refus...g to disclose the names of the cus...mers also aggravates the difficulties ...f the official investigators endeavor...g to elucidate the manifold opera...ns of the Hatry group, and it is ...rious that some months may be ...quired in the necessary inquiries. ...ere seems to be no doubt that the ...ost steel rationalization scheme ...ded with the spectacular career of ...arence C. Hatry. He had to find ...llions of sterling in cash in order ...o carry out his purchases of the ...nited Steel company's bonds and ...ares and of the subsidiary concerns ...ing merged. The actual cause of the ...ollapse, THE TRIBUNE learns authori...tively, was when Mr. Hatry and his ...o-directors learned finally and irrevoc...ly that the plans they were engi...eering for the sale of the steel organ...ations to certain American interests ...ere "off."

Confession Follows.

...hen followed the confession of the ...ogus scrip and the collapse of the ...hole pack of cards.

...o date the effect of the higher bank ...te upon the monetary position here ...as been completely favorable. Prac...ally all of the principal foreign ex...anges moved in favor of the ster..., although the French rate made a ...ery response and before the Paris ...ecovery occurred further large ...mounts of gold had been taken out ...f the Bank of England for France. ...he demand, however, now appears ...o be subsiding, as momentarily it ...as not pay to send gold to France ...n an exchange operation.

...Indications this week clearly point ...hat the higher money rate in London ...s attracting foreign funds again. The ...sterling-dollar exchange has been ...trong, the main reason being a sharp ...mprovement in the quotation, which ...s due mainly to the action of the ...American banks sending credits over ...here in order to take advantage of the ...high interest rates prevailing. Short ...term money, three months' bills, and ...acceptances were the chief media ...of...

...Chancellor of the Exchequer Snow...n's defense of the bank rate raise ...f the Labor party conference this ...week confirms THE TRIBUNE'S earlier ...claim that the Bank of England was ...forced by outside pressure to take ...steps to prevent its gold resources ...from being further depleted. The re...cent outflow of gold to America, ...France and Germany, due to the high ...interest offered in those coun...tries, was attracting the loanable cap...ital from England and leading the ab...normal demand for dollars, francs and ...marks, thus boosting the exchanges ...against the sterling.

Opinions Differ.

...The chancellor's announcement of ...the formation of a government com...mittee to inquire into the relations be...tween banking and industry, was re...ceived with mixed feelings in city ...circles.

...It is doubtful whether the govern...ment commission, however expertly ...experienced, will be able to discover ...a wholly satisfactory solution to the ...many problems involved. An in...quiry into the vast intricacies of the ...financial system must necessarily ...occupy an extended period. No doubt ...there is considerable occasion for im...proved methods, but when all facts ...have been disclosed it will probably be ...found that the colossal British war ...debt constitutes many of the evils ...complained of.

CHICAGO BANK STOCK MARKET UNSETTLED AND LOWER FOR WEEK

Sharing the unsettlement characterizing stocks, the week's bank stock market has been one of slackened activity, with prices generally downward.

Continental Illinois Bank and Trust suffered severely, losing 50 points when it changed hands at 895, but it firmed up toward the close to 910 bid, offered at 915. First National and Central Trust of Illinois also came in for considerable recessions, the former dropping 30 points at 930 to 940, and the latter 10 points at 680 to 685. State Bank of Chicago continued in demand at 1200 bid. Foreman National sales ranged between 1230 and 1240, closing 1230 bid. Harris Trust and Savings was offered at 1055, but there were no buyers. National Bank of the Republic, after selling at 245, declined to 236 bid, offered at 238. Union was also heavy, being traded between 424 and 429. On the announcement of the Northwestern Trust-Home bank merger, Northwestern sold off from a high of 505 to sales at 485, at which price additional stock was offered without attracting buyers. Home bank followed the general trend and was offered freely at 455. Citizens State established a new all time high when transactions were recorded at 820.

One hundred was bid for Hammond Clock, but sellers were unattracted. Chicago Daily News common was heavy, sales being recorded between 37 and 38. The preferred, after early sales at 94, improved to 97 bid, 99 asked. Interstate Iron and Steel common was again in good demand, rising 5 points to sales at 71. Belden Manufacturing showed a 5 point gain, being wanted at 105.

HOOKUP OF G.M.C. WITH RADIO CORP. EXPECTED SOON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—General Motors corporation's and Radio Corporation of America's tie-up in a new radio manufacturing and distributing company is expected to be announced the early part of next week with a statement that the two companies have united in the formation of a third company which will handle the distribution of radio sets manufactured by General Motors.

It is understood that General Motors and Radio corporation will each contribute $5,000,000 in capital to the new company and will each take 50 per cent of the stock. The new company will make a contract with General Motors for the manufacture of radio sets and combination radio and talking machine sets, it is understood, and beyond this contract General Motors will take no active part in the new company.

Radio corporation will license the new company under its numerous radio patents, it is understood, and also under various patents of the Victor Talking Machine company, which it controls, so that the entire manufacturing of radio sets and radio-talking machine sets will be vested in General Motors through the contract with the new company.

The Radio company will also have active control of the company, it is understood, especially in the distribution of the products, and the new arrangement will not interfere with existing dealer licenses and distribution contracts or dealer licenses. It will, however, it is said, release Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing and General Electric companies from manufacture of Radio corporation radio sets and will also transfer considerable of the manufacture of the new Victor radio sets to General Motors' factories.

Simmons Co. Stockholders Approve By-Laws Change

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Stockholders of the Simmons company have approved a change in the by-laws of the company permitting the board of directors to issue stock at its discretion. This action was in line with the plan of the company announced some time ago to expand its activities until it became a complete household furnishings manufacturing and distributing company. Action on the part of directors in issuing stock for the acquisition of other companies in perfecting such an organization was anticipated in presenting the change in the by-laws to the stockholders.

The work will cost $900,000 and will be rushed so as to be ready for use within a few months. # Cites Need of New Forests in 3 States

BY SCRUTATOR.

Some real solution of the forestry problem probably is of more importance to Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota than to any other states. Twenty million acres of forest lands, long since cut over, are lying unproductive in their borders, and the forest service of the department of agriculture estimates that a loss of a dollar an acre, at least, is being suffered each year through failure to get new forests growing.

Up until 1926, it is pointed out, only one-third of 1 per cent of this vast area had been brought under any sort of reforestation program. If the rate of planting were speeded up to 100,000 acres annually, it is probable that each year's planting would have a value of fifteen million dollars when the timber grows to merchantable size.

Two hundred small sawmills and other woodworking industries could be supported by this raw material, according to Joseph Kittredge of the forestry service.

This authority sees as an integral part of a good policy the necessity for interesting private individuals and small communities as well as depending on the government and the states for forestry.

Specific Recommendations.

Specifically, he recommends scientific taxation, technical advice to owners, and long time credit arrangements as requisites to get private and community agencies started on the work.

It has been said here before that any forestry program that does not lean for its main support on lumbermen and paper mill owners is doomed to failure. Perhaps it may be fairly added as a good supposition that if taxes and credit on long, easy terms could be satisfactorily agreed on the business men in the United States would take care of the whole problem with scant governmental assistance. The federal services logically have the duty of preserving wooded areas for recreation; also they are best equipped to gather scientific knowledge and dispense it. But big businesses like lumber and paper should be handled by business men.

Value of Products.

Lumber and its allied industries, the bureau of the census reported in 1925, brought out products valued at more than three and a half billion dollars.

Paper, printing and related lines produced values exceeding four billions. Taken together, their values exceeded those of the steel and iron manufacturers and were only exceeded by foodstuffs and textiles in the American business field.

There is no necessity to discuss the vast amount of timber required for these trades, nor to point to the growing tendency to get them from Canada since our own forests, particularly those in the lake states, have become depleted. Lumbermen recognize the problem. Some of them have tried out projects of their own, but have come up against the taxation feature in many instances. It seems rather futile to expect growing trees that will not be merchantable for forty to sixty or more years to stand the expense of building roads through them, as one lumber company complained it had to do in the Pacific northwest while growing a forest.

Farm Wood Lots.

Another argument against growing in public parks is contained in the official figures which show that some two-fifths of the forest fires are caused by the carelessness of tourists and sportsmen. During three weeks in August alone the federal forest service spent more than a million dollars fighting 5,000 separate fires in six national forests. More than 2,000 blazes were attributed to human agencies.

Recently there has been some disposition to link up forestry with the farm. It is definitely established that about one-third of the timber in the country is in farm woodlots. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has recommended that low producing farm land be turned back to forests.

Little more than 350 million acres out of a total of nearly two billion in the United States are actually producing crops. Another 150 million are classed as farm lands, but don't produce. All of this surplus, besides millions more like the cutover lands, could be profitably planted and tended if the tax and credit situation were improved.

TWO MORE FIRMS JOIN NORTHWEST BANCORPORATION

New Issues of Stock By Corporations Reached a New Peak This Year. September Broke Previous Records for the Month

News and Gossip of Stock Markets

Expert Turns Bullish.

Wall street heard yesterday that a well known market prognosticator, who hooked a good deal of publicity a month ago with his bearish predictions, has turned bullish and will shortly advise his clients to buy certain stocks. The list is said to include New York Central, Baltimore and Ohio, United States Steel, Standard Oil of New York, and Anaconda.

Slump Reduces Speculators.

The mortality among stock exchange accounts was tremendous last week. Many an account that ran into six figures at the first of the week was entirely extinguished by Friday night. Many people who got through Thursday's break by the margin of an eyelash were thrown out of the market on Friday's recession. Some of the old familiar faces about brokerage offices were missing yesterday. Some of the small speculators were out rustling for jobs.

G. M. C. Snapped Up.

Large blocks of General Motors are being taken on a sliding scale and there seems to be plenty of bulls around present prices. The company's balance sheet on June 30 last shows an increase of more than $50,000,000 in investments in affiliated and miscellaneous concerns. This included a substantial interest in Opel of Germany, a 25 per cent interest in Bendix Aviation, and a 40 per cent interest in Fokker Aircraft. It has recently been reported that certain arrangements are in progress with the Radio corporation. Eventually the outcome of this expansion into other fields should be favorable, although the immediate results may be small.

Oils Pick Up.

Oils, which for more than a week have been showing signs of action, moved forward in more or less spectacular fashion yesterday. Leadership was held by Standard Oil of New Jersey, which poured over the tape in blocks of 1,000 to 10,000 shares. Conditions in the petroleum industry, according to interests closely associated with producing, refining, and marketing ends of the business, are much better than generally supposed.

Expect Easier Money.

With heavy offerings of funds on Friday sending the call money rate down to 6 per cent over the end of the week, bankers and money brokers were inclined yesterday to look forward to easier money conditions this week than prevailed last week when 10 per cent was touched on several occasions. With the strain of quarterly interest and dividend payments removed so that the money could return to the call loan market and with the lower level of stock exchange prices compared with a week ago, the financial community was inclined to look for a reduction in brokers' loans, provided stock and bond financing does not show a sudden increase. New financing in September set a new high record for any month, but, according to plans of bankers divulged thus far, it is doubtful if the October total will measure up anywhere near as high.

TO LINK INSULL KY. SYSTEMS BY HIGH VOLTAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—The electric power systems of the Kentucky Utilities company and the Kentucky Power and Light company, both controlled by the Middle West Utilities company, the principal Insull holding company, are to be linked soon by three high voltage transmission lines aggregating 115 miles in length.

The Kentucky Utilities company is the oldest utility company of the Insull group in Kentucky. It controls properties operating in the west, central and southeastern parts of the state. The Kentucky Power and Light is a subsidiary of the United Public Service company, recently acquired as a whole by the Insull interests. It operates in the northern and western parts of Kentucky.

The lines planned to link these two groups of properties will run approximately at right angles to the Kentucky and the Licking rivers, south of the Ohio river. There will be a new 66,000 volt line from Lexington, Ky., to Maysville, on the Ohio river, a distance of 60 miles; another 66,000 volt line from Shelbyville to Carrollton, a distance of 33 miles, and a third line of 33,000 volts covering 22 miles from Mt. Sterling to Salt Lick, near Morehead. The work will be completed next spring.

Various changes in the existing systems will be made necessary by these three powerful links. Certain transmission lines will be double circuited, others will be increased in capacity and at many points additional operating equipment will be installed. The powerful stations of the Kentucky Utilities company will increase the potential power supply of the Kentucky Power and Light from 5,000 to 25,000 horsepower without diminishing the supply of the former company.

FOREIGN ISSUES DO BETTER THAN DOMESTIC BONDS

(New York bond list page 5.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5. — Bond prices showed small recoveries today in trading on the stock exchange, with the improvement in foreign loans amounting to considerably more than the recoveries in domestic issues. Convertible bonds, in sympathy with stocks, led in the advances, with trading running higher in volume of turnover than a week ago.

International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s lead a recovery of 8½ points, with American Telephone convertible 4½s were up 4⅝. There is still a spread of more than 20 points between the two issues in favor of the latter. American I. G. Chemical 5½s advanced 2 points, and Alleghany corporation 5s of 1949 up 1¾. Atchison convertible 4½s moved up half a point.

Lorillard bonds were active on the news of the ending of the tobacco war, the 5½s gaining ⅝, while the 5s eased ⅜ of a point to 79½ after touching a high of 80 for the day. The activity traded Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron 6s were up two points.

As has been the case for the last few days, foreign loans, with but very few exceptions, showed but fractional changes for the day. United States government bonds were dull and little changed during the two hour trading period.

Offerings of Bond Issues on Upgrade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Due to the fact that one issue of $30,000,000 was marketed this week, the total of new bond offerings for the week reached $56,416,000, compared with $26,331,000 last week and with $66,173,000 during the corresponding week of last year.

The major issue this week was that of the Canadian National Railways company 5s, due in 1969. These were offered at a price of 98½ by the Bancamerica-Blair corporation and associates. The issue, which is guaranteed unconditionally by the Canadian government, met a ready response, the bankers reporting today that more than $25,000,000 of the bonds had been sold.

Second Largest Issue.

The second largest issue of the week was the $7,250,000 General Water Works and Electric 6s, which were brought out on a 6.50 per cent basis. The third largest issue was $5,000,000 state of North Carolina 5¾ per cent, short term notes, priced to yield 5.50 and 5.75 per cent. The issue of $3,942,000 city of St. Louis [Mo.] 4½s, offered in midweek, has all been sold.

Several weeks have elapsed since any bonds have been offered for investment trusts or financial corporations, new financing for companies of this classification being done through offerings of stock.

Offerings by Groups.

The offerings of bonds by groups for this and last week follow:

| | This week. | Last week. |
|---|---|---|
| Foreign | $30,400,000 | $2,500,000 |
| State and municipal | 16,266,000 | 3,631,000 |
| Public utility | 9,750,000 | 20,200,000 |
| Total | $56,416,000 | $26,331,000 |

There have been various reports of negotiations looking toward an early offering of European loans, but in view of the fact that foreign bonds on the stock exchange are now selling close to the low prices of the year, many bankers are of the opinion that foreign governments and corporations in need of new money will endeavor to hold off until later in the year. In some instances pressing requirements are being taken care of by means of banking credits which do not involve public financing.

BY FRED HARVEY.

(New York stock list page 5.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 5.—Empowered by heavy buying orders booming in from all points of the compass, the stock market turned on its pursurers today.

Under the leadership of tobacco shares the whole list surged forward in a body with the pace makers running up gains as high as $50 a share and the rank and file recovering anywhere from $1 to $10 a share on the losses suffered in the headlong retreat of yesterday and the day before. The tobacco movement followed announcement of increases in wholesale cigaret prices.

Trading on the rebounds was in many instances as violent as that on the breaks of the preceeding sessions.

All Groups Participate.

Every group participated in the recovery. Utilities were sensationally strong. Various specialties hit a dizzy pace in the early trading and kept it up without a halt right through to the close, checking up some of the biggest advances of the abbreviated week-end session. Motor stocks—the motors came to life with a rush and the steels did themselves proud in a body with United States Steel common assuming its logical position at the head of the procession and recouping nearly 8 points of the loss it sustained yesterday.

Some of the rails were as nearly buoyant as they have been since the group succumbed to bearish pressure awhile back and the coppers came once more into their own.

Merchandise and oil shares kept step with the rest. A total of some 2,451,870 shares changed hands in the two hours.

Fireworks in Trading.

Fireworks in the tobacco stocks featured the brief session. Announcement of the increase in cigaret prices by three of the leading manufacturers of the country set shorts in hasty search of stock to cover their sales of the last few days and the lucky holders made their bidders "reach for 'em." The result was a bit of the liveliest trading the exchange has witnessed in a coon's age.

American Tobacco B, after opening up $20 a share on a block of 4,000, ran up swiftly to within a fraction of $200 for a gain of nearly $40 a share and held at that level until a few minutes before the close. Then it dropped back to 193, which left it still with a net advance of $38 a share for the day. The common stock of the same corporation shot up almost as sentionally, scoring a net gain of $36 a share.

Reynolds Tobacco B and Lorillard, which were traded in big blocks, also performed brilliantly, the former advancing more than $7 a share and the other nearly $11. Tobacco Products was up $3 a share at the close.

The tobaccos have been the "lost orphans" of the market for a long time due to the keen competition among the big companies which has been so destructive to profits all around. Some of the leading issues of the division have been on the downgrade for the better part of the year and investors in them have lost heavily.

Today's announcement of price boost was accepted to mean that the "war" is over and that the industry is to stand on its feet once more.

BETTER EXPORT DEMAND AIDS WHEAT PRICES

Corn Market Is Dull, but Closes Higher.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The wheat market showed a much firmer undertone yesterday, both in America and abroad, and sentiment was somewhat more favorable to the buying side, talk of a better export demand being a factor.

Fair sales abroad were claimed early while toward the last a Winnipeg operator wired that sales of Manitobas were placed at 2,500,000 bu, the largest day's business in sometime past. Futures here were taken by commission houses and the local element and closed with net gains of 1⅜@1½c. Winnipeg was 1⅜@1¾c higher.

The corn market was rather dull, but closed ⅛@¼c higher while oats were ½c higher. Rye was unchanged to ⅜c lower.

While wheat sold at the lowest prices since July 11 during the last week the inside figures were not maintained, and at the last net gains were 1⅜@2¼c higher as compared with the previous week, with corn 1½@1¾c higher. Oats unchanged to ¼c lower and rye ¼c higher to 1½c lower for the week. Provisions were unsettled, lard being 10@27½c higher; ribs, unchanged and bellies, 25c higher to 20c lower for the week.

Export Demand Improves.

A gradual betterment in the foreign demand for cash wheat has been in evidence the last few days, and while the actual sales have not been large, some progress had been made in cleaning up the distressed hard winters that have been pressing of sale, and offerings from Argentina are on a higher basis. Sales in all positions for the day were placed at over 3,000,000 bu, including hard winters, durums and a cargo to the continent from the Pacific coast, but the bulk of the business was in Manitobas.

October wheat in Buenos Aires has gained sharply on Chicago during the past few days, and finished at $1.18¾, up 2⅝c for the day, and 9¼c higher than the opening on Monday, and the change in the situation in the southern hemisphere has affected the Liverpool as well as the local market. Liverpool closed 1¾@1⅝d higher with some buying of futures by a house that frequently acts for the Canadian pool. The trade looks for little change to be shown in the domestic visible supply statement on Monday. Primary arrivals during the past week were less than half of those of the same period last year.

Corn Trade Limited.

While the corn market averaged slightly higher there was little of interest to the trading, with the bulk of the business of a local character. The weekly forecast indicated generally fair with temperatures above the seasonal normal, which will be very favorable for conditioning the crop. The government will issue its October estimate on Wednesday, and the trade expects it to show little change from the 2,456,000,000 bu indicated a month ago. Country offerings of old grain to arrive were relatively small, the spot basis steady to firm. Buenos Aires finished unchanged to ½c higher.

CASH-GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for cash wheat was the largest in weeks, with early sales estimated at 800,000 bu hard winters, durums and Manitobas, but late in the day a Winnipeg message estimated that sales of Manitobas had been around 2,500,000 bu. Local handlers sold 110,000 bu corn, and 52,000 bu oats to the domestic trade. Purchases to arrive were 59,000 bu corn and 10,000 bu oats.

Cash wheat was again in fair demand in the Chicago sample market and the basis was firm at 2@3c under December for No. 2 red with No. 2 hard 4@4½c under and No. 1 northern, 3@4c under the future. Cash corn basis was steady to ½c higher with No. 2 mixed 2½@2¾c over; yellow, 2¾@3c over and white, 4@4½c over the December with No. 3 grades, 1¾@2½c over. Cash oats basis gained ⅛@½c with No. 2 white, 2¾@3½c under, and No. 3 white, 4@5½c under December.

PROVISIONS SOLD OUT

"The provision market looks pretty well sold out an dthe undertone is firm," says L. H. Freeman of Rumsey & Co. "Still, if we are to expect any further material advance at this time it must come from the actual product rather than any marked increasing speculative interest. At around present levels and the best lard months just ahead, it seems logical to expect a sharp depletion in stocks for the next sixty days. A bullish in general is taken of the provision situation."

It is said that the hog situation is working more in favor of holders of lard. Trading was limited yesterday in the absence of light offerings but in the absence of light offerings but in the absence of light offerings but

EFFICIENT OIL BURNER RELIEVES FAMILY OF TOIL

Reduces Hazard of Fire, Expert Asserts.

(Next week will appear an article on winter windows, or storm sash, which give valuable protection to the home.)

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders' Editor.]

Many people who are still burning coal in their home, firing their own furnaces and laboriously removing the ashes often remark when the question of oil heat comes up:

"Well, oil burners are so new! When they become perfected——"

In answer to this one can say that while oil heat is not at the end of its development—and what mechanical achievement any more than what human being has yet reached that stage of perfection when further development is impossible—oil heat has passed far from the stage of the experimental to a period of assured and satisfactory service. There is no longer any reason why a home owner should not avail himself of the many advantages of this automatic heat while waiting for even more wonderful improvements which may come in the next decade.

It is sufficient to say that the oil burner of today has scarcely anything more in common with the oil burner of a decade ago than its name, and that there will be before long oil burners in a million homes in this country affording satisfaction and joy.

Satisfactory Installation.

Oil heating equipment dealers are experts in their line at the present time. When one buys an oil burner of recognized and standard worth one is assured that the installation will be as satisfactory as the burner—a very important factor in an oil burner's success—and that experienced men will be on call to remedy any slight difficulties which may arise.

No one pretends that an oil burner performs miracles. If a home owner is dissatisfied with his heating plant he had better have it changed so that he is satisfied with it. No oil burner can be a panacea for all the ills a heating plant may fall heir to.

For instance, if there is a room without adequate register or radiator surfaces, the oil burner cannot remedy that defect. Nor can an oil burner placed where a coal grate has been correct the difficulties of heating transmission in a heating plant where there is inadequate circulation of hot water or steam or warm air.

Has Automatic Control.

As oil burner does accomplish marvels, however, in many ways, but these are attained through the medium of an ordinary heating plant which gives a correct and proper amount of heat.

One of its big advantages is its automatic operation. These controls are the brains of the system, starting when heat is needed and giving it. These controls, furthermore, act as watchman to see that the burner's performance is perfect and operating as they do on the side of safety they see that the burner goes out if anything goes wrong.

Besides starting up the fire automatically in the morning the thermostat maintains an even temperature whenever heat is needed during the year, eliminating much danger of colds and illnesses of various sorts.

There is safety in oil as a fuel as far as fire is concerned when one uses a burner listed as standard by the underwriters' laboratories. It can be depended upon that the oil burner has been designed with this vital point in mind. Oil is contained in metal tanks and flows through tight metal lines to oil burning equipment located inside the boiler.

Reduce Fire Hazard.

Indeed, quoting John G. Gamber, past president of the National State Fire Marshals' association, an authority on fire prevention:

"Fully automatic burners actually reduce the fire hazard when compared with coal. No soot or sparks are formed. This eliminates all roof and chimney fires, which alone are responsible for more than 75 per cent of all dwelling fires. Also the handling of hot ashes in wooded receptacles is unnecessary."

Besides these advantages may be mentioned the possible utilization of basement space for recreation and study purposes or work and pleasure use. Many playrooms occupy the space once occupied by coal bins, and even though the coal bins may be used for nothing more than extra storage space, the remainder of the basements through their cleanliness and freedom from coal dirt and ash dust are easily made livable and enjoyable.

Reduces Amount of Dirt.

This reduction of dirt not only in the basement but throughout the entire home makes a strong appeal to the woman in the home. Another factor which appeals to her is the labor saved in the firing of the furnace. A heating plant, coal fueled, takes time to run no matter how modern and efficient it may be.

Naturally the man in the home does the most laborious part of the work, the shaking down of the grates in the morning, the removal of ashes, the filling up of the firepot with coal and again in the evening the banking of the firepot for the long night ahead. There still remains, however, especially in cold weather when the furnace must be run to capacity, work for the woman to do. It has been estimated by statistic lovers that an average of an hour a day is expended by one or more persons in a household on the running of a furnace in cold weather.

Wide Price Range.

This seems a conservative estimate when oil heat is installed no time is spent at all.

There is a wide variation in the price of oil burners, the cost ranging from considerably under $500 to more than $1,000. The cost depends upon the size of the burner and the type, as well as on what sort of installation is made. For instance, one can have a small tank in the basement for much less money than one can buy a large storage tank and have it buried.

As for the cost of operation, no fixed forecast can be made. In some instances it runs a little higher than coal. Again it costs approximately the same and occasionally there are instances where a house can be heated with oil for less than coal. One factor which makes for economy in oil heat is the fact that it is automatic and that the thermostat never allows the house to become overheated, thus wasting fuel.

ATTRACTIVE HIGHLAND PARK HOME

A snow scene showing the home of G. F. Mehren, 975 Ridgewood drive, Highland Park, Ill. This is a "Flagg" house, though the entire principle of the Flagg is not carried out due to atmospheric conditions being different in Illinois than in California. There is no basement and the furnace is fifteen inches below the living room with laundry adjacent to the kitchen.

The exterior is of various hues of rubble stone, reds, purples, grays and creams, laid with concrete and tuck pointed. Roof is of asbestos slate. In the living room is a large fireplace of the same stone as the exterior, with hearth raised 12 inches above the floor level and the bronze hood hanging over the fireplace hand hammered.

The lot is 75x265 and the house can be built for between $30,000 and $35,000.

PAINT UP THE OLD MAIL BOX AND MAKE BRIGHTER ENTRANCE

Every one knows how dignified and handsome is our modern built in mail box with its small visible lapel finished to harmonize with the door woodwork or the entrance lamp of wrought iron or the door knocker of bronze.

But while not everyone possesses this built in feature everyone can combine beauty and utility by painting up the old mail box so that it does its bit valiantly and well towards the beautifying of the whole.

Take a small brush—the same type of brush you would use on your kitchen chairs for example if you were planning to give them a coat of paint.

A black background is always effective for motifs that are vivid, whether that motif is floral or nautical. Leaves and vines and flowers are attractive. Or a ship or aeroplane motif appropriately suggests the distance and the ways that letters come. Indeed the background may be any color, or the motif almost any pattern—so long as the color harmonizes with the house and the design brightens up the box.

BOILER AND TWO TUBS FORM NEW LAUNDRY UNIT

A new and interesting laundry unit is on the market. It is made up of a center post to which a boiler and two tubs are mounted on individual platforms. These platforms are fastened to a rotating collar on the post so that they turn a complete circle and either tub or boiler may be swung directly over a gas burner. These tubs swing to the left or the right, so that one can bring the two tubs together or the boiler and either tub.

There is also above the platforms a 13 inch swinging faucet with mixing chamber for regulating the temperature of the water. The water can be sent into either tub or the boiler or into a washing machine used with the equipment.

Soap tray and rip board are also provided and the tubs and boiler of heavy copper are nickel plated inside and attractively lacquered outside.

When Building Is Time to Waterproof Basement

With the rapidly increasing use of basement space for recreation purposes it is well to remember—in building that "new" house in the spring—that it is much easier and less expensive to make a basement water tight in the beginning than to repair it afterwards.

IF YOU'RE IN DOUBT AS TO HOW TO FINISH YOUR WALLS, READ ON

Are you in doubt as to how to finish your walls? In modern residences we find them generally treated in one of four ways. You may cover a wall with wall paper; you can paint on a flat surface; you can employ tinted plaster or you can use any of the various textures developed to their ultimate degree of crude hand finished effects in the early English styles and rough heavy effects in the Mediterranean styles.

These plastic wall finishes easily work into any desired texture effect. One can simulate the surface of Caen stone or Travertine marble. Indeed one can have both in texture and color effect any artistic finish to fit in with one's decorative scheme.

Answers to Questions on Home Owning

Certified Heating.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What is meant by certified heating? We are going to have a hot water plant installed. We live on the south side of Chicago. Shall I ask for this certified heating?

MRS. B.

Answer — Certified heating is the name for heating installed according to specifications prepared by the Heating and Piping Contractors National Association. Certified Heating is in other words the name for a product which comforms to an iron bound standard of excellence. I should certainly have a contractor who would give me a bid on Certified Heating. You will know that you have an excellent heating plant conforming to certain definite engineering requirements, and that if it is in any way faulty the local association of heating and piping contractors will remedy the defects without charge. After your plant is installed the contractor will place a metal plate on the boiler stating that the heating plant conforms to Certified Heating standards and give you a certificate. This is a rather "long" answer to your letter, but the subject deserves it.

Furnace Is Smoky.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: My furnace smokes a lot these days when I start a fire. It doesn't seem to draw well and is sluggish and slow. I am always afraid of getting huge puffs of smoke in my face. Are there any small ways of remedying this? I don't want to go to the expense of having the furnace overhauled.

MRS. G.

Ans.: Try pouring a cupful of dry salt on the center of your fuel bed. Your furnace may have what is called soot poisoning or congestion of its breathing apparatus. Or when your fire is burning well sprinkle some scrap zinc on the fuel bed. You can get this from any hardware store. While doing this see that you give your heater plenty of draft. If this does not remedy matters I would advise having the furnace cleaned out by the suction cleaner method. In this way the accumulation of dust, dirt, and soot is removed.

About Ceilings, Roofs and Floors.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: There are several points I am uncertain about and wish that you would settle them for me. 1. What is the average ceiling height on first and second floors in a comparatively small house? 2. Are asphalt shingles durable as a roofing, and how do they compare in cost with asbestos shingles and ordinary stained shingles? 3. Should a plank floor be secured to a subfloor? 4. Can I count on plank floors staying in style?

MRS. K.

Answer—1. The average ceiling height of a first floor is 8 feet 6 inches and of a second floor 8 feet. 2. Asphalt shingles are an excellent roofing. Get comparative costs from your local dealer. 3. Yes. 4. Yes.

* *

Gas Water Heater Preferred.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: What do you think of the small coal or wood stoves in the basement for heating water? My husband wants me to buy one, but I would much rather have a gas water heater.

G. D.

Answer: That seems to be a matter to be decided on the basis of cost. If you can afford a gas water heater it is much to be preferred. The small coal or wood stove, while economical, means that you have all the trouble of running an extra fire summer and winter to heat your water.

Home Buying a Good Investment.

Dear Mrs. Bargelt: We have been hearing a lot of talk about how there are many more profitable ways of investing money than in the purchase of a home. How much per cent can I expect to make on my investment? We never have been able to save much money and it seems to me that if we bought a home we would at least have that much to the good in a few years.

ELINOR S.

Answer: You are perfectly right. In buying a home you don't get something for nothing nor get a 100 per cent dividend out of your investment. You don't even in the last analysis escape paying rent—excepting that you make yourself the landlord. But if as a home owner you force yourself to systematic saving and make from 6 to 8 per cent on your investment at the end of a few years you have the satisfaction not only of home ownership but also an asset on which in an emergency you can borrow a substantial sum. Of course you MIGHT have that money invested at interest instead and AGAIN you might not. But you have the home and then too, if one buys where property values can be expected to rise naturally—by this I do not mean any "boom"—you can sell for a profit.

SLEEPING PORCH INCREASES INDOOR SPACE OF THE HOUSE

While it goes without saying that a sleeping porch planned before a house is built is preferable, in order that one may have a properly interrelated whole, one can nevertheless add a very presentable sleeping porch to a house at some later time.

It often happens that as a family increases in size a house seems to grow increasingly smaller and an adequate sleeping porch, besides giving ample opportunity for fresh air and health, also increases indoor space.

A sleeping porch open on three sides offers a maximum amount of light and air. Screens in summer and windows in winter convert it into an extra room for all seasons of the year. And while in summer the lure of the sleeping porch is strongest it is in winter that one may need it most.

Consideration should be given to the location of the sleeping porch with respect to the sun. Some people prefer a west exposure, as they can sleep without disturbance from the sun's rays in the morning. Others prefer an east exposure just because they want those same sun rays in the early morning aslant their bed.

The south exposure is probably the most popular, but it is not always possible to build a sleeping porch on the south side of the house.

It is a big comfort to have a sleeping porch connect with a small dressing room. Sleeping porches can be awfully cold places in midwinter—pleasant to sleep on if one is adequately covered and protected, but good places to get away from as soon as one leaves the bed. The small dressing room adjacent to the sleeping porch can be comfortably warm at rising time.

CEDAR MIXTURE WHICH PROTECTS AGAINST MOTHS

Applied in Plastic Form on Closet Walls.

BY HOMER GRANT.

Dark and unprotected clothes closets are in many instances fertile breeding places for the ever destructive moth United States government statistics show that millions of dollars of crops and clothes are annually destroyed by these same moths.

A new method of closet protection against these destroyers is now possible for the home owner at small cost.

This is a cedar in plastic form—a blend especially prepared of genuine red cedar wood, cedar oils and plastic ingredients. Wherever one wants a cedar closet one can apply a mixture of this prepared cedar in plastic form and water and apply with an ordinary calcimine brush on new or old walls, walls which are painted or unpainted.

There is no wood to cut into pieces or to fit. One applies this almost as one applies a plastic paint, and one has the fragrance of a cedar closet together with its protection for furs, clothing and other similar household furnishings.

Cost Is Reasonable.

This is a new way of closet decoration and at the same time clothes protection.

Cedar has for years been recognized as a preservative, with cedar closet linings employed against the ravages of the moth. No home owner but would enjoy cedar closets in his home. But not every home owner can afford them.

This cedar in plastic form, however, is available at a cost so reasonable as to be possible in almost any home. It is easily applied either by the home owner or by experts.

This cedar comes packed in 10 and 25 pound cartons and it will cover from two to four square feet of wall surface per pound, depending upon the smoothness of the surface to be covered and the thickness to which the material is applied.

It is ready for application after it has been mixed with the correct proportion of clean water—3 parts of the plastic cedar to one part water.

Ordinary Brush Is Used.

An ordinary calcimine brush is then used, the brush scooped into the plastic material so as to pick up a good quantity and then brushed vertically, leaving one-sixteenth of an inch to one-eighth of an inch of material on the wall. The surface is easily smoothed out by vigorous strokes in all directions.

If one wishes a textured surface for the finish one can accomplish this by allowing the brush marks to remain. If a very smooth surface is desired, tool marks may be removed partially or entirely by stroking the wall surface with a celluloid triangle or a smooth, flexible piece of tin.

As simple as that! This plastic cedar, available now to home owners, is also being applied in the closets of apartment buildings and hotels.

FRANK N. WOOD.

On the resignation of Frank N. Wood as real estate editor of THE TRIBUNE, the Chicago real estate board last week passed resolutions expressing the esteem of the members for him. Mr. Wood was real estate editor for many years during which time he made a wide circle of friends. He resigned an account of ill health.

Here's a new angle to the flat shortage situation. People unable to rent apartments are buying them. According to Harrison & Ready all of the two and three flat buildings sold by them are now being sought for homes. "Many people on finding they can't lease an apartment in the neighborhood wanted," they comment, "decide to purchase a building. There are more buyers on hand than there are available flat buildings."

The Chicago Sinai congregation is making rapid progress with its plan for the construction of a beautiful temple, together with auxiliary buildings, on a site at the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and 46th street. The site, which fronts 294 feet on Grand and 150 feet on 46th street, was purchased from Charles L. Hadley, Mrs. Augustus G. Southark, and Charles Thompson for $80,000. Architect Alfred S. Alschuler is now drawing plans for a temple to cost $350,000. Moses E. Greenebaum is president of the temple.

I. K. and A. B. Pond have completed plans for the construction of a house to be built by Helen Culver in Lake Forest at a cost of $25,000. Miss Culver purchased the McLellan farm of forty acres and is now improving it.

Samuel A. Treat, architect, reports that building operations have commenced on two new buildings for the Western Electric company's plant. They will be at the northeast corner of Harrison and Jefferson streets. The building at the corner will have a frontage of 51 feet on Jefferson and 176 feet on Harrison. At the eastern end of this building connection will be made through a six story structure, now standing, with a vacant lot. The vacant will be improved with a foundry building. Mr. Treat has prepared plans for a nine story building to cover the lot now occupied by the Pitkin Paint company in Clinton street.

REALTY MARKET IN GOOD SHAPE, BUILDER ASSERTS

Optimism regarding the present condition of the Chicago real estate market is expressed in remarks made by Robert Volk, realty man. Mr. Volk said in part:

"Some operators have been heard lately to complain that their business was poor. Some bankers say they are not seeking accounts of real estate dealers. Perhaps the conditions as we see them may interest such operators and bankers.

"We build and sell one family homes. At no time during our career have we met with such favorable results. We are carrying a larger pay roll than usual and building faster than ever. All completed houses and eighty-five per cent of those under construction are sold and we are taking orders for others to be built. It is the first time in fifteen years that we have carried no houses in inventory and are working to catch up to unfilled orders.

"First mortgages are readily obtainable at 50 per cent to 60 per cent and construction seconds at 75 per cent of the valuation. Collections continue very good. An analysis of our installment accounts shows that only one of our several hundred buyers is subject to legal action."

THREE BROTHERS BY THREE ROUTES GAIN SUCCESS

Ebys Show Dairying Is Individualistic.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Three brothers can become enterprising and successful farmers, yet remain individualistic in their methods; they can even be dairymen and still find expression for their personal preference in this business of food production.

Yet the fact that the three Eby brothers in Elkhart county, Indiana, have developed profitable dairying each in his own way while living in the same community served to pique my curiosity to visit them the other day. Purdue university university dairy leaders had told me about them. Having seen their farms, their herds, and talked with their families, I'm tempted to challenge the entire corn and dairy belt for another trio quite the same.

Started 18 Years Ago.

Mervin Eby, whose Lookwell farm is all its name denotes, started eighteen years ago to build his present herd of pure bred Guernseys. His first cows were bought from an Indiana cousin and brought to the 120 acre farm.

Other farmers in the neighborhood were interested in this breed of brown and white producers of such rich appearing milk. Mervin led the way, and soon the county began to draw attention from over the state. Through a neighborhood association, meeting monthly at Goshen, Elkhart county, Guernseys became leaders in Indiana cow testing association records.

The Lookwell herd of twenty-seven cows, bred and cared for as almost any good farmer in the middle west might do, has been built up from a nucleus of two cows kept by Mr. Eby after his sale in 1919. Housed in a neat, well arranged barn, they are supplying a special Guernsey milk that has found a ready market in the city near by.

Mrs. Eby, mother of three girls and three boys, takes measurable pride in showing visitors the neat little milkhouse, in which the milk is cooled, bottled, and held ready for delivery. With everything having to do with the Lookwell herd, from feeding and milking to the placing of caps on the bottles, mechanically done, the early day drudgeries of the milk farmer seem to be slipping away.

Brothers Choose Other Types.

The other two brothers, as already intimated, chose cattle widely different in color and habits. One, Ira, living near Mervin, has an outstanding herd of Ayrshires, the spotted white and tan or brown cattle with the graceful horns. The third brother, living several miles away, chose Holsteins, in common with a majority of the dairy farmers in Chicagoland.

Having just finished silo filling, these dairymen were still busy plowing and seeding wheat. They try to raise most of the roughage and some of the concentrated feed needed to maintain a fairly steady winter milk production on their own farms. Clover, some alfalfa, and soy beans are grown for hay. Most of the corn is used for silage—some for grain. Commercial dairy feeds are used the year around to balance the ration, even when the cows are on good summer pasture.

Marketing Methods.

While all three Eby brothers use modern methods of feeding and breeding good cattle, their marketing methods have differed as did their choice of breeds. Seeing the electric milking and refrigerating equipment on Mervin's farm, the need of careful handling of equipment in bottling and making individual deliveries to distant customers twice every day in the year, one realizes the personal attention, expensive equipment, and labor needed.

Perhaps that is why his brothers prefer to devote their entire attention to milk production, selling their herds' output wholesale to a single buyer.

Butter and Cheese Makers to Meet at Chippewa Falls

Wisconsin butter makers will meet at Chippewa Falls Oct. 8-10, according to an announcement made by H. C. Larsen, secretary of the state association. Methods of manufacturing and marketing dairy butter will be discussed.

Cheese makers of the state will hold their meeting in connection with the annual sessions of the American Cheese Makers' association, also in Chippewa Falls, Oct. 23 and 24, Secretary R. H. Sample of Osceola announces.

POULTRY ILLS PREVENTED BY CLEAN YARD

Simple methods of sanitation seem to be the best measures in preventing worms and other poultry diseases, according to a report Dr. Robert Graham and E. C. McCulloch of the University of Illinois have just issued.

Clean houses, clean feed, pure water, clean ground as provided by the double yarding system, and the placing of young chicks on new ground are the recommendations of these specialists. During the last five years approximately 60 per cent of the mature fowls sent to the College of Agriculture at Urbana for diagnosis have shown either round worm or tape worm infestation.

"Worms in the chickens' intestines are traceable to premises contaminated with worm eggs," says the circular. "The premises become contaminated through failure to rotate chicken yards, or as a result of allowing poultry a free range. On many farms where serious worm infestation has been encountered it is not uncommon to find that chickens have had access to the barnyard for a quarter of a century or more."

There is a limit to the use of medicines in controlling worm infestations, the college authorities advise, pointing out that if medicinal remedies seem advisable they should be used as prescribed by a local veterinarian.

Electricity—His Hired Hand

Irvin Eby, dairy farmer near Wakarusa, Elkhart county, Indiana, has hired a new "hand"—quick, dependable, and one that never has to be called out of bed the second time. Mr. Eby is here shown using the portable electric drill in his workshop, one of the many jobs he expects of his new employe.

CORN YIELDS SEVENTY-FIVE BY-PRODUCTS

Seventy-five separate and distinct byproducts made from corn are listed by James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, in assuring Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, that manufacturers will gladly coöperate with farmers in efforts to increase market outlets for corn.

From corn kernels come these products:

Corn syrup, cornstarch, hominy grits, hominy, corn flour, corn sugar, dextrine, corn bran, synthetic ammonia, corn oil cake, breakfast food products, wood alcohol, acetone, menthanol cornmeal, and corn oil.

From cornstalks the following byproducts can be made: Viocene [a wood gum], xylose [an unfermented wood sugar], cellulose nitrate, cellulith, rayon [artificial silk], wall board, pulp board, paper, fiber, alpha cellulose, and pyroxylin varnish.

From corncobs can be secured: Acetic acid, chloroform, iodoform, alcohol, anesthetics, antiseptics, pipes, buttons, charcoal, washboards, curing for concrete floors, diabetic food dyes, furfurol, fire lighter, glue, hard rubber substitute, incense, menthanol, maple flavor, motor fuel, oxalic acid, pitch, plastics, punk, shampoo, rosin, tar, and sweeping compound.

Since many members of the manufacturers' association are in position to utilize many of these corn byproducts, Mr. Donnelly is furnishing the complete list, as shown above, to every member, he told Mr. Smith recently.

FRANK O. LOWDEN WILL ADDRESS FARM LEADERS

Rural community programs and their importance in better country life will receive the attention of farm leaders at the twelfth annual meeting of the American Country Life association on the Iowa State college campus, Ames, Oct. 17 to 20. The sessions will be opened by the Hon. John Hammill, governor of Iowa, followed by a response from Dr. Henry C. Taylor, chairman of the association executive committee, and the presidential address by the Hon. Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois.

FRANK O. LOWDEN. [Keasburrer Photo.]

Five farm women of Iowa will be honored Thursday evening with Mrs. Charles A. Sewell, home and community director of the American Farm Bureau federation, giving the address. The Friday morning meeting, with Gov. Lowden presiding, will be devoted to rural community programs. In the afternoon, ten sectional meetings led by prominent rural life authorities, will be held. The Henry C. Wallace memorial presentation is also to be made at this time.

AGRICULTURAL QUESTIONS

WINTERING FLOWERS.

Where and how can cannas be stored successfully over winter? Where can we get help in planning our lawn, location of flowers and shrubs? Will appreciate any information you will give to these questions. L. I. V.

REPLY.

As soon as frost wilts down the canna tops, cut them off down to about 6 inches above the ground. With as much soil as will adhere clinging to the roots [or rhizomes, as they are called], store them in a dry, cool place with just enough moisture in the soil to keep them plump. Too much will cause rotting, too little will cause them to dry up. Frank Ridgeway's Tribune book "Flower Gardening" will give help of real value in planning your lawn, location of flowers, etc. Price 15 cents—by mail 18 cents.

STARTING TO FARM.

The writer has bought a farm and wants to go into the dairy business. Any information you can give about producing high quality milk will be greatly appreciated. Where may we obtain bulletins on that subject?

G. W. F.

REPLY.

Little things well done at the proper time will go further toward producing high quality milk than all the beautiful barns and fancy equipment that the dairyman can buy, judging from a list of pointers just published by the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, in a new circular, "Producing High Quality Milk." You should write for a copy.

Demand for milk of high quality is steadily increasing and the dairyman who learns how to produce it is certain to profit, according to M. J. Prucha, chief in dairy bacteriology, and author of the new publication. All there is to the production of high quality milk is: [1] clean barns, clean milk houses, clean milker, and clean and healthy cows; [2] proper washing and effective sterilization of all utensils, and [3] prompt cooling of the milk to 60 degrees Fahrenheit or lower and keeping it at that temperature until delivered.

Bacteria are the cause of deterioration in milk and hence must be controlled if high grade milk is to be produced. They must be kept out of the milk so far as possible and then those that do get in must be kept from multiplying. Bacteria and dirt are not the same thing, but dirt usually harbors large numbers of bacteria, especially the kind of dirt that is found on the cow's coat.

As dairy utensils are handled today, they are by far the most important source of bacteria in milk. Dirty cows add many bacteria, dirty barns will add some more, but these additions are small in comparison with what comes from the utensils. Every utensil that has a stale smell, no matter how well it was once cleaned and sterilized, may add millions of bacteria.

There is one good rule to follow: Wash the utensils as soon as possible after they are emptied. They also should be sterilized in some way. Chemical sterilization offers dairymen a very practical method of treating utensils, since on most dairy farms steam is not available and even hot water is hard to get in sufficient amounts.

Different kinds of chemical sterilizers, the drying of utensils in the air and sun, the importance of rinsing the utensils just before using, proper care of milking machines and the necessity of cooling milk quickly and thoroughly are among other points discussed in the circular. It is No. 341 and may be obtained upon request to the college at Urbana.

HOME MADE ICE WELLS SOLVE THE RURAL PROBLEMS

Water Frozen in Hole Acts as Icebox.

Suburbanites and rural householders who find refrigeration a problem may find the newly discussed ice well refrigerator one solution, at least from the economy standpoint.

It consists primarily of a pit in the ground, in which a solid cake of ice has been formed by running a small quantity of water into the hole daily during freezing weather. It has been patterned after plans developed by Canadian authorities, and has been satisfactorily used by the United States department of agriculture on their dairy field station at Mandan, N. D., in coöperation with the state college there.

On a well drained spot near the milk house and convenient to the well, a pit was dug 8 feet square and 9½ feet deep. The sides were boarded up with cheap lumber and the bottom covered to a depth of 1½ feet with coarse gravel to insure good drainage. A small house was erected over the pit. The floor was of two thicknesses of planking with building paper between the layers, and it was built in sections to permit easy removal during freezing.

Windows in the house provided air circulation in the winter, but were closed during the summer. A wooden rack or basket suspended from a pulley overhead served for raising and lowering the cans of cream and other food in storage.

Freezing was started in January. A small quantity of water, two to four gallons, was run into the pit each day. By the end of February there was a solid cake of ice 8 feet square and 6½ feet deep. When freezing weather was over, the house was closed tightly and the floor replaced.

Storage of cream was started May 25. The ice lasted through the summer, and Sept. 1, after a storage period of 98 days, there was still a block of ice 68 inches square and 22 inches deep, or 58 cubic feet of the 416 cubic feet in the original block. At the same rate of melting the ice will last until well into October.

Meat, fruit and vegetables as well as milk and cream were stored in the pit, and kept perfectly. No offensive odors were detected at any time during the summer in the well or in the stored products. These results obtained at Mandan represent only one season's trial, and the work will be continued with some variations.

Points suggested for consideration in building an ice well are the selection of a well drained site and provision of proper drainage so the ice water can run away from the bottom of the pit. The pit should be located as near the milk house as possible and near the well for water supply. The floor of the house should be tight so the air circulation can be reduced to a minimum during summer months. The cost of an ice well will vary with conditions, but by using home labor and the cheaper grades of lumber the cost will be small.

Yellow Corn Often Best for Pig Feed

Many feeders prefer yellow corn rather than white corn for feeding fall pigs.

When pigs are fed only corn and tankage or corn and skimmed milk, better results are secured when yellow corn is fed. Yellow corn is rich in vitamins which white corn lacks. When pigs are on good pasture the color of the corn makes little difference.

The deficiency of white corn can be supplied by feeding fine stemmed, leafy alfalfa hay. For every 100 pounds of white corn fed the pigs should consume five pounds of alfalfa hay.

DAIRYMEN TO HOLD FIELD DAY AT ROCK RIVER

A feature of the Illinois Holstein association field day at Rock River farms, Byron, Ill., Oct. 25, will be the address by C. V. Gregory, editor of Prairie Farmer, on the "Importance of Dairying and Dairy Cattle Raising in Illinois."

The program will be further enhanced by the appearance of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, owner of Rock River farms; W. S. Monscrip, famous Holstein breeder and judge; Dr. Robert Graham, chief pathologist of the Illinois experiment station, according to James B. Ball, state representative of the association.

All dairymen and friends of the dairy industry are invited to attend, bringing picnic lunches for this Holstein day in the beautiful Rock River valley, ten miles south of Rockford. Rock River farms, hosts to the field day, are making elaborate preparations for the comfort of the crowd. Shelter will be provided against cold and rain. The program will start with a pudging contest for 4-H Dairy Calf club members at 10 a. m., and will be over by 3:30 in the afternoon.

YELLOW TO OPEN BIG CAB GARAGE ON WEST ADAMS

Called World's Largest; To House 600 Cars.

Finishing touches are being put to the nation's largest taxicab garage, the three story and basement structure at 731 West Adams street, taken over by the Chicago Yellow Cab company from the Parmelee company and remodeled by the former to meet its requirements. When ready for operation the garage will be able to handle an operating unit of 600 cabs, according to Thomas B. Hogan, vice president and general manager of the Chicago Yellow Cab company.

The Yellow Cab company acquired the long term leasehold formerly held on the property by the Parmelee company. The Parmelee company formerly used the building for offices, garage, and storage warehouse. It has moved to Monroe street and Racine avenue.

Will Abandon 2 Units.

Upon taking over the new garage the Yellow Cab company will abandon its smaller units located at Tenth street and Wabash avenue and at Twelfth street and Morgan street. The new structure will have 157,000 square feet of floor space available for cab storage and service needs.

The Adams street garage was taken because of its proximity to the downtown district. At business peaks large fleets of cabs can be dispatched to places where required on short notice. Further, it is expected that the time required for the shifting of crews can be cut from two hours to about a half hour. During the shifting period cabs are of necessity out of public service, though on the street.

Entrance on 2 Streets.

The building taken by the cab firm fronts 300 feet on Adams, just west of Des Plaines street, and extends through the block to Quincy street, giving entry and exit on two thoroughfares. About $150,000 was spent in remodeling it. Approximately 1,200 drivers will work out of the Adams street garage. The Yellow Cab company operates 2,500 cars and has nine other garages in Chicago and Evanston, with a major repair plant.

WALLACH BROS. TO TRY OUT FRENCH PLAN IN CHICAGO

Wallach Bros., Inc., general contractors and builders, yesterday announced their entrance into the investment field, originating real estate securities designed on the French plan, a successful New York idea. The new undertaking is part of a program of expansion which already includes the development of insurance and management.

The French plan of investment is characterized by the issuance of preferred stock subordinate only to a mortgage of approximately 50 per cent of the value of the land and building, the preferred stock and mortgage together representing the actual cost of the project. With his purchase of preferred stock, the investor receives a like number of shares of common stock as a bonus. All the proceeds from the building over and above the carrying charges are used for the retirement of the preferred stock. When it is retired the investor retains his common stock as a permanent investment.

One-half of the common stock is given out as bonuses, while the other half is retained by Wallach Bros. in payment for creating the security and for whatever moneys they may advance or their guarantee of completion of the building project.

"During the last seven years our firm has built more than sixty apartment houses in Chicago," said Nathan F. Wallach. "We have had to sell many of them in order to keep our capital free for further building operations. Under the French plan we will continue to hold an interest in all the buildings we erect."

DETROIT GROWS AIR MINDED IN ITS BUILDING

Skyscrapers Get Piped Ozone.

BY AL CHASE.

[Real Estate Editor.]

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 5.—This town of motors, millionaires and multi-storied towers is growing "air minded" in a brand new way. For the first time in American construction history, we believe, office buildings here are being supplied with the luxury, comfort, health and efficiency of fresh pure air, cooled in summer and warmed in winter. In other words, "air conditioning," common enough in some of Chicago's biggest cinemas and dance halls and in some hotel dining rooms and lobbies, is in successful operation in two of Detroit's most modern office buildings, is being operated in Detroit's largest department store and is contemplated for its newest club building and other downtown towers.

Eighteen floors of the forty story, ornamental modernistic Union Trust building have locked windows, behind which the office men and women breathe cooler air in summer and purer air in winter and purer atmosphere the year round than do office dwellers in nearby structures who rank up windows on hot days and who keep everything closed in chilly weather and breathe vitiated air as a result.

Two basements and the first sixteen floors of the Union Trust building are supplied conditioned air, kept at the same temperature the year round. In the next block to the north another of Detroit's newest and most imposing towers, the forty-seven story Penobscot building, is supplying the first five floors with conditioned air.

Makes for Contentment.

And the men and women working in the quiet breathable atmosphere of the two huge structures not only are more contented and do better work, but they have less sickness the year around than do people employed in the ordinary buildings. This is on the authority of bank officials and the building superintendents and managers.

In the Penobscot building the five floors which are air conditioned are entirely used by the Guardian group of banks. In the Union Trust building the bank uses fifteen of the sixteen air conditioned above ground floors and the sixteenth is occupied by general tenants.

And the general tenants on the sixteenth floor are enthusiastic over "air conditioning." That seems to answer the argument of the renting agent of one big Detroit office building that air conditioning might be successful with a large organization like a bank, where an employé who objected to the temperature maintained would be told to look for another job, but that it would never work with private firms. He declared that if an attorney, for instance, liked his office at 58 in winter and couldn't get it, he'd break his lease or move as soon as possible.

He also pointed out that the fresh air fan who likes to work even in the zero months with the office mercury hovering around the sixty point would rise up in wrath and depart for new quarters if the building management told him he'd have to breathe his air at an official temperature of 70 degrees the year round.

Routs Old Man Humidity.

Edward Y. Dow, superintendent of the Union Trust building, who hails from Glasgow and who is just leaving for another trip back to his birthplace, chuckled when told this comment.

"Tis not so," he said. "The individual tenant is not going to move unless he's uncomfortable, is he? And the tenant who works in an air conditioned office is comfortable, no matter what his own personal inclinations may be for either high or low temperatures, for here's where Old Man Humidity figures in the situation.

"Humidity is like Demon Rum in the liquor controversy, he's responsible for everything that's bad. When Old Man Humidity steps on the stage, no matter what the temperature is, the audience begins to wilt.

"Air conditioning knocks Old Man Humidity out of the picture. And with the old gentleman gone the office which has an even temperature, cooler than the outside air in summer and of course warmer in winter, is going to be a comfortable place to work in. And, to repeat, if it's comfortable, both the high temperature fan and the fresh air advocate are going to be satisfied."

Windows Kept Locked.

The windows are kept locked because, according to Mr. Dow, one open casement will completely demoralize a ventilating system. The building tenants on the sixteen floors where conditioned air circulates have learned this point and no one tries to open a window, says Mr. Dow.

A block away, the Penobscot building, towering forty-seven stories above Detroit's financial district, has air conditioning for its first five floors, used by the Guardian group of banks. According to Alfred Pomn, manager of the building, the bank has found that fresh pure air for its employés pays dividends in contentment, efficiency and good health.

The J. L. Hudson company, which has what it claims is the third largest department store in this country being surpassed only by Marshall Field & Co., which ranks first, and Macy, New York) has tried air conditioning in the basement, first floor and upstairs in its several dining rooms. The manager stated it is a big success.

The new Pontchartrain club, now going up at First and Bagley, is to have its air conditioned for the main floors. And, of course, the Detroit cinemas are air conditioned. Owners of several other proposed office buildings are considering the feasibility of air conditioning on a large scale.

Cleveland Has Unique Garage.

A trip around the tip of Lake Erie to the Ohio metropolis disclosed that Cleveland is not at all air minded. Not an office building could be found where air conditioning was used. But some novel and interesting garage projects were discovered, one of which probably is the first of its kind in the world.

This is the Bulkley building garage, part of which is snuggled under the main floor of the Allen theater, in the heart of Cleveland's Rialto, known as Playhouse square, where there are five amusement houses. Playgoers may drive their cars under the theater and walk up into the auditorium. Or they may drive up to the third floor of the garage, which is on a level with the auditorium of the Ohio theater, and walk into that playhouse.

Four floors of the garage are reached from the Bulkley building, which is on Euclid avenue. The cars drive in from the rear, considerably below the avenue level, passing by Cleveland's most beautiful building, the Hermits' club, a lovely, old English, half timbered structure, tucked away in an alley. It houses one of the city's most exclusive social organizations.

Used by Theatergoers.

According to E. A. Kane, manager of the Bulkley garage, there are two layers of concrete, one eleven inches thick and the other six inches, with three layers of sand, each two inches in thickness, separated by steel plates, as a fire ceiling between the garage and the Allen theater auditorium floor.

Mr. Kane states that during the theater season his garage is full every night with cars of playgoers. He also gets shoppers' cars during the day. The garage accommodates 650 machines.

Cleveland also has a combination office building and garage in the huge terminal group being erected by the Van Sweringen brothers from plans by Graham, Anderson, Probst & White of Chicago. The lower floors are used for cars and the upper floors of the eighteen story structure will contain offices.

LOCKER ROOMS FOR MILLIONAIRES

H. V. Von Holst designed the above structure—a $100,000 locker room which will provide space for 200 guests of the New Melody Farms Country club, the erstwhile estate of the late J. Ogden Armour, known as Mellody Farm. The locker house will be attached to the old Armour mansion by means of a pergola.

PURE AIR FOR MICHIGAN SKYSCRAPERS

On your left is the Union Trust building of Detroit, which is the world's first skyscraper, so it is claimed, which has installed air conditioning on a large scale. Sixteen floors above ground and two basements are cooled in summer and warmed in winter, with the temperature kept at 70 all the time and with the windows locked. The huge structure on the right is the Penobscot building, also in Detroit's financial district, where air conditioning is being carried out on a more modest scale. Five floors are supplied with pure air, with the windows kept closed the year 'round. More is told about these in the adjoining column.

Mr. Cranwell in turn sold his residence in Pasadena to Mr. Millington. Both houses were given at $65,000. Mr. Millington is moving to Pasadena and Mr. Cranwell is coming east. Lucille E. Larson of McGuire & Orr was broker.

Unit of Fifty to Rise at Arlington.

Announcement is made by I. Jay & Associates, 228 North La Salle street, that they are starting work on a first unit of homes of a development that will ultimately comprise 500 houses and involve an expenditure of $5,000,000. The first fifty homes will be located in Bert Laudermilk's Scarsdale development at Arlington Heights and the others will be located in places to be announced later.

Work is scheduled to start this week, with completion of the first house in thirty-seven days and the others following at the rate of one a day. Each house will occupy a lot 50x150 feet and there will be thirteen different designs—all of English feeling architecturally. Eventually there will be twenty-five designs. All houses will be two stories high.

According to Mr. Jay these homes will present a number of interesting features among which the first, perhaps, is the fireproof qualities they are to have. Each house will be built with the first and second floors of concrete on which will rest oak flooring. The foundation walls and footings will be of reinforced concrete and the roofs will be fireproof. Plastering will be on steel lath.

Mr. Jay states that there will be no load partitions of any kind, each floor and the roof being entirely self-supporting. Structural steel beams carried on columns running through the house will support the floor and wall construction for both the first and second floors. It is claimed that this type of construction will make for permanency and besides will have the additional merit of keeping out rodents and vermin.

Each house will have seven rooms and all will be equipped with the last word in conveniences, including contrivances that fold and roll away, ventilators, etc.

REALTY TRUST BUYS 4 PARCELS OF REAL ESTATE

Four real estate properties were purchased yesterday by the Security Investment Trust. The North Park apartment hotel at Ogden and Center, the Geneva terrace apartments at 2339-47 Geneva terrace, the Regal building at Market and Van Buren and the Sutherland apartment hotel at Drexel and 47th were bought.

According to J. Stanley Conroy, president of Conroy & Co., investment bankers, the total appraised value of the four properties is $5,858,122. The total average occupancy of the properties is reported to be more than 83 per cent.

JENS J. JENSEN TRADES FLATS FOR RESIDENCE

Jens J. Jensen, Chicago architect, has sold the nineteen apartment building at the southeast corner of Rosemont avenue and Rockwell street, lot 65x124, to Sydney J. Lumley for an undisclosed consideration. Mr. Lumley gave in part payment his ten room residence at the southwest corner of Green Bay road and Glenwood avenue, in Glencoe. The house stands on a lot 145x296. The Devon Realty company was broker for both parties.

Real Estate Department of H. O. Stone to Give Dance

A reception and dance will be given by the real estate department of H. O. Stone & Co. for its subdivision sales force on Oct. 15 at the Belden-Stratford hotel.

MELLODY FARM NOW CHANGING TO MELODY CLUB

Install Golf Course on Armour Lands.

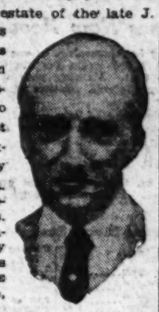
BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Mellody Farm, for many years the palatial country estate of the late J. Ogden Armour, is now in the hands of working men who are transforming it into one of the most luxurious and exclusive country clubs in America. Sale of the property by Mrs. Armour to a syndicate of wealthy Chicagoans was reported in THE TRIBUNE in June, 1928.



J. OGDEN ARMOUR.

A year later announcement was made that the 846 acre property was to be turned into a club—the membership in which was to be drawn from a selected few of the nation's millionaires and big business men. It was intimated that in addition to its social side the club was intended as a meeting place where big business could foregather in quiet while engaged in putting over important deals, or in consummating some of the gigantic mergers the vogue in the financial world.

An "L" Is Dropped.

And now herewith is the name of the organization—the Melody Farms Country club. The spelling of the name deserves some comment for it was only after years of effort that society and real estate editors were able to convince copyreaders and compositors that Mr. Armour's Mellody had two l's in it. The farm got its name in fact from Martin Mellody, one of five Irishmen from whom the packer bought the property comprising his estate. Now the new club comes along and drops an l, making it Melody—a procedure guaranteed to cause some confusion in editing circles.

In the work of transformation, the Armour mansion is to be left virtually as it is. The old house is in such good condition that is was found inexpedient to do anything much in the way of remodeling. Of fireproof construction, it is said that is would cost about $1,000,000 at present prices to replace it.

$100,000 Locker House.

H. V. Von Holst, architect, who is supervising the slight remodeling work and who designed a $100,000 locker house now under construction, speaks particularly of the music room occupying one wing. We'll have to take Mr. Von Holst's word as to the magnificence of this chamber. In the other wing Mr. Armour had a private office with a staircase going directly to the upper floors.

The lobbies and halls are spacious and fit in exactly with the club's needs. There are some ten guest bedrooms in the building—all being large. Others are to be provided. In the basement the wealthy guests are going to find equipment for bowling and billiards. One more thing about the house—a part of the plumbing is gold plated. Finally it was designed by Arthur Heun.

The locker house, which was designed by Mr. Von Holst to conform architecturally with the mansion, will accommodate 200. It is connected with the main building by means of a pergola.

Board of Governors.

An eighteen hole golf course is being laid out under the supervision of Root & Hollister, landscape architects. It is expected to have it ready for play next spring. Other features are to be announced later.

The board of governors of the club consists of the following well known Chicagoans: Alexander F. Banks, Britton I. Budd, R. Floyd Clinch, B. A. Eckhart, Charles F. Glore, John H. Gulick, Martin J. Insull, Samuel Insull, D. R. McLennan, Joseph E. Otis, Stuyvesant Peabody, Arthur Reynolds, George M. Reynolds, B. E. Sunny, and George Woodruff.

A meeting of the board is to be held shortly at which officers will be elected and bylaws adopted.

Rent-a-Book Shops Lease a Corner on Sheridan Road

The Rent-A-Book Shops, Inc., have leased the store at the northeast corner of Sheridan road and Dakin street from J. B. Waller and will open their third branch there. Arnold T. Linder & Co. were brokers.

INDUSTRIAL BUILDING CONTINUES TO KEEP AT A HIGH LEVEL

Building construction is swinging into the fourth quarter of the year under favorable auspices, says a nation-wide survey issued yesterday by the Indiana Limestone company.

"Despite a sluggish condition in many of the districts, the final quarter is entered with confidence that the year as a whole will be one of sustained, normal activity," says Vice President Thomas J. Vernia.

"Prosperity is reflected in the large volume of commercial and industrial construction so far this year. This type of building exceeds that of the first nine months of last year by approximately 25 per cent, although this has been somewhat offset by the decline in residential construction, the entire industry is progressing in a stable, orderly way.

"New building in America for the first nine months of the year approximates $5,125,000,000. This figure, based on preliminary reports from several hundred cities and towns, shows about an 8½ per cent recession from the same period last year.

"The government's program of tearing down cheap, hurriedly constructed war time buildings and replacing them with gigantic structures of stone and steel will maintain a vital building market for some time to come. Public utilities, too, will keep the industry going at a brisk pace.

"An analysis of building activity in September indicates a continuous decline in residential construction, with public utilities projects composing between 30 and 40 per cent of the month's program. Industrial and commercial buildings show a continued high level.

"In metropolitan New York construction reflects a somewhat spotty condition, although totals on the whole remain in excess of last year.

"Chicago's progressive spirit continues to find expression in the erection of lofty skyscrapers. Residential construction still represents about 50 per cent of the city's entire program. Strenuous efforts are being put forth to make Chicago the wonder city by the time of the World's Fair.

"Major building projects on the western coast rose to a new high point. Southern states, particularly Texas, reported a marked increase in building operations. Construction activity in the northwest maintains an even keel.

"An indice of valuation of building permits in twenty leading cities shows New York at the head, with Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Los Angeles, Boston, Houston, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Baltimore, San Francisco, Seattle, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Minneapolis, Buffalo, Indianapolis, Atlanta, New Orleans, following in the order named."

MRS. ZUKER PAYS $675,000 FOR FLAT BUILDINGS

Mrs. Hannah Zuker, wife of Samuel Zuker of 5329 Kenmore avenue, yesterday added to her prestige as being the largest woman holder of real estate in Chicago by purchasing two buildings, containing a total of 124 apartments, for a reported $675,000. This increases Mrs. Zuker's holdings to more than 1,500 apartments. She bought sixty-two flats at 512-20 Cornelia avenue and the same number at 517-25 Brompton place, from William Pickel. The Cochran-McCluer company was broker. Michael Gesas was attorney. Mrs. Zuker is the owner of the northwest corner of Clark and Madison.

NEW SECRETARY PLEADS CAUSE OF CLEANERS

Patterson Tells of Dyeing Worries.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Chicago needs the cleaning industry and the cleaning industry needs the confidence and respect of the citizens of Chicago, according to Clayton L. Patterson, the new secretary of the Chicago Master Cleaners and Dyers' association.

CLAYTON L. PATTERSON. [Mollett Photo.]

Mr. Patterson, who formerly was associated with the United States Chamber of Commerce, said there is perhaps no industry in Chicago that has been more frequently criticised by the public than the cleaning and dyeing industry. He pointed out that this condition is to be expected since the public knows less of the personnel and the processes of this industry than any other with which they come in contact.

"There is little romance connected with the dry cleaning business, and yet it contributes a large share to the health and happiness of the community through the prevention of disease," said Mr. Patterson.

Speaks of Dangers.

"Some women fail to realize the danger of cleaning garments in the home with inflammable liquids. State Fire Marshal Tracy of Iowa estimates that more than 300 women were burned to death in a year because of gasoline usage.

"We hear little complaint about the high cost of shaves or hair trims, shoe shines or laundry work, and yet the people of Chicago pay more for these services than in almost any other city in the country.

"Building costs are mounting each year, but cleaning costs are less today than they were ten years ago when labor in the cleaning plants was paid less than it is today.

"Chicago cleaners return the garment to you on a hangar, in a moth-proof bag, pressed and cleaned. Where out of town cleaners dry your garments on a clothes line, hung four deep, exposed to the weather, dirt and germs, Chicago cleaners dry these garments by machinery with superheated air which is both sanitary and safe."

Says Bankruptcy Nears.

Mr. Patterson said Chicago cleaners employ high grade union employés and guarantee them a work schedule of forty-four hours per week.

"The prices charged in Chicago for cleaning is far less than actual operating costs and cannot long be maintained," Mr. Patterson continued.

Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday, 20,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep.

Hogs lost most of the recent gain when week-end offerings exceeded requirements and led traders to expect moderately large receipts next week.

Arrivals at 6,500 were among the largest of the season for Saturday, with the proportion of directs smaller for the time of week. Losses of 10@20c were general, the average falling 15c at $9.55, while the top declined to $10.25, comparing with a top of $10.95 and average of $9.95 the previous Saturday. The range of prices was the narrowest in three weeks.

Continued large receipts of hogs for the time of year, coupled with the smaller eastern demand, sent prices to new low levels for the season during last week.

General Average Down.

The general average at $9.60 was lowest since week ending Feb. 2 and below any corresponding week since 1923. Arrivals at eleven leading centers during the week were 30 per cent larger than a year ago and nearly 35 per cent larger than two years ago.

The country is sending in more of the spring pig crop than is usual for this time of year, but quality keeps good and very little complaint is heard about the dressing of hogs. Average weights are running lightest since early in June, about the same as a year ago, when the movement was also early, and 10 lbs lighter than two years ago.

Buyers were well in control of the cattle market practically all week, and held prices at the lowest level in about seven months. The week's general average dropped to $12.00, lowest since March, being $1.10 under a year ago and 15c lower than two years ago.

This is the first time of the season that cattle have sold below the corresponding time in 1927. Six weeks ago cattle were averaging $2.45 above two years ago. Top steers stopped at $16.40 last week, against $16.75 the preceding week and $17.00 week ending Sept. 21.

Lambs on Upgrade.

After establishing the lowest price levels for nearly three years, lambs reacted on strong eastern support late in the week and finished about 50c above the low spot. The average for the week, at $12.10, however, is lowest since December 1926, and below any corresponding week since 1921.

There has been some improvement in the demand for fresh lamb, although prices are still 2@4c per pound lower than a month ago on the wholesale market. Sheep receipts are running 35 per cent smaller than a year ago. The season to date total of westerns is 15 per cent smaller than during 1928.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 20,000 cattle, 40,000 hogs, and 30,000 sheep, against 31,014 cattle, 45,127 hogs, and 20,981 sheep a week ago, and 17,211 cattle, 37,506 hogs, and 23,141 sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 56,000 cattle, 132,000 hogs, and 100,000 sheep, against 47,709 cattle, 131,016 hogs, and 105,632 sheep, a year ago.

OH MIN — BRING A PENCIL AND A PIECE OF PAPER —

LET'S YOU AND I SIT DOWN HERE QUIETLY — AND SEE WHERE OUR MONEY GOES — THERE'S A BIG LEAK SOMEWHERE —

LET'S GO OVER EVERYTHING — GET DOWN TO BRASS TACKS — FIND OUT WHERE THE LEAKS ARE — AND PATCH UP THE OLD SHIP

NOW FOR IN STANCE LET'S TAKE THE MEAT BILL FOR LAST MONYTH — HOW MUCH DID OUR MEAT COST US?

WELL YOU WANT STEAK FOR EVERY DINNER — YOU INSIST ON HAVING MEAT

I KNOW ALL ABOUT THAT — BUT I'M TRYING TO FIND OUT WHERE OUR MONEY GOES SO THAT WE CAN SAVE — ABOUT WHAT DO YOU THINK IT COST?

IF YOU WANT TO KNOW WHERE THE MONEY GOES — I PAID $19.00 TO YOUR CLEANERS THIS MORNING FOR YOUR CLOTHES

WELL THAT ISN'T WHAT I'M DRIVING AT — THAT'S ONLY A TRIFLE — I'M TRYING TO FIND OUT WHERE THE BIG MONEY GOES — WHY WE CAN'T SAVE —

I SPEND IT — I THROW IT OUT THE WINDOW — I WASTE IT — THAT'S WHERE THE MONEY GOES —

ARE YOU GOING TO LET ME EXPLAIN? IT WILL ONLY TAKE A MINUTE — AND QUIT BUTTING IN

I BUY DIAMONDS WITH IT — JEWELRY — PARTY GOWNS — I'M A THIEF —

WELL SAY WHAT YOU'RE GOING TO SAY THEN — SAY IT —

THAT ISN'T WHAT I SAID

THAT'S WHAT I'M TRYING TO SAY — WILL YOU LISTEN?

I'M NOT GOING TO BE BULLIED — INSULTED IN MY OWN HOME — SAY THAT I WASTE YOUR MONEY — JUST ONE MORE WORD —

SAY — I'M SIMPLY TRYING TO FIGURE OUT A WAY TO KEEP POVERTY FROM OUR DOOR — DO YOU WANT TO GO TO THE POOR HOUSE OR NOT?

YES

HELP!

The fashionable ensemble coat frequently terminates its career at the knees, as does this Worth coat of bronze green broadcloth with collar and revers of beaver fur. The broadcloth frock has unusual sunburst-tucked godets in its skirt, and collar and gilet of cream crepe georgette. The Worth hat is beaver-brown antelope with brown and orange suede flowers trimming it. An orange suede flower is on the left lapel of the coat. Gloves and slippers are beaver-brown to match the hat.

The smartest blues this winter will be those royal blues, the color of this new Lucien Lelong afternoon ensemble. The dress is of crepe de chine, and the royal blue velvet coat is laden with blue fox. The Maria Guy turban is royal blue felt.

Paris has coaxed the fall coat away from the straight and narrow silhouette. This Lucien Lelong afternoon coat of light chestnut broadcloth flares from below the hipline, and wears a good deal of chic on its oddly furred sleeves and halo collar of broadtail.

Divinely tall, and most divinely slim is the smart Parisienne after dark this fall. This Norman Hartnell evening frock of chartreuse green transparent velvet shows the new lengths which the silhouette attains. The accompanying coat of velvet is adorned with two green fox scarfs.

The Paris sophisticated siren this fall will be decked out like this. The black chiffon evening dress reaches to the ankles, and is very much ruffled. The short evening coat is of silver lame encrusted with all-over embroidery in white and green silk, and made even more opulent by the collar and bands of black fox. Model from Doeuillet-Doucet.

Here comes the autumn bride! Dressed by Norman Hartnell, who costumes most of the famous brides of the English aristocracy. He places a sleeveless, fitted coat, with a long train, over the white satin dress. This coat is made of vestal blue velvet. The halo headdress of pearls from which the veil hangs was first designed for the wedding ensemble of Lady Victoria Haig.

There'll be a rosy glow over the winter evening, this season, for pink is one of the smartest shades. This pink tulle dance dress from Norman Hartnell is embroidered all over its sixty-yard tulle skirt with silver, and also all over its half-yard bodice. The foundation is silver cloth.

Let Alice Adams Proctor Plan Your Children's School Day Meals

Famed dietitian gives here for first time recipes that tempt the children's appetites and fill nutrition needs

By ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

WHY do some children "get ahead" faster than others in school?

I firmly believe—and I've had my opinion confirmed by leading child experts—it is largely due to proper food.

After many years as a dietitian, I have learned that it is possible to control child health through diet by observing a few simple rules.

Children need, first of all, food that is wholesome and simple. Wholesome, so that it will supply the proper elements for growth of strong bodies and active, lively minds; and simple, so that the young digestive systems will not be overtaxed in assimilation.

With this thought in mind, I have prepared special dishes for school days that give children the lively energy that enables them to win. I offer you here several practical suggestions.

A Breakfast Menu

The first is a breakfast menu and contains the necessary food elements, properly balanced for the morning meal. You see this breakfast menu directly below, at the right. Here you have one dish, easy to prepare, and very appetizing. It should be preceded by a glass of orange juice for digestive aid. From this combination you get elements for growth, for body-building, for disease resistance.

This one dish, then, makes a complete meal that will keep the children's energy at full tide until the noon recess.

Luncheon Sandwiches

Then I offer you two sandwiches that can be made either for the noon-day luncheon at home, or to be carried to school in the lunch box.

These two recipes are given at the upper right. Both are easy to prepare, and you need have no fear that your youngsters are not getting the right food combinations when you give them these delicious, easily prepared sandwiches.

After-School "Snacks"

Now, mothers, for the children's after-school bite, I'm going to suggest some simple "snacks" that will save you a lot of trouble. You'll find several directly at the right. These sandwiches are so easy to prepare that the children can make them themselves, and you'll be saved the bother of interruption at your household tasks. Let the children read these recipes—see if they don't think it would be fun to try them!

And best of all, simple as they are, the magic qualities for health and growth are there!

CHILDREN'S LUNCHEON SANDWIC

Prune, Cream Cheese and Lettuce Sandwich

2 slices Wonder Bread (buttered); 4 cooked prunes, pi... ¼ package cream cheese; 2 leaves crisp, dry lettuce.

Spread one buttered slice of Wonder Bread with cr... cheese. Cut prunes in halves and lay upon cheese. P... lettuce leaves on top of prunes. Top with second pie... buttered Wonder Bread. Serve with a glass of milk.

ANOTHER LUNCHEON SANDWIC

Bacon, Tomato and Lettuce Sandwich

Place between buttered Wonder Bread slices, lettuce, ... slices of tomato and bacon. Mayonnaise if desired. Th... sandwich is good toasted also.

RECIPES FOR AFTE... SCHOOL SANDWICH...

(May be Prepared by Child

2 slices Wonder Bread, buttered; ... teaspoon brown sugar, or 1 ta... spoon jam or jelly, or 1 tablespo... peanut butter, or 2 crisp lettuce le... On one slice of buttered Won... Bread spread with brown sugar, ... with lettuce leaves and top w... second buttered slice of Won... Bread. This can be varied by u... jam, or jelly, or peanut butter a... ings, thus providing several diff... sandwiches.

Why I Recommend Wonder Bread

I recommend only Wonder Bread for use in these recipes, because I am sure of it. In my work with children I can take no chances.

I know that the ingredients used are Grade AAA! No finer can be bought. Double the usual amount of rich, nourishing, whole milk is used, and it is pasteurized twice. Specially milled short patent flour, made only from the nutritious heart of the wheat berry, is used; and nothing but purest cane sugar goes into this bread.

Then a unique slo-baking process is used by which the bread is baked slowly and carefully at an even temperature. This allows the center to rise thoroughly before the top becomes a delicate golden brown. Hence the bread is light in texture, delicately flavored, and is very easy to digest. It is the ideal food for children, supplying them, as it does, with the priceless gift of energy to carry them through childhood's hearty and exhausting days.

OVER THE RADIO—At 7:30 ov... Wednesday evening the Happy Wond... Bakers present the Wonder period ov... W L S and 27 associated stations o... the National Broadcasting Company. Tu... in and hear the famous Happy Wond... Bakers Trio, and their orchestra conduct... by Frank Black.

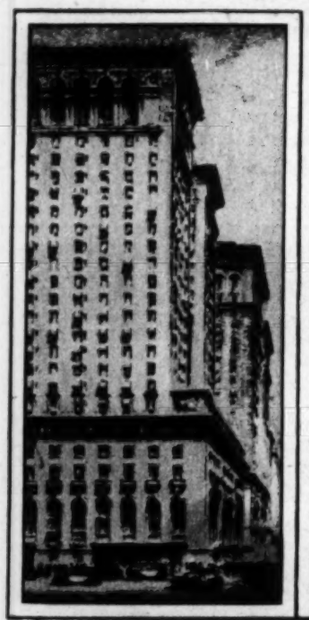
The Successful Bedroom Combines Comfort with Beauty at Moderate Cost

A CHARMING "EARLY AMERICAN" BEDROOM



BEDROOM IN COUNTRY house of Mrs. Charles R. Crane II at Lake Geneva, Ill., with flowered wallpaper, hooked rugs, white ruffled curtains and patchwork quilts. The furniture, which is all from Simmons, includes "Spool" Beds No. 1850, beautifully turned and finished. Mrs. Crane says, "The spool bed, quaintly appealing in any setting, is especially successful in the country house." Bed No. 1850 comes in walnut or antique maple, $37.50. Other Spool Beds from $28.00.

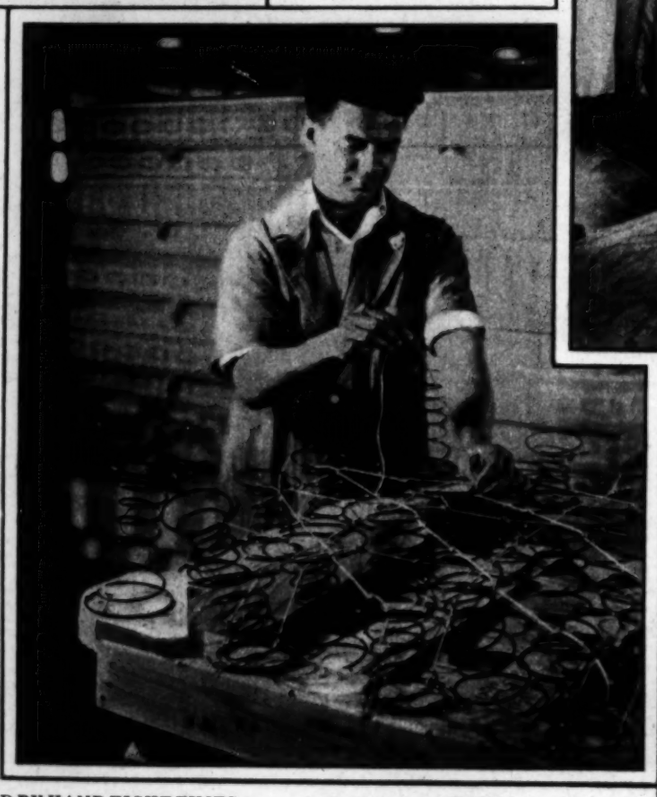
SUPERLATIVE COMFORT for guests of the Hotel Biltmore, New York. Frequented by connoisseurs in comfort, the Biltmore included in its equipment the best mattresses obtainable. But recently the management replaced 1300 good, older-type mattresses with 1300 Beautyrests, to give their guests the very best.

MRS. CHARLES R. CRANE II, a favorite member of Chicago's younger set. She spends much of her time at the Crane estate on Lake Geneva, where she entertains delightfully.

MRS. CHARLES CARY RUMSEY, the former Miss Mary Harriman, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman. Her fondness for French architecture is revealed in the splendid house she has recently had built on Long Island. It copies a French chateau and is filled with beautiful old French furniture.

THE "BLUE ROOM" IN MRS. CHARLES CARY RUMSEY'S French chateau on Long Island, is decorated in her favorite colors—blue, pink, and silver. The taffeta curtains are a lovely blue, a little deeper than the walls. Most harmonious with the French furniture are the Simmons Twin Beds No. 1581, in color pink to order. Stock colors, walnut or light emerald green, $32.75

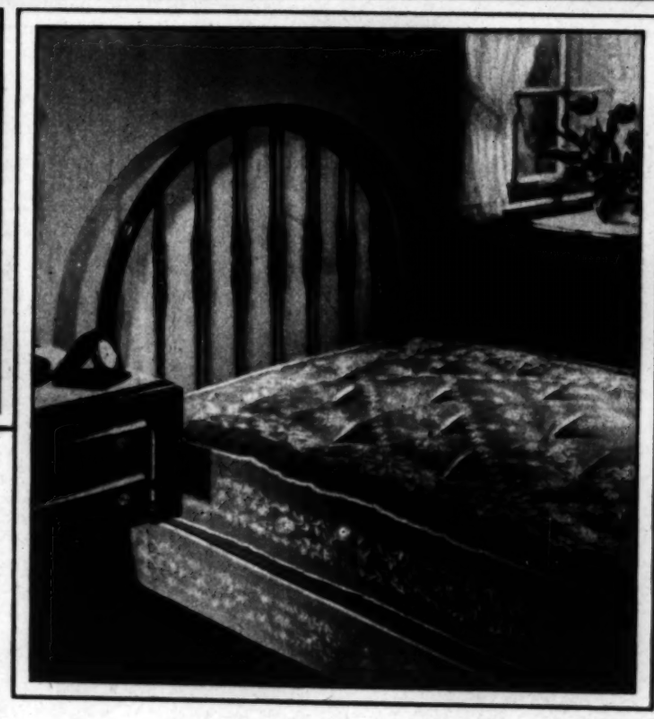
BABY KEEPS COMFORTABLE AND HAPPY IN HIS SIMMONS Crib, for it has been scientifically designed to support him properly so his little body can grow strong while he sleeps. Easily cleaned, silent, safe—in wood or metal, a variety of styles, springs included, $12.50 to $40.00.



TIED BY HAND EIGHT TIMES—a Simmons Ace Box Spring in the making. Each of the finely tempered wire coils is firmly secured by hand with strong Italian hemp. The frame is of seasoned lumber, steel braced. It is upholstered and covered with damask in patterns and colors to match the Beautyrest. Ace Box Spring, $42.50.

(Right)

IN THE HOME OF MRS. JOHN WANAMAKER III, of Philadelphia, Simmons Beautyrest Mattress and Ace Box Spring. Marvelously resilient, the Beautyrest is in nearly a million American homes where its comfort is equalled only by its good looks. Firmly boxed sides, taped edges and smart damask covers in a choice of two patterns and six pastel colors. Ace Box Spring is covered and finished to match. Beautyrest Mattress, $39.50.



QUAINTLY APPEALING IS THIS Windsor Bed from Simmons which Miss Mary Brown Warburton chose for her room in her Palm Beach home. Every detail of the room expresses her fastidious taste—a Louise Seize commode, French walnut tables, red and gold lacquered stools and arm chairs cushioned in jade silk. The walnut-finished Simmons Windsor Bed is in perfect harmony. Windsor Beds, $12 to $25.

INSIDE THE BEAUTYREST—A heart of finely tempered wire coils—hundreds of them in individual pockets—the secret of the Beautyrest's wonderful buoyancy. These coils, acting independently, distribute body weight perfectly. Extending to edges they are stitched to sides to keep them firm and uncrushable. Overlaid with thick upholstery, damask-covered.

RESILIENT, DURABLE, EASY TO CLEAN. Simmons Ace Open Coil Spring has hundreds of finely tempered coils, each cross-tied by small governor springs. Sides braced with stabilizers, a Simmons innovation to prevent side-sway. Ace Open Coil Spring, $19.75. Bed No. 1638, $29.50.

DOES YOUR CHIN-LINE TELL A TRAGIC STORY?

YOUR mirror answers this question with startling bluntness. Neglect, not age, is the great cause of that unsightly drooping of the underchin. A double chin makes any woman look old, no matter how young she may be in actual years.

But it is not necessary to develop a middle-aged chin-line, or to tolerate one already formed.

Dorothy Gray evolved simple, scientific treatments and preparations that have long proved remarkably successful in both preventing and correcting double chins. You can readily follow these treatments in your own home, for at leading shops in Chicago you will find the same Dorothy Gray preparations used in the Dorothy Gray salon.

Ask for the booklet, "Your Dowry of Beauty," which explains very clearly the Dorothy Gray method.

"We have the best reputation in town for Salad Dressings—thanks to you, Alphonse!"

"No, no, Monsieur—thanks to Mazola. It is like the finest imported oil and, better, it never becomes rancid."

"And what a saving Mazola means to us!"

MAZOLA SALAD DRESSING

|---|---|
| 1 egg | ¼ teaspoon paprika |
| 2 tablespoons sugar | ¾ cup vinegar |
| 1½ teaspoons salt | ¼ cup Mazola |
| 2 teaspoons dry mustard | 1 cup water |

4 tablespoons Argo Cornstarch

(All measurements should be level)

PUT egg, sugar, seasoning, vinegar and Mazola in mixing bowl, but DO NOT STIR. Make a paste by mixing the Argo Cornstarch with ½ cup water, add additional ½ cup water and cook over slow fire, stirring constantly until it boils and clears up.

Add hot cornstarch mixture to ingredients in mixing bowl and beat briskly with Dover egg beater. Cool before serving.

OF MRS. SNYDER'S
HOME-MADE CANDIES

TWENTY years ago—on October 7, 1909—Mrs. Snyder started selling candy in the rear of a peanut shop on State St. near Lake St. Since that time her Home-Made Candies have grown to first place in the hearts of Chicago's candy lovers and today are known from coast to coast for their wholesome goodness. You have to go no farther than to one of Mrs. Snyder's shops in order to discover why her candies have met with such outstanding success. Taste them. They have a flavor that bespeaks the personal interest of a faistidious candy critic. Making candy was an ideal with Mrs. Snyder way before she ever thought of selling candy, and she personally supervises the making of each piece today. That's why Mrs. Snyder's candies never tire the taste; that's why you ought to take a box home. There are 175 varieties, all made in her own kitchens. Mrs. Snyder invites you to visit any of her ten Loop shops and taste her candies.

Made in Paris

Not an unusual phrase, but applicable at Scholle's to distinctly unusual furniture—true reproductions of original examples of Louis XIV, XV and XVI suites which are now preserved in European museums. A handsome imported Louis XV upholstered bed, an escritoire and an Aubusson-covered easy chair, illustrated above, are shown in one of our furnished rooms on the second floor.

These rooms make a perfect setting for Scholle's unusual furniture, and are well worth a tour of inspection.

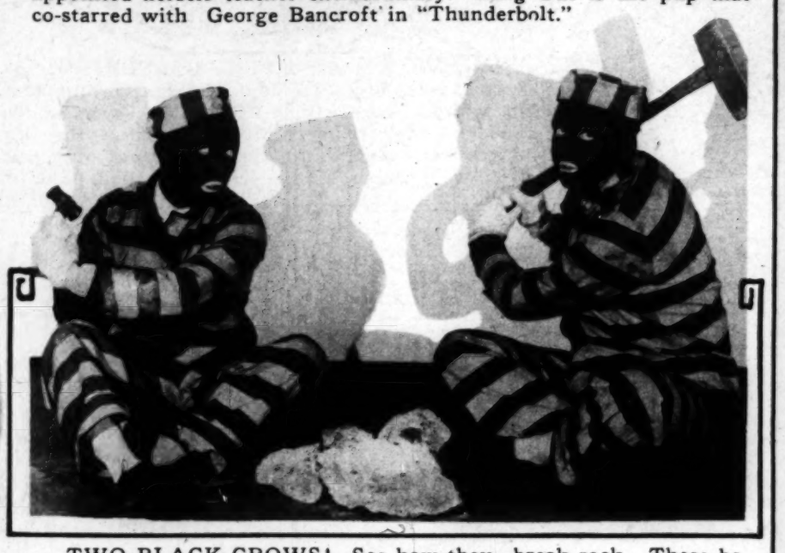
BEAUTY PRIZE WINNER
Miss Louise Wallis, who was awarded the title of "Miss Chicago" in the recent beauty contest, thinks nothing is so important to beauty as lovely hair. "Nothing," says Miss Wallis, "so adds to the beauty of one's hair, and the beauty of one's face, too, as a Lewis Stone permanent Wave. The picture shows one of Lewis Stone's newest wave creations. You, too, can add to your beauty, with either Stone's Superior permanent at $3.00, or Stone's Realistic permanent at $4.00. For your convenience, Lewis Stone has shops everywhere. 6 West Randolph St., entire 6th floor, corner State and Randolph Sts., phones Dearborn 2432 and Franklin 2890. Also shops at 1046 Wilson Ave., 2628 Lincoln Ave., 3958 West Madison St., 6306 S. Cottage Grove Ave., 11024 Michigan Ave.

LILLIAN ROTH is the "blues" singer you've heard a lot about, and she will be seen and heard in "The Vagabond King," which stars Dennis King and has been adapted to the screen from the stage production.

FAY WRAY has decided that this nice $50,000 canine actor, ritzily named King Tut, should be educated, and, as you see, she has appointed herself teacher extraordinary. King Tut is the pup that co-starred with George Bancroft in "Thunderbolt."



TWO BLACK CROWS! See how they—break rock. These be Moran and Mack, the famous "Two Black Crows" of the stage who are now making for Paramount an all-dialogue picture entitled "Why Bring That Up?" Note the size of the hammers.

SUCCESSFUL in musical comedy, Jeannette MacDonald will play the leading feminine role opposite Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade," Paramount's first original operetta. Here she is—and isn't she charming!

CONSTANCE BENNETT, daughter of Richard, has eschewed her marriage with a millionaire to go back to work and soon will be seen in a Pathe talking picture titled "Rich People." At the left you see her either about to go into or come out of the kitchen, where, in evening gown and apron, she probably has been just throwing a little cake together.

Sleep as you did In the Days of BEER

Many people, in old days, counted on a bottle of beer at bedtime for sound sleep. And they miss it. The sleep drinks which succeeded don't bring like results.

For those folks in particular we make Atlas Special Brew. As a malt-and-hop brew it is better than the best of old. Made by the same master brewers, with the same age, the same mellow flavor, the same sparkle and foam as of old.

It has the same barley malt, which so aids digestion: the same Bohemian hops which woo sleep. It has the same utter purity, so nothing is there to disturb the digestive tract. This purity is certified on every bottle by a famous laboratory.

Not Like Makeshifts

Atlas Special Brew has all the virtues of our old-time beer, save a smaller percentage of alcohol. We evaporate most of that. But that little alcohol was a small factor in beer.

It is not like "near-beer"—a quick, green beer made to imitate a taste. Not like home brews, so crude and impure that they combat sleep all night long. The best beer we brewed—and we brewed the best—did not excel Atlas Special Brew in all important factors.

Enjoy the New

Alcoholic beer is gone as a legitimate or quality product. But Atlas Special Brew, developed in its place, will never be forbidden.

You will find it like our old brews at their best, in all essentials. You could not tell the difference if both were served together. No difference in flavor, age, quality or zest. None in the good effects.

Atlas Special Brew is supplied by over 15,000 grocers, delicatessen stores and drug stores in Chicago and surrounding states. It is also served in most restaurants, hotels and clubs. It costs only 15c a bottle, much less by the case of 24 bottles, whether delivered direct to your door or from your neighborhood store. Be careful of the brand—Atlas Special Brew. If you should have any trouble getting it, write or telephone us for the name of your nearest dealer. Atlas Brewing Company, 2107 Blue Island Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Twenty Phones: Call Canal 6200 or Roosevelt 4500.

FILMDOM'S NEWEST CELEBRITY to be weaned away from the concert stage is John McCormack, found here with his daughter, Gwen, at Moore Abbey, County Kildare, Ireland. There the famous singer has been making the first scenes of a talking picture for which, 'tis said, he is to be paid $400,000.

The Picture of Health

HAPPY, healthy people. Children whose very complexions tell of health. Parents whose clear-eyed, carefree faces belie their age. Sometimes folks think this enviable state of health just "runs in the family." Often it's due to the friendly aid of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. There is no age at which the human system does not at times need an anti-acid. Magnesia is the most effective means of correcting over-acidity. Its most perfect form, according to physicians, is Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

Specialists put Phillips Milk of Magnesia in infants' milk and it never sours in the little stomach. They urge its use all through childhood for the gentle correction of digestive disorders and sluggish bowel action. A coated tongue or fetid breath, or other sign of biliousness, is the signal for a spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Its creamy, pleasant taste makes it ideal in such usage.

As one grows older, the value of this perfect anti-acid increases. It neutralizes many times its volume in acid, so there is never need to take anything harsher to sweeten a sour stomach. It is far more efficient than the cruder things some people still take for gastric disturbances. The quickest relief in any over-indulgence. And in the afternoon of life it guards the intestinal tract from auto-intoxication. For your system's sake get acquainted with Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Get the genuine prescriptional product — made only by Phillips.

In conjunction with Phillips Milk of Magnesia use Phillips Dental Magnesia. A single tube of this perfect toothpaste will convince anybody of its remarkable whitening action, and your dentist can tell you how it aids the gums.
